The Singer Still Triumphant!
At the Vienna Exhibition, the SINGER received the Medal of Merit, the Medal of Progress, and three other Medals for superiority of productions. These are the highest Sewing Machine Awards at Vienna. The SINGER received all the medals awarded to either of the competing machines, and two medals more than any other obtained. Then, in the name of Truth, what is it that prompts people to claim recommendations for the Diploma of Honor? The fact is, no Diploma of Honor has been given to any Sewing Machine Company.
But immeasurably more valuable is The World's Award as shown by sales—positively sworn returns to the owners of the principal Sewing Machine Patents—which last year amounted to TWO HUNDRED AND NINETEEN THOUSAND, SEVEN HUNDRED AND FIFTY-EIGHT (219,758) machines, nine out of ten of them being for Family Use. This is over 45,000 more Sewing Machines than were sold by any other company during the same period, and over One Quarter of all the machines sold in 1872. These enormous sales are owing to the long-tested merits of the Singer Machines, which meet the wants of the public in superiority and simplicity of construction, and capability for great variety and excellence of work. That the users of Sewing Machines find these desirable qualities in the Singer beyond all others, is shown by the sales of over double those of any other machine from the awards of International Juries, either at home or abroad.

"A New Thing Under the Sun."
SIXTEEN OIL PAINTINGS IN A BOOK!
Never before was such an idea attempted for book illustration; every one who has seen it pronounces it superb. Mrs. Harriet Beecher Stowe's latest work,
Woman in Sacred History,
is a series of narrative sketches, drawn from Scriptural, historical and legendary sources. ILLUSTRATED WITH SIXTEEN CHOICE OIL CHROMES, after paintings by the most celebrated artists in the world, giving a rich and magnificent variety of Oriental costume and beauty. Mrs. Stowe, in her charming style, has written a book full of interest, and without a dull page in it, which even if not illustrated would sell rapidly; but the
BRILLIANT OIL-COLOR PICTURES
make it one of the most unique, original and remarkable books ever offered. The pictures, if published separately, would readily sell for $2 each, or $32 while the entire book, with the sixteen pictures, together with sumptuous bindings of the volume, can be had for one-fifth of that amount. The book is published in ENGLISH and in GERMAN, and is making a tremendous

Ordinance No. 41.

Requiring Sidewalks to be Cleared of Snow.

Be it ordained by the City Council of the city of Portsmouth as follows:

SEC. 1. The occupants, or, if unoccupied, the owners, of all the buildings and lands situate within the city, shall keep the sidewalk adjoining their respective premises, in all cases where a sidewalk has been or may be constructed, free from snow, by causing the snow to be removed into the street and evenly spread, within six hours after the cessation of every fall thereof, or when the snow shall have blown or drifted upon the sid walk by the wind. The time herein allowed for the performance of the work to be computed from sunrise, the succeeding morning whenever the fall or snow shall have ceased in the night time.

SEC. 2. Any person disregarding or offending against the provisions of this ordinance shall, upon conviction thereof, forfeit and pay a fine not exceeding ten dollars for each and every offence, with costs of prosecution; and it shall be the duty of the Street Commissioner, under the counsel and direction of the Mayor, to cause this ordinance to be enforced.

Passed Dec. 21, 1874.

Ordinance No. 65,

In Amendment of Ordinance No. 41—Requiring Sidewalks to be Cleared of Snow.

Be it ordained by the City Council of the city of Portsmouth as follows:

That ordinance number forty-one, requiring sidewalks to be cleared of snow, be amended by adding to section one the following clause, viz.: That when any of said sidewalks are covered with ice, so as to make the passing dangerous, said owners or occupants shall spread over said sidewalk ashes, sand or salt in such a manner as to prevent the same from being dangerous.

Passed Jan. 19, 1869. n25-1m

'73 REUNION.

THE "HISTORY OF THE RETURN OF THE SONS & DAUGHTERS OF PORTSMOUTH, JULY, 1873," is just published. It contains 96 pages, octavo, and is a thorough detail of everything relating to the three Festal Days,

The Reunion, July 4th,
High School Reunion, 5th,
The Praise Meeting, 6th; and contains
Verbatim Report
of every speech that was uttered at the Tent on the 4th and 5th, besides giving a full report of all the Reunion preliminary movements in Portsmouth, Boston and New York. Much of the matter of this work has never yet appeared in any form, and we think it will prove interesting to all who participated in the Three Days' Jubilee.
The work is for sale at the Chronicle Office, J. H. Foster's Bookstore, and at Wm. R. Preston's

Daily Chronicle.

THE NEW YEAR'S STOCKING.

'Never crosses his t's nor dots his i's, and his n's and v's and r's are all alike!' said, almost despairingly, Mr. Simon Quillpen, the painstaking clerk of old Lawyer Latitat, as he sat late at night on the last day of the year, digging away at the copy of a legal document his liberal patron and employer had placed in his hands in the early part of the evening. 'Thank Heaven!' he added, laying down his pen, and consulting a huge silver bull's eye which he pulled from a threadbare fob, 'I shall soon get through this job, and then, hey for roast potatoes and the charming society of Mrs. Q!' And with this consolatory reflection, he resumed his work with redoubled energy.

Mr. Quillpen was a little man; not so very little as to pass for a phenomenon, but certainly too small to be noticed by a recruiting grenadier sergeant. His nose was quite sharp, and gave his wild, thin countenance, particularly as he carried his head a little on one side, a very bird-like air. He trod, too, gingerly and lightly, very like a sparrow or a tom-tit: and, to complete the analogy, his head being almost always surmounted by a pen, he had a sort of crested, blue-jay-ish aspect, that was rather comical. Quillpen had a very little wife and three very little children, Bob, Chiffy and the baby; the last the ultimate specimen of the ne plus ultra. It was well for them that they were so small, for Quillpen obtained his starvelihood by driving the quill for Mr. Latitat at four hundred dollars a year, to which Mrs. Quillpen added, from time to time, certain little sums derived from making shirts and overalls at the rate of about ten cents the million stitches.

Whether Mr. Latitat was able to pay more was a question that never entered the minute brain of Simon Quillpen; for he had so humble an opinion of his own merits, and was always so contented and cheerful, that he regarded his salary as enormous, and was wont playfully to sign little confidential notes Croesus Quillpen, and Girard Quillpen, and on rare convivial occasions would sometime style himself Baron Rothschild. But this last title was very rarely indulged in because it once sent his parsimonious crony, a chuckle-headed clerk in the post-office, into a cachinnatory fit which was 'rather in the apoplectic line.'

'To return to our muttons.' Simon dug away at his copying with an occasional reverential glance at a certain low oaken door, opening into the penetralia of this abode of law and righteousness, behind which oaken door, at that very moment, sat Mr. Lucius Latitat, either deeply engaged in the solution of some vast legal problem, or calculating the interest on an outstanding note, or consulting with chuckling delight a list of mortgages to be foreclosed.

Well—Quillpen finished his document, wiped his pen on a thick velvet butterfly, laid it in the rack above the ink, pushed back his chair from the table, withdrew the cambric sleeve from his right arm, and smoothed down his wristbands, having first put on his India rubber overshoes. The fact is, he was very anxious to get home, and he could not go without first seeing Mr. Latitat. The idea of knocking at Mr. Latitat's door on business of his own, never once occurred to him. He would do that for a client, but not for himself. So he ventured on a series of low coughs, and finding no notice was taken of them, he dropped the poker into the coalhod, the most daring act he had ever perpetrated. The slight noise thus produced crashed on his guilty ears like thunder or rather with the roar of a universal earthquake. Slight, however, as it was, it brought out Mr. Latitat from his interior

'What the deuce are you making such a racket for?' he exclaimed in tones that thrilled to the heart of his employee; then, without waiting for an answer, he slightly glanced at the table, and asked, 'have you got thro' that job.'

'Yes'm I mean, yes'r,' replied the quivering Simon.

'Well, then, you can go. I'm going myself. You blow out the lights and lock the room. And mind and be here early to-morrow morning. Nothing like beginning the New Year well. Good night.'

Mr. Latitat, sir!' cried Quillpen, with desperate resolution as he saw the great man about to disappear,—'please sir—could you let me have a little money to-night?'

'Why! what do you want of money?' retorted the lawyer. 'Oh! I's poor sir have a host of unpaid bills.'

'No sir; no sir, that's not it.'—Simon hastened to say. 'I hain't got nary bill standing. I pay as I go. Cash takes the lot!'

'None of your coarse, vulgar slang to me!' said Latitat. 'Reserve it for your loose companions. If not to pay bills, what for?'

'Please, sir,—we, that is Mrs. Q. and myself, want to put something in the children's stockings, sir.'

'Then put the children's leg in 'em!' said the lawyer with a grin. 'I make no payments to be used for any such ridiculous purposes. Good-night. Yet, stay—take this letter—there's money in it—a large amount—put it in the post-office with your own hands as you go home.'

'And you can't let me have a trifle?' gasped Simon.

'Not a cent!' snarled the lawyer; and he slammed the door behind him, and went heavily down the stairs.

'I wonder how it feels to punch a man's said Sim[illegible] he stood rooted to the spot where Mr. Latitat left him. 'It's illegal—it's actionable, there are fines and penalties provided by the statute; but it seemes as if there were cases that might justify the operation—morally. But then, again—what good would it do to punch his head? Punching his head wouldn't get me money—and if I was to try it on, finding that the licks didn't bring out the cash, I might be tempted to help myself to the cash, and that would be highway robbery; and when the punches ventured to suggest that, the puncher might be tempted to silence him. O Lord! that's the way these murders in the first degree happen: and I think that I was almost on the point of taking the first step. I really think I look a little like Babe, the pirate,' added the poor man, glancing at his mild but disturbed features in the glass; 'or like Captain Kidd, or leastways like Country McClusky—a regular bruiser.'

Sitting down before the grate and stirring it feebly with the poker, he tried to devise some feasible plan for supplying the vacuum in his treasury. He might borrow, but then all his friends were very poor and hard up—at this particular season of the year. The bull's-eye watch might have been 'spouted,' if he had foreseen this contingency; but every avuncular relative was now, at this hour of the night, snug abed to a dead certainty. Purchasing on credit was not to be thought of, and the only toy-shop which kept open late enough for his purchase, was kept by a man to whom he was totally unkown. Time galloped on meanwhile, and the half-hour struck.

'I'll slip that letter in the postoffice and then go home,' said Simon sorrowfully, rising as he spoke, and grasping his inseparable umbrella.

'Hallo! shipmate! where-away?' cried a hoarse voice. And Mr. Quillpen became aware of the presence of an 'ancient mariner,' enveloped in a very rough dreadnaught, and finished off with a large amount of tarpaulin and whiskers.

'I was going home, sir,' replied Simon, with the deferential air of a very little to a very big man.

'Ay—going to clap on hatches and deadlights. Well, tell me one thing—where, away may one find Mr. Latitat—a shore-going cove, a regular land-shark, d'ye see?'

'This is Mr. Latitat's office, sir,' said Simon.

'Ay,—and is he within hail?'

'No sir, he has gone home.'

'Slipped his cable—hey? just my luck! Well, one might snooze comfortably on this here table—mightn't he? You can clear out, and I'll take care of the shop till morning.'

'That would be perfectly inadmissable, sir,' said Simon, 'the idea of a stranger's sleeping here!'

'A stranger!' cried the sailor. 'Why, shipmate, do you happen to know who I am? Look at me! Don't you find somewhat of a family likeness to Lucius in my old weather-beaten mug? Why, man alive, I'm his brother,—his own blood brother! You must a heard him speak of me. Been cruising round the world in chase of Fortune, but could never overhaul her. Been sick, shipwrecked, and now come back as poor as I went. But Lucius has got enough for both of us. How glad he'll be to see me to-morrow, hey, old Ink and Taps?'

Simon had his doubts about that matter, but told the sailor to come in the morning, and see.

'That I will,' said the tar, 'and start him up with a rousing Happy New Year! But I say, shipmate, I don't want to sleep in the watch-house. Have you never a shilling about your trowsers?'

Simon answered that he hadn't a cent.

'Why! don't that brother of mine give you good wages?'

'Enormous!' said Simon.

'What becomes of it all?'

'I spend it all—I'm very extravagant.' said Simon, shaking his head. 'And then, I'm sorry to say, our brother isn't always punctual in his payments. To-night, for instance, I couldn't get a cent from him'.

'Then I tell you what I'd do, shipmate,' said the sailor, confidentially. 'I'd overhaul some of his letters. Steam will loosen a wafer, and a hot knife-blade wax. I'd overhaul his money letters and pay myself. Ha! ha! do you take? Now, that letter you've got in your fin, my boy, looks woundy like a dokiment chock full of shin-plasters. What do you say to making a prize of 'em? Wouldn't it be a jolly go?

'Stand off!' said Simon, assuming a heavy round ruler and a commanding attitude. 'Don't you come nigh me, or there'll be a case of justifiable homicide here. How dare you counsel me to commit a robbery on your own brother? I wonder you ain't ashamed to look me in the face.'

'A chap as has cruised as many years as a have in the low latitudes ain't afraid to look anybody in the face,' answered the 'ancient mariner' grimly. 'I made you a fair offer, shipmate, and you rejected it like a longshore jackass as you are. Good night to ye.'

Much to his relief the sailor took himself off, and Simon, after locking and double-locking his door, went to the post-office and deposited the letter with which he had been entrusted. As he lived a great way up on the Neck, he did not reach home until after all the clocks of the city had struck twelve, so that he was able to surprise his little wife, who was sitting up for him, with a 'Happy New Year!'

He cast a rueful eye at the line of stockings hung along the mantel-piece in the sitting-room, and then sorrowfully announced to his wife his failure to obtain money of Mr. Latitat.

'Here'll be nothing for the stockings, Meg,' said he, 'unless what the poor children put in ours.'

'I am very sorry,' said his wife, who took the announcement much better than he anticipated; 'but we'll have a happy New Year for all that.'

Simon's roasted potatoes were completely charred, he had been detained so late; but there was a little meal in the centre of each, and charcoal is not at all unhealthy. He went to bed, and in spite of his cares, slept the sleep of the just.

A confused babbling awoke him at daylight. Master Bobby was standing on his stomach, Miss Chiffy was seated nearly on his head, and baby was crowing in its cradle. Happy New Years and kisses were exchanged. 'Oh, dear papa and mamma!' cried Bobby, 'what a beautiful horse I found in my stocking!'

'And what a beautiful wax doll with eyes that move in mine,' said Chiffy,—'and such a splendid rattle and coral in baby's. Go, do go down and see what there's in yours.'

'This is some of your work, little woman,' whispered Simon to his wife. But the little woman denied it emphatically. Much mystified, he hurried down to the breakfast room. The children had made the usual offering of very hard and highly colored sugar plums; but in each of the two large stockings, stowed away at the bottom was a roll of bank-notes, five hundred dollars in each.

'Somebody wants to ruin us!' cried Simon, bursting into tears. 'This is stolen money, and they want to lay it on to us.'

'All I know about it,' said Mrs. Quillpen, 'is that last night, just before you came home, a sailor man came here with all these things, and said they were for us, and made me promise to put them in the stockings, as he directed, and say nothing about his visit to you.'

'A sailor!' cried Simon,—'I have it! I think I know who it is. Good-by—I'll be back to breakfast directly.'

Simon ran to the office, and found, as he anticipated, Mr. Latitat there before him.

A happy New Year to you, sir,' said he. 'Have you seen your brother?'

'I have not,' replied Mr. Latitat.

Simon then told him all that had happened on the preceding night; the apparition of the sailor—the temptation—the money found in the stockings, in proof of which he showed the thousand dollars, and stating his fears that they had been stolen, offered to deposit the sum in his employer's hands.

'Keep 'em shipmate, they were meant for you!' exclaimed Mr. Latitat, suddenly and queerly, assuming the very voice and look of the nautical brother of the preceding evening.

While Simon stared his eyes out of his head, Mr. Latitat informed him that he had no brother,—that he had disguised himself for the purpose of putting his clerk's long tried fidelity to a final test, and that, sustained triumphantly, had rewarded him in the manner we have seen. He told how, disgusted in early life by the treachery and ingratitude of friends and relations who had combined to ruin him, he had become a misanthrope and miser; how the spectacle of Simon's disinterested fidelity, rigid sense of honor, self-denial and cheerfulness, had won back his better nature, and he wound off, as he shook Quillpen warmly by the hand, by announcing that he had raised his salary to twelve hundred dollars per annum.

The good news almost killed Simon. 'Please your honor,' said he endeavoring to frame an appropriate reply,—'no—that ain't it—please your excellency—you've gone and done it—I was Baron Roth-child before and now—no—I can't tell what I am—it isn't in no biographical dictionary, and I don't believe it's in the Wealth of Nations?'

'Well, never mind,' said Latitat, laughing, 'go home and tell Mrs. Quillpen the office wont be open till to-morrow, and that I shall depend on dining with you all to-day.'

The Concord Monitor says:

A newspaper published in Boston, which professes to advocate the cause of temperance, but which is in reality the mouthpiece of a coterie of ambitious ex-clergymen—a newspaper that sponges a precarious livelihood by acting upon Shakespeare's advice "assume a virtue if you have it not," and by compelling its employes to take part of their compensation in the "stock" of the concern—speaks of the recent State Temperance Convention in the most insulting terms, for the reason that it recognized other methods of advancing the cause of intemperance than those of a legal nature.

We presume the Monitor refers to that model "temperance and business" concern, the News.

Sufferings of a New York Crew.

The London Telegraph of the 10th instant tells this tale of suffering at sea:

"The North German brig Calsow Stesow, a small vessel, not three hundred tons, left New York for Constantinople last August, and on the 24th of that month a hurricane struck her. She was taken unawares and went over on her beam ends, where she lay for an hour and a half, the crew lashed on her port bulwarks, unable apparently, to cut away the shrouds and stays. After the time named she relieved herself of everything but the lower masts, and righted; but she lay so low in the water with the waves which she had taken on board that the crew had to climb to the head of the foremast in order to avoid drowning by the 'green seas.' Laden with a buoyant cargo, the brig did not founder, but she wallowed to and fro in the trough of the sea, constantly washed by the billows, so that night and day the five hands surviving, with the captain and mate, had to cling for life to that foretop. Six nights and five days the poor fellows were kept in their hard plight, without a morsel to eat or a drop of water to drink the sea perpetually sweeping over, their deck, and roaring certain death at them if they tried to come down to find a scrap of nourishment.

"On the sixth evening, like a tiger that has howled itself to exhaustion at the foot of a tree, the fierce billows quieted, and the weak, cramped wretches—six days starved—crept down and 'rummaged' for food. They found a case of preserved meat, some wine, lime juice and beer, and it, 'helped them to live.' In spite of this and a little more which they afterward extracted from the soaked cabins, they had still a dreadful time to pass. There was no shelter, and nothing to be had to support life but an odd tin or two of provisions; and first the boy died, then the boatswain and afterward a sailor.

"For six days they had tasted nothing, and during ten days more the survivors had lived on the scantiest scraps, when a Spanish vessel the Amable Asuncion, came in sight. She boarded the waterlogged, mastless brig, and found upon her deck four living men, too weak to heave the dead ones into the sea—gaunt, speechless, famished creatures—too far gone to wave even a flag or handkerchief, though they saw the Spaniard and his signal. The Dons were kind and clever, and fed the poor creatures so carefully on board their bark that the fluttering spark of life burned up again, and captain, mate, carpenter and a seaman were saved and brought in fair condition to Vigo. But what bitterness is there in death which those poor souls had not tasted, alolt six days, night and day, in gnawing hunger above that howling, tiger-like sea; and, after the storm, starving more or less on the shelterless deck for another ten days, with the dead, who must have seemed so much more fortunate, lying among them."

A Pile of Postal Cards.

Tha Paper Mill Journal says that where the competition of postal cards has been most felt has been in their extensive use for circulars, for which they are specially fitted. It is safe to estimate one million postal cards as equivalent to the same number of half sheets of note paper of medium weight, or say three tons and one-eighth. This would make the total product to date as equal to about two hundred tons in round numbers, allowing for those which have not replaced any other written materials. This would barely equal the product of the nine mills at Holyoke for five days, and it is certainly not enough to cause any alarm For ourselves, we doubt if through the competition of postal cards the consumption of fine paper has been lessened one hundred tons, while we believe it has indirectly stimulated the consumption of the latter. In this connection we may state that the consumption of envelopes has not been affected by the introduction of postal cards, but that the four or five leading manufacturers are behind their orders.

Down She Goes.

[Worcester Gazette.]

The Virginius, to use the poetical language of Captain Cuttle, has "gone down to the bottom of the deep, salt sea." What an immense deal of trouble it would have saved had she been scuttled two months ago,—to say nothing of 53 lives lost and five millions spent on the American navy! Her disappearance below the surface is scarcely less mysterious than the sinking of the coal barge in front of the Brooklyn dry dock, just as the Spanish iron-clad Arapiles was about to come out.

—The editor of the "Personal" column of the Pittsburg Leader having been taken ill, a "sub" was put in his place, with orders not to be too personal. He evolved the following items from his inner conciousness and was immediately taken sick: Moses was a Jew-dicious man; Adam was a single man (at first); Eve never had to change her name; Noah had noadeah of ark-itecture as applied to water-works; Eve was the first woman who presented an application for a husband.

—A 600-ton vessel has got both anchors in the telegraph cable in the Strait of Canso, and the captain offers to cut his chains for $4000, or on condition of receiving new anchors and $30 a day demurrage while waiting for them. As he would break the cable in hoisting his anchors, the telegraphic company will probably give him anchors, chains and demurrage.

Business Notices.

The remarkable cures effected by VEGETINE have induced many physicians and apothecaries, whom we know, to prescribe and use it in their own families.

It is impossible to ignore these terrible nameless diseases that annually sweep so many hapless victims into the grave. We are compelled to recognize them, and it is the Good Samaritan's duty to try and cure them. HELMBOLD'S BUCHU stands unrivalled for all such diseases. Get the genuine, which has the proprietor's private proprietary stamp. Beware of counterfeits. For sale by all druggists.

The great PILE remedy, ANAKESIS, the discovery of Dr. Sibbese, is entitled to be called the wonder of the age. 30,000 grateful sufferers bless the only infallible remedy for PILES ever introduced. Only those who have used lotions, ointments and internal remedies in vain, will understand the grateful feeling of instant relief from pain, and blissful hope of certain cure for the terrible disease, that ANAKESIS assures. It is used by Doctors of all schools. —Price $1.00. Sold by Druggists everywhere. Depot, 46 Walker st., New York.

The United States Dispensatory, standard and most excellent authority, says: "Pills are much better preserved in glass bottles than in the common wood or pasteboard boxes, and should always be dispensed in glass by the apothecary." If you would use medicine superior, not only in being preserved fresh and perfect by compliance with this very important rule, but also in being composed of choice, concentrated and chemically refined vegetable medicinal principles, instead of crude, bulky, cheap drugs, that constitute the huge pills put up in cheap wood or paper boxes, then take Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Purgative Pellets, or Concentrated Root and Herbal Juice, Anti-Bilious Granules, 25 cents a vial, by druggists.

A Manual of Health.

The edition for 1874 of the sterling medical annual known as Hostetter's Almanac is now ready, and may be obtained, free of cost, of druggists and general country dealers in all parts of the United States and British America, and indeed in every civilized portion of the Western Hemisphere. This Almanac has been issued regularly at the commencement of every year for about one-fifth of a century. It combines with the soundest practical advice for the preservation and restoration of health, a large amount of interesting and amusing light reading, and the calendar, astronomical calculations, chronological items, &c., are prepared with great care, and will be found entirely accurate. The issue of Hostetter's Almanac for 1874 will probably be the largest edition of a medical work ever published in any country. The proprietors, Messrs. Hostetter & Smith, Pittsburg, Pa., on receipt of a two cent stamp, will forward a copy by mail to any person who cannot procure one in his neighborhood.

Old Probabilities. Our learned friend, who sits at Washington, and receives, from the signal stations of a continent, reports on the vicissitudes of the weather, sorts, compares and infers from them the daily bulletins which everybody reads, might reasonably add, in view of our late sudden changes, "Colds, Coughs and affections of the throat and lungs will prevail in the East and North. Warning signals continue in the West and South." In view of the truth of these probabilities, we commend to all sufferers that excellent and potent specific, Ayer's Cherry Pectoral. It has, in countless instances, saved life, and has, within the knowledge of every one, alleviated most alarming symptoms and effected cures almost surpassing belief. So excellent is it that the medical faculty largely use it in their practice. In cases of seated consumption, it prolongs life and softens the stay of the afflicted sufferer. About these days it is well to have it in the house. By its timely use, serious disease may be checked and turned aside.—Nashua (Iowa) Post.

Mechanics' Association.

The Association moved into their new building yesterday. The dedication of the new hall will take place this evening. Tables will be spread for three hundred persons, and the collation will be served promptly at 7 o'clock, after which there will be an address by Hon. Marcellus Bufford. Some "machine" verses will also be read. The exercises will take place while those present are seated at the tables. Some fine music is expected. We are desired to state that members can receive their tickets any time to-day or evening at the new reading rooms.

If you must write for the papers, boil yourself down, as it were.

Great perspicacity (see dictionary) of vision is necessary to predict that 1874 will be much of a success over poor old '73.

The dealers did not exhaust their stocks in Christmas sales but are prepared to do a brisk New Year's business. Read their advert sements.

The Portsmouth Times has an editorial favoring the nomination of Albert R. Hatch, Esq., as the democratic candidate for Governor; but the Concord Patriot says that "no man should be allowed to push himself to the front who is in any way obnoxious, and who will not command the full strength of the party."

Now the sleigh bells jingle right merrily along the snow covered roads and the tender swain with loved one by his side drives happily on in the exhilarating starlight, and whispers to her softly of speedy nuptials and a blest domestic home, and borrows five dollars of the loved one's brother to pay for the team.

In case Rev. Warren H. Cudworth should decide to postpone his lecture before the lyceum next Tuesday evening, arrangements have been completed with Messrs. Robert B. Palfrey, J. Albert Sanborn and others to furnish instead an amateur dramatic entertainment, bringing out "Poor Pillicoddy" and "The Widow's Victim." We understand that Miss Flora M. Fitts has consented to appear again in the part in which she made such a decided "hit" two years ago. We do not hesitate to say that the entertainment will give satisfaction to the ticket-holders.

The Salem Gazette says: The old seaports of New England are probably among the healthiest places in the world, for those whose lungs are strong enough to resist the harsh and bracing atmosphere. A man recently died in New Bedford whose age rivalled that of our Dr. Holyoke; and the Mercury, believing that there remains nearly a score of residents in the city who have passed their ninetieth year, says that men live longer and grow old more slowly than anywhere else in the country. The same thing has been said about the inhabitants of Salem, and doubtless might be, with truth, of Newburyport and Portsmouth.

Referring to the coroner's verdict in the Kennebunkport accident, the Biddeford Times is led to remark that the public will be surprised to learn of such "recklessness" on the part of Engineer Morrison and Conductor Pettee of train F as to induce them to risk their lives in an attempt to push train W off the track. To say the least of it, the engineer and conductor of train E must have been considered reckless enough to risk property, the lives of others and their own lives in an attempt to drive W out of the road, to justify the verdict as to them. So far as Mr. Wing is concerned, we have seen or heard of no evidence as yet to justify so sweeping a charge. Train W was evidently considered as punished enough already.

The Centenarian.

The Great Falls Journal man has paid a visit to Miss Hannah Worster, the centenarian of Berwick, who was 101 years old Saturday last, and gives the result of that visit. Miss Worster lives in a small old-fashioned house with her sister Miss Patty Worster, who is 85 years of age, near the residence of Mr. Worster. It is the old homestead, and here she was born and has lived for one hundred and one years. She appears to be in the enjoyment of perfect health, has never taken any particular care of her health and has never been troubled with sickness of any consequence; has always drank tea and coffee with her food, and enjoys a good cup of tea now as well as ever, though she does not drink it very strong. She has never taken snuff or used tobacco in any form, and believes it to be "poor business for any one." She has a remarkable clear voice, articulates every word distinctly, and has sound front teeth. She seems to take pleasure in telling things that happened five and ninety years ago, and remembers well how she watched at the window for the return of her father from the revolutionary war. She remembers, though she was only eight years of age at the time, the dark day, May 19th, 1780, and said it commenced to grow dark in the middle of the forenoon. Candles were lighted, hens went to roost, and all day long the darkness continued.

She has seen the cars, but never rode in them. She said she was like the man who was telling how much he had traveled: "He had been to Portsmouth by water and to Dover by land," and so had she. Her smooth features and pleasant countenance indicate a jovial disposition, and many of her remarks are witty. She has a good appetite. She sits up usually from 10 in the morning until after dark, and sometimes does not retire until 9 o'clock. She chats and laughs heartily. She remembers perfectly well Jonathan Dorr of Lebanon, Me., who, when he was nine years of age, went out into the field with his father, and, as Indians were prowling about, his father put a feather in his hair to give him an Indian appearance and sat him on the wall to watch and give warning of the approach of any of the red men. An Indian was near and stole little Johnny from the wall, and for over twenty years the boy lived with the Indians, who called him Mardin Whitebone. He returned to Lebanon, found his relatives, and was married, and Miss Worster said she had seen him many times and heard him relate his experience during his stay among the red men of the forest. Miss Worster's sister, Miss Patty, who lives with her, is also a very smart old lady, and we do not believe there can be found two happier persons than these old ladies appear to be.

A Grateful Horse.

A curious incident occurred at Messrs. Williams & Cassidy's coal yard, at the Covington depot, a few days ago. An old black horse had just been driven into the yard, hitched to a watering cart. The belly-band, an antiquated concern, gave way in an attempt to back the cart to its place. The water being heavier than the horse, the consequence was that as the cart dropped and the shafts rose, the horse went with them, hanging by his neck, his hind feet two or three feet from the ground. The animal struggled and kicked in terror, evincig as decided a disinclination to die by hanging as a human being would have done in a similar situation. His eye-balls became extended in the excess of his fear, and froth stood upon his lips. He was rescued from his dangerous situation after much trouble. When he touched the ground, the poor beast stood for a moment apparently bewildered, carried away, perhaps, by the exc ss of his emotions at his fortunate release. Recovering himself, however, he looked round upon his rescuers, and approaching them, quietly rubbed his nose against the shoulder of one of them. He was given a bucket of water, after which he drew a deep breath and allowed himself to be left to his stall.

HALL'S VEGETABLE SICILIAN HAIR RENEWER!

This standard article is compounded with the greatest care.

Its effects are as wonderful and satisfactory as ever. It restores gray or faded hair to its youthful color.

It removes all eruptions, itching and dandruff; and the scalp, by its use, becomes white and clean.

By its tonic properties, it restores the capillary glands to their normal vigor, preventing baldness and making the hair grow thick and strong.

As a dressing, nothing has been found so effectual or desirable.

Dr. A. A. Hayes, State Assayer of Massachusetts, says of it: "I consider it the best preparation for its intended purposes."

BUCKINGHAM'S DYE,

FOR THE WHISKERS.

This elegant preparation may be relied on to change the color of the beard from gray or any other undesirable shade to brown or black, at discretion. It is easily applied, being in one preparation, and quickly and effectually produces a permanent color, which will neither rub nor wash off.

MUSICAL ANNOUNCEMENT.

MR. EDWARD DE O. NORTON, formerly of Boston, late of Chicago, would inform the musical public that in the future orders for tuning, regulating and repairing Pianos and Organs may be left at MONTGOMERY'S MUSIC STORE, Market street. I should be happy to show my musical public that, with all the materials for work, and a thorough practical knowledge, both of music and mechanics, instruments neglected or pronounced by tuners desiring to get large jobs, difficult or costly to be repaired, that there can be scientifically, and in a comparatively little cost, made nearly as good as new by the judicious outlay of material and labor. I have duplicates of all parts of the principal makes of instruments, so that if any part is broken or lost, it can be replaced at a small outlay, and be far superior to the jack-knife repairs of very, too often done by irresponsible traveling tuners. I have opened rooms for the special purpose of repairing and being a resident tuner, offer advantages which I believe the public will not be slow to appreciate. Orders from out of town attended to with promptness. Old instruments bought and sold, or taken in part pay for new.

As my business requires my whole attention at the store, I am obliged to relinquish tuning, and would recommend my customers to Mr. E. De O. Norton, a competent and faithful tuner, who will attend promptly to all orders.

CATARRH!

A Woman Having Catarrh 35 Years, Cured.

And Droppings in Throat, Choakings, Stranglings, Pains in the Side, Loins, Headache, Dizziness, and General Weakness, Cured by less than Three Bottles of the

CONSTITUTIONAL CATARRH REMEDY.

TO MESSRS. LITTLEFIELD & CO., Proprietors of Constitutional Catarrh Remedy, Manchester, N.H.:

I reside at Manchester N., H., and previously resided at Henniker, and am a native of Weare, this State. I have had Catarrh for over 35 years, ever since I was 19 years old; had it bad all the time. It run all that period, and nights it would fill up and drop down in my throat, causing a feeling of choking, so that I would spring up in bed to save myself from strangulation. It affected my head so that I felt confused, and was troubled with severe headache at intervals, for a week at a time. I also had bad pains in shoulders, back and kidneys, from which I suffered immensely. So bad were they, that a year ago last summer I was obliged to lie in bed most of the time for three months. I have tried all kinds of snuff and Catarrh remedies with no particular benefit, and consulted physicians. I had a backing cough. I began to take the Constitutional Catarrh Remedy last August. I began to grow better before finishing the first bottle. I am now on the third bottle. My Catarrh is cured; my health is restored. I have no pains, aches, or cough. My whole system is made over new. I know it is this medicine that has rescued me from intense suffering and almost the grave. I am now able to do the hardest work and bear the greatest exposure, and feel that I cannot say too much in favor of the Constitutional Catarrh Remedy.

MRS. E. J. FLANDERS.

Manchester, N. H., Feb. 1, 1873.

I am now 55 years old, have had Catarrh ever since I was eighteen years old, and headache all the time; have suffered beyond description with running at the nose, droppings in the throat, choakings and stranglings. Have tried any quantity of Catarrh Remedies, but have found no relief till I tried your Constitutional Catarrh Remedy, six months ago. I found immediate relief.

Catarrh and all its attendant evils have left, Headache, Pains in Loins and Back, Dizziness, Loss of Appetite, and General Weakness. Less than three bottles of Constitutional Catarrh Remedy have cured me. I have not been so well since I can remember as now. I feel as if I could not say too much for the medicine, or thank God too heartily that through its instrumentality I have been restored to health.

AYER'S SARSAPARILLA,

FOR PURIFYING THE BLOOD.

This compound of the vegetable alteratives, Sarsaparilla, Dock, Stillingia and Mandrake with the iodides of Potassium and Iron makes a most effectual cure of a series of constitutional diseases. Eruptions of the skin are the appearance on the surface of humors that should be expelled from the blood. Internal derangements are the determination of these same humors to some internal organ, or organs, where upon they derange, and where subsistence they disease and destroy. AYER'S SARSAPARILLA expels these humors from the blood. When they are gone, the disorders they produce disappear, such as Ulcerations of the Liver, Stomach, Kidney, Lungs, Eruptions and Sores, Blotches of the Skin, St. Anthony's Fire, Rose or Erysipelas, Pimples, Pustules, Blotches, Boils, Tumors, Tetter and Salt Rheum, Scald Head, Ringworm, Ulcers and Sores, Rheumatism and Neuralgia, Pain in the Bones, Side and Head, Female Weakness, Sterility, Leucorrhœa, arising from internal ulceration and uterine disease, Dropsy, Dyspepsia, Emaciation and General Debility. With the departure, health returns.

The Burlington (Iowa) Daily speaks of a couple "resolving themselves into a committee of two, with power to increase the number."

The Cleveland Plaindealer asks: "Does Tweed hold a trump card?" We cannot say, but there is no doubt but Blackwell's Island holds a "knave."

The Austin (Iowa) Independent offers to take clean shirts on subscription. This is shittingly considerate, and we hope the subscribers will not dashirt such a modest editor.

"Eighty-eight young ladies in Minnesota have banded together and agreed not to marry any man who uses tobacco in any form." Now let the young men refuse to marry any young lady who uses cotton in any "form."

Keenan, of the Indianapolis Sentinel, has been refused admittance to a hook and ladder company, because his feet are so large he can't get them into the ladders. He has to put his pantaloons on over his head.

"Nickles," of the Springfield Republic, after unsuccessfully trying to "explain" to his wife, picked up the broom, tenderly felt the lump on his head, and sadly soliloquized: "The only sure way to keep one's name out of the police reports is to refrain from breaking the laws."

The P. and P. man of the St. Louis Journal says: "The Fresh Currents man of the Cincinnati Times apologizes for a vile pun by saying that he must keep his end up. Why don't he stand upon his head?" Rush of brains to that locality is what ails us already; and, besides that, whole doing this, any way?

IRON IN THE BLOOD.

DYSPEPSIA, DEBILITY, DROPSY AND RUMORS.

PERUVIAN SYRUP

Makes The Weak Strong.

The Peruvian Syrup, a Protected Solution of the Protoxide of Iron, is so combined as to have the character of an ailment, as easily digested and assimilated with the blood as the simplest food. It increases the quantity of Nature's Own Vitalizing Agent, Iron, in the blood, and cures "a thousand ills," simply by Toning up. Invigorating and Vitalizing the System. The enriched and vitalized blood permeates every part of the body, repairing damages and waste, searching out morbid secretions, and leaving nothing for disease to feed upon.

This is the secret of the wonderful success of this remedy in curing Dyspepsia, Liver Complaint, Dropsy, Chronic Diarrhœa, Boils, Nervous Affections, Chills and Fevers, Humors, Loss of Constitutional Vigor, Diseases of the Kidneys and Bladder, Female Complaints, and all diseases originating in a bad state of the blood, or accompanied by debility or a low system. Being free from Alcohol, in any form its energizing effects are not followed by corresponding reaction, but are permanent, infusing strength, vigor, and new life into all parts of the system, and building upon an iron Constitution.

Thousands have been changed by the use of this remedy, from weak, sickly, suffering creatures to strong, healthy, and happy men and women; and invalids cannot reasonably hesitate to give it a trial.

See that each bottle has PERUVIAN SYRUP blown in the glass.

AMERICAN & FOREIGN PATENTS.

R. H. EDDY, SOLICITOR OF PATENTS.

For Inventions, Trade Marks or Designs.

No. 78 STATE ST., OPPOSITE KILBY ST., BOSTON.

After an extensive practice of upwards of thirty years, continues to secure patents in the United States; also in Great Britain, France and other foreign countries. Caveats, Specifications, Assignments, and all papers for Patents executed on reasonable terms with dispatch. Researches made to determine the validity and utility of Patents of Invention, and legal and other advice rendered in all matters touching the same. Copies of the claims of any patent furnished, by remitting one dollar. Assignments recorded in Washington.

No Agency in the United States possesses superior facilities for obtaining Patents or ascertaining the patentability of inventions.

All necessity for a journey to Washington to procure a Patent and the usual great delay there, are here saved inventors.

TESTIMONIALS.

"I regard Mr. Eddy as one of the most capable and successful practitioners with whom I have had official intercourse. CHARLES MASON, Commissioner of Patents."

"I have no hesitation in assuring inventors that they cannot employ a man more competent and trustworthy and more capable of putting their applications in a form to secure for them an early and favorable consideration at the Patent Office. EDMUND BURKE, Late Commissioner of Patents."

"MR. R. H. EDDY has made for me over THIRTY applications for Patents, having been successful in almost every case. Such unmistakable proof of great talent and ability on his part leads me to recommend ALL inventors to apply to him to procure their Patents, as they may be sure of having the most faithful attention bestowed on their cases and at very reasonable charges. JOHN TAGGART."

COAL.

HAVING contracted for a quantity of the above coal, we would call the attention of Manufacturers, Dealers and Consumers to the following different grades mined and controlled by the Company:

HARD WHITE ASH COAL,
FREE BURNING WHITE ASH COAL,
SHAMOKIN WHITE ASH COAL,
SHAMOKIN RED ASH COAL,
NORTH FRANKLIN COAL,
LYKENS VALLEY COAL.

In order that all coal shall be shipped in good order, a most rigid system of inspection, both at the mines and at the shipping ports, will at all times be enforced. In every district of the coal region there will be appointed a number of competent persons skilled in the preparation of coal, as local inspectors, whose duty it will be to visit the several collieries daily to see that a proper force is at all times employed in removing slate, and to prevent, if possible, any coal being sent from the mines in bad order. In addition to these efforts at prevention, no means will be left untried at the shipping ports to cure the evils of careless preparation. At Schuylkill Haven, Port Clinton and Port Richmond, ALL COAL WILL BE SUBJECTED TO THE PERSONAL EXAMINATION OF A SKILLED INSPECTOR BEFORE IT IS SHIPPED, and it condemned by him, will be dumped in places provided for the purpose, and before being loaded into vessels WILL BE THOROUGHLY REPICKED AND CLEANED BY HAND.

We keep a fine stock of the above coal on hand, also

SPLENDIDLY ILLUSTRATED.

NOTICES OF THE PRESS.

The Weekly is the ablest and most powerful illustrated periodical published in this country. Its editorials are scholarly and convincing, and carry much weight. Its illustrations of current events are full and fresh, and are prepared by our best designers. With a circulation of 100,000, the Weekly is read by at least half a million persons, and its influence as an organ of opinion is simply tremendous. The Weekly maintains a positive position, and expresses decided views on political and social problems.—Louisville Courier Journal.

Harper's Bazar.

NOTICES OF THE PRESS.

The BAZAR is edited with a contribution of talent and taste that we seldom find in any journal; and the journal itself is the organ of the great world of fashion.—Boston Traveller.

The BAZAR commends itself to every member of the household—to the children by droll and pretty pictures, to the young ladies by its fashion-plates in endless variety, to the provident matron by its patterns for the children's clothes, to good humanities by its tasteful designs for embroidered slippers and luxurious dressing-gowns. But the reading-matter of the BAZAR is uniformly of great excellence. The paper has acquired a wide popularity for the fireside enjoyment it affords.—N. Y. Evening Post.

PROSPECTUS FOR 1874—SEVENTH YEAR.

THE ALDINE,

An Illustrated Monthly Journal, universally admitted to be the handsomest Periodical in the world. A Representative and Champion of American Taste.

NOT FOR SALE IN BOOK OR NEWS STORES:

THE ALDINE, while issued with all the regularity, has none of the temporary or timely interest characteristic of ordinary periodicals. It is an elegant miscellany of pure, light and graceful literature, and a collection of pic ures, the rarest specimens of artistic skill, in black and white. Although each succeeding number adds a fresh pleasure to its friends, the real value and beauty of THE ALDINE will be most appreciated after it has been bound up at the close of the year. While other publications may claim superior cheapness, as compared with rivals or a similar class, THE ALDINE is a unique and original conception—alone and unapproached—and likely to beat competition in price or character. The possessor of a complete volume cannot duplicate the quantity of fine paper and engravings in any other shape or number of volumes FOR TEN TIMES ITS COST; AND THEN, THERE ARE THE CHROMOS, BESIDE!

ART DEPARTMENT, 1874.

The illustrations of THE ALDINE have won a world-wide reputation, and in the art centres of Europe it is an admitted fact that its wood cuts are examples of the highest perfection ever attained. The common prejudice in favor of "steel plates," is rapidly yielding to a more educated and discriminating taste which recognizes the advantages of superior artistic quality with greater facility of production. The woodcuts of THE ALDINE possess all the delicacy and elaborate finish of the most costly steel plate, while they afford a better rendering of the artist's original.

In addition to designs by the members of the National Academy, and other noted American artists, THE ALDINE will reproduce examples of the best foreign masters, selected with a view to the highest artistic success and greatest general interest. Thus the subscriber to THE ALDINE will, at a trifling cost, enjoy in his own home the pleasures and refining influences of true art.

The Christmas issue for 1874 will contain special designs appropriate to the season, by our best artists, and will surpass in attractions any of its predecessors.

PREMIUM FOR 1874.

Every subscriber to THE ALDINE for the year 1874 will receive a pair of chromos. The original pictures were painte in oil for the publishers of THE ALDINE, by Thomas Moran, whose great Colorado picture was purchased by Congress for ten thousand dollars. The subjects were chosen to represent "The East" and "The West." One is a view in The White Mountains, New Hampshire; the other gives The Cliffs of Green River, Wyoming Territory.

If any subscriber should indicate a preference for a figure subject the publishers will send "Thoughts of Home," a new and beautiful chromo, 14x 20 inches, representing a little Italian exile whose speaking eyes betray the longings of his heart.

TERMS.

$5 per annum, in advance, with Oil Chromos free.

For 50 CENTS EXTRA, the chromos will be sent, mounted, varnished, and prepaid by mail.

THE ALDINE will, hereafter, be obtainable only by subscription. There will be no reduced or club rate; cash for subscriptions must be sent to the publishers direct, or handed to the local canvasser, without responsibility to the publishers, except in cases where the certificate is given, bearing the fac-simile signature of JAMES SUTTON & CO.

CANVASSERS WANTED.

The Country Gentleman.

Volume for 1874.

THE CULTIVATOR & COUNTRY GENTLEMAN, for the past forty years, has ranked, both in this country and abroad, as the STANDARD JOURNAL OF AMERICAN AGRICULTURE. The Editors and Proprietors, in addition to their own personal labors, are regularly assisted by a very large number of Special Correspondents and Regular Contributors, among whom are included many Leading Agricultists, in all parts of the Country, East and West—and by over Five Hundred Occasional and Voluntary Writers, directly in the ranks of the Best Farmers and Horticulturists in nearly every State in the Union. With the co-operation of so large a corps of practical men, this Journal is intended to possess exceptional value as the chosen Medium of Intercommunication among all those interested in the Production and Fertility of the land—those who Cultivate and those who Consume—the Buyer and Shipper, as well as the first Owner of the crop—Breeders of Improved Animals and their Customers—Manufacturers of Improved Machinery and those who purchase and employ it—Nurserymen and Fruit Raisers—and, especially, to supply fuller and better data as to the progress, prospects and returns of each successive Season, as throwing light upon one of the most important of all questions—When to Buy and when to Sell.

TERMS.—The COUNTRY GENTLEMAN is published weekly, on the following terms, when paid strictly in advance: ONE COPY, one year, $2.50; FOUR COPIES, $10, and an additional copy for the year free to the sender of the Club; TEN COPIES, $20, and an additional copy for the year free to the sender of the Club.

WISTAR'S BALSAM

OF

WILD CHERRY!

THE GREAT REMEDY FOR

CONSUMPTION!!

And acknowledged by many prominent physicians to be the most Reliable Preparation ever introduced for the RELIEF and CURE of all

LUNG COMPLAINTS.

This well known remedy is offered to the public, sanctioned by the experience of over forty years, and when resorted to in season seldom fails to effect a speedy cure of

COUGHS, COLDS, CROUP, BRONCHITIS, INFLUENZA, WHOOPING COUGH, HOARSENESS, PAINS OR SORENESS IN THE CHEST OR SIDE, BLEEDING AT THE LUNGS, LIVER COMPLAINTS, &c.

CONSUMPTION

CURED

By a timely resort to this standard remedy, as is proved by hundreds of testimonials received by the proprietors.

Dr. Wistar's Balsam of Wild Cherry

Does not dry up a Cough and leave the cause behind as is the case with most preparations, but it loosens and cleanses the lungs and allays irritation, thus removing the cause of the complaint.

CLERGYMEN, LAWYERS, SINGERS,

And all those whose occupation requires an unusual exercise of the vocal organs, will find this the ONLY PREPARATION which will effectually and instantaneously relieve their difficulties.

BEWARE OF COUNTERFEITS.—Remember that the genuine Wistar's Balsam has on the outside wrapper the signature of "I. BUTTS," and the printed name of the proprietors, "SETH W. FOWLE & SONS, BOSTON." All others are base imitations. Examine the wrapper carefully before purchasing.

The Singer Still Triumphant!

At the Vienna Exhibition, the SINGER received the Medal of Merit, the Medal of Progress, and three other Medals for superiority of productions. These are the highest Sewing Machine Awards at Vienna. The Singer received all the medals awarded to either of the competing machines, and two medals more than any other obtained. Then, in the name of Truth, what is it that prompts people to claim recommendations for the Diploma of Honor? The fact is, no Diploma of Honor has been given to any Sewing Machine Company.

But immeasurably more valuable is The World's Award as shown by sales—proved by every return to the owners of the principal Sewing Machine Patents—which last year amounted to TWO HUNDRED AND NINETY-ONE THOUSAND, SEVEN HUNDRED AND FIFTY-EIGHT (291,758) machines, nine out of ten of them being Family Use. This is over 45,000 more Sewing Machines than were sold by any other company during the same period, and over One Quarter of all the machines sold in 1872. These enormous sales are owing to the long-tested merits of the Singer Machines, which meet the wants of the public in superiority and simplicity of construction, and capability for great variety and excellence of work. That the users of Singer Machines find these desirable qualities in the Singer beyond all others, is shown by the sales above given, aside from the awards of International Juries, either at home or abroad.

SIXTEEN OIL PAINTINGS IN A BOOK!

Never before was such an idea attempted for book illustration; every one who has seen it pronounces it superb. Mrs. Harriet Beecher Stowe's latest work,

Woman in Sacred History,

is a series of narrative sketches, drawn from Scriptural, historical and legendary sources. ILLUSTRATED WITH SIXTEEN CHOICE OIL CHROMOS, after paintings by the most celebrated artists in the world, giving a rich and magnificent variety of Oriental costume and beauty. Mrs. Stowe, in her charming style, has written a book full of interest, and without a dull page in it, which even if not illustrated would sell rapidly; but the

make it one of the most unique, original and remarkable books ever offered. The pictures, if published separately, would readily sell for $2 each, or all, while the entire book, with the sixteen pictures, together with sumptuous bindings of the volume, can be had for one-fifth of that amount. The book is published in ENGLISH and in GERMAN, and is making a tremendous

Ordinance No. 41.

Requiring Sidewalks to be Cleared of Snow.

Be it ordained by the City Council of the city of Portsmouth as follows:

SEC. 1. The occupants, or, if unoccupied, the owners, of all the buildings and lands situate within the city, shall keep the sidewalk adjoining their respective premises, in all cases where a sidewalk has been or may be constructed, free from snow, by causing the snow to be removed into the street and evenly spread, within six hours after the cessation of every fall thereof, or when the snow shall have blown or drifted upon the old walk by the wind. The time herein allowed for the performance of the work to be computed from sunrise the succeeding morning whenever the fall or snow shall have ceased in the night time.

SEC. 2. Any person disregarding or offending against the provisions of this ordinance shall, upon conviction thereof, forfeit and pay a fine not exceeding ten dollars for each and every offence, with costs of prosecution; and it shall be the duty of the Street Commissioner, under the counsel and direction of the Mayor, to cause this ordinance to be enforced.

Passed Dec. 21, 1874.

Ordinance No. 65,

In Amendment of Ordinance No. 41—Requiring Sidewalks to be Cleared of Snow.

Be it ordained by the City Council of the city of Portsmouth as follows:

That ordinance number forty-one, requiring sidewalks to be cleared of snow, be amended by adding to section one the following clause, viz: That when any of said sidewalks are covered with ice, so as to make the passing dangerous, said owners or occupants shall spread over said sidewalk ashes, sand or salt in such a manner as to prevent the same from being dangerous.

Passed Jan. 19, 1869. n23-1m

The Office-Holder's Fate.

[Old and New.]

He was landed at St. Lazarus prosperously, and, with the assistance of a boat's crew, they got the flag-flying. They cleared out the sealer's house. They carried up ten barrels of salt junk, twelve of salt pork, thirteen of potatoes, fourteen of flour, fifteen of sour-krout, and sixteen of white beans. These were the supplies Mr. John Sapp was to subsist on for a year. They carried up four reams of foolscap paper, ruled and margined, for his official reports to the war department; four of quarto letter paper, for his reports to the navy; four of royal octavo, for his reports to the Smithsonian; four of large congress note, for his reports to the weather bureau; four of small congress note, for his reports to the Treasury; and four of gilt-edge note, with initials J. S., for his own private correspondence. They carried up eleven pounds of red sealing-wax; the tin box of red tape they carried up; and so they bade him good-by. The boat returned to the ship. Then it proved that his dog and cat and parrot and umbrella were still on board; and the captain's gig was sent with them. So Mr. Sapp was not left alone.

Here was a place. It was a place with nothing particular to do, and Mr. Sapp was left to do it.

He kept no diary. Nothing, therefore, is known of his experience for the year. But when, the next year, the store-ship landed his stores, the boatswain in charge ran up the beach, and met a grave man in seal-skins, who made a military salute.

The boatswain saluted him, and was about to speak, when old Seal-skin, as he afterwards called him, said, "Have you passed quarantine?"

"Quarantine! No, sir."

"Take your boat round into the South Cove, and see the health officer, and bring me his permit."

The boatswain, from habit of obedience, obeyed,—took the boat round in half an hour's pulling. Health officer! There were some stupid seals who jumped off the rocks, and that was all.

The captain of the store-ship, meanwhile had seen this manœuvre with amazement, and sent a second boat ashore. With this boat he sent his second officer. He also met the lonely Robinson, and saluted.

"Have you passed quarantine?"

"All right, my man," said the friendly sailor; and Seal-skin turned and walked with him to his hut. A moment more, and the boatswain followed. He could find no health officer, he said.

"It must be past his office hours," said Mr. Sapp, gravely. "They close at eleven there. You shall be examined to-morrow."

The boatswain stared at this postponement of quarantine; but then on a word from his superior officer, he produced a bag of papers and letters for Mr. Snapp, which he had been afraid to offer him before.

"They will be respectfully fumigated and respectfully referred," said Mr. Snapp.

And he hung them to the crane in the chimney.

Then he lifted off a pot of bean soup, and filled a bowl for each of the wondering men. He produced hard-tack from a closet, and whiskey and water. And then, still asking no questions, he took down the smoky letters, and opened them slowly.

But to the man's amazement, he did not read one

He folded the first with a steel letter file, two inches and a quarter wide, and docketed it, "Received June 11. Respectfully referred to Next Friday, Esq., P. M."

When the boatswain heard of Mr. Friday, he thought it was surely Robinson Crusoe.

But the next letter, unread, was filed and docketed,—"Respectfully referred to Next Saturday, Esq., A. M."

"P. M. and A. M.," cried the boatswain; "they have masters of arts here as well as postmasters."

"Not at all," said the Governor severely; "A. M., Ante-Meridian; P. M., Post-Meridian;" and, without reading the next letter, he filed it, and indorsed it.

"Respectfully referred to next Sunday, Esq., M." "Young man," said he, "I shall examine and file this letter on Friday afternoon; this one on Saturday morning; this on Sunday noon. Let all things be done regularly and in order."

The mate and boatswain were alarmed. They hastily finished their bean soup, and fled to the boat, returning with six men, who rolled a barrel of junk up the well-kept gravel walk.

"Invoice?" said the Governor.

There was no invoice.

"Prepare an invoice."

And the meek boatswain obeyed.

"My man, take this to the Inspector," said Mr. Sapp to one of the crew, after he indorsed it. "Respectfully referred to the Inspector-General."

The sailor was a Portuguese,—understood no English; bobbed his head, and waited for light.

Mr. Sapp led him to the door, and pointed to a bearded walrus,—who sat on a rock above the landing,—bidding him to take the invoice to him, and land nothing more without his orders.

Poor man!—or happy man, shall I call him? He had what he sought for. He had a place with nothing to do; and faithfully he had done it; so faithfully that, in that sad loyalty, the little fragment of his untrained wits gave way.

Daily Chronicle.

FRIDAY, JANUARY 2, 1874.

Political.

Quite an exciting caucus was that of the democracy of ward 4, Concord. John H. George and John H. Pearson led the opposing factions and had a heated discussion. The George faction, which was for Hatch for Governor, was beaten, and Pearson, of the People, came out triumphant. The People editorially says "the politicians may just as well understand now that it must be the popular interests, and not their special purposes, that the coming democratic convention must consult and act upon; and that any attempt to thwart the legitimate duty will be dangerous to the safety of the party." The People also calls on the coming convention not to spend its eloquence on defunct issues; and opens the way for a bolt in the following paragraph: "We earnestly trust that no insidious, underhand, or corrupt action of mere political partizans will so influence State, district or local nominations for public officers as to make us even think of deviating from our regular course of supporting them, earnestly and conscientiously."

Railroads.

The locomotive engineers' strike, according to reports received at the headquarters of the Pennsylvania Railroad, is practically ended.

A New York reporter, ventured to remark that many people seemed to have an impression that the Virginius was sunk on purpose as the best means of settling the trouble between Spain and the United States. A gentleman dressed in naval uniform said, "That is not so, sir. The Virginius sank from stress of weather. Such reports are untrue. I am commander of the Ossipee. We endangered the lives of the Virginius' officers and crew trying to keep her afloat. The vessel was unseaworthy and altogether out of repair." He also remarked that the accounts, so far published, in the newspapers were correct, and that the Virginius had gone down through no fault of those on board.

The sinking of the Virginius has caused the stoppage of the proceedings at New York against the vessel. The Havana papers are bitter over the result charging the government with bad faith and denouncing it in round terms.

The Virginius was built on the Clyde in 1861 as a trader between Liverpool and Mobile. She arrived at Mobile on her first trip immediately after the Union fleet had passed the forts. The Confederates purchased her for a cotton-carrying blockade-runner. Once only she tried the experiment, with but partial success. She gained the bay in safety and unloaded, but was so hotly pursued that she was compelled to fly for shelter several miles above Mobile. She was not always equally fortunate. In the following year she was captured and turned over to the collector of customs.

Ex-Senator Graham of New York is found guilty on the charge of misappropriating about $500,000 of the funds of the Walkill National Bank.

State News.

W. W. Storrs, treasurer of the National Savings Bank of Concord, is a defaulter in the sum of $65,000. He loaned it to save Robert S. Webster from ruin, and is a victim of misplaced confidence.

Among the new names mentioned for the republican nomination for Governor is that of Hon. William E. Chandler, of Concord. Mr. Chandler is one of the ablest young men in the State and knows no such word as fail. No more fortunate selection could be made if accepted. His triumphant election would be assured and all danger of defeat would be banished from the minds of republicans. We doubt, however, if Mr. Chandler would be willing to sacrifice his extensive business at Washington for the honor, even, of being Governor of the State of New Hampshire.

The Keene Sentinel says the republicans of Cheshire county are most decidedly in favor of the nomination of Hon. Chas. H. Bell for Governor. The Sentinel says his services and ability are too well known throughout the State to need any eulogium from us, and are a sure guaranty that if nominated he will receive the full vote of the party, and will so manage the affairs of his office as to reflect honor upon himself, the republican party and the whole State.

Agassiz and Children.

Agassiz was a great lover of children. He was constantly speaking to them in the street and caressing them, not from affectation or desire to be popular, but because he could not help it. His grandchildren, George and Max, were always running over to grandpa, and grandpa was always glad to see them. If grandpa had had the entire training of them, perhaps there would have been some spoiled children. A friend tells me of an instance which well illustrates his tenderness for children. Once while conducting some scientific experiment, it became necessary to have some water immediately. Agassiz seized a pitcher and ran out to the pump near by. He went out quickly but was slow in coming back. They walked twice as long for the water as would have sufficed to bring it, and then went out to see what was the matter. There sat Agassiz, down by the pump, his legs crossed, and a little child, which he was fondly soothing and caressing, nestled in between them. In his haste at the pump he had accidentally struck the child standing near by. Though the blow was of little account, the exigencies of science seemed to him the less important, and he had to put down his pitcher and opened his heart. When deeply engaged in scientific investigation he would leave his work to seize and fondle a child that had strayed into his room and the interrupted mental process seemed to be resumed without difficulty.

The Polite Man of the Street Car.

A victim to the best intentions. A man who gracefully lays his personal comfort on the altar of woman's convenience. A man and a brother who casts the best impulses of his nature under the feet of his sister woman for a door-mat. Another Tantalus, forever wishing to sit down in peace, and forever standing up in despair. A substitute for everybody. The man in the gap.

The philanthropist of the street car has learned nothing from experience. When he enters he sits by the rear door. When the first female enters he immediately moves up. As each succeeding female enters he continues to move up, until he squeezes himself into the flattest possible human flatness at the other end.

In a few minutes the females have determined that they want general benevolence out of that corner, and they begin to adjust themselves. It is quite interesting to watch this adjusting process. They flare out their skirts, they jerk up their panniers and what-d'ye-call-'ems behind, and they rise and fall with a series of aggressive flops. Benevolence, jammed into the corner, has a suspicion that he is a nuisance; that he is unfit to live unless he moves to the one vacant seat on the other side. He does so with lamb-like simplicity, and the females with triumphant smiles, proceed to spread themselves over the accretion.

At the next corner of course, another female gets in, and it is a peculiar mystery attending this man's life that whenever he rides, the street car is always full. When the last female enters, general benevolence thinks that some other general benevolence might take a human waif in theirs, but every man is absorbed in the contemplation of the lovely landscape ahead, over, the ears of the mules. The last female is none of their business. Benevolence is next to the door, and everybody knows that "next to the door" gets up first. The last female glares at him. This female has a child that will persist in looking out of the window and palling his hat off. He looks out of the window, too, as it interested in the architectural beauties of a corner grocery, but that is altogether too thin. The injuries of the last female are entering his soul; he gets up, and the last female with a petrifying look and "pray don't disturb yourself, sir," flops down with the air of a female whose wrongs are too deep for utterance.

Then all the females are happy. The common enemy is vanquished. His corns blaze, and it tickles the females to death, as something irresistibly funny, when a big man treads all over them. General benevolence thinks he will go to the upper end. He stumbles over the feet of the females, and they scorch him up with indescribable glares of indignation. When he arrives at the upper end, the car is full. Then, if it is a "bob-tail," which it generally is, he has to play general taker. Naturally, everybody wants a string of tickets, and when he opens the door to receive the change, all the females and all the chronic growlers among the men wonder "What that man wants with that door open all the time?" or, "Why don't that man shut that door?" It is all so cheerful, particularly as nobody gets out until he is within a block or two of his home. Taken altogether, he thinks he has worked his passage, and then on the whole, he wonders, after all, if general benevolence pays on a street car. But he continues to exercise it, and verily he shall meet his reward some day, but not on a street car.

A Lady's Opinion of a Sleeping Car.

And here, while the dusky hand of our ever-attentive "amendment" prepared our couch for the night-watchers, let me say one word about sleeping-cars. I know they are elegant in every detail—that every thing is done to insure the comfort of travellers, so that they may sleep as comfortably and rest as securely as e'en they might in "home, sweet home;" but how about the dressing conveniences? A woman's toilet, to be satisfactorily performed, demands some other position than prone upon the face. Likewise, it is somewhat more agreeable to perform portions of the toilet unobserved by the multitude. Men either are not burdened with modesty, or they have minds that soar so far above the feminine that they give no thought to the embarrassment attendant upon the method and manner of disposing one's self in those close quarters. A woman carefully extinguishes herself behind the curtains, slyly unloosens a lace, envelopes herself decorously in a large water proof, not daring to lay aside her chignon for fear of a surprise, and to stow herself away uncomfortable and depressed. The stranger in the bunk above leisurely divests himself of his outer garments, pulls off his boots, loosens suspenders, and bounds into bed with graceful ease, rather enjoying the situation. I think if there could be a lady's car for sleeping and toilet, exclusive of gentlemen, it would be a great advancement in wayfaring civilization. I thought so this morning, especially, when I awoke from uneasy slumbers to find the foot-board fallen, and a group of serene-browed men gazing smilingly upon my sleeping beauty. Let us have separate cars, good people, and we ask nothing more of you in the way of luxury and restful ease.

Collamer's Little Mistake.

[Max Adeler.]

Old Mr. Collamer, one of the members of our church, is extremely deaf. Last Sunday the clergyman, during the sermon, had occasion to introduce a quotation, and as it was quite long he brought the volume with him, and when the time came he picked up the book and began to read from it. We always sing the Old Hundred doxology after sermon at our church, and Mr. Collamer seeing the pastor with the book thought the time had come, so while the minister was reading, he opened his hymn-book at the place. Just as the clergyman laid the volume down the man sitting next to Mr. Collamer began to yawn, and Mr. Collamer, thinking he was meant to sing, immediately broke out into Old Hundred at the top of his voice. As the clergyman was just beginning "secondly," and as there was of course perfect silence in the church, the effect of Mr. Collamer's vociferation was very startling. But the good old man didn't notice that anything was the matter, so he kept right on and sang the entire verse through. When he concluded he saw that everybody else seemed to be quiet, excepting a few who were laughing, so he leaned over and said out loud to the man who yawned, "What's the matter with this congregation anyhow? Why don't they go home." The man turned scarlet, and the perspiration broke out all over him, for he felt that the eyes of the congregation were upon him, and he would have to yell to make Mr. Collamer hear. So he touched his lips with his finger as a sign for the old man to keep quiet. But Mr. Collamer misunderstood the motion. "Goin' to sing another hymn, hey? All right," and he began to fumble his hymn-book again. Then the sexton sailed up the aisle, and explained matters out loud to Mr. Collamer, and that gentleman subsided while the minister proceeded with his discourse. The elders have written Mr. Collamer a note requesting him in the future not to join in the sacred harmony. The effect is too appalling upon the ribald boys in the gallery.

—Charcoal is a valuable internal palliative in dyspepsia, and in many of the disorders affecting the stomach and bowels. Taken in doses of a tablespoonful night and morning, it is an almost unfailing corrective of costive habit. Mixed with softening poultices, it is cleansing, soothing, and healing to foul sores. An occasional dose of the powder produces a favorable improvement in sallow or tawny complexions.

—The very latest thing in the advertising line is a lady who, through the newspapers, seeks, for employment as an "ornamental guest." She will assist at dinner or evening parties—by her grace, her wit and beauty contribute to the entertainment of guests, and she will do everything in the highest style of art—only she demands that a handsome compensation be made therefor.

—A French musical journal complains that France has no national anthem in which all the Frenchmen can join; whereat Punch remarks that once on a time the great Handel composed one which they can consistently adopt, namely: "The land brought forth frogs."

Business Notices.

The remarkable cures effected by VEGETINE have induced many physicians and apothecaries, whom we know, to prescribe and use it in their own families.

It is impossible to name these terrible nameless diseases that annually sweep so many hapless victims into the grave. We are compelled to recognize them, and it is the Good Samaritan's duty to try and cure them. HELMBOLD'S BUCHU stands unrivalled for all such diseases. Get the genuine, which has the proprietor's private proprietary stamp. Beware of counterfeits. For sale by all druggists.

The great PILE remedy, ANAKESIS, the discovery of Dr. Silsbee, is entitled to be called the wonder of the age. 20,000 grateful sufferers bless the only infallible remedy for PILES ever introduced. Only those who have used lotions, ointments and internal remedies in vain, will understand the grateful feeling of instant relief from pain, and blissful hope of certain cure for the terrible disease, that ANAKESIS assures. It is used by Doctors of all schools.—Price $1.00. Sold by Druggists everywhere. Depot, 48 Walker st., New York.

The United States Dispensatory, standard and most excellent authority, says: "Pills are much better preserved in glass bottles than in the common wooden or pasteboard boxes, and should always be dispensed in glass by the apothecary." If you would use medicine superior, not only in being preserved fresh and perfect by compliance with this very important rule, but also in being composed of choice, concentrated and chemically refined vegetable medicinal principles, instead of crude, bulky, cheap drugs, that constitute the huge pills put up in cheap wood or paper boxes, then take Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Purgative Pellets, or Concentrated Root and Herbal Juice, Anti-Bilious Granules, 25 cents a vial, by druggists.

A Manual of Health.

The edition for 1874 of the sterling medical annual known as Hostetter's Almanac is now ready, and may be obtained, free of cost, of druggists and general country dealers in all parts of the United States and British America, and indeed in every civilized portion of the Western Hemisphere. This Almanac has been issued regularly at the commencement of every year for about one-fifth of a century. It combines with the soundest practical advice for the preservation and restoration of health, a large amount of interesting and amusing light reading, and the calendar, astronomical calculations, chronological items, &c., are prepared with great care, and will be found entirely accurate. The issue of Hostetter's Almanac for 1874 will probably be the largest edition of a medical work ever published in any country. The proprietors, Messrs. Hostetter & Smith, Pittsburg, Pa., on receipt of a two cent stamp, will forward a copy by mail to any person who cannot procure one in his neighborhood.

SOLICITOR OF PATENTS,
For Inventions, Trade Marks or Designs,
No. 78 STATE ST., OPPOSITE KILBY ST., BOSTON.

After an extensive practice of upwards of thirty years, continues to secure patents in the United States; also in Great Britain, France and other foreign countries. Caveats, Specifications, Assignments, and all papers for Patents, executed on reasonable terms with dispatch. Researches made to determine the validity and utility of Patents of Inventions, and legal and other advice rendered in all matters touching the same. Copies of the claims of any patent furnished, by remitting one dollar. Assignments recorded in Washington.

No Agency in the United States possesses superior facilities for obtaining Patents or ascertaining the patentability of inventions.

All necessity for a journey to Washington to procure a Patent and the usual great delay there, are here saved inventors.

TESTIMONIALS.

"I regard Mr. Eddy as one of the most capable and successful practitioners with whom I have had official intercourse. CHARLES MASON,
Commissioner of Patents."

"I have no hesitation in assuring inventors that they cannot employ a man more competent and trustworthy and more capable of putting their applications in a form to secure for them an early and favorable consideration at the Patent Office.
EDMUND BURKE,
Late Commissioner of Patents."

"MR. R. H. EDDY has made for me over THIRTY applications for Patents, having been successful in almost every case. Such unmistakable proof of great talent and ability on his part leads me to recommend ALL inventors to apply to him to procure their Patents, as they may be sure of having the most faithful attention bestowed on their cases and at very reasonable charges.
JOHN TAGGART."

Local Matters.

Dedication of Mechanics' Hall.

Judge Bufford's Address--Machine Jingles.

Promptly at seven o'clock, on Thursday evening, about three hundred ladies and gentlemen were seated at the bounteously spread tables in the hall of the Mechanics' building. President Wilson called the assemblage to order, and announced that music by Harlow's quadrille band would be first in order. After the opening selection, blessing was asked by Rev. Wm. H. Alden, the company afterward disposing of a large portion of the edibles before them. The President then announced Frank W. Miller, Esq., as Master of Ceremonies. A "mechanical song" was sung by a score of gentlemen, after which Hon. Marcellus Bufford read the following address, many of the audience being unable to hear and appreciate it because some thoughtless lads and lassies kept up merry badinage in the anterooms:

JUDGE BUFFORD'S ADDRESS.

Mr. President, Officers and Brothers: We meet to-night for the first time in our new house. We may with just pride congratulate ourselves upon its completion. It is fair to look upon, substantial and useful; perhaps not in all respects exactly what any of us would like it to have been, but still our house, and we may be abundantly satisfied with it. It provides ample and beautiful accommodations for our own use, and will no doubt furnish a revenue for the Association.

The founders of this society never imagined or dreamed that the day would come when its members should stand in a room like this and call it their own. But we have come into it, with our wives and daughters, with good music and good cheer, to make this first meeting in our new building an occasion of joyous congratulations. We have brought here our best things. It is our house warming. The hour is as it ought to be devoted to friendly greetings and brotherly intercourse.

RETROSPECTIVE.

As long ago as I can remember, there stood on this spot, at the corner of Fleet street a one story building, occupied for shops; next to it on Congress street the shop recently burnt on the corner of the passage; and in the rear, a queer old black two story house called the Gains house. That house was erected nearly one hundred and fifty years ago, and had, it was said, a large front yard extending to Congress street, on which many years afterward were erected the buildings just named. The main entrance to the old tavern yard was probably always through the passage on Congress street just closed by this building. The Bell tavern yard to the eyes of the children a half century ago was a spacious area, completely closed by sheds and other buildings. Mr. Brewster in the Rambles says that it used a great many years ago to be filled at times with hogsheads of rum, imported by the merchant who occupied it before it became a public house. But at the time I speak of it had become a part of the tavern and was used for various purposes. In it the wandering circus companies pitched their tents, and exhibited their astonishing feats to admiring crowds. Sometimes an elephant or a bear made a show ground of it, and the soul-stirring strains of the hand organ which formed the musical attraction of those wonderful shows, reached even to Congress street, and drew in the passers by, to see the sights. In winter the sheds were sometimes filled with sleds loaded with pork, butter, cheese, dried apples and other country produce, brought from the upper part of this State and even from Vermont, while the horses steamed in the warm stable, and the drivers too often steamed it in the neighboring hostelry. Brisk, driving times were they, the like of which we shall never see again.

THE ASSOCIATION ORGANIZES.

All these things, buildings and shows, and country trade have passed away, and now has arisen this spacious and elegant building, an ornament to the city and a credit to the heads that planned it and the hands that built it. Seventy-one years has this Association carried on its benevolent and philanthropic operations. It was formed in 1802, as its founders said, "for the laudable purposes of promoting and encouraging industry, good habits and an increase of knowledge of the mechanic arts," and also for "promoting good order by assisting each other in times of distress;" and further "to add to the dignity, respectability and prosperity of this useful body of citizens." Its history may be told in a few words. You may find all the details in the excellent article prepared by our brother Parker and printed in the Association's book: For twenty-one years an occasional parade, address and dinner was the only event aside from the ordinary routine of business. Then in 1823 a Library called the Apprentices' Library was formed for the use of members and their apprentices; this library was at first very successful; books were not so plenty then as they are now, and apprentices were very numerous; the books were read very generally in the families of the members; but after many years when other reading became more accessible and the library was not renewed very extensively, the readers fell off, and the library was in 1847 discontinued. Courses of lyceum lectures were maintained for several years. The reading room was established about eight years ago, in the building corner of State and Pleasant streets, and has become a permanent institution of the Association. The lot of land where this building stands, with the stable in the rear, was purchased in 1868, and the reading room removed to one of the old buildings. After the fire which destroyed the buildings on the front of the lot, the stable property was sold, the City widened Fleet street from the narrow land it was to the spacious street it is, the old passage was closed and this building was erected.

With a view of "encouraging industry and an increase of knowledge in the mechanical arts," the association provided in its constitution, that any apprentice who behaved with fidelity and attended till he became twenty-one years old, should receive from the officers a certificate to that effect under the corporate seal, and a recommendation "to the notice, encouragement, protection and patronage of all persons, in all countries, where he may sojourn." Probably this certificate was granted to deserving young men for many years, but in consequence of the decline and disuse of the apprentice system it has not, for a long time past, been issued.

The work of the Association has until lately been mainly confined to attentions to sick brothers and to widows and orphans of deceased brothers; and it has faithfully discharged its duties to its members and to the community. No necessitous member has ever been neglected; no widow of a member has ever failed to receive its sympathies, and its aid when needed. Seventy years;—no one of the hundred men who then met and organized this society now survives. One after another, their names have dropped from our roll, and ceased to be familiar words. I have looked over the list of their names; many of them I never knew; but many of them I knew well; they were worthy, estimable, high minded and honorable men. Peace to their memory.

This Association has had a useful though quiet career; it has not gone out of its way to interfere in matters not of its own concern; it has "made no noise town meeting days," neither has it taken part in any of the exciting questions which have agitated the public mind. Its members have been among our most useful citizens in their day and generation; some of them indeed have received high honors at the hands of the people, and have had weight in town affairs and in the councils of the State, though perhaps we should not think the less of them for that. Other societies have risen and flourished more brilliantly than this, but none have had a more honest purpose, or sustained a purer name. And the Association has been brought to this day; it has a green and lively old age; no not an old age, for that implies decay; and so long as it continues to perform its duties, it can never be old.

The Portsmouth of to-day is not the town of seventy years ago. Change here is not so rapid as in many places. But the life time of this association has been long enough to witness the building of an almost entirely new town. During that time fires have swept from Market Square to the water, east and north, and I suppose that every building that stands in State street between Pleasant street and the water, and every building on Market Square and Market street far above Spring Hill and Penhallow, Ladd and Chapel streets, stands on the ruins of the old town. The west side of Congress street has all been re-built during this time, and all that section of Court street between Middle and Pleasant streets. Seventy-one years ago, the traveller turning from Congress street into Middle found himself in the country. A few scattered houses stood on Middle road; but between Middle road and Islington street lay the unbroken fields, without a house or a street. Indeed the traveller on Middle road at that day when he passed State street must either have turned on his own track, or gone on to the Pound on his left, or to Spinney's road on his right before he could change his course. Islington street was a country lane, few houses, and on the north estates running to the pond. There was indeed a private road leading from the jail to the top of the hill, where it was lost in the fields; in ancient times it is probable a fort stood on the hill, and afterward a wind mill swung its restless arms upon the spot. Every church and every school house of the Portsmouth of seventy years ago has long since disappeared.

CROOKED COW-PATHS.

And not only has it become so far a new town, but in many other localities new and elegant buildings have been erected, the ancient ones have been thoroughly remodelled and the conveniences and luxuries of modern life have been extensively introduced. Some portions of the old town still remain unchanged and among these are several of the finest and most beautiful mansions of the city; we may particularly name the residence of Mrs Burroughs on Pleasant street, said to be the best specimen of its age extent, and the superb mansion of Dr. Peirce on Court street built just before the close of the last century. In 1802 the streets below Market Square, Daniel, State and Court were mere lanes, crooked and of varying width, and there were scarcely any sidewalks, the town having but just begun to construct them. The old State House for many years later stood on the Parade between the North Meeting House and High street; the old alms house with a hundred inmates stood on the lot now occupied by the Court-house, and the negro burying ground lay on the outskirts of the town, at the southerly end of Chestnut street. Jefferson Hall was built that year, its lower story composed only of piers and arches, open to the public and the storm. It was burned out in the winter of 1802, the walls remaining; was rebuilt soon after and remodeled into the thing of beauty it has for many years been, about 40 years ago; and again remodeled into an elegant and tasteful edifice within the last two years. Though the old walls remain, it has now been so thoroughly changed that the oldest inhabitant would fail to find a feature of the original building. The communication with Kittery was only by a ferry at that time, the bridge not having been built till 1822, the bridge to Newcastle being built about the same time. There were in 1800, 626 dwellings, 86 one story, 524 two stories, and 16 three stories high. The number of inhabitants was 5,339.

This very slight review shows the outward changes of the town in seventy years; they have been many and great. In her institutions the changes have not been less. The North and South Parishes trace their joint history almost to the settlement of the town. The Episcopal and the Universalist societies date their formation to the last century. I am not aware that any other existing religious society was organized prior to 1802. There were probably one or more Masonic lodges organized at an earlier date—I am not able to say. But beside them, I think there is no social or benevolent society now alive, which dates its origin before the Mechanic Association, except the Federal Fire Society, organized in 1789.

In 1802 the Portsmouth Aqueduct had laid its wooden pipes from the Fountain Head, and was supplying a large part of the town. It still brings water from the same springs in wooden pipes. (I wonder if they are the same,) but it has largely extended its operations, having bought additional springs, from one of which it has laid a pipe of metal. Venerable and respected institution, may its beneficent and healthful streams, however scanty they be, continue to flow forever!

OLD NEWSPAPERS.

But let me not omit to mention the newspapers. The NEW HAMPSHIRE GAZETTE and the Portsmouth Journal both claim an age much greater than ours, the GAZETTE dating back to 1756, and the Journal, under another name, to 1791.

It would weary you to recount all the changes which these seventy years have wrought in this town, in dwellings and stores, in churches and schools, in house-furnishings and habits of life, and in all the outer and inner life of the people. We have seen enough to show that but little remains of the Portsmouth of 1802; that it has increased very much in area, in buildings and in population, and in its public and private institutions. And now, for a moment, let us look at another change:

DECLINE OF INDUSTRY.

It is a matter of regret that many branches of industry, which formerly employed the mechanics and added to the wealth of Portsmouth, have been entirely or almost actively discontinued there. On the roll of this Association, there are a number of trades belonging to this list; they are, card manufacturers, cabinet makers, chair makers, coopers, silver-smiths, hatters, mathematical instrument makers, and rope makers. Some of these branches of art employed a large amount of capital and many men, and their products went to distant parts of our country and to foreign lands; now scarcely an article in these and many other branches is manufactured here; we import all our hats and caps, much of the clothing for men and women, a large part of our boots and shoes, all our furniture, from the cradle to the coffin, stove and iron castings, wooden ware of every kind, doors, blinds, sashes, mouldings, banisters, picture frames, school furniture, room papers, hard-ware, cutlery, pottery, casks, cordage, and innumerable other articles. I am aware that we make and send away articles requiring skill to manufacture, some of which manufactures have been begun or largely increased during the past few years, and that they add largely to the wealth of the city; but sagacious men think there is no reason why many of the articles named and others may not be profitably made here. It is worthy of consideration whether this Association cannot in some way encourage and assist in the establishment of shops for some of these manufactures, or at least second the efforts of our wide-awake Board of Trade in promoting this end! The great want of our people is employment that shall be permanent—that shall require skilled and intelligent labor. The wealth of a town or a country, like that of a family, is derived entirely from what it sells. The family or the town that produces only that which, or as much as, it consumes, whether it lives in luxury or is pinched by the closest economy, is on the high road to poverty; and no town is truly prosperous where the masses of the people are not accumulating property.

THE MILLENIUM.

Wealth acquired by traffic enriches only a few, and wealth so acquired cannot be of such lasting and substantial benefit as that gained by labor and skill in handicraft, when employment is plenty and wages are good. The good time that is coming, the millenium so long looked for, will never arrive till every man owns the roof that shelters him and sits under his own vine and fig tree.

I have talked of the past; but we have to deal with the present—the present that never rests, but is always advancing, bringing with it new men, new habits, and new conditions of life. I have time only to allude to it. Let others, abler and wiser, tell of the great inventions of the age, and enlarge upon the wonderful advances of science and art; let them tell of the flight of the great American eagle over the Rocky Mountains to the shores of the Pacific, and from the North Pole to the Isthmus of Panama; let them tell of the destinies of the Republic and of our duties as citizens of it. I willingly waive all this, and hand it over to the politician, and the stump speaker. I will have none of it.

A MARVEL OF PROGRESS.

I will speak only of a few things as we see them now; and first of the newspaper; for in an age of wonders, that I regard as the most wonderful; entering into every family, and read by every member; it comes to have an influence wider and deeper than any other power on earth. Look at your Boston daily. It has been printed at the late hours of the night on a press which throws off 10,000 copies an hour. It is a marvel of mechanical execution; its great pages are clear and distinct as nice book work; its columns are artistically arranged, each department by itself, so that though it contains as much matter as a large volume, you know just where to find the thing that interests you. It comes to you three hours from the press, with bright, sharp pointed editorials relating to every matter of public interest, manifest showing learning, research and critical care in their preparation; it has full reports of lectures and sermons, and speeches; it takes from the mouths of distinguished preachers and statesmen and lecturers, the living words they utter, and spreads them out on their pages; it contains racy and pithy notices of new books; full accounts from Washington, with the sharpest sayings of Ben Butler, and the proceedings of both houses of Congress, the cases argued in the Supreme Court, and the transactions of the different departments of government; its business columns give you the current prices of bonds and stocks and gold, dividends declared, arrivals and sales of merchandise, and ship news from all parts of the world; it has news from every suburban and many distant places, sent by telegraph at the least possible moment, giving minutest details of every incident. Its readers are informed of every fire, or freshet, or robbery, or murder, or accident that has occurred during the night in every considerable town within hundreds of miles. It is a history of the world for a day. There are telegrams from Egypt and Turkey, from Vienna and Madrid, from St. Petersburg, London and Paris, from Havana and Newfoundland and San Francisco, giving the important events of the last 24 hours. It has political editors, a large corps of occasional contributors, correspondents in all parts of the world, and reporters in every town, the most diligent, earnest, inventive geniuses the world ever saw.

YE UBIQUITOUS REPORTER.

The reporter is decidedly ubiquitous; whatever happens, that any body would like to know, he is there; if your house is on fire, almost before you discover it he has telegraphed it, with the cause of the fire and the amount of loss; if you fall on the ice and break your leg, before you are up, he stands by you and inquires your name and residence; if you celebrate your golden wedding, you may be sure he will be there, whether bidden or not, and the next day's paper will record the event, the persons present, and how likely you are to live to celebrate your diamond anniversary; and that he wishes you would. Should you be unexpectedly called upon to respond to a sentiment at a supper, and stammer out a few good wishes and words of apology, you will be surprised the next morning to see a neat little speech, made by Honorable Mr. ———, with your thoughts well expressed, and your points well made; to-day he records with all propriety the solemnities of a funeral, to-morrow he seizes on a wedding and writes it up with full description of dresses and ornaments and presents. An egg with two yolks, a chicken with five legs, or a calf with two heads, makes a good item for him; he is at all your meetings; he stops you at the street corner and inquires the news; he is always busy; he is versed in all sciences, in all arts, in all knowledge, light and deep; there is nothing too abstruse for him to comprehend; there is nothing too technical for him to report; the wires tingle with his items, and the mails groan with his letters; he needs no sleep, no time for eating, no office, no desk. Wherever anything is going on, there is he, and he knows all about it almost before it happens. He is courted, dreaded, loved, feared, sought, avoided, more than any other living man.

THE RIGHTS OF WOMAN.

One thing more; in presence of these ladies, it would not be becoming for me to omit to speak of woman's rights; for that is one of the most interesting and curious questions of the day. I do not suppose I understand it; indeed I know that I do not. But I am none the less qualified to speak of it on that account, for from all I can learn, the most eloquent of speakers appear to be as ignorant of it as I am; and in regard to one phase of it, the woman's right to vote, most public men speak in favor of the right and vote against it; so that except in a few school districts, and in one territory in the remote West, the agitation seems not to have advanced their right to vote at all, and in Wyoming it was acquired by accident. There is no reason, so far as I am aware, why women should not vote if they want to, as well as men, and indeed it is very arbitrary to prevent them from voting; but is it not quite as arbitrary to prevent a young man of twenty years old from voting? And when women's names are added to the voting lists, may not the boys and girls complain because they are excluded?

I have known many young people of both sexes much better qualified to judge of right and wrong than many older people; and why should every one be excluded from the polls till he is twenty-one years old? My own opinion is that the only reason why women do not vote is because they do not want to; I am the more convinced of this because I find that whatever woman wants, she procures. She is already behind the counter, and at the desk. She is school-marm and physician, author and editor.

SHE PURIFIETH THE BALLOT.

She swarms in the government offices at Washington, and generally has a pretty good share of the good places. I suppose she has them, because they pay. And when she thinks it will pay to vote, I have no doubt she will vote. And when she does, the way will be prepared for her; the evils that cluster round the voting places will disappear when she comes, and if as is sometimes said it be true that the voting places are not fit for her to be in, she need have no fear, for they will be purified by her presence.

I had intended to speak of a few other institutions of the age we live in; and particularly of the book agent of both sexes, of gift concerts, and subscription gifts, and on several local subjects. But time fails me, and I will relieve you.

Officers and Brothers: We have arrived at a new era in the history of this Association. From this day we have a larger field of operation; we have placed ourselves before the people, and henceforth we shall attract a larger share of public notice than heretofore. Let us hope that we shall have wise counsellors, and active members, and improve to the best advantage the opportunities of usefulness which may from time to time be offered us.

Frank W. Miller, Esq., was then announced, and ground out the following

MECHANICAL JINGLES.

Kind friends, if you'll lend me your ear,
I'll read some Mechanical rhymes,
Ground out from a rusty machine,
Which you'll find is not up with the times.

And as I now mount my Pegasus,*
A truant but dangerous throne,
I pray of your censure be CHARY,
Lest a verdant outrider get thrown.

I claim no afflatus divine,
For Mechanics should never inflate;
And poetry is out of my line,
For poets are born, and not made.

But my theme is the noblest of all
That ever can be said or be sung;
It is for the strong sons of toil—
The Mechanics, my changes are rung:

The workers, on land and on sea,
Whom height nor depth never appall,
Whom obstacles cannot deter,
Nor dangers nor hardships recall

From doing their duty to man,
Wherever their lot may be cast;—
Without whom the world were a blank,
A void and a waste, first to last.

There be workmen of every degree,
Callings diligent for you and for me;
But whatever the name of your art,
Here's the honor, to act well your part.

The Farmer must count first of all,
Since all others we better could spare;
A topic bold men to give pause,
For who now the Grangers can dare?

But take alphabetical range,
Let us see whom we have in our crew,
Though if I keep out of the Grange,
I can scarce tell you aught that is new.

With whatever the trades,—what professions,
We now need have nothing to do;
Just how a man steps in progression,
Matters little to him or to you;

So he heeds but the sacred injunction,
To earn by the sweat of his brow,
The bread he can then eat with unctious,—
It makes little difference how.

For members we want all good fellows,
Eat no traders, with no trades, we can't,
We shall still have to go by the record—
Take them in by way of a slant.

Many here are "constructive" mechanics,
And able hard labor to shirk,
Well out of the reach of all panics,
And vastly prefer talk to work.

Let our Architects see that while building,
They build fortune and character well,
So that after one life worth the living,
In the house made without hands they dwell.

May our Bakers set sponges, without sponging,
Make weighty, but not heavy bread;
And showing themselves dough-ty workmen,
Yet prove they are far from dough-heads.

May our Blockmakers ne'er be blockheads,
Nor be known wheels of progress to block;
Always ready a purchase to rig,
To raise every man to the top.

May our Brassfounders ne'er be found brass
In their faces, but only profession;
Our Coppersmiths ne'er copperheads,
But always stand up for the nation.

[If there's too many HEADS to my text,
Lay it all to the shaky machine;
I pray you, friends, do not get vexed,
For that is the way it WOULD lean.]

May Hatchet to Candle-tick-makers,
All live in the sweetest accord;
Cooper look out for bung and for spigot,
And all find their fitting reward.

May our Carringemen carry self well,
Our Clothmakers use warp of truth;
Our Cabinet-makers fitted to fill
The Council for Nation's behoof.

May our Cordwainers never more wane;
Nor Hatters be spelt with one t;
Our Harness-makers hitch-up things strong,
So to pull a good load, don't you see.

Our Joiners ne'er let things asunder;
Our Moulders o'er shape all things well;
Our Machinists overcome friction,
And make all work smoothly and tell.

May our Millers grind out honest grists,
Manufacturers make-up all, save stories;
Our Painters cover over defects,
And our Printers press onward to glory.

Let the Masons do all on the square,
And the Plumbers keep everything plumb;
If a brother no good can declare,
Then let him forever be dumb.

May our Ropemakers ne'er feel rope's end,
Nor our Riggers e'er find themselves taut;
May poor Jack ne'er get set up himself,
Though he sets up the rig 'low and 'aft.

May our Smiths feel no iron in their souls,
And handle no "steal," save in rods,
Ever keep a clear fire of coals,
And strike while the iron is hot.

The Saddlers no galled jade find wince;
The Shipwrights ne'er build the ship wrong,
So she'll take us all safe into port,
And we'll give them full sails in our song.

Awl men say there's nothing like leather,
(And men's understandings they cast,)
A maxim to be gainsaid never,
So the "Shoemaker sticks to his last."

Let the Sparmaker give us sound sticks,
The Rigger all things staunchly guy;
The Sailmaker not too much spread,
Nor pile up the canvass too high;

So our craft can keep on even keel,
Not run under or down on beam ends;
In the race, slow and sure often wins,
And safety for less speed amends.

Let Tailors but fair cabbage take,
Sponge their cloth, but never their guests;
All should mantle of charity make,
And a pure heart throb under each vest.

Let our Tinmen use always good stock,
And their solder never be soft,
May their ware never fail to wear well,
And so not need tinkering oft.

May the Stonecutter speak well and true,
When he marks the spots where we shall be;
May he say we were all just and brave,
And may we only "lie" there—not he.

May our Watchmakers no watching need,
May we all keep well up with the times,
So the Undertaker 'll cause us no dread—
When he winds up our alphabet rhymes.

Whether these or other employments,
All men should love useful toil,
In this is life's highest enjoyment,—
And the best of all, working the soil.

The dignity highest is labor's,
None other above it should soar,
And he who won't work should not eat,
Was spoken of rich and of poor.

And he who don't work is mere toll,
A drone in the hive, and a shirk,
No matter for bank or rent roll,
Or what is his standing at kirk.

But while we should all dig and delve,
And good workmen will o'er love their tools,
Let us never be mere tools ourselves,
But live by the highest of rules.

Let the golden rule measure our way,
Not that of the world, but the Lord's;
And remember, while seeking good pay,
Wealth from vanity, profiteth naught.

And this should be each man's desire,
Nor our noble motto forgot,
That all labor receive worthy hire,
And all men "Be just and fear not."

And this truth you always will find,
They have no time for business of others,
Who are wont their own business to mind,
Which keeps them from many a pother.

And for those who choose work "at the Yard,"
For a campaign, or but a few days,
Let all officers show due regard,
For the people are sovereign, not they.

One thing true is good to know,
And whether by job or the day,
The philosopher's stone, pay as go;
Keep none back, and grab no back pay.

Whether eight or ten hours a day,
Is a matter of far less account—
And e'en the amount of your pay,
Than the way your SPARE time you run out.

And while to work hard is not ease,
If for true life we have due regard
We shall find all our burdens to cease,
And they will not our progress retard.

Let us do what we find with our might,
As our day and our strength may be,
Let us always be sure we are right,
Nor from duty or danger flee.

May we answer all church and state calls,
And since woman now wields her bewitchings,
To complete our new joy in these halls,
Let each Brother make liberal subscription.

And while we rejoice with those here,
Let us think oft of those who are gone,
Let us strive for a record as clear,
And so worthy them to be join.

And whether in high or low station,
Each be sure of his own approbation,
Endeavor the good of the nation,
And work out our own salvation.

Now kind friends, I bid you good night,
And as you plain see, I'm no poet,
To take up more time is not right,
And my musty machine can scarce go it.

*Steps up in a chair.

OTHER REMARKS.

Rev. Mr. Martyn was called upon, and made a few pleasant remarks, congratulatory of the old Association and laudatory of mechanics and their arts.

Ex-Gov. Goodwin being called upon as pre-eminently the friend of the working-man, the lifelong promoter of enterprise in Portsmouth, spoke briefly in his cordial manner of the Association and his affection for old Portsmouth.

Rev. A. C. Hardy, who was formerly a carpenter, addressed the Association as "fellow craftsmen," and said a good word for New Hampshire.

Canon Walsh said he couldn't make a speech, but he made fun enough, at any rate, and spoke gallantly for the ladies, the Association, the city, the State, and everything else almost that is good and true.

Rev. Dr. Alden made a few remarks, eloquent and appropriate.

Rev. Mr. DeNormandie very pertinently contrasted the present condition and aims of mechanics with those of the past, illustrating his topic very aptly.

Hon. Daniel Marcy alluded to the practical discontinuance of the apprentice system, and spoke earnestly in favor of developing business here.

Rev. Mr. Harmon was introduced as a former mechanic. His remarks were mainly in praise of mechanics, or rather of mechanism.

After thanks by the Vice President, to the Apollo Club, under direction of Dr. Goodall, and Harlow's band, for their excellent music, kindly volunteered, the meeting closed with Auld Lang Syne, and a benediction by Rev. Mr. Martyn.

Kearsarge Ball.

The ball given by the members of Kearsarge steamer No. 3 on Wednesday night was a complete success in point of numbers, respectability and everything else that contributes to a nice entertainment. The gallery was well filled, while there were upon the floor in the early part of the night ninety-two couples, which number at a later hour was augmented to one hundred and thirty. The hall was tastefully trimmed with bunting, and ornamented by a plentiful collection of beautiful pictures, prominent among which was a painting of a scene at the Boston fire where the Kearsarge company acquired the title of "Haymakers," and won such signal honor by saving the Old South church from conflagration, a deed of heroism that never will be forgotten by the firemen of that city.

The supper room on State street was well filled about midnight, and judging from a casual glance at the contents of the five long tables there set, we should think none went away dissatisfied with the quality or quantity of the delicacies presented.

The dance continued until six o'clock on New Year's morning, and as complimentary to the character of the Ball may be mentioned the fact that all save about half a dozen persons remained until the final breaking up of the assembly. The "Haymakers" may well feel happy over the triumphant success which they have achieved in this, their third annual Ball: and while no doubt the affair involved much expense and a great deal of hard work, the testimony of their patrons on this occasion is so enthusiastic in their praise that it affords them an ample reward. Success to the Kearsarge boys, who strive to crush out ungentlemanly and indecent conduct in others, by being patterns of sobriety and decency themselves.

Presentation.

The Rockingham House has one of the most courteous of hotel clerks and most genial of gentlemen, in the person of Mr. Sanford Woodward. On New Years eve, quite a large party of guests of the House and friends of Mr. Woodward, assembled at the Rockingham and sent for him. On entering the parlor, he was astounded at seeing so many mischief-bent individuals and his perplexity was not lessened as Mr. Charles Eldredge advanced to greet him, presenting on behalf of those present an elegant diamond pin, valued at $200. The presentation speech was appropriate and timely and Sanford replied with an overflowing heart. Then—out went the old year and in came the New.

We understand that the High School committee (of three) has accepted the resignation of Miss A. C. Morgan as Assistant in the School, Major Vaughan dissenting.

CATARRH!

A Woman Having Catarrh 35 Years, Cured.

And Droppings in Throat, Chokings, Stranglings, Pains in the Side, Loins, Headache, Dizziness, and General Weakness, Cured by less than Three Bottles of the

CONSTITUTIONAL

CATARRH REMEDY.

TO MESSRS. LITTLEFIELD & CO., Proprietors of Constitutional Catarrh Remedy, Manchester, N.H.:

I reside at Manchester N., H., and previously resided at Henniker, and am a native of Weare, this State. I have had Catarrh twenty-five years, ever since I was 19 years old; had it bad all the time. It was all that period, and nights it would fill up and drop down in my throat, causing a feeling of choking, so that I would spring up in bed to save myself from strangulation. It affected my head so that I felt confused, and was troubled with severe headache at intervals, for a week at a time. I also had bad pains in shoulders, back and kidneys, from which I suffered immensely. So bad were they, that a year ago last summer I was obliged to lie in bed most of the time for three months. I have tried all kinds of snuff and Catarrh remedies with no particular benefit, and consulted physicians. I had a hacking cough. I began to take the Constitutional Catarrh Remedy last August. I began to grow better before finishing the first bottle. I am now on the third bottle. My Catarrh is cured; my health is restored. I have no pains, aches, or cough. My whole system is made over new. I know it is this medicine that has rescued me from intense suffering and almost the grave. I am now able to do the hardest work and bear the greatest exposure, and feel that I cannot say too much in favor of the Constitutional Catarrh Remedy.

MRS. E. J. FLANDERS.

Manchester, N. H., Feb. 1, 1872.

I am now 53 years old, have had Catarrh ever since I was eighteen years old, and headache all the time; have suffered by deed deception with running at the nose, droppings in the throat, chokings and stranglings. Have tried any quantity of Catarrh Remedies, but have found no relief like from your Constitutional Catarrh Remedy, six months ago. I sound immediate relief.

Catarrh and all its attendant evils have left, Headache, Pains in Loins and Back, Dizziness, Loss of Appetite, and General Weakness. Less than three bottles of Constitutional Catarrh Remedy have cured me. I have not been so well since I can remember as now. I feel as if I could not say too much for the medicine, for thanks to God, I am heartily that through its instrumentality I have been restored to health.

MARY M. ABBOTT,
No. 17 Manchester Corporation.

Manchester, N. H., Jan. 27, 1872.

The above lady is my mother. I am a painter by trade, and a member of the City Council of Manchester. Every word that my mother says is true.

JACOB J. ABBOTT.

Hundreds of cases of a similar nature offred within the last year. Snuffs and Lotions are only temporary relief. The CONSTITUTIONAL CATARRH REMEDY strikes at the root, builds up the constitution, makes it new, and drives away Catarrh and all diseases of the mucous membrane and their attendant pains and aches, pertaining to head, back, shoulders, kidneys, and throat.

Price $1 per Bottle. Sold by all Druggists. A Pamphlet of 32 pages, giving a Treatise on Catarrh, and containing innumerable cases of cures, sent FREE, by addressing the Proprietors,

IRON IN THE BLOOD.

DYSPEPSIA, DEBILITY, DROPSY AND HUMORS.

PERUVIAN SYRUP

Makes The Weak Strong.

The Peruvian Syrup, a Protected Solution of the Protoxide of Iron, is so combined as to have the character of an aliment, as easily digested and assimilated with the blood as the simplest food. It increases the quantity of Nature's Own Vitalizing Agent, Iron in the blood, and cures "a thousand ills," simply by Toning up, Invigorating and Vitalizing the System. The enriched and vitalized blood permeates every part of the body, repairing damages and waste, searching out morbid secretions, and leaving nothing for disease to feed upon.

This is the secret of the wonderful success of this remedy in curing Dyspepsia, Liver Complaint, Dropsy, Chronic Diarrhœa, Boils, Nervous Affections, Chills and Fevers, Humors, Loss of Constitutional Vigor, Diseases of the Kidneys and Bladder, Female Complaints, and all diseases originating in a bad state of the blood, or accompanied by debility or a low system. Being free from Alcohol, in any form its energizing effects are not followed by corresponding reaction, but are permanent, infusing strength, vigor, and new life into all parts of the system, and building upon an Iron Constitution.

Thousands have been changed by the use of this remedy, from weak, sickly, suffering creatures to strong, healthy, and happy men and women; and invalids cannot reasonably hesitate to give it a trial.

See that each bottle has PERUVIAN SYRUP blown in the glass.

COAL.

HAVING contracted for a quantity of the above coal, we would call the attention of Manufacturers, Dealers and Consumers to the following different grades mined and controlled by the Company:

HARD WHITE ASH COAL,
FREE BURNING WHITE ASH COAL,
SHAMOKIN WHITE ASH COAL,
SHAMOKIN RED ASH COAL,
NORTH FRANKLIN COAL,
LYKENS VALLEY COAL.

In order that all coal shall be shipped in good order, a most rigid system of inspection, both at the mines and at the shipping ports, will at all times be enforced. In every district of the coal region there will be appointed a number of competent persons skilled in the preparation of coal, as local inspectors, whose duty it will be to visit the several collieries daily to see that a proper force is at all times employed in removing slate, and to prevent, if possible, any coal being sent from the mines in bad order. In addition to these efforts at prevention, no means will be left untried at the shipping ports to cure the evil of careless preparation. At Schuylkill Haven, Port Clinton and Port Richmond, ALL COAL WILL BE SUBJECTED TO THE PERSONAL EXAMINATION OF A SKILLED INSPECTOR BEFORE IT IS SHIPPED, and if condemned by him, will be dumped in places provided for the purpose, and before being loaded into vessels WILL BE THOROUGHLY REPICKED AND CLEANED BY HAND.

We keep a fine stock of the above coal on hand, also

OF

WILD CHERRY!

THE GREAT REMEDY FOR

CONSUMPTION!!

And acknowledged by many prominent physicians to be the most Reliable Preparation ever introduced for the RELIEF and CURE of all

LUNG COMPLAINTS.

This well known remedy is offered to the public, sanctioned by the experience of over forty years, and when resorted to in season seldom fails to effect a speedy cure of

COUGHS, COLDS, CROUP, BRONCHITIS, INFLUENZA, WHOOPING COUGH, HOARSENESS, PAINS OR SORENESS IN THE CHEST OR SIDE, BLEEDING AT THE LUNGS, LIVER COMPLAINTS, &c.

CONSUMPTION

CURED

By a timely resort to this standard remedy, as is proved by hundreds of testimonials received by the proprietors.

Dr. Wistar's Balsam of Wild Cherry

Does not dry up a Cough and leave the cause behind as is the case with most preparations, but it loosens and cleanses the lungs and allays irritation, thus removing the cause of the complaint.

CLERGYMEN, LAWYERS, SINGERS,

And all those whose occupation requires an unusual exercise of the vocal organs, will find this the ONLY PREPARATION which will effectually and instantaneously relieve their difficulties.

BEWARE OF COUNTERFEITS.—Remember that the genuine Wistar's Balsam has on the outside wrapper the signature of "I. BUTTS," and the printed name of the proprietors, "SETH W. FOWLE & SONS, BOSTON." All others are base imitations. Examine the wrapper carefully before purchasing.

The Singer Still Triumphant!
At the Vienna Exhibition, the SINGER received the Medal of Merit, the Medal of Progress, and three other Medals for superiority of productions. These are the highest Sewing Machine Awards at Vienna. The SINGER received all the medals awarded to either of the competing machines, and two medals more than any other obtained. Then, in the name of Truth, what is it that prompts people to claim recommendations for the Diploma of Honor? The fact is, no Diploma of Honor has been given to any Sewing Machine Company.
But immeasurably more valuble is The World's Award as shown by sales—proved by sworn returns to the owners of the principal Sewing Machine Patents—which last year amounted to TWO HUNDRED AND NINETEEN THOUSAND, SEVEN HUNDRED AND FIFTY-EIGHT (219,758) machines, nine out of ten of them being for Family Use. This is over 45,000 more Sewing Machines than were sold by any other company during the same period, and over One Quarter of all the machines sold in 1872. These enormous sales are owing to the long-tested merits of the Singer Machines, which meet the wants of the public in superiority and simplicity of construction, and capability for great variety and excellence of work. That the users of Sewing Machines fully appreciate these qualities in the Singer beyond all others, is shown by the sales above given, aside from the awards of International Juries, either at home or abroad.

"A New Thing Under the Sun."
SIXTEEN OIL PAINTINGS IN A BOOK!
Never before was such an idea attempted for book illustration; every one who has seen it pronounces it superb. Mrs. Harriet Beecher Stowe's latest work,
Woman in Sacred History,
is a series of narrative sketches, drawn from Scriptural, historical and legendary sources, ILLUSTRATED WITH SIXTEEN CHOICE OIL CHROMOS, after paintings by the most celebrated artists in the world, giving a rich and magnificent variety of Oriental costume and beauty. Mrs. Stowe, in her charming style, has written a book full of interest, and without a dull page in it, which even if not illustrated would sell rapidly; but the
make it one of the most unique, original and remarkable books ever offered. The pictures, if published separately, would readily sell for $2 each, or $32, while the entire book, with the sixteen pictures, together with sumptuous bindings of the volume, can be had for one-fifth of that amount. The book is published in ENGLISH and in GERMAN, and is making a tremendous

Ordinance No. 41.

Requiring Sidewalks to be Cleared of Snow.

Be it ordained by the City Council of the city of Portsmouth as follows:

SEC. 1. The occupants, or, if unoccupied, the owners, of all the buildings and lands situate within the city, shall keep the sidewalk adjoining their respective premises, in all cases where a sidewalk has been or may be constructed, free from snow, by causing the snow to be removed into the street and evenly spread, within six hours after the cessation of every fall thereof, or when the snow shall have blown or drifted upon the sid walk by the wind. The time herein allowed for the performance of the work to be computed from sunrise the succeeding morning whenever the fall of snow shall have ceased in the night time.

SEC. 2. Any person disregarding or offending against the provisions of this ordinance shall, upon conviction thereof, forfeit and pay a fine not exceeding ten dollars for each and every offence, with costs of prosecution; and it shall be the duty of the Street Commissioner, under the counsel and direction of the Mayor, to cause this ordinance to be enforced.

Passed Dec. 21, 1854.

Ordinance No. 65,

In Amendment of Ordinance No. 41—Requiring Sidewalks to be Cleared of Snow.

Be it ordained by the City Council of the city of Portsmouth as follows:

That ordinance number forty-one, requiring sidewalks to be cleared of snow, be amended by adding to section one the following clause, viz: That when any of said sidewalks are covered with ice, so as to make the passing dangerous, said owners or occupants shall spread over said sidewalk ashes, sand or salt in such a manner as to prevent the same from being dangerous.

Passed Jan. 19, 1860. n26-1m

A Bolt Always in Order.
[St. Louis Republican.]

Squills declares that his wife is always taking some kind of a mean advantage of him. "The best women in the world, sir," says Squills, "but now and then she will act mean, and she can't help it."

"Last Saturday, at breakfast," says Squills, "she was as smiling as a bundle of chips."

"Are your chops done to your liking, Squills, dear?"

"Deliciously, my love."

"I broiled them myself, dear."

"I knew it was going to be hot," said Squills, "and when I got into the hall to leave, Mrs. Squills was there with my hat in one hand and my overcoat in the other."

"Squills, dear," she began.

"I thought it time to pitch in here," said Squills, "so I said quietly:

"'How much, Mrs. Squills? out with it, my love.'"

"'Mr. Squills,' said she, 'Don't be unmanly, sir, I beg; not to say ridiculous. Gussy wants a silk dress to go to church in; the poor child really isn't decent; you are very sorry; well, so you ought to be. Let her say her prayers at home. No, Mr. Squills, she shan't stay at home, and she shan't say her prayers, and Mr. Squills, you're enough to aggravate a saint, and your conduct is disgusting, and it's enough to drive a woman to bolt right off to Chicago and get a divorce.'

"I thought this was a good time to fire off my pet joke," said Squills; "so I said, 'Mrs. Squills, a bolt is always in order.' Then I bolted myself, for Mrs. Squills comes of a fighting family."

"When I went home that night, Gussy, dear child, played all my pet Offenbach music, and I knew I was in for the dress, only I wanted to hold out till morning, just for the look of the thing."

"For five years after we were married," said Squills, "Mrs. S. would persist in looking under the bed for a man. It's the same man every woman looks for, I suppose, because they all do it. Well, failing to find the man, Mrs. Squills finally gave up in disgust and took to something else. I suppose," said Squills, "they'll take to something else after they can't find the man under the bed. Mrs. Squills' weakness is bolting the door. 'Mr. Squills, have you bolted the door?' is always the last thing at night."

"This particular night," said Squills, "Mrs. S. was very dignified and distant. 'No familiarities, Mr. Squills, if you please; you wounded my feelings in their tenderest point this morning, and I cannot forget though you did, that I am your wife, sir, and the mother of your children, Mr. Squills.'

"This was pitching in uncommonly strong, you know," said Squills, "and I was about to surrender, when Mrs. Squills turned off the gas, and then coiled herself up like a pet, somewhere on the outside bed-rail. Not even 'good night, Squills.' I felt pretty bad about it I can tell you, but I went to sleep, but some time, after experienced a kick in the back, as if some playful mule had been fanning me. Perhaps it was necessary, as I always sleep hard."

"'Mr. Squills,' at last I heard Mrs. S. say, 'Mr. Squills, have you bolted the door?'

"Now, I leave it to any man," said Squills, appealingly, "whether that is the correct thing for the mother of a family to do? Of course, I got up and bolted that infernal door, and I said, 'Mrs. Squills, why the deuce didn't you think of bolting the door before I went to sleep, and not wake up a man in the middle of a cold night to do it?' And what do you suppose her answer was?"

"'Why, Mr. Squills,' said she, 'I thought a bolt was always in order.'"

"What did I say? What could I say? And the worst of it all," said Squills, "I'll be hanged if she wasn't laughing at me; I could feel the bed shaking."

A Novel Lottery—Twelve Widowers taking Chances for Eleven Widows.

The Green Bay (Wisconsin) Advocate says: We referred briefly last week to a novel lottery which took place at Holland, town in this county, by which eleven widows and as many widowers were mated for matrimonial alliance. The facts, as we learn from the report of the committee, which report comes to us signed by M. Vandenberg, Secretary, are as follows:

It seems that there were residing in the town eleven widows and twelve widowers. We presume it was a member of the Benevolent Society who first proposed that the eleven widows should become helpmeets to eleven of the widowers. At least the report says that "thinking it economy to have them married and not knowing how to pair them, a committee was selected to hold counsel as to the best mode of coupling." It took this committee one hour to decide as to the method, pending which decision, we may believe there was a fluttering among the gay hearts of the widows. It was decided to dispose of them by lot and "consequently," says the report, "the names of all the widows were placed in a box and likewise the names of the widowers."

The drawing took place at 5 P. M., Monday, the 8th, at which time it was decided that Mr. R. Meuten should be married to Mrs. De Bruin, Mr. M. Menten to Mrs. Vink, Mr. Bode to Mrs. Vandenberg, Mr. Furstenberg to Mrs. Kersten, Mr. J. W. Wassenberg to Mrs. Wilde, Mr. M. Verkuilen to Mrs. Perrenboom, Mr. Weyenberg to Mrs. Heesakker, Mr. John Kobussen to Mrs. Tillman, Mr. L. Tenrusen to Mrs. Van Doren, Mr. R. Herremans to Mrs. Rolf, and Mr. Scere to Mrs. Van Bloemer.

The twelfth man is Mr. D. H. Pentermann, and although he is doubtless the happiest in seven counties over the narrow escape which he had, yet the committee are casting about for some means to supply him with a partner—advertising that if there are any widows in neighboring towns who would like to take Mr. Pentermann, "application can be made to Peter Kersten, President."

Daily Chronicle.

SATURDAY, JANUARY 3, 1874.

Readables.

Memphis Tenn., has chosen a republican Mayor by 800 majority.

The State Department authorizes the statement that neither the President nor Secretary Fish was dissatisfied with Sickles, and that he would have been allowed to remain at Madrid if he had kept his temper. It is intimated that Sickles' wife, a native of Spain, has had something to do with his resignation.

A porcelain-lined pan in which Mrs. Lyman Wiswell, of Bangor, was frying doughnuts a few days ago, exploded, blowing the bottom of the pan out, setting the fat on fire and producing great consternation, but fortunately doing no damage.

Out of one thousand respectable daily newspapers from which we have heard on the recent subject of the recent action of Congress on the salary business, ten hundred condemn it.

Aleck Stephens says he is ready to go as far as Mr. Sumner in securing civil rights to the negroes.

The Washington Republican says:

We may now look upon Christmas as we do upon a political campaign after the election has been held. These returns are all in. We find that the day was more generally observed than has been general in this country, and that, as usual about one third of the nation observed it by getting drunk, another third by attending divine service, and the remaining third by preserving an indefinable medium between the extremes of inebriation and religion. Comparing the returns with those of previous Christmases, we find that the inebriates are gaining on their contestants.

State News.

A person who has been looking up the number of children in Rockingham county, discovers that some towns have more than twice as many children as others, in proportion to their population.

George W. Hall, the negro found dead in his house at Gilmanton, frozen and gnawed by cats, was once of wonderful muscular power, and had been known to handle a hogshead of molasses in a lively manner.

The Courier says the average daily freight that passes over the Conway road, through Rochester, consists of twenty carloads. When the road was first opened and for several years, all the freight was attached to passenger trains, and rarely required more than one car.

A convention of hotel-keepers was held in Concord a committee chosen to prepare a resolution advocating the adoption of a license law and to present it to the State committees of the republican and democratic parties for incorporation into their respective platforms at the coming conventions.

G. H. Smith, school janitor of Dover, who was shot through the neck by an unknown man whom he ejected from one of the school houses, is still alive, and though in a very critical condition is expected to recover.

The prohibitionists of Hillsborough county held their county convention in Nashua and made the following nominations; County commissioner, Charles E. Kenniston of Manchester; treasurer, Roswell H. Hassam of Manchester; register of deeds, Everett Stickney of Milford; counsellor, John Gillis of Manchester, district 3. For senator, district 7, Benjamin P. Moore of Nashua; senator, district 8, George W. Ruland of Amherst.

The directors of the New Hampshire Agricultural society voted to hold a grand Farmers and mechanics' convention at the city hall, in Manchester, on the 20th and 21st instant. Several prominent speakers have been engaged to deliver addresses. On the second day of the convention a banquet will be served to the members of the convention and their ladies. At a meeting of the society the following gentlemen were elected officers for the ensuing year: President, Natt Head, Hooksett; secretary, Aaron Young, Portsmouth; treasurer George W. Riddle, Manchester; directors, Warren F. Daniell, Franklin; Peter W. Jones, Amherst; James W. Coggswell, Gilmanton; Nathaniel Hubbard, Tamworth; Charles H. Hayes, Portsmouth; Stephen S. Chick, Somersworth; Nathan R. Perkins, Jefferson; Noah W. Hardy, Nelson; Moses D. Page, Dover; Peter Kimball, Grafton; auditors, Warren Brown, Hampton Falls, and Waterman Smith, Manchester. The treasurer reported that after all bills have been paid there will be a balance on hand of about $3600.

A Strong Excuse.

A negro clergyman, who remarried rather sooner than some of the sisters thought proper, and becoming, thus excused himself: "My dear brethren and sisters, my grief was greater than I could bear. I turned every way for peace and comfort, but none came. I searched the Scriptures from Genesis to Revelations, and found plenty of promises to the widder, but nary one to the widderer. And so I took it that the Lord didn't waste sympathy on a man when it was in his power to comfort himself; and having a first-rate chance to marry in the Lord, I did so again. Besides, brethren, I considered that poor Betsy was just as dead as she would ever be."

The Political Prospect.

[Concord cor. Boston Advertiser.]

The republican State convention for the nomination of candidates for governor and railroad commissioner will be held on Wednesday, and as the time approaches calculations of a somewhat definite nature as to the result may safely be ventured. Since my last letter two of the leading candidates for the gubernatorial nomination—Hon. S. W. Hale of Keene and Hon. John J. Morrill of Gilford—have formally withdrawn, thus simplifying the contest somewhat. Just how many candidates are still in the field it is difficult to ascertain, the remark of a leading Rockingham county politician, that as far as heard from the number now reaches thirty-seven, being probably nearer the truth than might at first thought be supposed. The fact that very little enthusiasm has shown itself for any particular candidate, and the feeling that quite likely the men who held leading positions at the commencement of the campaign would all fail of a nomination, have all brought to notice many names which otherwise would not have been mentioned, and have excited hopes in the minds of many least likely to receive the honors of a nomination. Among those prominently mentioned a month ago Hon. Charles H. Bell of Exeter alone remains, and while many predict his nomination as a matter of almost absolute certainty, a careful survey of the field renders that result somewhat doubtful. Mr. Bell's chances seem to be greatly damaged by the recent announcement that Hon. W. H. Y. Hackett is to be pressed by the Portsmouth delegation, thus dividing the votes of Rockingham county, but just how zealous a following Mr. Hackett will have cannot be predicted with any degree of certainty, yet it can safely be assumed that his large political experience and acknowledged abilities will make him a formidable candidate if he really desires the nomination.

Among the names recently brought prominently forward, that of Hon. Dexter Richards of Newport seems to be most popular, and from present indications his chances for winning the prize are remarkably good. Mr. Richards has been a member of the executive council, is a successful manufacturer, and a gentleman of excellent abilities. He will unquestionably carry the votes of his own county, Sullivan, on the first ballot, and quite likely a majority of those from Cheshire county, while on the second ballot he will doubtless be supported by a large majority of the delegates from this section of the State. Hon. David A. Warde of this city will probably receive the support of most of the Merrimack county delegation on the first ballot, and if he develops much outside strength may be pressed for the nomination, but just now that is not considered probable. From Coos county comes the report that Colonel W. D. Weeks of Lancaster will be voted for by the delegation from that county, but as he is a practically unknown man in the State, it is hardly to be presumed that he will capture the convention. Belknap county had two candidates at the beginning of the campaign—Messrs. J. J. Morrill and B. J. Cole of Gilford—but it is now understood that they have withdrawn from the contest, and as this county has not had the governor for a great many years a disposition is manifested not to let their claims go by default, and accordingly the name of Charles A. Hackett, Esq., of Belmont, is being canvassed in that direction. Mr. Hackett is a successful farmer and a notary public, a brother of Hon. W. H. Y. Hackett of Portsmouth, and a gentleman of sufficient ability to successfully administer the affairs of the State, if called to that responsible post, and if the claims of the farmers are urgently pressed upon the convention it would not be surprising if Mr. Hackett should win the nomination. A number of other names might be added to the list, but I have given those which are prominently mentioned, and will simply add the suggestion that unless an entirely new man is brought forward by some powerful combination, either Hon. Charles H. Bell or the Hon. Dexter Richards will probably be the republican standard bearer.

The democratic convention will be held on the day following the republican, and appearances indicate that a warm contest is inevitable in that body. Two months ago the nomination of Albert R. Hatch of Portsmouth was considered inevitable, but it is now understood that Mr. Hatch is practically out of the field, and that the contest really lies between ex-Governor Weston of Manchester and Judge Roberts of Rollinsford. The vital point at issue in regard to this nomination appears to be the railroad question, it being understood that the Pearson wing of the party (the present "outs" of the Concord Railroad) expect to be able to control Judge Roberts, while the friends of the present management of the road prefer Mr. Weston. Just how bitter this fight may become, it is impossible to say with certainty, but the result of some caucuses already held clearly indicates that the Pearson element are determined upon making a stubborn fight. Judge Roberts is ostensibly put forward as a hay-seed candidate, but his claims as a farmer can hardly be considered of much practical importance. Unless I mistake the current of opinion Mr. Weston will receive the nomination, although it is but fair to say that many shrewd politicians express the utmost confidence that Judge Roberts will be successful.

Any predictions as to the result of the election in March would be premature. At present the recent absurd farce in Congress on the salary appeal measure is operating to disgust multitudes of republicans, and unless that body does something of a practical nature, and speedily passes a measure such as the masses of the people demand, I am free to say that the republican ticket will lose heavily. The democratic managers make loud boasts of their ability to carry the State, but my impression is that they will have some intestine troubles that it will be impossible to heal,—such, for instance, as the railroad question,—and that their vote will be kept well down to that of former years as a consequence. The prohibition party men talk loudly of casting seven or eight thousand votes.

The probability is, that no choice for governor will be made by the people; that we shall elect a republican house of representatives, and that, as a result, the State will be kept in the republican ranks for another year.

Wrathful Spaniards.

The Havana Vos says: "A telegram announces the loss of the Virginius; we did not expect anything else from the American government. It has acted with the Virginius the same as it did with the Florida, in order not to be compelled to return that steamer to Brazil. Such nobility corresponds with the course of those who are patronizing the Cuban assassins and incendiaries in their heroic enterprise. This will not exempt them from paying the full value of the Virginius, she being the prize of the Tornado, nor from giving ample satisfaction, and, paying proper damages to Spain for the great injury which America has inflicted in breaking the treaty stipulations so scandalously, in permitting the enlistment of men after such enlistment has been advertised beforehand, and protecting such men when once out of the country with their flag and vessels of war upon the high seas and in foreign ports, thereby making themselves the accomplices of assassins and incendiaries. If the weakness or fickleness of Castelar, not of Spain, delivered to them the Virginius, the bad faith of the American government buried the pirate ship in the bottom of the sea, as it did the coal barge Upland at the navy yard to prevent the departure of the Arapiles, which they feared so much. With such deeds they will gain everything except honor, and will transmit to the pages of history that which instead of being their glory will cause their descendants to blush for having had such illustrious ancestors. It is useless to try to gather pears from elms. What Grant, Sickles and the rest of the crew can produce has already been fully demonstrated. For the great wrongs of the Spanish nation terrible atonements are reserved, and their hour will come."

The Diario says that Punic faith and American justice will appear closely united in history, enjoying the same unenviable celebrity. Punic faith was severely condemned by all ancient people. American justice will merit the name of iniquity among moderns. The Diario, referring to the liberation of the Virginius prisoners, says: "The word infamy rises to our lips as applicable to the conduct of the American government officials. The liberation of these prisoners makes it appear as though they were innocent. We can only answer that American justice is iniquity and perfidy. This is the judgment which the signers of the Washington treaty reserved. This judgment is a bloody farce committed against Spain before the eyes of humanity. When an American war vessel took a Confederate cruiser from Brazil the act was declared a violation of the rights of the latter government, and the return of the cruiser ordered, and the Americans sunk her to avoid complying with the duty of returning her. We are told that Spain insisted upon the return of the Virginius, and now we learn of its loss. We believe that the motives of the United States for its action toward Spain are the same as toward Brazil. We believe and cannot do less than call the act a low fraud. The Madrid government was fully justified in its demand for the return of the steamer and prisoners, and it is now their unavoidable duty to demand the delivery of the latter, turn them over to their captors, and demand full satisfaction for the fraud employed. Weakness made us ridiculous, and only firmness can place us in the position that befits us. Spaniards in Cuba protest against such iniquitous manœuvres.

"Our Republican Court."

[Washington letter to Cincinnati Gazette.]

For the first time in many years the nondescript element called society has busied itself with might and main over one of the President's nominations. Never has disloyalty to party been so open or defiant among men as has been the fierce rebellion in the families of cabinet officers, supreme court judges, numerous high officials, and loyal senators against the nomination of Mr. Williams for Chief Justice. And this particular rebellion under consideration broke out and raged hotly, not because the women who led it or the other women who made up its rank and file were troubled with any misgivings about Mr. Williams' fitness for the high place to which the President has nominated him; but something far more important in their estimation than any such trifling consideration fired their hearts and made their eyes flash. Did not this action of the President, if indorsed by the senate, make a woman of whom they have long been jealous "the first lady in the land?" For be it known to those who are so blessed as never to have to do with the inner circles of hollowness which here in the capital arrogate to themselves the exclusive right to the term "society" that the battles which have long raged among the "Supreme Court ladies," the "Cabinet ladies," "senate ladies" and "house ladies" have been fought through, and the wife of the Chief Justice is the "first lady of the land," since the wife of the President need not return calls. Upon this first lady all others in official society must call first; then in regular gradation they visit each other, each society woman's soul writhing within her at the thought that she is required to make first calls on anybody.

But round and round they go in one continued dance of mockery, jealousy and bitterness of heart. And when this last cup was commended to their lips by the President, the fires of treason were lighted in half the women's eyes throughout executive and official circles. Rebellion stalked openly round the board where husbands and fathers sat in mute and respectful loyalty to the President. Along these battalions in silks and ruffles there were no banners inscribed with party watchwords, or the names of party leaders. The question with them was not, shall regard be paid by party men to the President's nomination? but, shall anybody, President or senate, be allowed to designate as first lady of the land one of whom all "society" is so intensely jealous? Perish the thought of peace either with presidents or senates! A score of major-generals in satins, jewels and scarfs, sounded the advance, and all "society" in Washington fell into line and rushed to the fray. And a beautiful time senators have had since. Wives, daughters and their lady acquaintances have beset them in all waking moments, and been terribly present in their dreams, begging, coaxing, denouncing, protesting and demanding, the objects of all requests and all demands being that, rule as the President might in all other things, in this dictating who should be "first lady" the senate should not humor him to the extent of over-turning society.

Seriously there is no exaggeration in all this. That hollow mockery, called society, has been fighting the nomination of Mr. Williams with all the bitterness and all the weapons it could command, not on the ground of its fitness or unfitness, but solely on account of its relation to that far more important question of "first lady." If Mr. Williams had been, beyond doubt in any mind, the man best fitted for Chief Justice, society would have lashed itself into the same rage; and loyal senators would have met disloyalty of the rankest sort at their firesides and in their beds. Our "republican court" has heretofore had no similar trial. The old southern influences passed away from Washington, and our northern set has just begun to arrange its furbelows and flounces and talk of social precedence when Mr. Chase was made Chief Justice. And as he had no wife, the question of first lady did not enter, and so the "republican court" was not shaken and shattered at its birth by this momentous subject. Figuratively speaking, there were hair pullings and free scratchings innumerable over the question whether senators' wives or cabinet ladies were entitled to precedence, and where in the court the wives and families of the supreme court justices took rank. And these matters are still unsettled, and break out anew whenever a bold or ambitious woman is added to one side or the other.

This contest, which has ranged for about a fortnight now, is a good illustration of the tendencies of official life in the capital. On all sides, bitterness, narrowness, ambitions and jealousies are attempting to ape court manners, styles and forms, and trim and fashion official society here into what they gravely speak of as a thing of recognized existence—namely, this republican court. When the government builds mansions for cabinet officers, and the States erect them for senators, then, if the contingent funds of the departments continue sufficient to furnish carriages, drivers, footmen, ushers, servants, and furniture, the republican court will blossom out in full mockery of republican institutions.

—Wicks remarked to the young lady he was taking out to drive, "I always pick out the softest spot I can, when I upset my sleigh." She replied, "Why! I should think it would grow monotonous; always falling on your head."

Business Notices.

The remarkable cures effected by VEGETINE have induced many physicians and apothecaries, whom we know, to prescribe and use it in their own families.

It is impossible to ignore these terrible nameless diseases that annually sweep so many hapless victims into the grave. We are compelled to recognize them, and it is the Good Samaritan's duty to try and cure them. HELMBOLD'S BUCHU stands unrivalled for all such diseases. Get the genuine, which has the proprietor's private proprietary stamp. Beware of counterfeits. For sale by all druggists.

The great PILE remedy, ANAKESIS, the discovery of Dr. Sibbee, is entitled to be called the wonder of the age. 20,000 grateful sufferers bless the only infallible remedy for PILES ever introduced. Only those who have used lotions, ointments and internal remedies in vain, will understand the grateful feeling of instant relief from pain, and blissful hope of certain cure for the terrible disease, that ANAKESIS secures. It is used by Doctors of all schools. —Price $1.00. Sold by Druggists everywhere. Depot, 46 Walker st., New York.

The United States Dispensatory, standard and most excellent authority, says: "Pills are much better preserved in glass bottles than in the common wood or pasteboard boxes, and should always be dispensed in glass by the apothecary." If you would use medicine superior, not only in being preserved fresh and perfect by compliance with this very important rule, but also in being composed of choice, concentrated and chemically refined vegetable medicinal principles, instead of crude, bulky, cheap drugs, that constitute the huge pills put up in cheap wood or paper boxes, then take Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Purgative Pellets, or Concentrated Root and Herbal Juice, Anti-Bilious Granules, 25 cents a vial, by druggists.

A Manual of Health.

The edition for 1874 of the sterling medical annual known as Hostetter's Almanac is now ready, and may be obtained, free of cost, of druggists and general country dealers in all parts of the United States and British America, and indeed in every civilized portion of the Western Hemisphere. This Almanac has been issued regularly at the commencement of every year for about one-fifth of of a century. It combines with the soundest practical advice for the preservation and restoration of health, a large amount of interesting and amusing light reading, and the calendar, astronomical calculations, chronological items, &c., are prepared with great care, and will be found entirely accurate. The issue of Hostetter's Almanac for 1874 will probably be the largest edition of a medical work ever published in any country. The proprietors, Messrs. Hostetter & Smith, Pittsburg, Pa., on receipt of a two cent stamp, will forward a copy by mail to any person who cannot procure one in his neighborhood.

After an extensive practice of upwards of thirty years, continues to secure patents in the United States; also in Great Britain, France and other foreign countries. Caveats, Specifications, Assignments, and all papers for Patents, executed on reasonable terms with dispatch. Researches made to determine the validity and utility of Patents of Inventions, and legal and other advice rendered in all matters touching the same. Copies of the claims of any patent furnished, by remitting one dollar. Assignments recorded in Washington.

No Agency in the United States possesses superior facilities for obtaining Patents or ascertaining the patentability of inventions.

All necessity for a journey to Washington to procure a Patent and the usual great delay there, are here saved inventors.

TESTIMONIALS.

"I regard Mr. Eddy as one of the most capable and successful practitioners with whom I have had official intercourse. CHARLES MASON, Commissioner of Patents."

"I have no hesitation in assuring inventors that they cannot employ a man more competent and trustworthy and more capable of putting their applications in a form to secure for them an early and favorable consideration at the Patent Office. EDMUND BURKE, Late Commissioner of Patents."

"MR. R. H. EDDY has made for me over THIRTY applications for Patents, having been successful in almost every case. Such unmistakable proof of great talent and ability on his part leads me to recommend ALL inventors to apply to him to procure their Patents, as they may be sure of having the most faithful attention bestowed on their cases and at very reasonable charges. Local Matters.

Kittery.

On New Year's day, Mr. Andrew Amee was found dead in his house at Kittery Point, which he has occupied alone for some months. He had probably been dead twenty-four hours when found. The indications were that he died peacefully and naturally. For many years, Mr. Amee owned and drove a stage between Portsmouth and Kittery Point.

Warren Lewis recently carelessly rested his gun in the snow and leaned on the muzzle. The snow gave way, the pammer slipped, and a thumb and finger went flying all abroad. He is carefully nursing the remnants left.

The friends of "Uncle" Charles Danningburg gave a New Year's donation of goods valued at $75 at Trefethen Hall. It was an enjoyable affair and closed with dancing.

Rev. Mr. Mason, of the Methodist society, had a donation party on the same evening, and a bountiful supply of good things was left.

Laconics.

The sidewalks on Pleasant street need shoveling badly, Mr. City Marshal.

Mr. Amos F. Whitney was found dead in his bed at his residence in this city, Thursday.

A very fine essay on Sabbath Schools by S. W. Clark, appears in the Prohibition Herald.

The first sign hoisted on the new building of the Mechanics' Association is that of the Conservatory of Music.

The CHRONICLE has the largest local circulation of any paper printed in Portsmouth, consequently it is the best medium for local advertisers.

The Repository for January, issued by the Universalist Publishing House, Boston, contains a biographical sketch of Rev. A. J. Patterson, with an excellent portrait.

Smelt fishing in Great Bay has been unusually good this winter and is of great benefit to poor men out of employment. Three persons caught 300 lbs., Thursday.

The Journal has got a friend at its elbow, too, who has taken the CHRONICLE (which some one else has paid for,) for fourteen years. Charity begins at home, sometimes. The Journal weakens its recent falsehood by claiming that its circulation is more than that of the CHRONICLE and N. H. GAZETTE. We should have no more confidence in a sworn statement of the number of copies the Journal man prints than we have in his word. The Journal's circulation is of no injury to us. Its capacity for rivalry died with the demise of its respected editor in 1868—since which time its purchased editorials and the vivacity of Mr. Samuel Dodge, the loca reporter, have been the only evidences of life it has manifested. We never have considered the Journal as a rival. It might have died of stagnation long ere this, had it depended on its present proprietor for brains and propulsive force.

It is finally decided that Rev. W. H. Cudworth's lecture before the lyceum will be postponed until later in the course. Next Tuesday evening, some of our favorite amateurs will give a dramatic entertainment, to which tickets for Mr. Cudworth's lecture will admit holders. The laughable farce, "Poor Pillicoddy," and the burlesque extravaganza, "The Widow's Victim," will be presented by the same parties who appeared so acceptably in these plays two years ago. In "Poor Pillicoddy," Capt. J. Albert Sanborn will sustain the character of Joan Peter Pillicoddy: and also that of Byron Tremain Pelham Podge (with dance) in "The Widow's Victim." Mr. Robert B. Palfrey with appear as "Jerry Clip," with imitations of popular actors. Miss Flora M. Fitts will reappear as Jane Chatterly, with song. Evening tickets to all parts of of the house may be obtained at the usual places, at 35 cents each.

Old Letters.

Never burn kindly-written letters; it is so pleasant to read them over when the ink is brown, the paper is yellow with age, and the hands that traced the friendly words are folded over the hearts that prompted them under the green sod. Above all, never burn love letters. To read them in after years is like a resurrection to one's youth. The elderly spinster finds in the impassioned offer she foolishly rejected twenty years ago a fountain of rejuvenescence. Glancing over it she realizes that she was once a belle and a beauty, and beholds her former self in a mirror much more congenial to her tastes than the one that confronts her in her dressing-room. The "widow indeed" derives a sweet and solemn consolation from the letters of the beloved one who has journeyed before her to the far-off land, from which there comes no message, and where she hopes one day to join him. No photographs can so vividly recall to the memory of the mother the tenderness and devotion of the children who have left at the call of Heaven as the epistolary outpourings of their love. The letter of a true son or daughter to a true mother is something better than an image of the features—it is a reflex of the writer's soul. Keep all loving letters; burn only the harsh ones, and in burning them forgive and forget them.

Mental Action a Physical Process.

It is now a well-established physiological fact that mental action is a distinctly physical process, depending primarily on a chemical reaction between the blood and the brain, precisely as muscular action depends primarily upon a chemical reaction between the blood and the muscular tissues. Without the free circulation of blood in the brain there can be neither thought nor sensation, neither emotion nor ideas. It necessarily follows that thought, the only form of brain-action which we have to consider, is a process not merely depending upon, but in its turn affecting, the physical condition, of the brain, precisely as muscular exertion of any given kind depends on the quality of the muscles employed, and affects the condition of those muscles, not at the moment only, but thereafter, conducing to their growth and development if wisely adjusted to their power, or causing waste and decay if excessive and too long continued. It is important to notice that this is not a mere analogy. The relation between thought and the condition of the brain is a reality. So far as this statement affects our ideas about actually existent mental power, it is of little importance; for it is not more useful to announce that a man with a good brain will possess good mental powers than to say that a muscular man will be capable of considerable exertion. But as it is of extreme importance to know of the relation which exists between muscular exercise and the growth of development of bodily strength, so it is highly important for us to remember that the development of mental power depends largely on the exercise of the mind. There is a "training" for the brain as well as for the body—a real physical training—depending, like bodily training, on rules as to nourishment, method of action, quantity of exercise, etc.

"Mack," the irrepressible, is now editing the St. Louis Globe. Tired of the ordinary method of obtaining news by journals not "in" the Associated Press, he made such arrangements as to secure the dispatches of that organization. Thereupon the St. Louis Democrat charged the immaculate "Mack" with mendacious. Those who know him will not be surprised to learn that he did not rest easy under this charge; but it appears to a practiced eye that he really has the game as well as the name. At any rate, he makes an excellent paper—one of the best in the Mississippi valley.

—A cross-eyed man cast a gloom over a Detroit street car in Cleveland, by asking one of the seven men, and strangers, on the opposite seat, "if he had any chewing tobacco handy." First the seven strangers looked at each other. Then the seven hands went pocket-ward, and, upon observing this motion, each of the seven supposed his neighbor the one spoken to, and the seven hands returned empty. The cross-eyed man cast a ricochet glance of indignation along the line, and with the remark, "a sweet-scented lot of generous roosters," took a chew of his own tobacco.

CATARRH!

A Woman Having Catarrh 35 Years, Cured.

And Droppings in Throat, Choking, Strangulings, Pains in the Side, Loins, Headache, Dizziness, and General Weakness, Cured by less than Three Bottles of the

CONSTITUTIONAL CATARRH REMEDY.

To MESSRS. LITTLEFIELD & CO., Proprietors of Constitutional Catarrh Remedy, Manchester, N.H.:

I reside at Manchester N., H., and previously resided at Henniker, and am a native of Weare, this State. I have had Catarrh twenty-five years, ever since I was 19 years old; had it bad all the time. It run all that period, and nights it would fill up and drop down in my throat, causing a feeling of choking, so that I would spring up in bed to save myself from strangulation. It affected my head so that I felt confused, and was troubled with severe headache at intervals, for a week at a time. I also had bad pains in shoulders, back and kidneys, from which I suffered immensely. So bad were they, that a year ago last summer I was obliged to lie in bed most of the time for three months. I have tried all kinds of snuff and Catarrh remedies with no particular benefit, and consulted physicians. I had a hacking cough. I began to take the Constitutional Catarrh Remedy last August. I began to grow better before finishing the first bottle. I am now on the third bottle. My Catarrh is cured; my health is restored. I have no pains, aches, or cough. My whole system is made over new. I know it is this medicine that has rescued me from intense suffering and almost the grave. I am now able to do the hardest work and bear the greatest exposure, and feel that I cannot say too much in favor of the Constitutional Catarrh Remedy.

MRS. E. J. FLANDERS.

Manchester, N. H., Feb. 1, 1873.

I am now 53 years old, have had Catarrh ever since I was eighteen years old, and headache all the time; have suffered beyond description with running at the nose, droppings in the throat, chokings and stranglings. Have tried any quantity of Catarrh Remedies, but have found no relief till I tried your Constitutional Catarrh Remedy, six months ago. I found immediate relief.

Catarrh and all its attendant evils have left, Headache, Pains in Loins and Back, Dizziness, Loss of Appetite, and General Weakness. Less than three bottles of Constitutional Catarrh Remedy have cured me. I have not been so well since I can remember as now. I feel as if I could not say too much for the medicine, or thank God too heartily that through its instrumentality I have been restored to health.

MARY M. ABBOTT,

No. 17 Manchester Corporation.

Manchester, N. H., Jan. 27, 1872.

The above lady is my mother. I am a painter by trade, and a member of the City Council of Manchester. Every word that my mother states is true.

JACOB J. ABBOTT.

Hundreds of cases of a similar nature cured within the last year. Snuffs and Lotions are only temporary relief. The CONSTITUTIONAL CATARRH REMEDY strikes at the root, builds up the constitution, makes it new, and drives away Catarrh and all diseases of the mucous membranes and their attendant pains and aches, pertaining to head, back, shoulders, kidneys, and throat.

Price $1 per Bottle. Sold by all Druggists. A Pamphlet of 32 pages, giving a Treatise on Catarrh, and containing innumerable cases of cures, sent FREE, by addressing the Proprietors,

AYER'S SARSAPARILLA,

FOR PURIFYING THE BLOOD.

This compound of the vegetable alteratives, Sarsaparilla, Dock, Stillingia and Mandrake with the iodides of Potassium and Iron makes a most effectual cure of a series of complaints which are very prevalent and afflicting. It purifies the blood, purges out the lurking humors in the system that undermine health and settle into troublesome disorders. Eruptions of the skin are the appearance on the surface of humors that should be expelled from the blood. Internal derangements are the determination of these same humors to some internal organ, or organs, whose action they derange, and whose substance they disease and destroy. AYER'S SARSAPARILLA expels these humors from the blood. When they are gone, the disorders they produce disappear, such as Ulcerations of the Liver, Stomach, Kidney, Lungs, Eruptions and Eruptive Diseases of the Skin, St. Anthony's Fire, Rose or Erysipelas, Pimples, Pustules, Blotches, Boils, Tumors, Tetter and Salt Rheum, Scald Head, Ringworm, Ulcers and Sores, Rheumatism and Neuralgia, Pain in the Bones, Side and Head, Female Weakness, Sterility, Leuchorrhœa arising from internal ulceration and uterine disease, Dropsy, Dyspepsia, Emaciation and General Debility. With their departure, health returns.

FOURTH GRAND GIFT CONCERT

FOR THE BENEFIT OF THE

Public Library of Ky.

OVER A MILION IN BANK!

SUCCESS ASSURED!

Full Drawing Certain

On Tuesday, 31st of March Next.

In order to meet the general wish and expectation of the public and the ticket-holders for the full payment of the magnificent gifts, announced for the Fourth Grand Gift Concert of the Public Library of Kentucky, the management have determined to postpone the Concert and Drawing until

Tuesday, March 31st, 1874.

They have already realized

OVER A MILLION DOLLARS,

And have a great many agents to hear from.

No doubt is entertained of the sale of every ticket before the drawing, but whether all are sold or not, the Concert and Drawing will positively and unequivocally take place on the day now fixed, and if any remain unsold they will be cancelled and the prizes will be reduced in proportion to the unsold tickets.

Only 60,000 tickets have been issued and

12,000 CASH GIFTS,

$1,500,000,

will be distributed among the ticket-holders.

The tickets are printed in coupons, of tenths, and all fractional parts will be represented in the drawing just as whole tickets are.

LIST OF GIFTS:

ONE GRAND CASH GIFT	$250,000
ONE GRAND CASH GIFT	100,000
ONE GRAND CASH GIFT	50,000
ONE GRAND CASH GIFT	25,000
ONE GRAND CASH GIFT	17,000
10 CASH GIFTS $10,000 each	100,000
20 CASH GIFTS 5,000 each	100,000
50 CASH GIFTS 1,000 each	50,000
80 CASH GIFTS 500 each	40,000
100 CASH GIFTS 400 each	40,000
150 CASH GIFTS 300 each	45,000
250 CASH GIFTS 200 each	50,000
325 CASH GIFTS 100 each	32,500
11,000 CASH GIFTS 50 each	550,000
TOTAL, 12,000 GIFTS, ALL CASH, amounting to	$1,500,000

The chances for a gift are as one to five.

PRICE OF TICKETS:

Whole tickets, $50; Halves, $25; Tenths, or each Coupon, $5; Eleven Whole Tickets for $500; 22½ Tickets for $1,000; 113 Whole Tickets for $5,000; 227 Whole Tickets for $10,000. No discount on less than $500 worth of Tickets at a time.

The Fourth Gift Concert will be conducted, in all respects, on the plan which has been already adopted, and full particulars may be learned from circulars which will be sent free from this office to all who apply for them.

Orders for tickets and applications for agencies will be attended to in the order they are received, and it is hoped they will be sent in promptly, that there may be no disappointment or delay in filling all. Liberal terms given to those who buy to sell again. All agents are peremptorily required to settle up their accounts and return the unsold tickets by the 20th of March.

Portsmouth Chronicle.

A Matron's "Psalm" of Life.

Tell us not in idle jingle "marriage is an empty dream," for the girl is dead that's single, and things are not just what they seem. Life is real, life is earnest, single blessedness a fib; "Man thou art, to man returnest," has been spoken of the rib. Not enjoyment and not sorrow is our destined end or way, but to act that each tomorrow finds us nearer marriage day. Life is long and youth is fleeting, and our hearts, though light and gay, still like pleasant drums are beating wedding marches all the way. In the world's broad field of battle, in the bivouac of life, be not like dumb-driven cattle—be a heroine—a wife. Trust no future, howe'er pleasant, let the dead past bury dead! act, act in the living present! heart within and hope ahead. Lives of married folks remind us we can live our lives as well, and departing leave behind us such examples as shall "tell;" such examples that another, wasting time in idle sport, a forlorn unmarried brother, seeing, shall take heart and court. Let us then be up and doing, with a heart on triumph set; still contriving, still pursuing, and each one a husband get.

Deacon Smith of the Cincinnati Gazette has disposed of the Darwinian theory of the origin of man by asking the question, "Where did the monkeys come from?" Thereupon Halstead, of the Commercial, submits that Smith shall lecture upon the question, omitting the monkey connundrum. Smith rejoins, saying that he is a charitable person and objects to lecturing on the subject, "on the ground that his friends Dana and Halstead could not stand a second shot of that kind," and declares that "a person who believes that he had his origin in the monkey or the ape needs special and very gentle treatment—otherwise he might breed back." He adds that he "would be sorry to see young Danas and Halsteads carried about by Italian organ-grinders, for the amusement of small boys whose parents develop upward." Tally one for the Deacon!

HALL'S VEGETABLE SICILIAN

HAIR RENEWER!

This standard article is compounded with the greatest care.
Its effects are as wonderful and satisfactory as ever.
It restores gray or faded hair to its youthful color.
It removes all eruptions, itching and dandruff; and the scalp, by its use, becomes white and clean.
By its tonic properties, it restores the capillary glands to their normal vigor, preventing baldness and making the hair grow thick and strong.
As a dressing, nothing has been found so effectua or desirable.
Dr. A. A. Hayes, State Assayer of Massachusetts, says of it: "I consider it the best preparation for its intended purposes."

BUCKINGHAM'S DYE,

FOR THE WHISKERS.

This elegant preparation may be relied on to change the color of the beard from gray or any other undesirable shade to brown or black, at discretion. It is easily applied, being in one preparation, and quickly and effectually produces a permanent color, which will neither rub nor wash off.

IRON IN THE BLOOD.

DYSPEPSIA, DEBILITY, DROPSY AND NUMORS.

PERUVIAN SYRUP

Makes The Weak Strong.

The Peruvian Syrup, a Protected Solution of the Protoxide of Iron, is so combined as to have the character of an ailment, as easily digested and assimilated with the blood as the simplest food. It increases the quantity of Nature's Own Vitalizing Agent, Iron in the blood, and cures "a thousand ills," simply by Toning up, Invigorating and Vitalizing the System. The enriched and vitalized blood permeates every part of the body, repairing damages and waste, searching out morbid secretions, and leaving nothing for disease to feed upon.
This is the secret of the wonderful success of this remedy in curing Dyspepsia, Liver Complaint, Dropsy, Chronic Diarrhœa, Boils, Nervous Affections, Chills and Fevers, Humors, Loss of Constitutional Vigor, Diseases of the Kidneys and Bladder, Female Complaints, and all diseases originating in a bad state of the blood, or accompanied by debility or a low system. Being free from Alcohol, in any form its energizing effects are not followed by corresponding reaction, but are permanent, infusing strength, vigor, and new life into all parts of the system, and building upon an Iron Constitution.
Thousands have been changed by the use of this remedy, from weak, sickly, suffering creatures to strong, healthy, and happy men and women; and invalids cannot reasonably hesitate to give it a trial.
See that each bottle has PERUVIAN SYRUP blown in be glass.

Philadelphia & Reading Coal & Iron Company.
COAL.
HAVING contracted for a quantity of the above coal, we would call the attention of Manufacturers, Dealers and Consumers to the following different grades mined and controlled by the Company:
HARD WHITE ASH COAL,
FREE BURNING WHITE ASH COAL,
SHAMOKIN WHITE ASH COAL,
SHAMOKIN RED ASH COAL,
NORTH FRANKLIN COAL,
LYKENS VALLEY COAL.
In order that all coal shall be shipped in good order, a most rigid system of inspection, both at the mines and at the shipping ports, will at all times be enforced. In every district of the coal region there will be appointed a number of competent persons skilled in the preparation of coal, as local inspectors, whose duty it will be to visit the several collieries daily to see that a proper force is at all times employed in removing slate, and to prevent, if possible, any coal being sent from the mines in bad order. In addition to these efforts at prevention, no means will be left untried at the shipping ports to cure the evils of careless preparation. At Schuylkill Haven, Port Clinton and Port Richmond, ALL COAL WILL BE SUBJECTED TO THE PERSONAL EXAMINATION OF A SKILLED INSPECTOR BEFORE IT IS SHIPPED, and if condemned by him, will be dumped in places provided for the purpose, and before being loaded into vessels WILL BE THOROUGHLY REPICKED AND CLEANED BY HAND.
We keep a fine stock of the above coal on hand, also
LEHIGH, WILKESBARRE, PITTSTON
and other first class Coal. For sale by the Cargo, Car-load or at retail from our wharf.

Harper's Weekly.
SPLENDIDLY ILLUSTRATED.
NOTICES OF THE PRESS.
The Weekly is the ablest and most powerful illustrated periodical published in this country. Its editorials are scholarly and convincing, and carry much weight. Its illustrations of current events are full and fresh, and are prepared by our best designers. With a circulation of 150,000, the Weekly is read by at least half a million persons, and its influence as an organ of opinion is simply tremendous. The Weekly maintains a positive position, and expresses decided views on political and social problems.—Louisville Courier Journal.

Harper's Bazar.
NOTICES OF THE PRESS.
The BAZAR is edited with a contribution of tact and talent that we seldom find in any journal; and the journal itself is the organ of the great world of fashion.—Boston Traveller.
The BAZAR commends itself to every member of the household—to the children by droll and pretty pictures, to the young ladies by its fashion-plates in endless variety, to the provident matron by its patterns for the children's clothes, to paterfamilias by its tasteful designs for embroidered slippers and luxurious dressing-gowns. But the reading-matter of the BAZAR is uniformly of great excellence. The paper has acquired a wide popularity for the fireside enjoyment it affords.—N. Y. Evening Post.

PROSPECTUS FOR 1874--SEVENTH YEAR.
THE ALDINE,
An Illustrated Monthly Journal, universally admitted to be the handsomest Periodical in the world. A Representative and Champion of American Taste.
NOT FOR SALE IN BOOK OR NEWS STORES.
THE ALDINE, while issued with all the regularity, has none of the temporary or timely interest characteristic of ordinary periodicals. It is an elegant miscellany of pure, light and graceful literature; and a collection of pic tures, the rarest specimens of artistic skill, in black and white. Although each succeeding num ber affords a fresh pleasure to its friends, the real value and beauty of THE ALDINE will be most appreciated after it has been bound up at the close of the year. While other publications may claim superior cheapness, as compared with rivals of a similar class, THE ALDINE is a unique and original conception—alone and unapproached—absolutely without competition in price or character. The possessor of a complete volume cannot duplicate the quantity of fine paper and engravings in any other shape or number of volumes FOR TEN TIMES ITS COST; AND THEN, THERE ARE THE CHROMOS, BESIDE!
ART DEPARTMENT, 1874.
The illustrations of THE ALDINE have won a world-wide reputation, and in the art centres of Europe it is an admitted fact that its wood cuts are examples of the highest perfection ever attained. The common prejudice in favor of "steel plates," is rapidly yielding to a more educated and discriminating taste which recognizes the advantages of superior artistic quality with greater facility of production. The wood-cuts of THE ALDINE possess all the delicacy and elaborate finish of the most costly steel plate, while they afford a better rendering of the artist's original.
In addition to designs by the members of the National Academy, and other noted American artists, THE ALDINE will reproduce examples of the best foreign ma-ters, selected with a view to the highest artistic success and greatest general interest. Thus the subscriber to THE ALDINE will, at a trifling cost, enjoy in his own home the pleasures and refining influences of true art.
The Christmas issue for 1874 will contain special designs appropriate to the season, by our best artists, and will surpass in attractions any of its predecessors.
PREMIUM FOR 1874.
Every subscriber to THE ALDINE for the year 1874 will receive a pair of chromos. The original pictures were painte in oil for the publishers of THE ALDINE, by Thomas Moran, whose great Colorado picture wa purchased by Congress for ten thousand dollars. The subjects were chosen to represent "The East" and "The West." One is a view in The White Mountains, New Hamp-hire; the other gives The Cliffs of Green River, Wyoming Territory.
If any subscriber should indicate a preference for a figure subject the publishers will send "Thoughts of Home," a new and beautiful chromo, 14x 20 inches, representing a little Italian exile whose speaking eyes betray the longings of his heart.
TERMS.
$5 per annum, in advance, with Oil Chromos free.
For 50 CENTS EXTRA, the chromos will be sent, mounted, varnished, and prepaid by mail.
THE ALDINE will, hereafter, be obtainable only by subscription. There will be no reduced or club rate; cash for subscriptions must be sent to the publishers direct, or handed to the local canvasser, without responsibility to the publishers, except in cases where the certificate is given, bearing the fac-simile signature of JAMES SUTTON & CO.
CANVASSERS WANTED.
Any person wishing to act permanently as a local canvasser will receive full and prompt information by applying to

The Country Gentleman.
Volume for 1874.
THE CULTIVATOR & COUNTRY GENTLEMAN, for the past forty years, has ranked, both in this country and abroad, as the STANDARD JOURNAL OF AMERICAN AGRICULTURE. The Editors and Proprietors, in addition to their own personal labors, are regularly assisted by a very large number of Special Correspondents and Regular Contributors, among whom are included many Leading Agricultu ists, in all parts of the Country, East and West—and by over Five Hundred Occasional and Voluntary Writers, directly in the ranks of the Best Farmers and Horticulturists of nearly every State in the Union. With the co-operation of so large a corps of practical men, this Journal is intended to possess exceptional value as the chosen Medium of Intercommunication among all classes interested in the Products and Fertility of the land—those who Cultivate and those who Consume—the Buyer and Shipper, as well as the first Owner of the crop—Breeders of Improved Animals and their Customers—Manufacturers of Improved Machinery and those who purchase and employ it—Nurserymen and Fruit Raisers—and, especially, to supply fuller and better data as to the progress, prospects and returns of each successive Season, as throwing light upon one of the most important of all questions—When to Buy and when to Sell.
TERMS.—The COUNTRY GENTLEMAN is published weekly, on the following terms, when paid strictly in advance: ONE COPY, one year, $2.50; FOUR COPIES, $10, and an additional copy for the year free to the sender of the Club; TEN COPIES, $20, and an additional copy for the year free to the sender of the Club.

OF
WILD CHERRY!
THE GREAT REMEDY FOR
CONSUMPTION!!
And acknowledged by many prominent physicians to be the most Reliable Preparation ever introduced for the RELIEF and CURE of all
LUNG COMPLAINTS.
This well known remedy is offered to the public, sanctioned by the experience of over forty years, and when resorted to in season seldom fails to effect a speedy cure of
COUGHS, COLDS, CROUP, BRONCHITIS, INFLUENZA, WHOOPING COUGH, HOARSENESS, PAINS OR SORENESS IN THE CHEST OR SIDE, BLEEDING AT THE LUNGS, LIVER COMPLAINTS, &c.
CONSUMPTION
CURED
By a timely resort to this standard remedy, as improved by hundreds of testimonials received by the proprietors.
Dr. Wistar's Balsam of Wild Cherry
Does not dry up a Cough and leave the cause behind as is the case with most preparations, but it loosens and cleanses the lungs and allays irritation, thus removing the cause of the complaint.
CLERGYMEN, LAWYERS, SINGERS,
And all those whose occupation requires an unusual exercise of the vocal organs, will find this the ONLY PREPARATION which will effectually and instantaneously relieve their difficulties.
BEWARE OF COUNTERFEITS.—Remember that the genuine Wistar's Balsam has on the outside wrapper the signature of "I. BUTTS," and the printed name of the proprietors, "SETH W. FOWLE & SONS, BOSTON." All others are base imitations. Examine the wrapper carefully before purchasing.

The Singer Still Triumphant!
At the Vienna Exhibition, the SINGER received the Medal of Merit, the Medal of Progress, and three other Medals for superiority of productions. These are the highest Sewing Machine Awards at Vienna. The SINGER received all the medals awarded to either of the competing machines, and two medals more than any other obtained. Then, in the name of Truth, what is it that prompts people to claim recommendations for the Diploma of Honor? The fact is, no Diploma of Honor has been given to any Sewing Machine Company.
But immeasurably more valuable is The World's Award as shown by sales—proved by sworn returns to the owners of the principal Sewing Machine Patents—which last year amounted to TWO HUNDRED AND NINETEEN THOUSAND, SEVEN HUNDRED AND FIFTY-EIGHT (219,758) machines, nine out of ten of them being for Family Use. This is over 45,000 more Sewing Machines than were sold by any other company during the same period, and over One Quarter of all the machines sold in 1872. These enormous sales are owing to the long-tested merits of the Singer Machines, which meet the wants of the public in reviority and simplicity of construction, and capability for great variety and excellence of work. That the users of Sewing Machines find these desirable qualities in the Singer beyond all others, is shown by the sales above given, aside from the awards of International Juries, either at home or abroad.

SIXTEEN OIL PAINTINGS IN A BOOK!
Never before was such an idea attempted for book illustration; every one who has seen it pronounces it superb. Mrs. Harriet Beecher Stowe's latest work,
Woman in Sacred History,
is a series of narrative sketches, drawn from Scriptural, historical and legendary sources. ILLUSTRATED WITH SIXTEEN CHOICE OIL CHROMOS, after paintings by the most celebrated artists in the world, giving a rich and magnificent variety of Oriental costume and beauty. Mrs. Stowe, in her charming style, has written a book full of interest, and without a dull page in it, which even if not illustrated would sell rapidly; but the
make it one of the most unique, original and remarkable books ever offered. The pictures, if published separately, would readily sell for $2 each, or $32, while the entire book, with the sixteen pictures, together with sumptuous bindings of the volume, can be had for one-fifth of that amount. The book is published in ENGLISH and in GERMAN, and is making a tremendous

Ordinance No. 41.

Requiring Sidewalks to be Cleared of Snow.

Be it ordained by the City Council of the city of Portsmouth as follows:

SEC. 1. The occupants, or, if unoccupied, the owners, of all the buildings and lands situate within the city, shall keep the sidewalk adjoining their respective premises, in all cases where a sidewalk has been or may be constructed, free from snow, by causing the snow to be removed into the street and evenly spread, within six hours after the cessation of every fall thereof, or when the snow shall have blown or drifted upon the sid walk by the wind. The time herein allowed for the performance of the work to be computed from sunrise the succeeding morning whenever the fall of snow shall have ceased in the night time.

SEC. 2. Any person disregarding or offending against the provisions of this ordinance shall, upon conviction thereof, forfeit and pay a fine not exceeding ten dollars for each and every offence, with costs of prosecution; and it shall be the duty of the Street Commissioner, under the counsel and direction of the Mayor, to cause this ordinance to be enforced.

Passed Dec. 21, 1854.

Ordinance No. 65,

In Amendment of Ordinance No. 41—Requiring Sidewalks to be Cleared of Snow.

Be it ordained by the City Council of the city of Portsmouth as follows:

That ordinance number forty-one, requiring sidewalks to be cleared of snow, be amended by adding to section one the following clause, viz: That when any of said sidewalks are covered with ice, so as to make the passing dangerous, said owners or occupants shall spread over said sidewalk ashes, sand or salt in such a manner as to prevent the same from being dangerous.

Passed Jan. 19, 1860. n23-1m

Daily Chronicle.

Mrs. Williams.

(Louisville Courier-Journal.)

Observing the call you make in the Courier-Journal for correspondents to enlighten the reading public in regard to the sinister insinuations about Judge Williams obtaining a divorce for the lady who is now his wife, and as I have the particulars, and they contain nothing to the discredit of either party, I do not hesitate to write what I have no doubt is the truth. Mrs. Williams' maiden name was Hughes, and she was born near St. Louis. While still a child her parents moved to Keokuk, Iowa. At the age of fifteen Mrs. Williams did what many a foolish girl has done before and since that time, ran away and married a man of whom her parents disapproved. The husband was also too young for the responsible duties he had assumed, and before the birth of their child his wife had the most convincing proof of his infidelity. She was ill and came near dying, but the kind physician who was in attendance took her home to her father's house, and there was a suit brought for divorce. Judge Williams had known her from childhood and granted the divorce.

Mrs. Williams remained single for some years, when she again trusted her happiness into a husband's keeping and made a second mistake. Judge Williams was also married, and the two knew nothing of each other's whereabouts for many years. Mrs. Williams' husband was a drunkard, and they became very poor. Then she took matters in her own hands, left her husband, and opened a school in Oregon. She taught and earned money. One day a letter came from California that her husband was dying in a hospital. Nobly she forgot all the sorrow he had caused, and she promptly responded to the call, and nursed him and supplied his wants until his death. After the funeral she returned to her school which she kept until Judge Williams who was now a widower,

ASKED HER TO BECOME HIS WIFE.

This was about the time he became United States Senator. This last marriage has proved happy and prosperous. Mrs. Williams' beauty is more than common and of a rare type. Very dark hair, with very blue eyes that have long, dark lashes. Her complexion is fair and clear, features good, though not regular. Her form is full, as it should be, after the heyday of youth is passed. She has beautiful neck and arms. She dresses well, though not extravagantly; for, with all the receiving she does and the invitations she accepts, I don't think any winter she has had over six expensive dresses. I know I have seen some of the old dresses turned and retrimmed. Mrs. Williams is an admirable housekeeper and manager. She is generous and hospitable. She has always taken in and understood the situation; and without intrigue, or in any other way but such as a fond and good wife can do without blame, she has used her best endeavors to advance her husband's interests. She has even gone further, and exerted herself to make the whole Administration popular. Second only to Mrs. Fish has she been in returning all calls and receiving all graciously.

A Kettledrum.

[World.]

Kettledrum is the name given to an informal afternoon tea party, a style of entertainment which is becoming extremely popular. It is so called, of course, because the music of a steadily-beaten drum accompanies the singing of a teakettle hung in an open fire place. These drums may be of any size, but are usually not larger than those used in military bands and theatre orchestras. The beating is never performed by a servant but always by a visitor. Its advantage for disguising animated and emotional conversation among the other guests is obvious.

The number of persons present at a kettledrum varies greatly. Invitations are verbal always, it being considered bad ton to use engraved cards or notes of any sort.

Tea is the only beverage served. Four kinds of tea are thought sufficient; souchong, hyson, pekoe and bohea. It is served in Dresden cups of very large size with flaring rims, from which it is impossible to drink without risk of spilling, and as spoons are tabooed in the best society, straw tubes are used instead.

The straw (of wheat) is said to impart a peculiarly fine flavor to the tea, especially pekoe and bohea. In the case of hyson the difference is hardly perceptible.

As servants are never admitted to "kettledrums," not even to announce names, the tea is usually made by the lady of the household, and handed by her lady guests to the gentlemen present. Never does the reverse take place. This affords an opportunity otherwise unattainable for ladies without impropriety to indicate their preference of partners in this half hour's society. The gentlemen can under no circumstances refuse to accept the tea; but if addressing the lady who brings his cup, he adds "sugar, please," it is held to indicate his reciprocal preference for her sweet society, and a tete a tete at once takes place which is often followed by the happiest consequences. The couple are never interrupted and the gentle but steady beating of the drum hides the subdued tones of their voices and renders them inaudible by the rest of the guests who enjoy a similar privacy and protection. Of course it sometimes happens that a lady is not asked for "sugar" by any gentleman with whom she cares to pass the time. Her only resource is then to withdraw quietly and visit another house where another kettledrum is in progress and where she may enjoy a happier fate. In like manner a gentleman may sit hoping for tea which never arrives. A few moments will make this clear. His duty is then to take the seat of the guest at the drum, who may himself be the desire of some fair lady. This seat at the drum he surrenders in his turn to the next unfortunate, in which case it is good manners for him to withdraw. By this ingenious custom every Gill has her Jack if Jack will have Gill, and there are no muffs and no wallflowers such as make disagreeable so many of the more pretentious entertainments of our best society.

If there are but two reasons which take men into society in New York—"either to find a wife, or to look after one's wife"—it may be seen how superior is the kettledrum to dinners, balls, or theatre parties for either purpose.

If on the other hand there are but two reasons which take women into society—"to marry somebody or to wish they hadn't"—the superiority of the kettledrum over every other social institution is manifest both for the most pitiless and most piteous sex.

The United States steam-frigate Franklin, reported lost at sea, has arrived safely at Key West.

The public debt statement for December shows an increase of $8,458,272.

A sharp fight between a raiding party of Indians and a detachment of the Fourth cavalry, occurred on the South Llano river, Texas, on the 10th of last month. The Indians were driven off with a loss of nine killed and the cavalry captured many ponies and mules.

The examination in the case of Jordan, Marsh & Co. consisted in sorting the books and papers. The Treasury officials at Washington deny that Jackson, the confidential clerk of the firm, was also in the employ of the government.

The Spanish steamer Arapiles left the drydock at Brooklyn, Friday, but directly ran on a mud bank, where she sticks.

The court of inquiry at London into the Ville du Havre disaster, finds the captain of the Loch Earn blameless.

Another important prisoner has escaped from the Tombs, Simmons, the murderer of Duryea.

The total value of domestic produce of all kinds exported to foreign countries from Boston, during the year 1873, was $30,260,-298, against $21,821,029 for 1872. The exports of foreign merchandise for 1873 amounted to $2,345,875, against $1,992,434 for 1872. The figures show a gain in 1873 of $8,439,264 on domestic produce and $353,439 on foreign merchandise, making the total increase $8,792,703 as compared with 1872.

Peter Cooper, in a letter to President Grant, proposes that all duties due to the Government, and all debts due from individuals, shall be legally paid by simply adding to the amount of currency necessary to the payment of the duty or debt an amount, in currency also, equal to the premium that gold has borne, in the average, during the month preceding the maturing of such debts—the premium to be declared by the government on the first Monday of every month.

State News.

The new hotel in Great Falls, Berwick side, is called the Grant House. It is one of the cosiest and cheeriest hotels on the line of the Great Falls & Conway R. R. Mr. Grant, the proprietor, intends making it first class in every particular. It opened on Monday. The travelling public will be perfectly satisfied with its accommodations.

The best joke we have heard of among Christmas gifts, was the presentation to the pastor of one of our up country churches—by one of his waggish parishoners, a member of the Grafton Co. Bar,—of a live screech owl, as an assistant in his efforts to sing.

There are but twenty-five students attending the State Normal School this winter term—the smallest number ever in attendance.

The operatives in the work shop of the Cocheco Manufacturing Company, at Dover, have struck, and many of them left the works.

Political.

[Nashua Telegraph.]

The results of the democratic convention seem already forecast. There will be a sharp contest for the gubernatorial nomination between the followers of Judge Roberts and of Mr. Weston, unless the latter is withdrawn. The framers of the platform will hardly be able to resist the pressure from the Liquor Dealers' Association, and we may look for an endorsement of local option.

An old seaman, at a religious meeting recently held in New York, in relating his experience, stated that when at sea in storms and tempests, he had often derived great consolation from that beautiful passage of Scripture, "Faint heart ne'er won fair lady."

"I go through my work," as the needle said to the idle boy. "But not till you're hard pushed," as the idle boy said to the needle.

A Moral Suasionist.

Hon. Larkin D. Mason, one of the Old Guard of the temperance cause in our State, writes to the Prohibition Herald in reply to what he terms an "unjust slur" by a correspondent of that paper. Judge Mason is a believer in the efficacy of moral suasion, failing in which he tries legal remedies; but, like the great majority of our best and most efficient temperance men, he doesn't take stock, in the present Prohibition party. He gives his own experience as one of the derided moral suasionists, and we would really be glad to hear of one of the Herald coterie who can show a better record or better results:

"General, what is there about my moral suasion that you complain of? If you know me personally, you know my course, and if you do not you have read my programme, to wit: I first approach the rumseller as a friend, tell him his error, and assure him he must stop this wicked practice. If this visit is successful (and it frequently is) what better course would you recommend? If this fails I summon the offender before the grand jury. If he is convicted he always wilts, and offers all sorts of good things if he can now be let off. I invariably tell him no! he must stand at the bar of justice and plead to the indictment, &c. I always follow him till he is cured. If he gets in the penitentiary and I hear his voice through the grates, penitently asking for mercy, I love to take him by the hand and encourage him. I have on my list nearly a score of rumsellers whom I have entirely broken up. Several of them reside near me. If you will call on me I will introduce you to them.

Out of a Difficulty.

[Laertes' Washington cor. N. Y. Graphic.]

It's wonderful in this great city and government to be unable to know anybody who can tell you how to correct whatever the matter is. They have all tried it boldly, but the situation flew up and wounded them. There was Mr. Richardson, who wanted to resume our five-cent pieces. He was very confident about it. The ghost of Horace Greeley rose up and said:

"If you want to resume, why, gosh hang it resume!"

Richardson resumed his seat. On New Year's he receives but will not impart.

Next Boutwell. He knows whatever he knows with a knowingness to which dogmatism is puppyism. Nothing missed when he had the helm. He paid the public debt off and his own. A severe and swarthy roundhead he is, conscious still of our whole difficulty, but the country won't adopt his plan. It can't any more than it can identify his hole in the sky.

There's nobody else to think of except David A. Wells and President Grant. Mr. Wells was here the other day circulating his address to the Cobden Club, helping Mr. Orton on with telegraphy, and so forth. He is a purist of singular fidelity to his views; but how about the situation? —never mind the principle. He answers that we must grin and bear the fruits of our perversity. Bear them we will, but we can't grin.

As to the President, he and mim—I mean um—are getting the thing all right. I am to write nothing naughty hereafter, and he gives me a lamp to find that strong box up in the mountains he referred to in his first inaugural. I am to be Aladdin and be my uncle, and we shall pay off the national debt and restore confidence, veto any portion of a law we like, irrigate Coloraddy, and divorce Brigham Young from Judge McKean.

Hold, right here! The remedy for the situation most feasible would be for all to go to sleep like Rip Van Winkle twenty years, and waken up with the late war finished, both parties dead, and a little stiffer for the rheumatics.

Briggs vs. Biggs.

[Max Adeler.]

Two of our neighbors are named John Briggs and Jonathan Biggs, and it happens, most unfortunately, that they live next door to each other. The letters and the packages of the two are constantly getting mixed, and Biggs has opened so many of Briggs' letters, while Briggs has peeped into so many of Biggs' that a bad feeling was long ago excited, and for several months they have not spoken to each other. On Thanksgiving, however, there was an open rupture between the two families. Both Biggs and Briggs ordered turkeys, which were to be sent home on Thanksgiving morning. It so happened that Biggs' grocer sent his turkey to Briggs', and the Briggses accepted it, supposing that it was a present from one of their friends. When Biggs and his wife came home from church the servant, in great consternation, told them that the turkey had'nt come, and there was nothing for dinner. Biggs went off in a hurry to the grocer's and the boy explained where he had left the fowl. Biggs then rushed back and rang Briggs' doorbell furiously. Briggs himself came out, and Biggs fiercely demanded his turkey. High words ensued, and at last Briggs, in a furious rage, slammed the door, darted back to the dining room, seized the turkey which was on the table, and opening the window, hurled it over the fence. It went clear through Biggs' glass sash, and hit Mrs. Biggs on the head, mixing stuffing with her hair, and daubing gravy and drumsticks upon her dress. Biggs, frantic with wrath, hurled the fowl back again and smashed Briggs' window. Then Briggs returned the turkey with fresh violence. Then each went into his own yard, and spent the remainder of the day handling that miserable bird across the fence to each other. Towards evening it wore away with so much handling, and at last, when nothing but the neck remained, Briggs buried that and went in the house, while Biggs put on his hat and hunted up an alderman for the purpose of prosecuting Briggs for larceny and for smashing his window. Neither of them has had his Thanksgiving dinner yet. Briggs will probably have it.

A Reminiscence of the Paris Commune.

"Spiridion," writing to the Saturday Evening Gazette from Paris, relates a dramatic scene which took place in that city a few days since at the Prefecture of Police. A woman named Vrecq had been arrested for selling matches which had no stamp. She was about to be discharged, for the offence was not grave, when the last witness was introduced. She was a woman named Ledau. When she was told she was summoned to prove that Vrecq had sold a matchbox which was not stamped, she stepped back, and, placing her arms akimbo, stared at Vrecq, and yelled: "What! 'tis only for selling matches that I am summoned to give evidence against that woman! Selling matches! Why, don't you know who that woman is? Don't you know that she is the potato-frier of Rue d'Allemagne, who was vivandiere of the 170th Battalion of National Guards, during La Commune, when she wore a general's hat, covered with fine feathers?" Vrecq yelled: "You are a liar!" "I'm a liar? It is a lie that you were vivandiere? It is a lie that you burned all—ay, Madame, all—the houses of Rue Royals? It is a lie that you, with your revolver, shot down a gendarme, who imployed you to spare his life for the sake of his wife and children? It is a lie that you called him 'carrion,' and shot him down, and that you were covered with his blood? It is no lie, Madame, for I was there, and saw you—saw you with these two eyes—Assassin! Communarde!" Like a tiger bounding on his quarry, Vrecq leaped on Ledau; but the policemen had been watching the former, and they at once caught her. She yelled, she raved, she writhed, she foamed at the mouth. All was of no avail; the policemen held her firmly. The archives of the police were searched, and her photograph, representing her in all the splendors of a Communard vivandiere, was soon found. Denial was impossible.

Useful Information.

Correspondents of the Country Gentleman furnish that journal with the following:

This is the season when nearly every paper we take up relates some horrible casualty from the explosion of a kerosene lamp, or the like, and women and children are either killed outright or terribly burned and scarred for life. A simple knowledge of the inflammable nature of the fluid would probably put an end to nearly all the accidents. First, no lamps should be filled after dark by the light of a candle. Always do this work after the breakfast dishes are put away, and then not only fill them but wash the chimneys, for if they are dim and smoky, you cannot expect to have a bright light. Take the chimney in one hand, and breath through it; then draw a large whisp of paper up and down it, and all the blur will be removed. If the chimney is blackened with lamp smoke, turn warmish water through the tube, and then wipe out with paper in the same style as before. If the lamps are glass, and they become clouded with a deposit from the kerosene, take lime water that is milky with lime, and shake it up in the lamp. Do this with two different washings, and all the deposit will be removed. A little chloride of lime, dissolved in warm water, and left in a lamp or can which has held kerosene, will deodorize it very soon. This is an imperative duty for every housekeeper to see performed, for as the oil burns down in the lamp, there is created a highly inflammable gas, which gathers imperceptibly over the surface, and as fast as the oil is consumed this gas increases, so when the oil is nearly out of the lamp, the slightest jar of the table will set the gas on fire; an explosion follows instantaneously, and a bombshell would be no more destructive, for its touches are deadly. When I read of deaths occuring from trying to light fires with kerosene, I always think the verdict of the coroner's jury should be, "Served them right." for it seems impossible to believe that any mortal could be so foolish as to tamper with such a highly inflammable liquid. Better try to kindle fires with a powder can well filled than with the contents of your kerosene can.

A Horse With a Long Memory.

[Lowell Courier.]

Many years ago, Mr. Abram Dodge of the town of Ipswich, Mass., owned a beautiful horse which was the pet of the family. He was admired by all who knew his playfulness and good qualifications. In the summer it was Mr. Dodge's habit occasionally to have a frolic with his horse in the barn-yard, then let him out alone, and he would go to the river, which was about one-third of a mile distant, where he would bathe, then go to a common and roll on the grass, then with the freedom of air start for his home. His stable was renovated for him while he was gone, and his breakfast put in his crib. If he met his master he would show some coltish pranks, bound for the stable, pull out the wooden pin that fastened the door with his teeth, and rush to the manger where he expected to find his food. One night the horse was stolen from the stable. After the expiration of sixteen years Mr. Dodge was at the tavern when a man drove a horse up to the door. Mr. Dodge at once recognised his horse, and he told the driver his reason for believing it to be his; the man told of whom he bought the horse, and said that he had owned him for several years. Mr. Dodge claimed his horse, and it was finally agreed that if the horse would, on being taken to his old stable, go through the habit of bathing, rolling on the grass, and pulling the pin from the stable door as above described, that Mr. Dodge should have him. When the horse was let out into his old yard he reviewed the premises for a moment, then started for his old bath-tub, then for his green towel on the common, then to his old stable, pulled the wooden pin, won for himself a good meal, and his old master his favorite horse! These facts are vouchsafed for by reliable old residents of the beautiful, picturesque old town, and shows conclusively the long memory of our noblest animal.

A Romance in Real Life.

"Miss Grundy" writes from Washington to the Graphic:

"A beautiful young widow appears in society this winter whose story is very romantic. Three years ago one of the belles of Washington was a lovely girl who passed most of the season (her first in society) with Mrs. Admiral Lee. Miss Bessie Beale had many admirers, and soon it was known that Mr. Sturtevant, of New York, was the favored suitor, and in the spring the announcement was made that a brilliant wedding the next autumn would seal the happiness of the young lovers. But in July there was a grand denouement. Mr. Sturtevant disappeared from a "Sound" boat on its way to Newport, and the supposition was and still is that he fell over-board and was drowned. Immediately after the announcement, which of course caused great consterration, society was still further amazed by the publication of a notice of the marriage in June in Baltimore of Mr. Sturtevant and Miss Beale. It seems that the young people, with the consent of the bride's mother, were privately married; but the express stipulation was agreed upon that no public announcement should be made until the time previously fixed for the wedding in October, and that the bride should remain with her parents until that time, and continue to receive visits from the groom just as she had done thereto. The marriage was duly proven, the certificate being in regular form, and the young widow, the period of whose wifehood was comprised in the brief time necessary to perform the marriage ceremony, succeeded to her late husband's property. This is one of the romances of real life which is indeed stranger than fiction.

—At the examination at a school not far from London, a young tyro in declamation, who had been told by the teacher that he must gesticulate according to the sense, in commencing a piece with "The comet lifts its firey tail," lifted the tail of his coat to a horizontal position, causing roars of laughter.

—The drunkard appears to have no particular mission in life. He seems to think he is put in this world just to "fill up."

Business Notices.

It is impossible to ignore these terrible nameless diseases that annually sweep so many hapless victims into the grave. We are compelled to recognize them, and it is the Good Samaritan's duty to try and cure them. HELMBOLD'S BUCHU stands unrivalled for all such diseases. Get the genuine, which has the proprietor's private proprietary stamp. Beware of counterfeits. For sale by all druggists.

The great PILE remedy, ANAKESIS, the discovery of Dr. Silsbee, is entitled to be called the wonder of the age. 20,000 grateful sufferers bless the only infallible remedy for PILES ever introduced. Only those who have used lotions, ointments and internal remedies to cure, will understand the grateful feeling of instant relief from pain, and blissful hope of certain cure for the terrible disease, that ANAKESIS assures. It is used by Doctors of all schools. —Price $1.00. Sold by Druggists everywhere. Depot, 46 Walker st., New York.

The United States Dispensatory, standard, and most excellent authority, says, "Pills are much better preserved in glass bottles than in the common wood or pasteboard boxes, and should always be dispensed in glass by the apothecary." If you would use medicine superior, not only in being preserved fresh and perfect by compliance with this very important rule, but also in being composed of choice, concentrated and chemically refined vegetable medicinal principles instead of crude, bulky, cheap drugs, that constitute the huge pills put up in cheap wood or paper boxes, then take Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Purgative Pellets, 25 Compounded Root and Herbal Juice, Anti-Bilious Granules, 25 cents a vial, by druggists.

A Manual of Health.

The edition for 1874 of the sterling medical annual known as Hostetter's Almanac is now ready, and may be obtained, free of cost, of druggists and general country dealers in all parts of the United States and British America, and indeed in every civilized portion of the Western Hemisphere. This Almanac has been issued regularly at the commencement of every year for a duration full a century. It combines with the soundest practical advice for the preservation and restoration of health, a large amount of interesting and amusing light reading, and the calendar, astronomical calculations, chronological items, &c., are prepared with great care, and will be found entirely accurate. The issue of Hostetter's Almanac for 1874 will probably be the largest edition of a medical work ever published in any country. The proprietors, Messrs. Hostetter & Smith, Pittsburg, Pa., on receipt of a two cent stamp, will forward a copy by mail to any person who cannot procure one in his neighborhood.

Local Matters.

A Temperance Movement.

Judge Page held an amusing levee at the Police Court, Saturday. Mrs. Lynch, one of the best temperance advocates who inhabit that house of industry on High street known as the "bee hive," was present as defendant in an assault case. John Callahan was the complainant. It seems that Mrs. Lynch endeavored to persuade two girls of the Callahan family to lead a cleanly life, and further to promote the cause of temperance and thereby convince them that cold water is provided for external use, by pouring a bucket of water from her chamber window on the objects of her notice below, drenching the girls completely. Mrs. Lynch made a speech in defence of her action, which did fair to extend itself to a temperance lecture. Judge Page and the attendants at court were highly edified, and the $14.05 which Mrs. Lynch paid into the city treasury was reluctantly diverted from the channels of true temperance.

Seabrook.

A correspondent of the Monitor says:

The political hall in this section has not as yet opened, otherwise than through the prohibition move in some of the smaller towns. Seabrook comes in for its full share of glory in this respect; but whether good or bad will be the result, remains to be seen. One strong feature against any good result is, that some of these very strong prohibition men keep liquor in their own homes, and partake of it at intervals, and some of the intervals would not seem to be very long between, if the eye of your correspondent is good on a straight line. Such a distinctive feature as this, when, as in this instance is so thoroughly known, becomes repugnant to the finer sensibilities, and in a great measure destroys all prestige for good. That rum is an evil and a curse entailed on the whole human family, no one will deny, but the method of eradication by law, will only plunge the whole question into greater misery. Moral suasion, in the hands of good and honest men, will be far more beneficial in its results, while its motives will be purer and more dignified.

Greenland.

At a meeting of the republicans in Greenland the following officers of the club were chosen for the ensuing year:

President, S. A. Hatch; Vice President, John P. Weeks; Secretary, John E. Holmes; Ex. Com., J. W. Nowell, George W. Weeks, Moses Pearson, Nath. White, Nath. Wiggin, Theodore F. Lowd.

Laconics.

Commodore Howell of the navy yard is absent on a visit to Philadelphia, and the duties of the commandant are now being discharged by Captain Earl English, executive officer.

Evening tickets for the entertainment to be given by the amateurs to-morrow night are selling rapidly. The prospect now is that there will be a house rivaling that which greeted the Barnabee troupe a fortnight ago.

V. Doane & Co. are building a new schooner at Essex, Mass., to be called the "Daniel Marcy." She is to be 160 tons, and is intended for the fishing business. Capt. S. L. Moore, late of schooner Gov. Goodwin, will command her.

Editors Chronicle: I have perused with a great deal of pleasure the able and comprehensive address delivered by Judge Bufford before the Mechanic Association, and would suggest that it be published by the Society in pamphlet form for circulation and preservation. MECHANIC.

The Congregationalist, Methodist, Baptist and Christian churches will hold Union meetings during the week of prayer (Jan. 5th to 9th,) as follows: On Monday evening, Middle Street Baptist chapel, Tuesday, Methodist chapel, Wednesday, Christian Baptist, Thursday, North church, Friday, Free Will Baptist.

Congressman Small has done the fair thing in recommending Capt. Geo. W. Colbath, the present Postmaster of Dover, for reappointment. We hope Mr. Small will satisfy the republicans of Portsmouth and this Pension district by recommending the reappointment of Major Vaughan, also. We believe Mr. Small is desirous of pleasing his constituents, and we know that he cannot do a more creditable act.

Kearsarge Three's boys are in for a very complimentary notice of their recent Ball, which was attended by many of the Eben Simpson company, of Biddeford. "One who was there" closes a communication in the Biddeford Times thus: "We thank you, gentlemen, and whilst scarcely daring to hope in any way to ever repay you, we beg only an opportunity to try and we will do the best we can. May the bonds of fraternity and friendship, so pleasantly begun, never be severed by any art of the Ebens. We thank you again and again and will never forget the 'old man in trouble.'"

—The technicalities of the law, also, are creeping into the courts of Idaho, to the perversion of justice. Only the other day a judge at Rocky Bar showed how very particular he was getting, by refusing to let a man sit on the jury because he had shot two Chinamen, and had been convicted of horse stealing.

—It is noticeable that what is called "weather wisdom" is very common among letter-carriers, owing to their obligations of being out of doors in all sorts of weather. Old ladies especially very often consult the postman with regard to the probabilities of storm or shine.

—If your parents won't let you marry him write a letter to a convent asking for a situation as a nun, have the letter intercepted by your mother, and a finale of white satin, lace, orange blossoms, and things will follow. At least it worked that way with a Troy girl.

No. 76 STATE ST., OPPOSITE KILBY ST., BOSTON.

After an extensive practice of upwards of thirty years, continues to secure patents in the United States, also in Great Britain, France and other foreign countries. Caveats, Specifications, Assignments, and all papers for Patents, executed on reasonable terms with dispatch. Researches made to determine the validity and utility of Patents of Inventions, and legal and other advice rendered in all matters touching the same. Copies of the claims of any patent furnished, by remitting one dollar. Assignments recorded in Washington.

No Agency in the United States possesses superior facilities for obtaining Patents or ascertaining the patentability of inventions.

All necessity for a journey to Washington to procure a Patent and the usual great delay there, are here saved inventors.

TESTIMONIALS.

"I regard Mr. Eddy as one of the most capable and successful practitioners with whom I have had official intercourse. CHARLES MASON,
Commissioner of Patents."

"I have no hesitation in assuring inventors that they cannot employ a man more competent and trustworthy and more capable of putting their applications in a form to secure for them an early and favorable consideration at the Patent Office.
EDMUND BURKE,
Late Commissioner of Patents."

"MR. R. H. EDDY has made for me over THIRTY applications for Patents, having been successful in almost every case. Such unmistakable proof of great talent and ability on his part leads me to recommend ALL inventors to apply to him to procure their Patents, as they may be sure of having the most faithful attention bestowed on their cases and at very reasonable charges.
LOUIS TAGGART."

AYER'S CATHARTIC PILLS,

For all the Purposes of a Family Physic

CURING

Costiveness, Jaundice, Dyspepsia, Indigestion, Dysentery, Foul Stomach and Breath, Erysipelas, Headache, Piles, Rheumatism, Eruptions and Skin Diseases, Biliousness, Liver complaint, Dropsy, Tetter, Tumors and Salt Rheum, Worms, Gout, Neuralgia, as a Dinner Pill, and purifying the Blood, are the most congenial purgative yet perfected. Their effects abundantly show how much they excel all other Pills. They are safe and pleasant to take, but powerful to cure. They purge out the foul humors of the blood; they stimulate the sluggish or disordered organ into action, and they impart health and tone to the whole being. They cure not only the every-day complaints of everybody, but formidable and dangerous diseases. Most skillful physicians, most eminent clergymen, and our best citizens send certificates of cures performed, and of great benefits they have derived from these Pills. They are the safest and best physic for children, because mild as well as effectual. Being sugar-coated, they are easy to take; and being purely vegetable, they are entirely harmless.

CATARRH!

A Woman Having Catarrh 35 Years, Cured.

And Droppings in Throat, Chokings, Stranglings, Pains in the Side, Loins, Headache, Dizziness, and General Weakness, Cured by less than Three Bottles of the

CONSTITUTIONAL CATARRH REMEDY.

TO MESSRS. LITTLEFIELD & CO., Proprietors of Constitutional Catarrh Remedy, Manchester, N.H.:

I reside at Manchester N., H., and previously resided at Henniker, and am a native of Weare, this State. I have had Catarrh twenty-five years, ever since I was 19 years old; and it had all the time. It run all that period, and nights it would fill up and drop down in my throat, causing a feeling of choking, so that I would spring up in bed to save myself from strangulation. It affected my head so that I felt confused, and was troubled with severe headache at intervals, for a week at a time. I also had bad pains in shoulders, back and kidneys, from which I suffered immensely. So bad were they, that a year ago last summer I was obliged to lie in bed most of the time for three months. I have tried all kinds of snuff and Catarrh remedies with no particular benefit, and consulted physicians. I had a backing cough. I began to take the Constitutional Catarrh Remedy last August. I began to grow better before finishing the first bottle. I am now on the third bottle. My Catarrh is cured; my health is restored. I have no pains, aches, or coughs. My whole system is made over new. I know it is this medicine that has rescued me from intense suffering and almost the grave. I am now able to do the hardest work and bear the greatest exposure, and feel that I cannot say too much in favor of the Constitutional Catarrh Remedy.

MRS. E. J. FLANDERS.

Manchester, N. H., Feb. 1, 1873.

I am now 55 years old, have had Catarrh ever since I was eighteen years old, and headache all the time; have suffered unspeakably description with running at the nose, droppings in the throat, chokings and stranglings. Have tried any quantity of Catarrh Remedies, but have found no relief till I tried your Constitutional Catarrh Remedy, six months ago. I found immediate relief.

Catarrh and all its attendant evils have left, Headache, Pains in Loins and Back, Dizziness, Loss of Appetite, and General Weakness. Less than three bottles of Constitutional Catarrh Remedy have cured me. I have not been so well since I can remember as now. I feel as if I could not say too much for the medicine, or thank God too heartily that through its instrumentality I have been restored to health.

MARY M. ABBOTT,

No. 17 Manchester Corporation.

Manchester, N. H., Jan. 27, 1872.

The above lady is my mother. I am a painter by trade, and a member of the City Council of Manchester. Every word that my mother states is true.

JACOB J. ABBOTT.

Hundreds of cases of a similar nature cured within the last year. Snuffs and Lotions are only temporary relief. The CONSTITUTIONAL CATARRH REMEDY strikes at the root, builds up the constitution, makes it new, and drives away Catarrh and all diseases of the mucous membranes and their attendant pains and aches, pertaining to head, back, shoulders, kidneys, and throat.

Price $1 per Bottle. Sold by all Druggists. A Pamphlet of 32 pages, giving a Treatise on Catarrh, and containing innumerable cases of cures, sent FREE, by addressing the Proprietors,

FOURTH GRAND GIFT CONCERT

FOR THE BENEFIT OF THE

Public Library of Ky.

OVER A MILION IN BANK!

SUCCESS ASSURED!

Full Drawing Certain

On Tuesday, 31st of March Next.

In order to meet the general wish and expectation of the public and the ticket-holders for the full payment of the magnificent gifts announced for the Fourth Grand Gift Concert of the Public Library of Kentucky, the managers have determined to postpone the Concert and Drawing until

Tuesday, March 31st, 1874.

They have already realized

OVER A MILLION DOLLARS,

And have a great many agents to hear from.

No doubt is entertained of the sale of every ticket before the drawing, but whether all are sold or not, the Concert and Drawing will positively and unequivocally take place on the day now fixed, and if any remain unsold they will be cancelled and the prizes will be reduced in proportion to the unsold tickets.

Only 60,000 tickets have been issued and

12,000 CASH GIFTS,

$1,500,000,

will be distributed among the ticket holders.

The tickets are printed in coupons, or tenths, and all fractional parts will be represented in the drawing just as whole tickets are.

11,000 CASH GIFTS	50 each	550,000
TOTAL, 12,000 GIFTS, ALL CASH, amounting to		$1,500,000

The chances for a gift are as one to five.

PRICE OF TICKETS:

Whole tickets, $50; Halves, $25; Tenths, or each Coupon, $5; Eleven Whole Tickets for $500; 22½ Tickets for $1,000; 113 Whole Tickets for $5,000; 227 Whole Tickets for $10,000. No discount on less than $500 worth of Tickets at a time.

The Fourth Gift Concert will be conducted, in all respects, like the three which have already been given, and full particulars may be learned from circulars which will be sent free from this office to all who apply for them.

Orders for tickets and applications for agencies will be attended to in the order they are received, and it is hoped they will be sent in promptly, that there may be no disappointment or delay in filling all. Liberal terms given to those who buy to sell again. All agents are peremptorily required to settle up their accounts and return all unsold tickets by the 10th of March.

HALL'S VEGETABLE SICILIAN

HAIR RENEWER!

This standard article is compounded with the greatest care.
Its effects are as wonderful and satisfactory as ever.
It restores gray or faded hair to its youthful color.
It removes all eruptions, itching and dandruff; and the scalp, by its use, becomes white and clean.
By its tonic properties, it restores the capillary glands to their normal vigor, preventing baldness and making the hair grow thick and strong.
As a dressing, nothing has been found so effectual or desirable.
Dr. A. A. Hayes, State Assayer of Massachusetts, says of it: "I consider it the best preparation for its intended purposes."

BUCKINGHAM'S DYE,

FOR THE WHISKERS.

This elegant preparation may be relied on to change the color of the beard from gray or any other undesirable shade to brown or black, at discretion. It is easily applied, being in one preparation, and quickly and effectually produces a permanent color, which will neither rub nor wash off.

CRUMBS OF COMFORT

Are a modern stove polish, far better than any other in existence. Are better because they give a finer gloss than any other polish.

Yield a brilliant silvery sheen, with less than half the labor required when other polishes are used.

CRUMBS OF COMFORT

Are a neat and cleanly article, making no dirt nor dust when used. Can be used even in the parlor without the trouble of removing furniture or carpets.

Has no disagreeable sulphurous or strong acid smell when prepared for use, but are pleasant and harmless.

CRUMBS OF COMFORT

Are put up in neat style and in a form more convenient for use than any other polish. In each box are 12 sticks; 1 stick is sufficient for any stove, thus all waste is saved.

Are the cheapest polish in the market, because one box at 10 cents will polish as much surface as 25 cents' worth of the old polish.

CRUMBS OF COMFORT

Have just taken the premium at the Indianapolis Exposition, in competition with several of the best of old stove polishes.

BUY CRUMBS OF COMFORT of your storekeeper, if he has them, or will procure them for you; if not, send us one dollar, your name, and the name of your nearest express station, and we will send you ten boxes, and samples of Bartlett's Blacking and Pearl Blacing, free of cost.

CRUMBS OF COMFORT can be had of all Wholesale Grocers and Dealers in the United States, and Retail Dealers will find them the most profitable, from the fact that they are the fastest selling article on the kind in the market.

IRON IN THE BLOOD.

DYSPEPSIA, DEBILITY, DROPSY AND HUMORS

PERUVIAN SYRUP

Makes The Weak Strong.

The Peruvian Syrup, a Protected Solution of the Protoxide of Iron, is so combined as to have the character of an ailment, as easily digested and assimilated with the blood as the simplest food. It increases the quantity of Nature's Own Vitalizing Agent, from the blood, and cures "a thousand ills," simply by Toning up, Invigorating and Vitalizing the System. The enriched and vitalized blood permeates every part of the body, repairing damages and waste, searching out morbid secretions, and leaving nothing for disease to feed upon.

This is the secret of the wonderful success of this remedy in curing Dyspepsia, Liver Complaint, Dropsy, Chronic Diarrhœa, Boils, Nervous Affections, Chills and Fevers, Humors, Loss of Constitutional Vigor, Diseases of the Kidneys and Bladder, Female Complaints, and all diseases originating in a bad state of the blood, or accompanied by debility or a low system. Being free from Alcohol, in any form its energizing effects are not followed by corresponding reaction, but are permanent, infusing strength, vigor, and new life into all parts of the system, and building upon an Iron Constitution.

Thousands have been changed by the use of this remedy, from weak, sickly, suffering creatures to strong, healthy, and happy men and women; and invalids cannot reasonably hesitate to give it a trial.

See that each bottle has PERUVIAN SYRUP blown in the glass.

COAL.

HAVING contracted for a quantity of the above coal, we would call the attention of Manufacturers, Dealers and Consumers to the following different grades mined and controlled by the Company:

HARD WHITE ASH COAL,
FREE BURNING WHITE ASH COAL,
SHAMOKIN WHITE ASH COAL,
SHAMOKIN RED ASH COAL,
NORTH FRANKLIN COAL,
LYKENS VALLEY COAL.

In order that all coal shall be shipped in good order, a most rigid system of inspection, both at the mines and at the shipping ports, will at all times be enforced. In every district of the coal region there will be appointed a number of competent persons skilled in the preparation of coal, as local inspectors, whose duty it will be to visit the several collieries daily to see that a proper force is at all times employed in removing slate, and to prevent, if possible, any coal being sent from the mines in bad order. In addition to these efforts at prevention, no means will be left untried at the shipping ports to cure the evils of careless preparation. At Schuylkill Haven, Port Clinton and Port Richmond, ALL COAL WILL BE SUBJECTED TO THE PERSONAL EXAMINATION OF A SKILLED INSPECTOR BEFORE IT IS SHIPPED, and if condemned by him, will be dumped in places provided for the purpose, and before being loaded into vessels WILL BE THOROUGHLY REPICKED AND CLEANED BY HAND.

We keep a fine stock of the above coal on hand, also

LEHIGH, WILKESBARRE, PITTSTON

And other first class Coal. For sale by the Cargo, Car-load or at retail from our wharf.

"A Complete Pictorial History of the Times"—"The best, cheapest, and most successful Family Paper in the Union."

Harper's Weekly.

SPLENDIDLY ILLUSTRATED.

NOTICES OF THE PRESS.

The Weekly is the ablest and most powerful illustrated periodical published in this country. Its editorials are scholarly and convincing, and carry much weight. Its illustrations of current events are full and fresh, and are prepared by our best designers. With a circulation of 150,000, the Weekly is read by at least half a million persons, and its influence as an organ of opinion is simply tremendous. The Weekly maintains a positive position, and expresses decided views on political and social problems.—Louisville Courier Journal.

Harper's Bazar.

NOTICES OF THE PRESS.

The BAZAR is edited with a contribution of tact and talent that we seldom find in any journal; and the journal itself is the organ of the great world of fashion.—Boston Traveller.

The BAZAR commends itself to every member of the household—to the children by droll and pretty pictures, to the young ladies by its fashion-plates in endless variety, to the provident matron by its patterns for the children's clothes, to paterfamilias by its tasteful designs for embroidered slippers and luxurious dressing-gowns. But the reading-matter of the BAZAR is uniformly of great excellence. The paper has acquired a wide popularity for the fireside enjoyment it affords.—N. Y. Evening Post.

PROSPECTUS FOR 1874--SEVENTH YEAR.

THE ALDINE,

An Illustrated Monthly Journal, universally admitted to be the handsomest Periodical in the world. A Representative and Champion of American Taste.

NOT FOR SALE IN BOOK OR NEWS STORES.

THE ALDINE, while issued with all the regularity, has none of the temporary or timely interest characteristic of ordinary periodicals. It is an elegant miscellany of pure, light and graceful literature; and a collection of pictures, the rarest specimens of artistic skill, in black and white. Although each succeeding number affords a fresh pleasure to its friends, the real value and beauty of THE ALDINE will be most appreciated after it has been bound up at the close of the year. While other publications may claim superior cheapness, as compared with rivals of a similar class, THE ALDINE is a unique and original conception—alone and unapproached—has lately without competition in price or character. The possessor of a complete volume cannot duplicate the quantity of fine paper and engravings in any other shape or number of volumes FOR TEN TIMES ITS COST; AND THEN, THERE ARE THE CHROMOS, BESIDES!

ART DEPARTMENT, 1874.

The illustrations of THE ALDINE have won a world-wide reputation, and in the art centres of Europe it is an admitted fact that its wood cuts are examples of the highest perfection ever attained. The common prejudice in favor of "steel plates," is rapidly yielding to more educated and discriminating taste which recognizes the advantages of superior artistic quality with greater facility of production. The wood-cuts of THE ALDINE possess all the delicacy and elaborate finish of the most costly steel plate, while they afford a better rendering of the artist's original.

In addition to designs by the members of the National Academy, and other noted American artists, THE ALDINE will reproduce examples of the best foreign masters, selected with a view to the highest artistic success and greatest general interest. Thus the subscriber to THE ALDINE will, at a trifling cost, enjoy in his own home the pleasures and refining influences of true art.

The Christmas issue for 1874 will contain special designs appropriate to the season, by our best artists, and will surpass in attractions any of its predecessors.

PREMIUM FOR 1874.

Every subscriber to THE ALDINE for the year 1874 will receive a pair of chromos. The original pictures were painted in oil for the publishers of THE ALDINE, by Thomas Moran, whose great Colorado picture was purchased by Congress for ten thousand dollars. The subjects were chosen to represent "The East" and "The West." One is a view in The White Mountains, New Hampshire; the other gives The Cliffs of Green River, Wyoming Territory.

If any subscriber should indicate a preference for a figure subject the publishers will send "Thoughts of Home," a new and beautiful chromo, 14x 20 inches, representing a little Italian exile whose speaking eyes betray the longings of his heart.

TERMS.

$5 per annum, in advance, with Oil Chromos free.

For 50 CENTS EXTRA, the chromos will be sent, mounted, varnished, and prepaid by mail.

THE ALDINE will, hereafter, be obtainable only by subscription. There will be no reduced or club rate; cash for subscriptions must be sent to the publishers direct, or handed to the local canvasser, without responsibility to the publishers, except in cases where the certificate is given, bearing the fac-simile signature of JAMES SUTTON & Co.

CANVASSERS WANTED.

Any person wishing to act permanently as a local canvasser will receive full and prompt information by applying to

The Country Gentleman.

Volume for 1874.

THE CULTIVATOR & COUNTRY GENTLEMAN, for the past forty years, has ranked, both in this country and abroad, as the STANDARD JOURNAL OF AMERICAN AGRICULTURE. The Editors and Proprietors, in addition to their own personal labors, are regularly assisted by a very large number of Special Correspondents and Regular Contributors, among whom are included all many Leading Agriculturists, in all parts of the Country, East and West—and by over Five Hundred Occasional and Voluntary Writers, directly in the ranks of the Best Farmers and Horticulturists of nearly every State in the Union. With the co-operation of so large a corps of practical men, this Journal is intended to possess exceptional value as the chosen Medium of Intercommunication among all classes interested in the Products and Fertility of the land—those who Cultivate and those who Consume—the Buyer and Shipper, as well as the first Owner of the crop—Breeders of Improved Animals and their Customers—Manufacturers of Improved Machinery and those who purchase and employ it—Nurserymen and Fruit Raisers—and, especially, to supply fuller and better data as to the progress, prospects and returns of each successive Season, as throwing light upon one of the most important of all questions—When to Buy and when to Sell.

TERMS.—The COUNTRY GENTLEMAN is published weekly, on the following terms, when paid strictly in advance: ONE COPY, one year, $2.50; FOUR COPIES, $10, and an additional copy for the year free to the sender of the Club; TEN COPIES, $20, and an additional copy for the year free to the sender of the Club.

OF

WILD CHERRY!

THE GREAT REMEDY FOR

CONSUMPTION!!

And acknowledged by many prominent physicians to be the most Reliable Preparation ever introduced for the RELIEF and CURE of all

LUNG COMPLAINTS.

This well known remedy is offered to the public, sanctioned by the experience of over forty years, and when resorted to in season seldom fails to effect a speedy cure of

COUGHS, COLDS, CROUP, BRONCHITIS, INFLUENZA, WHOOPING COUGH, HOARSENESS, PAINS OR SORENESS IN THE CHEST OR SIDE, BLEEDING AT THE LUNGS, LIVER COMPLAINTS, &c.

CONSUMPTION

CURED

By a timely resort to this standard remedy, as is proved by hundreds of testimonials received by the proprietors.

Dr. Wistar's Balsam of Wild Cherry

Does not dry up a Cough and leave the cause behind as is the case with most preparations, but it loosens and cleanses the lungs and allays irritation, thus removing the cause of the complaint.

CLERGYMEN, LAWYERS, SINGERS,

And all those whose occupation requires an unusual exercise of the vocal organs, will find this the ONLY PREPARATION which will effectually and instantaneously relieve their difficulties.

BEWARE OF COUNTERFEITS.—Remember that the genuine Wistar's Balsam has on the outside wrapper the signature of "I. BUTTS," and the printed name of the proprietors, "SETH W. FOWLE & SONS, BOSTON." All others are base imitations. Examine the wrapper carefully before purchasing.

THIS Bank pays five per cent. per annum, free of all tax. A greater rate is prohibited by law.

Two dividends are made in the year,—in June and December; and an extra dividend of the surplus earnings every two years. The first extra will be in June, 1874.

Deposits go on interest on the FIRST day of every MONTH, and deposits made during the FIRST THREE days of each MONTH will draw interest from the FIRST day of that MONTH.

Dividends not withdrawn will be added to the principal, and draw interest from the time when declared.

Money is received on deposit, payable on checks at sight.

Portsmouth, Jan. 1, 1873.

The Singer Still Triumphant!

At the Vienna Exhibition, the SINGER received the Medal of Merit, the Medal of Progress, and three other Medals for superiority of productions. These are the highest Sewing Machine Awards at Vienna. The SINGER received all the medals awarded to either of the competing machines, and two medals more than any other exhibitants. Then, in the name of Truth, what is it that prompts people to claim recommendations for the Diploma of Honor? The fact is, no Diploma of Honor has been given to any Sewing Machine Company.

But immeasurably more valuable is The World's Award as shown by tables—proved by sworn returns to the owners of the principal Sewing Machine Patents—which last year amounted to TWO HUNDRED AND NINETEN THOUSAND, SEVEN HUNDRED AND FIFTY-EIGHT (219,758) machines, nine out of ten of them being for Family Use. This is over 45,000 more Sewing Machines than were sold by any other company during the same period, and over One Quarter of all the machines sold in 1872. These enormous sales are owing to the long-tested merits of the Singer Machines, which meet the wants of the public in superiority and simplicity of construction, and capability for great variety and excellence of work. That the users of Sewing Machines find these desirable qualities in the Singer beyond all others, is shown by the sales above given, aside from the awards of International Juries, either at home or abroad.

SIXTEEN OIL PAINTINGS IN A BOOK!

Never before was such an idea attempted for book illustration; every one who has seen it pronounced it superb. Mrs. Harriet Beecher Stowe's latest work,

Woman in Sacred History,

is a series of narrative sketches, drawn from Scriptural, historical and legendary sources, ILLUSTRATED WITH SIXTEEN CHOICE OIL CHROMOS, after paintings by the most celebrated artists in the world, giving a rich and magnificent variety of Oriental costume and beauty. Mrs. Stowe, in her charming style, has written a book full of interest, and without a dull page in it, which even if not illustrated would sell rapidly; but the

make it one of the most unique, original and remarkable books ever offered. The pictures, if published separately, would readily sell for $2 each, or $32, while the entire book, with the sixteen pictures, together with sumptuous bindings of the volume, can be had for one-fifth of that amount. The book is published in ENGLISH and in GERMAN, and is making a tremendous

Ordinance No. 41.

Requiring Sidewalks to be Cleared of Snow.

Be it ordained by the City Council of the city of Portsmouth as follows:

SEC. 1. The occupants, or, if unoccupied, the owners, of all be buildings and lands situate within the city, shall keep the sidewalk adjoining their respective premises, in all cases where a sidewalk has been or may be constructed, free from snow, by causing the snow to be removed into the street and evenly spread, within six hours after the cessation of every fall thereof, or when the snow shall have blown or drifted upon the sid walk by the wind. The time herein allowed for the performance of the work to be computed from sunrise the succeeding morning whenever the fall of snow shall have ceased in the night time.

SEC. 2. Any person disregarding or offending against the provisions of this ordinance shall, upon conviction thereof, forfeit and pay a fine not exceeding ten dollars for each and every offence, with costs of prosecution; and if shall be the duty of the Street Commissioner, under the counsel and direction of the Mayor, to cause this ordinance to be enforced.

Passed Dec. 21, 1874.

Ordinance No. 65,

In Amendment of Ordinance No. 41—Requiring Sidewalks to be Cleared of Snow.

Be it ordained by the City Council of the city of Portsmouth as follows:

That ordinance number forty-one, requiring sidewalks to be cleared of snow, be so amended by adding to section one the following clause, viz.: That when any of said sidewalks are covered with ice, so as to make the passing dangerous, said owners or occupants shall spread over said sidewalk ashes, sand or salt in such a manner as to prevent the same from being dangerous.

Passed Jan. 19, 1869. n23-1m

How Old Plunkett Went Home.

[Bret Harte in Scribner's Monthly.]

I think we all loved him. Even after he mismanaged the affairs of the Amity Ditch Company, we commiserated him, although most of us were stockholders and lost heavily. I remember that the blacksmith went so far as to say "that them chaps as put that responsibility on the old man oughter to be lynched." But the blacksmith was not a stockholder, and the expression was looked upon as the excusable extravagance of a large sympathizing nature, that, when combined with a powerful frame, was unworthy of notice. At least that was the way they put it. Yet I think there was a general feeling of regret that this misfortune would interfere with the old man's long cherished plan of "going home."

Indeed for the last ten years he had been "going home." He was going home after a six months' sojourn at Monte Flat. He was going home after the first rains. He was going home when the rains were over. He was going home when he had cut the timber on Buckeye Hill, when there was pasture on Dow's Flat, when he struck pay-dirt on Eureka Hill, when the Amity Company paid its first dividend, when the election was over, when he had received an answer from his wife. And so the years rolled by, the spring came and went, the woods of Buckeye Hill were level with the ground, the pasture on Dow's Flat grew sere and dry, Eureka Hill yielded its pay dirt and swamped its owner, the first dividends of the Amity Company were made from the assessments of stockholders, there were new county officers at Monte Flat, his wife's answer had changed into a persistent question, and still old man Plunkett remained.

It is only fair to say that he had made several distinct essays toward going. Five years before he had bidden good-by to Monte Hill with much effusion and handshaking. But he never got any further than the next town. Here he was induced to trade the sorrel colt he was riding for a bay mare—a transaction that at once opened to his lively fancy a vista of vast and successful future speculation. A few days after, Abner Dean of Angel's received a letter from him stating that he was going to Visalia to buy horses. "I am satisfied," wrote Plunkett, with that elevated rhetoric for which his correspondence was remarkable, "I am satisfied that we are at last developing the real resources of California. The world will yet look to Dow's Flat as the great stock-raising centre. In view of the interests involved, I have deferred my departure for a month." It was two before he again returned to us, penniless. Six months later he was again enabled to start for the Eastern States, and this time he got as far as San Francisco. I have before me a letter which I received a few days after his arrival, from which I venture to give an extract: "You know my dear boy, that I have always believed that gambling, as it is absurdly called, is still in its infancy in California. I have always maintained that a perfect system might be invented by which the game of poker may be made to yield a certain percentage to the intelligent player. I am not at liberty at present to disclose the system, but before leaving the city I intend to perfect it." He seems to have done so, and returned to Monte Flat with two dollars and thirty-seven cents, the absolute remainder of his capital after such perfection.

It was not until 1868 that he appeared to have finally succeeded in going home. He left us by the overland route—a route which he declared would give great opportunity for the discovery of undeveloped resources. His last letter was dated Virginia City. He was absent three years. At the close of a very hot day in midsummer he alighted from the Wingdam stage with hair and beard powdered with dust and age. There was a certain shyness about his greeting, quite different from his usual frank volubility, that did not, however, impress us as any accession of character. For some days he was reserved regarding his recent visit, contenting himself with asserting, with more or less aggressiveness, that he had "always said he was going home, and now he had been there." Later he grew more communicative, and spoke freely and critically of the manners and customs of New York and Boston, commented on the social changes in the years of his absence, and, I remember, was very hard upon what he deemed the follies incidental to a high state of civilization. Still later he darkly alluded to the moral laxity of the higher planes of Eastern society, but it was not long before he completely tore away the veil and revealed the naked wickedness of New York social life in a way I even now shudder to recall. Vinous intoxication, it appeared, was a common habit of the first ladies of the city; immoralities which he scarcely dared name were daily practiced by the refined of both sexes; niggardliness and greed were the common vices of the rich. "I have always asserted," he continued, "that corruption must exist where luxury and riches are rampant, and capital is not used to develop the natural resources of the country. Thank you—I will take mine without sugar." It is possible that some of these painful details crept into the local journals. I remember an editorial in the Monte Flat Monitor, entitled "The Effete East," in which the fatal decadence of New York and New England was elaborately stated, and California offered as a means of natural salvation.

'Perhaps,' said the Monitor, 'we might add that Calaveras county offers superior inducements to the Eastern visitor with capital.'

Later he spoke of his family. The daughter he had left a child had grown into beautiful womanhood; the son was already taller and larger than his father, and in a playful trial of strength, 'the young rascal,' added Plunkett, with a voice broken with paternal pride and humorous objurgation, had twice thrown his doting parent to the ground. But it was of his daughter he chiefly spoke. Perhaps emboldened by the evident interest which masculine Monte Flat held in feminine beauty, he expatiated at some length on her various charms and accomplishments, and finally produced her photograph—that of a very pretty girl—to their infinite peril. But his account of his first meeting with her was so peculiar that I must fain give it after his own methods, which were perhaps, some shades less precise and elegant than his written style.

'You see, boys, it's always been my opinion that a man oughter be able to tell his own flesh and blood by instinct. It's ten years since I'd seen my Melindy, and she was then only seven and about so high. So when I went to New York, what did I do? Did I go straight to my house and ask for my wife and daughter, like other folks? No, sir! I rigged myself up as a peddler; as a peddler, sir, and I rung the bell. When the servant came to the door, I wanted—don't you see—to show the ladies some trinkets. Then there was a voice over the banister, says, 'Don't want anything—send him away.' 'Some nice laces, ma'am, smuggled,' I says, looking up. 'Get out, you wretch,' says she. I knew the voice, boys; it was my wife; sure as a gun—thar wasn't any instinct thar. 'Maybe the young ladies want somethin,' I said. 'Did you hear me?' says she, and with that she jumps forward and I left. It's ten years, boys, since I've seen the old woman, but somehow, when she fetched that leap, I naturally left."

He had been standing beside the bar—his usual attitude—when he made this speech, but at this point he half faced his auditors with a look that was very effective. Indeed a few who had exhibited some signs of skepticism and lack of interest at once assumed an appearance of intense gratification and curiosity as he went on.

'Well, by hangin' round there for a day or two, I found out at last it was to be Melindy's birthday next week, and that she was goin' to have a big party. I tell ye what, boys, it weren't no slouch of a reception. The whole house was bloomin' with flowers, and blazin' with lights, and there was no end of servants and plate and refreshments and fixin's—'

'Uncle Joe.'

'Well?'

'Where did they get the money?'

Plunkett faced his interlocutor with a severe glance. 'I always said,' he replied slowly, 'that when I went home I'd send on ahead of me a draft of ten thousand dollars. I always said that, didn't I? Eh? And I said I was goin' home—and I've been home—haven't I? Well?'

Either there was something irresistibly conclusive in this logic or else the desire to hear the remainder of Plunkett's story was stronger; but there was no more interruptions. His ready good-humor returned, and, with a slight chuckle, he went on.

'I went to the biggest jewelry shop in town, and I bought a pair of diamond earrings and put them in my pocket, and went to the house. 'What name?' says the chap who opened the door, and he looked like a cross 'twixt a restaurant waiter and a parson. 'Snoesicks,' said I. He takes me in, and pretty soon my wife comes sailin' into the parly, and says: 'Excuse me, but I don't think I recognize the name.' She was mighty polite, for I had on a red wig and side-whiskers. 'A friend of your husband's, from California, ma'am, with a present for your daughter, Miss———,' and I made as if I had forgot the name. But all of a sudden a voice said, 'That's too thin,' and in walked Melindy. 'It's playin' it rather low down, father, to pretend you don't know your daughter's name, ain't it now? How are you, old man?' And with that she tears off my wig and whiskers, and throws her arms around my neck—instinct, sir, pure instinct!'

Emboldened by the laughter which followed his description of the filial utterances of Melinda, he again repeated her speech, with more or less elaboration, joining in with, and indeed often leading the hilarity that accompanied it, and returning to it with more or less incoherency, several times during the evening.

And so at various times, and at various places—but chiefly in bar-rooms—did this Ulysses of Monte Flat recount the story of his wanderings. There were several discrepancies in his statement, there was sometimes considerable prolixity of detail, there was occasional change of character and scenery, there was once or twice an absolute change in the denouement, but always the fact of his having visited his wife and children remained. Of course in a skeptical community accustomed to great expectation and small realization, a community wherein, to use the local dialect 'they got the color and struck hardpan more frequently than any other mining camp—in such a community the fullest credence was not given to old man Plunkett's facts. There was only one exception to the general unbelief—Henry York, of Sandy Bar. It was he who was always an attentive listener; it was his scant purse that had often furnished Plunkett with means to pursue his unprofitable speculations; it was to him that the charms of Melinda were more frequently rehearsed; it was he who had borrowed her photograph—and it was he who, sitting alone in his little cabin one night, kissed that photograph until his honest, handsome face glowed again in the firelight.

It was dusty in Monte Flat. The ruins of the long, dry season were crumbling everywhere; everywhere the dying summer had strewn its red ashes a foot deep or exhaled its last breath in a red cloud above the troubled highways. The alders and cottonwood that marked the line of the water courses were grimy with dust and looked as if they might have taken root in the open air; the gleaming stones of the parched water-courses themselves were as dry bones in the valley of death. The dusty sunset at times painted the flanks of the distant hills a dull coppery hue; on other days there was an odd, indefinable earthquake halo on the volcanic cones of the further coast spurs; again an acrid, resinous smoke from the burning wood on Heavytree Hill, smarted the eyes and choked the free breath of Monte Flat, or a fierce wind, driving everything—including the shriveled summer—like a curled leaf before it, swept down the flanks of the Sierras and chased the inhabitants to the doors of their cabins, and shook its red fist in at their windows. And on such a night as this—the dust having, in some way, choked the wheels of material progress in Monte Flat—most of the inhabitants were gathered listlessly in the gilded bar-room of the Moquelumne Hotel, spitting silently at the red-hot stove that tempered the mountain winds to the shorn lambs of Monte Flat, and waiting for the rain.

Every method known to the Flat of beguiling the time until the advent of this long-looked-for phenomenon had been tried. It is true the methods were not many, being limited chiefly to that form of popular facetiæ known as practical joking; and even this had assumed the seriousness of a business pursuit. Tommy Roy, who had spent two hours in digging a ditch in front of his own door—into which a few friends casually dropped during the evening—looked ennuyd and dissatisfied; the four prominent citizens who, disguised as footpads, had stopped the County Treasurer on the Wingdam road, were jaded from their playful efforts, next morning; the principal physician and lawyer of Monte Flat, who had entered into an unhallowed conspiracy to compel the Sheriff of Calaveras and his posse to serve a writ of ejectment on a grizzly bear, feebly disguised under the name of 'one Major Ursus,' who haunted the groves of Heavytree Hill, wore an expression of resigned weariness. Even the editor of the Monte Flat Monitor, who had that morning written a glowing account of a battle with the Wipneck Indians for the benefit of Eastern readers—even he looked grave and worn. When, at last, Abner Dean of Angel's, who had been on a visit to San Francisco, walked into the room, he was, of course, victimized in the usual way by one or two apparently honest questions, which ended in his answering them, and then falling into the trap of asking another to his utter and complete shame and mortification—but that was all. Nobody laughed and Abner, although a victim, did not lose his good humor. He turned quietly on his tormentors and said:

'I've got something better than that—you know old man Plunkett?'

Everybody simultaneously spat at the stove and nodded his head.

'You know he went home three years ago?' Two or three changed the position of their legs from the backs of different chairs, and one man said 'Yes.'

'Had a good time home?'

Everybody looked cautiously at the man who had said 'yes,' and he, accepting the responsibility with a faint-hearted smile, said 'yes,' again, and breathed hard. 'Saw his wife and child.—party gal?' said Abner, cautiously. 'Yes,' answered the man doggedly. 'Saw her photograph, perhaps?' continued Abner Dean, quietly.

The man looked hopelessly around for support. Two or three who had been sitting near him with a look of interest, now shamefully abandoned him and looked another way. Henry York flushed a little and veiled his brown eyes. The man hesitated, and then a sickly smile that was intended to convey the fact that he was perfectly aware of the object of this questioning, and was only humoring it from abstract good feeling, returned 'yes' again.

'Sent home—let's see,—ten thousand dollars, wasn't it?' Abner Dean went on. 'Yes,' reiterated the man, with the same smile.

'Well, I thought so,' said Abner, quietly; 'but the fact is, you see, that he never went home at all—nary time.'

Everybody stared at Abner in genuine surprise and interest, as with provoking calmness and half-lazy manner he went on.

'You see thar was a man down in 'Frisco as knowed him and saw him in Sonora during the whole of that three years. He was herding sheep or tending cattle, or spekilating all the time, and hadn't a red cent. Well, it 'mounts to this—that 'ar Plunkett ain't been east of the Rocky Mountains since '49.'

(Concluded to-morrow.)

—"How old are you?" asked a St. Louis justice of a bridal candidate. "Eighteen," replied the girl, who looked five years younger than that. "In what year were you born?" continued the justice. The girl stammered, blushed, and guessed it was in 1839. The hard-hearted official thereupon refused to perform the ceremony, and she went out counting on her fingers how much eighteen from 1873 left, so as to be prepared for the next trial.

The British troops appear to be making rapid headway against the Ashantees. A despatch states that in the flight of the natives before the victors, three thousand were drowned while crossing a river.

The Courier says the present indications are that more buildings will be constructed on the principal streets of Lowell, this year, than any previous year since the organization of that city.

The Philadelphia Age, heretofore the leading democratic paper of that city, has changed hands, and will hereafter be published as an independent paper.

TUESDAY, JANUARY 6, 1874.

A Revolution in Spain.

On Saturday, President Castelar read his message to the Cortes. He recommended the passage of bills providing for free public instruction and for the abolition of involuntary servitude and slavery on both sides of the Atlantic. The deputies, on two votes, gave majorities against the President, and Gen. Pavia, who is a friend of President Castelar, thereupon occupied the palace of the Cortes and other public buildings with 14,000 troops. He dissolved the Cortes and summoned the most eminent men of all parties, including members of the present government, only excepting Carlists and Intransigentes, to form a new government. This General Pavia declared was the only means for the salvation of the country. He refused personally to become a member of the government. The majority against Castelar in the Cortes was 20. Senor Salmeron and others urged Castelar to continue in power, but he refused. Marshal Serrano was appointed his successor. It is feared that these events are likely to delay the promised reforms in the Antilles, and to prevent such negotiations through Minister Cushing as would tend to the pacification of Cuba and Porto Rico, and at the same time protect American interests in Cuban waters from the arrogance and outrages to which they have been so frequently subjected.

State News.

The republican State convention meets in Concord, to-morrow. The friends of Hon. B. F. Prescott will be present in strong force, while the Bell men claim that their candidate will lead on the first ballot. Gen. McCutchins is not talked of to any extent in Rockingham county, and it is probable that Messrs. Hackett and Bell will have its entire vote. Hon. P. C. Cheney of Manchester may be the winning man should his friends present his name. The choice of a candidate by the republicans may have great effect on the democratic nomination to be made on the succeeding day. Should Mr. Hackett or Mr. Bell be successful, Mr. Hatch's claims might be allowed, Hon. Daniel Marcy's declination having strengthened him among Rockingham delegates. If the republicans wisely make a strong nomination, the democrats will doubtless abandon all hope of electing a candidate and nominate Mr. Hatch.

It is said Rev. John O'Donnell of Nashua is to be created Roman Catholic bishop of New Hampshire, which is to be made into a diocese by itself.

It is said that the parents of an invalid child in Colebrook tied him in bed and went to church, being absent about six hours. The child's cries were heard by the neighbors, and it was liberated, and the selectmen were notified to investigate.

The Great Falls Journal has entered its eighth year. Bro. Fernald has made the paper a success, and we are glad to notice his and its prosperity.

We are a little surprised that the immaculate Foster, of the Dover Democrat, should allow such language even in an advertisement, as appears regularly in his paper, over the signature of the late Democratic candidate for Mayor. It is altogether too gushing.

Mr. Beecher on Wine at New Year's.

A notice of Henry Ward Beecher's sermon last Sunday morning says:

"In noticing a meeting for the afternoon at the Young Men's Christian Association Rooms in favor of temperance and to discuss the question, 'Shall have wine on our tables on New Year's day?' Mr. Beecher said it was a good question to discuss just at this time, and he hoped that from every pulpit in the two cities there would go forth a protest against this custom. 'Of course,' said he, 'any word of mine against it will go only so far as you and a few beyond you here; but I would add my most earnest desire to that of other good men and good women, for I have received from a woman's association a request that I would say something on this subject, and I wish to express a strong desire that this un-American custom of putting wine upon the tables at New Year's should be discontinued—a custom comparatively recent and uncalled for; not called for by any love of wine, for I don't believe that there is one man in five hundred that really loves the taste of wine, and although it is fashionable to pretend to distinguish one quality from another, I don't believe that there is one man in five hundred that can tell Bordeaux from Burgundy. The very persons that need your courtesy most, namely, the deliquescent young men—the men that melt and give way so easily—are the very best persons that are made up in order to be betrayed by liquor. They are the men that cannot resist an invitation, and there is a certain sort of tang about wine, and a certain sort of impossibility in young ladies forbearing anything, if it is fashionable, and so the fool will find it impossible to forbear, and the web will be woven and the fly will be caught, and the devil of a spider will laugh at the skill displayed in the weaving. Many a young man has been caught on New Year's Day, and lingered on a year or two, and then died disgracefully. If I could look over my life, I think the saddest recollection of it would be to see that I had set a snare that had entrapped the soul of a single man to its ruin. It is a risk that no person ought to take upon himself, and no honorable person can. I wish that all the wine should be put upon my table on New Year's Day, or that nobody should have more than I did.'" —The Springfield Republican calls attention to the size of the pop corn balls now sold for a cent, as evidence that something is radically wrong in the condition of the country. In this connection it may be remarked that, nowadays, three cents' worth of gum will not last a school boy half a day, whereas it would formerly give his teacher a subject for conversation for a week.

Business Notices.

The great PILE remedy, ANAKESIS, the discovery of Dr. Silsbee, is entitled to be called the wonder of the age. 20,000 grateful sufferers bless the only infallible remedy for PILES ever introduced. Only those who have used lotions, ointments and internal remedies in vain, will understand the grateful feeling of instant relief from pain, and blissful hope of certain cure for the terrible disease, that ANAKES S assures. It is used by Doctors of all schools. —Price $1.00. Sold by Druggists everywhere. Depot, 46 Walker st., New York.

The United States Dispensatory, standard and most excellent authority, says: "Pills are much better preserved in glass bottles than in the common wood or pasteboard boxes, and should always be dispensed in glass by the apothecary." If you would use medicine superior, not only in being preserved fresh and perfect by compliance with this very important rule, but also in being composed of choice, concentrated and chemically refined vegetable medicinal principles, instead of crude, bulky, cheap drugs, that constitute the huge pills put up in cheap wood or paper boxes, then take Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Purgative Pellets, or Concentrated Root and Herbal Juice, Anti-Bilious Granules, 25 cents a vial, by druggists.

A Manual of Health.

The edition for 1874 of the sterling medical annual known as Hostetter's Almanac is now ready, and may be obtained, free of cost, of druggists and general country dealers in all parts of the United States and British America, and indeed in every civilized portion of the Western Hemisphere. This Almanac has been issued regularly at the commencement of every year for about one-fifth of of a century. It combines with the soundest practical advice for the preservation and restoration of health, a large amount of interesting and amusing light reading, and the calendar, astronomical calculations, chronological items, &c., are prepared with great care, and will be found entirely accurate. The issue of Hostetter's Almanac for 1874 will probably be the largest edition of a medical work ever published in any country. The proprietors, Messrs. Hostetter & Smith, Pittsburg, Pa., on receipt of a two cent stamp, will forward a copy by mail to any person who cannot procure one in his neighborhood.

Old Probabilities. Our learned friend, who sits at Washington, and receives, from the signal stations of a continent, reports on the vicissitudes of the weather, sorts, compares and infers from them the daily bulletins which everybody reads, might reasonably add, in view of our late sudden changes, 'Colds, Coughs and affections of the throat and lungs will prevail in the East and North. Warning signals continue in the West and South." In view of the truth of these probabilities, we commend to all sufferers that excellent and potent specific, Ayer's Cherry Pectoral. It has, in countless instances, saved life, and has, within the knowledge of every one, alleviated most alarming symptoms and effected cures almost surpassing belief. So excellent is it that the medical faculty largely use it in their practice. In cases of seated consumption, it prolongs life and softens the stay of the afflicted sufferer. About these days it is well to have it in the house. By its timely use, serious disease may be checked and turned aside.—Nashua (Iowa) Post.

We have received to-day a large lot of FLOUR in Barrels and Half-Barrels, which we propose to sell at

PRICES THAT CAN'T BE BEAT.

PRIDE OF THE WEST	$10.75
RED JACKET	12.00
GENUINE	9.50
A	10.00
LILY OF THE VALLEY	10.50

These prices are less than the same brands or quality can be bought in this State, and we guarantee everything as we say, or you can return it at our expense.

With EVERY BARREL of Flour so sold, we shall give you

Your Choice of Two

SPLENDID STEEL ENGRAVINGS,

(Samples of which can be seen at our store,)

The Village Blacksmith,

AND

Signing the Compact in the Cabin of the Mayflower,

AS A PREMIUM PRESENT!

These Engravings are elegant again, and worthy a place in any house.

Now, don't let anybody make you believe that we can't do this and give you a GOOD article of FLOUR at the same price they can; because if you do, you will be deceived. We bought these pictures in New York at such prices that we can afford to do it.

Why? 1st, because it so increases our sales that even with a small profit on the Flour, we can make day wages. 2d, because when people come to buy Flour they see the prices of other goods and buy them. 3d, because everybody knows we always do just what we advertise to do.

NOW TRY US. All we ask is for you to call, see and be convinced.

Local Matters.

To-Night.

Lyceum-goers are to have a nice entertainment this evening to which tickets for the Cudworth lecture will admit. Evening tickets may be had at 35 cts. each. Portsmouth people have a high opinion of the abilities of Messrs. Palfrey and Sanborn, both as actors and managers. They are to re-appear in "The Widow's Victim" and "Poor Pillicoddy," so successfully given by them about two years ago. The former farce is a readaptation, in which many great improvements have been made. By particular request, Mr. Palfrey will enlarge his repertoire of imitations of popular actors, in the character of "Jerry Clip"—which includes representations of Booth, Fechter, Charlotte Cushman, Joe Jefferson and Stuart Robson. Mr. Sanborn's "light fantastic toe" is in excellent order and will appear. We look for a crowded house and no end of fun.

Rye.

The lecture of Rev. A. C. Hardy on Saturday was well attended, considering the bad weather and the horrible condition of the roads. Mr. Hardy has a very fine delivery, and was listened to with the closest attention. The remarkably good order at all public gatherings within a year or two, and especially since the construction of the new town hall, speaks well for the decorum of the young people of Rye. The elevating tendencies of such public gatherings as we are now having, is plainly manifest in the increased anxiety to listen to scientific and instructive lectures.

The next entertainment of the school course will be a select reading, Jan. 10, by Mrs. H. M. Miller of Concord, who is favorably known as a teacher of elocution. She is also to give a sacred reading the following (Sunday) evening for the benefit of the Sabbath schools.

The choir organized by the manager of the lectures made its appearance for the first time at Mr. Hardy's lecture, and was complimented for fine singing.

The Colored Singers.

(Great Falls Journal.)

A concert of very different character than any heretofore given in Great Falls was that of the colored Jubilee Singers at the town hall, New Year's night. There were eight females and five males, all residents of Portsmouth, this State. Their singing was principally plantation melodies and camp meeting hymns, rendered in that peculiar style of the colored people. It was highly entertaining. If some comic plantation songs had been introduced it would have given more universal satisfaction. The audience, which comprised many of our prominent citizens, seemed to be interested and amused, and many expressed themselves well pleased with the entire concert, and the troupe was urged to repeat the entertainment which they will probably do at an early day, introducing a new programme including some mirth-provoking music.

It will be seen by his card, that Dr. Donaldson has removed his office to room 3, Mechanics Block.

There were 36,532 different pieces of baggage checked and had the checks removed therefrom at the depot of the Eastern Railroad in this city, during last year.

We hear the names of Dr. J. F. Hall and John H. Broughton, Esq., mentioned for the republican Senatorial candidacy in this district.

An exchange says: "The treasurer of York County, Maine, asserts that every dollar recovered in liquor prosecutions costs the State $3, and the same is true all over the State."

The fog of Sunday dissipated the snow and ice astonishingly, leaving nothing but mud in the streets. The frost is well out of the ground, and the travelling is a little the worst of the winter.

The ship Charger, of Boston, Captain Creelman, has been totally lost near Cebu, Phillipine Islands. She was a fine ship of 1169 tons register, built here in 1856, and was owned by Henry Hastings & Co. of Boston. The ship was fully insured.

Daniel H. Spinney, Esq., has killed during the past six years hogs weighing respectfully 671, 698, 742, 743,904 and 739 lbs. He has in his pen at present one girting six feet and six inches, and six feet in length. The hog is bigger than any cow in town.

A dozen lodgers put up at the station house, Saturday night, and City Marshal Johnson utilized them on Sunday morning, by obliging them to clear the cross-walks of slosh. Street Commissioner Ham was also on hand with a force of workmen, draining the water from the sidewalks.

"Kent" says in the Traveller: The announcement in the Washington special to the Boston Herald that Mr. J. H. Kent is to be made an Inspector in the Portsmouth Custom House is premature, as there will probably be no vacancies in that establishment for some time to come. "Few die and none resign."

There is a workman at the navy yard, it is said, who has whistled continuously for nine years, except while engaged in eating or sleeping. He slid off into the river, and went out of sight, one day last week, and when he reappeared to mortal view, just puckered his lips and whistled, "and there's where the laugh comes in."

The estimate for fortifications in New England has been greatly reduced by the Departments at Washington. It is said that before Congress adjourns an appropriation will be asked for fitting out another expedition to the North Pole. Captain Greer, who commanded the Juniata on the search for the survivors of the Polaris, is spoken of as commander of this expedition.

What was the Matter?

[Portsmouth cor. N. Y. Mercury.]

For some time past the members of Sagamore S. F. E. Co. No. 2, have been annoyed by boys rapping at their engine house door, and when it was opened they would run away. Last Tuesday evening while some of the members were playing cribbage, a rap was heard at the door, and, receiving no answer to the question, "who is there," those present supposed of course, that it was the boys again as usual, and told them to go to the other door. The other door was then shaken, but not opened, when suddenly, the square of glass over the door was broken in, and what was the surprise of the fireman who opened the door, to find instead of some drunken fellow, as he expected, his Honor the Mayor standing there with a brick in his hand. The question "Why did you not open the door," was answered by "why did you not answer when you were asked who is there?" After asking if the captain was in, and being answered in the negative, his Honor left, saying something about having the glass put in in the morning. No explanation having been received by the Chief Engineer or Captain Sears of this unwarrantable conduct on the Mayor's part, there are a number of different opinions about it. Some think it is one of his jokes; others that it is a new way of calling attention, to be used instead of a bell pull or gong.

CONSTITUTIONAL CATARRH REMEDY.

To Messrs. Littlefield & Co., Proprietors of Constitutional Catarrh Remedy, Manchester, N.H.:

I reside at Manchester N., H., and previously resided at Henniker, and am a native of Weare, this State. I have had Catarrh twenty-five years, ever since I was 19 years old; had it bad all the time. It ran all that period, and nights it would fill up and drop down in my throat, causing a feeling of choking, so that I would spring up in bed to save myself from strangulation. It affected my head so that I felt confused, and was troubled with severe headache at intervals, for a week at a time. I also had bad pains in shoulders, back and kidneys, from which I suffered immensely. So bad were they, that a year ago last summer I was obliged to lie in bed most of the time for three months. I have tried all kinds of snuff and Catarrh remedies with no particular benefit, and consulted physicians. I had a hacking cough. I began to take the Constitutional Catarrh Remedy last August. I began to grow better before finishing the first bottle. I am now on the third bottle. My Catarrh is cured; my health is restored. I have no pains, aches, or cough. My whole system is made over new. I know it is the medicine that has rescued me from intense suffering and almost the grave. I am now able to do the hardest work and bear the greatest exposure, and feel that I cannot say too much in favor of the Constitutional Catarrh Remedy.

MRS. E. J. FLANDERS.

Manchester, N. H., Feb. , 1873.

I am now 53 years old, have had Catarrh ever since I was eighteen years old, and headache all the time; have suffered beyond description with running at the nose, droppings in the throat, chokings and strangulings. Have tried any quantity of Catarrh remedies, but have found no relief till I tried your Constitutional Catarrh Remedy, six months ago. I found immediate relief.

Catarrh and all its attendant evils have left, Headache, Pains in Loins and Back, Dizziness, Loss of Appetite, and General Weakness. Less than three bottles of Constitutional Catarrh Remedy have cured me. I have not been so well since I can remember as now. I feel as if I could not say too much for the medicine, or thank God too heartily that through its instrumentality I have been restored to health.

AYER'S CATHARTIC PILLS,

For all the Purposes of a Family Physic

CURING

Costiveness, Jaundice, Dyspepsia, Indigestion, Dysentery, Foul Stomach and Breath, Erysipelas, Headache, Colic, Rheumatism, Eruptions and Skin Diseases, Biliousness, Liver Complaint, Dropsy, Tetter, Tumors and Salt Rheum, Worms, Gout, Neuralgia, as a Dinner Pill, and purifying the Blood,

are the most congenial purgative yet perfected. Their effects abundantly show how much they excel all other pills. They are safe and pleasant to take, but powerful to cure. They purge out the foul humors of the organ into action, and they impart health and tone to the whole being. They cure not only the every-day complaints of everybody, but formidable and dangerous diseases. Most skillful physicians, most eminent clergymen, and our best citizens send certificates of cures performed, and of great benefits they have derived from these Pills. They are the safest and best physic for children, because mild as well as effectual. Being sugar-coated, they are easy to take; and being purely vegetable, they are entirely harmless.

FOURTH GRAND GIFT CONCERT

FOR THE BENEFIT OF THE

Public Library of Ky.

OVER A MILLION IN BANK!

SUCCESS ASSURED!

Full Drawing Certain

On Tuesday, 31st of March Next.

In order to meet the general wish and expectation of the public and the ticket-holders for the full payment of the magnificent gifts announced for the Fourth Grand Gift Concert of the Public Library of Kentucky, the management have determined to postpone the Concert and Drawing until

Tuesday, March 31st, 1874.

They have already realized

OVER A MILLION DOLLARS,

And have a great many agents to hear from.

No doubt is entertained of the sale of every ticket before the drawing, but whether all are sold or not, the Concert and Drawing will positively and unequivocally take place on the day now fixed, and if any remain unsold they will be cancelled and the prizes will be reduced in proportion to the unsold tickets.

Only 50,000 tickets have been issued and

12,000 CASH GIFTS,

$1,500,000,

will be distributed among the ticket-holders.

The tickets are printed in coupons, of tenths, and all fractional parts will be represented in the drawing just as whole tickets are.

LIST OF GIFTS:

ONE GRAND CASH GIFT		$250,000
ONE GRAND CASH GIFT		100,000
ONE GRAND CASH GIFT		50,000
ONE GRAND CASH GIFT		25,000

325 CASH GIFTS	100 each	32,500
11,000 CASH GIFTS	50 each	550,000
TOTAL, 12,000 GIFTS, ALL CASH, amounting to		$1,500,000

The chances for a gift are as one to five.

PRICE OF TICKETS:

Whole tickets, $50; Halves, $25; Tenths, or each Coupon, $5; Eleven Whole Tickets for $500; 22 Tickets for $1,000; 113 Whole Tickets for $5,000; 225 Whole Tickets for $10,000. No discount on less than $500 worth of Tickets at a time.

The Fourth Gift Concert will be conducted, in all respects, like the three which have already been given, and full particulars may be learned from circular which will be sent free from this office to all who apply for them.

Orders for tickets and applications for agencies will be attended to in the order they are received, and it is hoped they will be sent in promptly, that there may be no disappointment or delay in filling all. Liberal terms given to those who buy to sell again. All agents are peremptorily required to settle up their accounts and return all unsold tickets by the 20th of March.

Fish Diet and Brains.

The idea that a fish diet, or, at least, the frequent use of fish as diet, is promotive of brain-work, seems to be growing, and the philosophy of it is that the phosphorus contained in fish acts beneficially on the brain. Looking at what are called the lower animals, it is true that a very considerable amount of intellect is to be observed in those that feed exclusively on fish. Learned seals are very common accessories to shows. Of all wild creatures the otter is one of the most intelligent and easily domesticated; and, with regard to the feathered race, wonderful stories are told about the instinct of storks and other birds that feed upon fish. It does not appear to have been satisfactorily demonstrated, however, that intellect is much developed in the human race by frequent use of fish diet. To arrive at a conclusion respecting this it would be necessary to obtain trustworthy statistics with regard to the mental powers of Laplanders, lighthouse-keepers, fasters in Lent, and others who live much upon fish, and also to ascertain whether invalids who take cod-liver oil freely find their mental as well as physical forces much benefited thereby.

—There is a ghost in Buffalo, N. Y., which nightly sits upon the bedside, and to the consternation of the widow, pulls off its boots as the departed husband was wont to do in life, and the consequent conundrum is, "Do ghosts have corns, or are they deprived of bootjacks?"

AMERICAN & FOREIGN PATENTS.

R. H. EDDY, SOLICITOR OF PATENTS,

For Inventions, Trade Marks or Designs,

No. 78 STATE ST., OPPOSITE KILBY ST., BOSTON,

After an extensive practice of upwards of thirty years, continues to secure patents in the United States; also in Great Britain, France and other foreign countries. Caveats, Specifications, Assignments, and all papers for Patents, executed on reasonable terms with dispatch. Researches made to determine the validity and utility of Patents of Inventions, and legal and other advice rendered in all matters touching the same. Copies of the claims of any patent furnished, by remitting one dollar. Assignments recorded in Washington.

No Agency in the United States possesses superior facilities for obtaining Patents or ascertaining the patentability of inventions.

All necessity for a journey to Washington to procure a Patent and the usual great delay there, are here saved inventors.

TESTIMONIALS.

"I regard Mr. Eddy as one of the most capable and successful practitioners with whom I have had official intercourse. CHARLES MASON, Commissioner of Patents."

"I have no hesitation in assuring inventors that they cannot employ a man more competent and trustworthy and more capable of putting their applications in a form to secure for them an early and favorable consideration at the Patent Office.

EDMUND BURKE, Late Commissioner of Patents."

"MR. R. H. EDDY has made for me over THIRTY applications for Patents, having been successful in almost every case. Such unmistakable proof of great talent and ability on his part leads me to recommend all inventors to apply to him to procure patentability for inventions, as they may be sure of having the most faithful attention bestowed on their cases and at very reasonable charges. JOHN TAGGART."

IRON IN THE BLOOD.

DYSPEPSIA, DEBILITY, DROPSY AND HUMORS

PERUVIAN SYRUP

Makes The Weak Strong.

The Peruvian Syrup, a Protected Solution of the Protoxide of Iron, is so combined as to have the character of an ailment, as easily digested and assimilated with the blood as the simplest food. It increases the quantity of Nature's Own Vitalizing Agent, Iron in the blood, and cures "a thousand ills," simply by Toning up, Invigorating and Vitalizing the System. The enriched and vitalized blood permeates every part of the body, repairing damages and waste, searching out morbid secretions, and leaving nothing for disease to feed upon.

This is the secret of the wonderful success of this remedy for Dyspepsia, Liver Complaint, Dropsy, Chronic Diarrhœa, Boils, Nervous Affections, Chills and Fevers, Humors, Loss of Constitutional Vigor, Diseases of the Kidneys and Bladder, Female Complaints, and all diseases originating in a bad state of the blood, or accompanied by debility or a low system. Being free from Alcohol, in any form its energizing effects are not followed by corresponding reaction, but are permanent, infusing strength, vigor, and new life into all parts of the system, and building up an Iron Constitution.

Thousands have been changed by the use of this remedy, from weak, sickly, suffering creatures to strong, healthy, and happy men and women; and invalids cannot reasonably hesitate to give it a trial.

See that each bottle has PERUVIAN SYRUP blown in the glass.

COAL.

HAVING contracted for a quantity of the above coal, we would call the attention of Manufacturers, Dealers and Consumers to the following different grades mined and controlled by the Company:

HARD WHITE ASH COAL,
FREE BURNING WHITE ASH COAL,
SHAMOKIN WHITE ASH COAL,
SHAMOKIN RED ASH COAL,
NORTH FRANKLIN COAL,
LYKENS VALLEY COAL.

In order that all coal shall be shipped in good order, a most rigid system of inspection, both at the mines and at the shipping ports, will at all times be enforced. In every district of the coal region there will be appointed a number of competent persons skilled in the preparation of coal, as local inspectors, whose duty it will be to visit the several collieries daily to see that a proper force is at all times employed in removing slate, and to prevent, if possible, any coal being sent from the mines in bad order. In addition to these efforts at prevention, no means will be left untried at the shipping ports to cure the evil of careless preparation. At Schuylkill Haven, Port Clinton and Port Richmond, ALL COAL WILL BE SUBJECTED TO THE PERSONAL EXAMINATION OF A SKILLED INSPECTOR BEFORE IT IS SHIPPED, and if condemned by him, will be dumped in places provided for the purpose, and before being loaded into vessels WILL BE THOROUGHLY REPICKED AND CLEANED BY HAND.

We keep a fine stock of the above coal on hand, also

NOTICES OF THE PRESS.

The BAZAR is edited with a contribution of tact and talent that we seldom find in any journal; and the journal itself is the organ of the great world of fashion.—Boston Traveller.

The BAZAR commends itself to every member of the household—to the children by droll and pretty pictures, to the young ladies by its fashion-plates in endless variety, to the provident matron by its patterns for the children's clothes, to paterfamilias by its tasteful designs for embroidered slippers and luxurious dressing-gowns. But the reading-matter of the BAZAR is uniformly of great excellence. The paper has acquired a wide popularity for the fireside enjoyment it affords.—N. Y. Evening Post.

PROSPECTUS FOR 1874--SEVENTH YEAR.

THE ALDINE,

An Illustrated Monthly Journal, universally admitted to be the handsomest Periodical in the world. A Representative and Champion of American Taste.

NOT FOR SALE IN BOOK OR NEWS STORES.

THE ALDINE, while issued with all the regularity, has none of the temporary or timely interest characteristic of ordinary periodicals. It is an elegant miscellany of poetry, light and graceful literature, and a collection of pictures, the rarest specimens of artistic skill, in black and white. Although each succeeding number affords a fresh pleasure to its friends, the real value and beauty of THE ALDINE will be most appreciated after it has been bound up at the close of the year. While other publications may claim superior cheapness, as compared with rivals of a similar class, THE ALDINE is a unique and original conception—alone and unapproached—absolutely without competition in price or character. The possessor of a complete volume cannot duplicate the quantity of fine paper and engravings in any other shape or number of volumes FOR TEN TIMES ITS COST; AND THEN, THERE ARE THE CHROMOS, BESIDE!

ART DEPARTMENT, 1874.

The illustrations of THE ALDINE have won a world-wide reputation, and in the art centres of Europe it is an admitted fact that its wood cuts are examples of the highest perfection ever attained. The common prejudice in favor of "steel plate," is rapidly yielding to a more educated and discriminating taste which recognizes the advantages of superior artistic quality with greater facility of production. The wood-cut of THE ALDINE possesses all the delicacy and elaborate finish of the most costly steel plate, while they afford a better rendering of the artist's original.

In addition to designs by the members of the National Academy, and other noted American artists, THE ALDINE will reproduce examples of the best foreign masters, selected with a view to the highest artistic success and greatest general interest. Thus the subscriber to THE ALDINE will, at a trifling cost, enjoy in his own home the pleasures and refining influences of true art.

The Christmas issue for 1874 will contain special designs appropriate to the season, by our best artists, and will surpass in attractions any of its predecessors.

PREMIUM FOR 1874.

Every subscriber to THE ALDINE for the year 1874 will receive a pair of chromos. The original pictures were painted in oil for the publisher of THE ALDINE, by Thomas Moran, whose great Colorado picture was purchased by Congress for ten thousand dollars. The subjects were chosen to represent "The East" and "The West." One is a view in The White Mountains, New Hampshire; the other gives The Cliffs of Green River, Wyoming Territory.

If any subscriber should indicate a preference for a figure subject the publishers will send "Thoughts of Home," a new and beautiful chromo, 14x 20 inches, representing a little Italian exile whose speaking eyes betray the longings of his heart.

TERMS.

$5 PER ANNUM, in advance, with Oil Chromos free.

For 50 CENTS EXTRA, the chromos will be sent, mounted, varnished, and prepaid by mail.

THE ALDINE will, hereafter, be obtainable only by subscription. There will be no reduced or club rates; cash for subscriptions must be sent to the publishers direct, or handed to the local canvasser, who is our responsibility to the publishers, except in cases where the certificate is given, bearing the fac-simile signature of JAMES SUTTON & CO.

The Country Gentleman.

Volume for 1874.

THE CULTIVATOR & COUNTRY GENTLEMAN, for the past forty years, has ranked, both in this country and abroad, as the STANDARD JOURNAL OF AMERICAN AGRICULTURE. The Editors and Proprietors, in addition to their own personal labors, are regularly assisted by a very large number of Special Correspondents and Regular Contributors, among whom are included many Leading Agriculturists, in all parts of the Country, East and West—and by over Five Hundred Occasional and Voluntary Writers, directly in the ranks of the Best Farmers and Horticulturists of nearly every State in the Union. With the encouragement of so large a corps of practitioners, this Journal is intended to possess exceptional value as the chosen Medium of Intercommunication among all classes interested in the Products and Fertility of the land—those who Cultivate and those who Consume—the Buyer and Shipper, as well as the first Owner of the crop—Breeders of Improved Animals and Bee Culturists—Manufacturers of Improved Machinery and those who purchase and employ it—Nurserymen and Fruit Raisers—and, especially, to supply fuller and better data as to the prospects, prospects and returns of each successive Season, as throwing light upon one of the most important of all questions—When to Buy and When to Sell.

TERMS.—The COUNTRY GENTLEMAN is published weekly, on the following terms when paid strictly in advance: ONE COPY, one year, $2.50; FOUR COPIES, $10, and an additional copy for the year free to the sender of the Club; TEN COPIES, $20, and an additional copy for the year free to the sender of the Club.

OF

WILD CHERRY!

THE GREAT REMEDY FOR

CONSUMPTION!

And acknowledged by many prominent physicians to be the most Reliable Preparation ever introduced for the RELIEF and CURE of all

LUNG COMPLAINTS.

This well known remedy is offered to the public, sanctioned by the experience of over forty years, and when resorted to in season seldom fails to effect a speedy cure of

COUGHS, COLDS, CROUP, BRONCHITIS, INFLUENZA, WHOOPING COUGH, HOARSENESS, PAINS OR SORENESS IN THE CHEST OR SIDE, BLEEDING AT THE LUNGS, LIVER COMPLAINTS, &c.

CONSUMPTION

CURED

By a timely resort to this standard remedy, as is proved by hundreds of testimonials received by the proprietors.

Dr. Wistar's Balsam of Wild Cherry

Does not dry up a Cough and leave the cause behind as is the case with most preparations, but it loosens and cleanses the lungs and allays irritation, thus removing the cause of the complaint.

CLERGYMEN, LAWYERS, SINGERS,

And all those whose occupation requires an unusual exercise of the vocal organs, will find this the ONLY PREPARATION which will effectually and instantaneously relieve their difficulties.

BEWARE OF COUNTERFEITS.—Remember that the genuine Wistar's Balsam has on the outside wrapper the signature of "I. BUTTS," and the printed name of the proprietors, "SETH W. FOWLE & SONS, BOSTON." All others are base imitations. Examine the wrapper carefully before purchasing.

THIS Bank pays five per cent. per annum, free of all tax. A greater rate is prohibited by law.
Two dividends are made in the year,—in June and December; and an extra dividend of the surplus earnings every two years. The first extra will be in June, 1874.
Deposits go on interest on the FIRST day of every MONTH, and deposits made during the FIRST THREE days of each MONTH will draw interest from the FIRST day of the MONTH.
Dividends not withdrawn will be added to the principal, and draw interest from the time when declared.
Money is received on deposit, payable on checks at sight.
Portsmouth, Jan. 1, 1873.

The Singer Still Triumphant!
At the Vienna Exhibition, the SINGER received the Medal of Merit, the Medal of Progress, and three other Medals for superiority of productions. These are the highest Sewing Machine Awards at Vienna. The SINGER received all the medals awarded to either of the competing machines, and two medals more than any other obtained. Then, in the name of Truth, what is it that prompts people to claim recommendations for the Diploma of Honor? The fact is, no Diploma of Honor has been given to any Sewing Machine Company.
But immeasurably more valuable is The World's Award as shown by sales—proved by sworn returns to the owners of the principal Sewing Machine Patents—which last year amounted to TWO HUNDRED AND SIXTEEN THOUSAND, SEVEN HUNDRED AND FIFTY-EIGHT (216,758) machines, nine out of ten of them being for Family Use. This is over 45,000 more Sewing Machines than were sold by any other company during the same period, and over One Quarter of all the machines sold in 1872. These enormous sales are owing to the long-tested merits of the Singer Machines, which meet the wants of the public in reliability and simplicity of construction, and capability for great variety and excellence of work. That the users of Sewing Machines find these desirable qualities in the Singer beyond all others, is shown by the sales above given, aside from the awards of International Juries, either at home or abroad.

SIXTEEN OIL PAINTINGS IN A BOOK!
Never before was such an idea attempted for book illustration; every one who has seen it pronounces it superb. Mrs. Henrietta Beecher Stowe's latest work,
Woman in Sacred History,
is a series of narrative sketches, drawn from Scripture, Historical and Legendary sources. ILLUSTRATED WITH SIXTEEN CHOICE OIL COLORS, after paintings by the most celebrated artists in the world, giving a rich and magnificent variety of Oriental costume and beauty. Mrs. Stowe, in her charming style, has written a book full of interest, and without a dull page in it, which even if not illustrated would sell rapidly; but the
make it one of the most unique, original and remarkable books ever offered. The pictures, if published separately, would readily sell for $2 each, or $32, while the entire book, with the sixteen pictures, together with sumptuous binding of the volume, can be had for one-fifth of that amount. The book is published in ENGLISH and in GERMAN, and is making a tremendous

How Old Plunkett Went Home.

(Concluded.)

The laugh which Abner Dean had the right to confidently expect came, but it was bitter and sardonic. I think indignation was apparent in the minds of his hearers. It was felt, for the first time, that there was a limit to practical joking. A deception carried on for a year, compromising the sagacity of Monte Flat, was deserving the severest reprobation. Of course, nobody had believed Plunkett, but then the supposition that it might be believed in adjacent camps that they had believed him, was gall and bitterness. The lawyer thought that an indictment for obtaining money under false pretenses might be found. The physician had long suspected him of insanity, and was not certain but that he ought to be confined. The four prominent merchants thought that the business interests of Monte Flat demanded that something should be done. In the midst of an excited and angry discussion the door slowly opened and old man Plunkett staggered into the room.

He had changed pitifully in the last six months. His hair was a dusty yellowish gray, like the chimisal on the flanks of Heavytree Hill; his face was waxen white and blue and puffy under the eyes; his clothes were soiled and shabby—streaked in front with the stains of hurried luncheons eaten standing, and fluffy behind with the wool and hair of hurriedly extemporized couches. In obedience to that odd law that the more seedy and soiled a man's garments become the less does he seem inclined to part with them, even during that part of the twenty-four hours when they are deemed least essential, Plunkett's clothes had gradually taken on the appearance of a kind of bark or an outgrowth from within for which their possessor was not entirely responsible. Howbeit as he entered the room he attempted to button his coat over a dirty shirt and passed his fingers, after the manner of some animal, over his cracker-strewn beard—in recognition of a cleanly public sentiment. But even as he did so the weak smile faded from his lips, and his hand, after fumbling aimlessly around a button, dropped helplessly at his side. For as he leaned his back against the bar and faced the group, he for the first time became aware that every eye but one was fixed upon him. His quickened nervous apprehension at once leaped to the truth. His terrible secret was out and abroad in the very air about him. As a last resort he glanced despairingly at Henry York, but his flushed face was turned toward the windows.

No word was spoken. As the bar-keeper silently swung a decanter and glass before him, he took a cracker from the dish and mumbled it with affected unconcern. He lingered over his liquor until its potency stiffened his relaxed sinews, and dulled the nervous edge of his apprehensions, and then he suddenly faced around. 'It don't look as if we were goin' to hev any rain much afore Christmas,' he said with defiant ease.

No one made any reply.

'Just like this in '52 and ag'in in '60. It's always been my opinion that these dry seasons come reg'lar. I've said it afore. I say it again. It's just as I said about going home, you know,' he added with desperate recklessness.

'That's a man,' said Abner Dean, lazily, 'ez sez you never went home. That's a man ez sez you've been three years in Sonora. That's a man ez sez you hain't seen your wife and daughter since '49. That's a man ez sez you've been playin' this camp for six months.'

There was a dead silence. Then a voice said, quite as quietly:

'That man lies.'

It was not the old man's voice. Everybody turned as Henry York slowly rose, stretching out his six feet of length, and brushing away the ashes that had fallen from his pipe upon his breast, deliberately placed himself beside Plunkett, and faced the others.

'That man ain't here,' continued Abner Dean, with listless indifference of voice and a gentle preoccupation of manner as he carelessly allowed his right hand to rest on his hip near his revolver. 'That man ain't here, but if I'm called upon to make good what he says, why I'm on hand.'

All arose as the two men,—perhaps the least extremely agitated of them all,—approached each other. The lawyer stepped in between them.

'Perhaps there's some mistake here York, do you know that the old man has been home?'

'Yes.'

'How do you know it?'

York turned his clear, honest, frank eyes on his questioner and without a tremor told the only direct and unmitigated lie of his life. 'Because I've seen him there.'

The answer was conclusive. It was known that York had been visiting the East during the old man's absence. The colloquy had diverted attention from Plunkett, who, pale and breathless, was staring at his unexpected deliverer. As he turned again toward his tormentors there was something in the expression of his eye that caused those that were nearest to him to fall back, and sent a strange, indefinable thrill through the boldest and most reckless. As he made a step forward the physician almost unconsciously raised his hand with a warning gesture, and old man Plunkett, with his eye fixed on the red-hot stove, and an odd smile playing about his mouth, began:

'Yes—of course you did. Who says you didn't? It ain't no lie; I said I was goin' home, and I've been home. Haven't I? My God! I have. Who says I've been lyin'? Who says I'm dreamin'? It is true—why don't you speak? It is true, after all. You say you saw me there, why don't you speak again? Say! Say!—is it true? It's going now, O my God—it's going again. It's going now. Save me!' and with a fierce cry, he fell forward in a fit upon the floor.

When the old man regained his senses he found himself in York's cabin. A flickering fire of pine boughs lit up the rude rafters and fell upon a photograph tastefully framed with fir cones and hung above the brush whereon he lay. It was the portrait of a young girl. It was the first object to meet the old man's gaze, and it brought with it a flush of such painful consciousness, that he started and glanced quickly around. But his eyes only encountered those of York—clear, gray, critical and patient, and they fell again.

'Tell me, old man,' said York, not unkindly, but with the same cold, clear tone in his voice that his eye betrayed a moment ago, 'tell me, is that a lie too,' and he pointed to the picture.

The old man closed his eyes and did not reply. Two hours before the question would have stung him into some evasion or bravado. But the revelation contained in the question, as well as the tone of York's voice, was to him now, in his pitiable condition, a relief. It was plain even to his confused brain that York had lied when he had endorsed his story in the bar-room—it was clear to him now that he had not been home—that he was not, as he had begun to fear, going mad. It was such a relief that with characteristic weakness his former recklessness and extravagance returned. He began to chuckle—finally to laugh uproariously.

York, with his eyes still fixed on the old man, withdrew the hand with which he had taken his.

'Didn't we fool 'em nicely, eh, Yorky? He! he! The biggest thing yet ever played in this camp! I always said I'd play 'em for six months. Ain't it rich—ain't it the richest thing you ever seed? Did you see Abner's face when he spoke 'bout the man as seed me in Sonora?—warn't it good as the minstrels? O, it's too much!' and, striking his leg with the palm of his hand, he almost threw himself upon the bed in a paroxysm of laughter—a paroxysm that nevertheless appeared to be half real and half affected.

'Is that photograph hers,' said York in a low voice, after a slight pause.

'Her's? No! It's one of the San Francisco actresses, he! he! Don't you see—I bought it for two bits in one of the book stores. I never thought they'd swallow that too! but they did! Oh, but the old man played 'em this time didn't he—eh?' and he peered curiously in York's face.

'Yes, of course,' interposed Plunkett, hastily, 'but you know, Yorky, you got out of it well! You've sold 'em too. We've both got 'em on a string now—you and me—got to stick together now. You did it well, Yorky; you did it well. Why, when you said you'd seen me in York city, I'm t—d if I didn't—'

'Didn't what?' said York, gently, for the old man had stopped with a pale face and wandering eye.

'Sh?'

'You say when I said I had seen you in New York you thought——'

'You lie!' said the old man fiercely. 'I didn't say I thought anything. What are you trying to go back on me for? Eh?' His hands were trembling as he rose muttering from the bed and made his way toward the hearth.

'Gimme some whiskey,' he said, presently, 'and dry up. You oughter treat anyway. Them fellows oughter treated last night. By hookey I'd made 'em—only I felt sick.'

York placed the liquor and a tin cup on the table beside him, and going to the door turned his back upon his guest and looked out on the night. Although it was clear moonlight, the familiar prospect never to him seemed so dreary. The dead waste of the broad Wingdam highway never seemed so monotonous—so like the days that had passed and were to come to him—so like the old man in its suggestion of going somewhere and never getting there. He turned, and going up to Plunkett put his hand upon his shoulder and said:

'I want you to answer one question fairly and squarely.'

The liquor seemed to have warmed the torpid blood in the old man's veins and softened his acerbity, for the face he turned up to York was mellowed in its rugged outline and more thoughtful in expression, as he said:

'Go on, my boy.'

'Have you a wife and—daughter?'

'Before God I have!'

The two men were silent for a moment; both gazing at the fire. Then Plunkett began rubbing his knees slowly.

'The wife, if it comes to that, ain't much,' he began cautiously, 'being a little on the shoulder, you know, and wantin', so to speak, a liberal California education—which makes, you know, a bad combination. It's always been my opinion that there ain't any worse. Why she's as ready with her tongue as Abner Dean is with his revolver, only with the difference that she shoots from principle, as she calls it, and the consequence is she's always layin' for you. It's the effete East, my boy, that's ruinin' her—it's them ideas she gets in New York and Boston that's made her and me what we are. I don't mind her havin' 'em if she didn't shoot. But having that propensity, them principles oughtn't to be lying around loose no more'n firearms.'

'But your daughter?' said York.

The old man's hands went up to his eyes here, and then both hands and head dropped forward on the table. 'Don't say anything 'bout her, my boy, don't ask me now.' With one hand concealing his eyes he fumbled about with the other in his pockets for his handkerchief—but vainly. Perhaps it was owing to this fact that he repressed his tears, for when he removed his hand from his eyes they were quite dry. Then he found his voice.

'She's a beautiful girl, beautiful—though I say it, and you shall see her, my boy, you shall see her sure. I've got things about fixed now. I shall have my plan for reducin' ores perfected in a day or two, and I've got proposals from all the smeltin' works here;' here he hastily produced a bundle of papers that fell on the floor, 'and I'm goin' to send for 'em. I've got the papers here as will give me ten thousand dollars clear in the next month,' he added, as he strove to collect the valuable documents again. 'I'll have 'em here by Christmas, if I live and you shall eat your Christmas dinner with me, York, my boy—you shall, sure.'

With his tongue now fairly loosened by liquor and the suggestive vastness of his prospects, he rambled on more or less incoherently, elaborating and amplifying his plans—occasionally even speaking of them as already accomplished, until the moon rode high in the heavens, and York led him again to his couch. Here he lay for some time muttering to himself, until at last he sank into a heavy sleep. When York had satisfied himself of the fact he gently took down the picture and frame, and, going to the hearth, tossed them on the dying embers and sat down to see them burn.

The fir cones leaped instantly into flame; then the features that had entranced San Francisco audiences nightly flashed up and passed away,—as such things are apt to pass—and even the cynical smile on York's lips faded too. And then there came a supplemental and unexpected flash as the embers fell together, and by its light York saw a paper upon the floor. It was one that had fallen from the old man's pocket. As he picked it up listlessly, a photograph slipped from its folds. It was the portrait of a young girl, and on its reverse was written, in a scrawling hand, 'Melinda to Father.'

It was at best a cheap picture, but ah me! I fear even the delt graciousness of the highest art could not have softened the rigid angularities of that youthful figure, its self-complacent vulgarity, its cheap finery, its expressionless ill-favor. York did not look at it the second time. He turned to the letter for relief.

It was misspelled, it was unpunctuated, it was almost illegible, it was fretful in tone and selfish in sentiment. It was not, I fear, even original in the story of its woes. It was the harsh recital of poverty, of suspicion, of mean makeshifts and compromises, of low pains and lower longings, of sorrows that were degrading, of grief that was pitiable. Yet it was sincere in a certain kind of vague yearning for the presence of the degraded man to whom it was written—an affection that was more like a confused instinct than a sentiment.

York folded it again carefully and placed it beneath the old man's pillow. Then he returned to his seat by the fire. A smile that had been playing upon his face, deepening the curves behind his moustache and gradually overrunning his clear brown eyes presently faded away. It was last to go from his eyes, and it left there,—oddly enough to persons who did not know him,—a tear.

He sat there for a long time, leaning forward, his head upon his hands. The wind that had been striving with the canvass roof all at once lifted its edges and a moonbeam slipped suddenly in, and lay for a moment like a shining blade upon his shoulder. And knighted by its touch, straightway plain Henry York arose,—sustained, high-purposed and self-reliant.

The rains had come at last. There was already a visible greenness on the slopes of Heavytree Hill, and the long, white track of the Wingdam road was lost in the outlying pools and ponds a hundred rods from Monte Flat. The spent water-courses, whose white bones had been sinuously trailed over the flat, like the vertebræ of some forgotten Saurian, were full again; the dry bones moved once more in the valley, and there was joy in the ditches, and a pardonable extravagance in the columns of the Monte Flat Monitor. 'Never before in the history of the country has the yield been so satisfactory. Our cotemporary of the Hillside Beacon, who yesterday facetiously alluded to the fact (?) that our best citizens were leaving town in 'dug-outs,' on account of the flood, will be glad to hear that our distinguished fellow-townsman Mr. Henry York, now on a visit to his relatives in the East, lately took with him in his 'dug-out' the modest sum of fifty thousand dollars, the result of one week's clean-up. We can imagine,' continued that sprightly journal, 'that no such misfortune is likely to overtake Hillside this season. And yet we believe the Beacon man wants a railroad.' A few journals broke out into poetry. The operator at Simpson's Crossing telegraphed to the Sacramento Universe: 'All day the low clouds have shook their garnered fullness down.' A San Francisco journal lapsed into noble verse, thinly disguised as editorial prose: 'Rejoice, the gentle rain has come; the bright and pearly rain which scatters blessings o'er the plain. Rejoice, etc.' Indeed, there was only one to whom the rain had not brought blessing, and that was Plunkett. In some mysterious and darksome way, it had interfered with the perfection of his new method of reducing ores, and thrown the advent of that invention back another season. It had brought him down to an habitual seat in the bar-room, where, to heedless and inattentive ears, he sat and discoursed of the East and his family.

No one disturbed him. Indeed, it was rumored that some funds had been lodged with the landlord, by a person or persons unknown, whereby his few wants were provided for. His mania,—for that was the charitable construction which Monte Flat put upon his conduct,—was indulged, even to the extent of Monte Flat's accepting his invitation to dine with his family on Christmas day—an invitation extended frankly to every one with whom the old man drank or talked. But one day, to everybody's astonishment, he burst into the bar-room, holding an open letter in his hand. It read as follows:

'Be ready to meet your family at the new cottage on Heavytree Hill on Christmas day. Invite what friends you choose.

'HENRY YORK.'

The letter was handed round in silence. The old man, with a look alternating between hope and fear, gazed in the faces of the group. The Doctor looked up significantly, after a pause. 'It's a forgery, evidently,' he said in a low voice; 'he's cunning enough to conceive it—they always are—but won'll find he'll fail in executing it. Watch his face! Old man,' he said suddenly, in a loud, peremptory tone, 'this is a trick—a forgery—and you know it. Answer me squarely and look me in the eye. Isn't it so?'

The eyes of Plunkett stared a moment, and then dropped weakly. Then, with a feebler smile, he said: 'You're too many for me, boys. The Doc's right. The little game's up. You can take the old man's hat; and so, tottering, trembling and chuckling, he dropped into silence and his accustomed seat. But the next day he seemed to have forgotten the episode, and talked as glibly as ever of the approaching festivity.

And so the days and weeks passed until Christmas—a bright, clear day, warmed with south winds, joyous with the resurrection of springing grasses—broke upon Monte Flat. And then there was a sudden commotion in the hotel bar-room, and Abner Dean stood beside the old man's chair, and shook him out of a slumber to his feet. 'Rouse up, old man; York is here, with your wife and daughter at the cottage on Heavytree. Come, old man. Here, boys, give him a lift; and in another moment a dozen strong and willing hands had raised the old man, and borne him in triumph to the street, up the steep grade of Heavytree Hill, and deposited him, struggling and confused, in the porch of a little cottage. At the same instant two women rushed forward, but were restrained by a gesture from Henry York. The old man was struggling to his feet. With an effort, at last, he stood erect, trembling, his eye fixed, a gray pallor on his cheek, and a deep resonance in his voice.

'It's all a trick and a lie! They ain't no flesh and blood or kin o' mine. It ain't my wife, nor child. My daughter's a beautiful girl—a beautiful girl—d'ye hear? She's in New York with her mother, and I'm going to fetch her here. I said I'd go home, and I've been home—d'ye hear me?—I've been home! It's a mean trick you're playin' on the old man. Let me go, d'ye hear? Keep them women off me! Let me go! I'm going—I'm going home!'

His hands were thrown up convulsively in the air, and half turning round, he fell sideways on the porch, and so to the ground. They picked him up hurriedly; but too late. He had gone home.

Reducing the Estimates.

The House committee on appropriations are still hard at work cutting down the estimates of the various departments for the expenditures necessary to carry on the government. Great progress was made on Monday. The estimates for the military establishment proper were reduced six millions, and half a million more is still to come out. The surplus fund accumulated by the commissary and quartermaster departments since the war, under the law regulating unexpended balances, turns out to be five millions, and this will be turned into the Treasury. These items, with the reductions determined upon in river and harbor and fortification bills, will make the entire reductions upon the first estimates of the department about twenty-five millions. Secretary Robeson has sent a letter reducing the navy estimates about two millions. The committee will increase this, so that, taking into consideration the appropriations for the new sloops last year, the bill this year will be five millions less than last. The military committee will begin work at once under the resolution of General Coburn authorizing it to send for persons and papers, and make a full examination with the view of reducing the expenses of the military establishment wherever practicable. The appropriations committee expect to cut down the estimates on public buildings ten millions, to save from a million to a million and a half on the Indian bill and five millions on the miscellaneous bill.

Congress re-assembled on Monday. In the Senate the committee on the judiciary reported a substitute for the house bill to repeal the bankruptcy law. The salary bill was again considered, but no action taken; and the currency question was briefly discussed. In the House, a large number of bills were introduced, among which was one by Mr. G. F. Hoar of Massachusetts providing for a commission on the general subject of the relations of capital and labor. The army appropriation bill, amounting to $28,449,916, was reported. A civil rights bill was discussed, and Mr. Stephens of Georgia made a speech in opposition to the measure. A message from the President was received in both branches, transmitting the correspondence in the Virginius case.

Several members of the Senate called on the President on Saturday and held a long consultation with him upon Mr. Williams' case, stating in definite terms matters which the judiciary committee had developed during their investigation. The President expressed much surprise at the information, and said he had supposed much of the talk in regard to the case was simply scandal. As a result of this interview the President visited the capitol on Monday, and had a full conference with the judiciary committee. He had been led to think that the investigation had been conducted without Mr. Williams being allowed to know what was presented against him. The President learned, however, that every step taken had been made known to Mr. Williams. After a long consultation, it became quite evident that confirmation could not take place, and upon separating the understanding of the senators was that Mr. Williams' name would be withdrawn.

It is reported that Senator Spencer of Alabama has instituted a libel suit against the Montgomery Advertiser, claiming $100,000 damages for a publication charging that he (Spencer) received $2500 of the public money from a defaulting internal revenue collector, since deceased, and among whose papers Spencer's note for that amount is said to have been found.

Old Time Chronicles, No. 101.

BY UNCLE JOSEPH.

FIRST CONGRESS.—The first, properly speaking, in the history of our country, was in 1774, when it was seen that a rupture with England was imminent. But twenty years before there was one in miniature. Some historians call it a Congress, although only little more than half of the colonies were represented.

It was in 1754. England was at war with France, and our country, being under the government of England, was involved in the war. The Indians from Canada, then under French rule, made terrible depredations. The French had also possession of Louisiana, which then embraced what are now several States in that section. Under the circumstances the Colonies, a portion of them at least, felt the need of union and co-operation among themselves to resist the enemy. The Ministry of the king of England understood matters and recommended that some plan be adopted for accomplishing the object.

The result was a Congress of Commissioners was called to meet in Albany, N. Y., in June 1754. All or nearly all of the New England Colonies sent commissioners. The other Colonies represented were New York, Pennsylvania and Maryland. Maine had none as then it was not a Colony. The delegation from New Hampshire consisted of four. They were, Theodore Atkinson, Richard Wibird, Henry Sherburne and Meshech Weare. These were all capable men. Two or three had been of the council, and all in the course of a few years later held positions of trust, Mr. Weare being Governor of the State.

A leading man in this Congress was Benjamin Franklin of Pennsylvania. A plan for the union of the colonies was presented much through the influence of Franklin. The particulars need not be given as it failed, being rejected at home because it was judged to give too much power to the king, and in England because it gave too much power to the Colonies.

The king of England at that time was George II. Union in the Colonies was desirable, but the time for it on the right basis had not come. It came at length with Independence and a free country under the reign of George III, a grandson of the monarch above named, and grandfather of Victoria, now on the throne.

Pecker—Not Parker.

"What is in a name?" So some one asks. Much, so that it is of consequence to get it right. Look here and see if it isn't so.

There is a gentleman in Raymond named Pecker. Some years ago he lost a valuable daughter. An obituary was published in a paper somewhere away. The family wished us to copy it, have it inserted in a paper nearer, and obtain several copies for their use for which a suitable price was paid. All was done, but the name was printed Parker. So the whole thing was next to no value.

Mr. Pecker has a good collection of Indian relics, found in town. Last season a learned professor in geology came and examined them. A statement of that fact was inserted in the Boston Journal. But down there in the city of notions, the printers and proof readers could not get the hang of Pecker so it was printed Parker

A gentleman off in Missouri saw, it and wishing to know more about the relics, wrote to Capt. David Parker, Raymond. The name Parker is good, but is not found in town. The Postmaster thought it must be for Mr. Pecker and told him so. Mr. P. is courageous, but not to do wrong. He cautiously, in the presence of witnesses opened it, and the contents showed that it was himself that was written to.

If this was all, nothing would have been said publicly about it. But we lately examined the Indian implements and gave a somewhat particular account of them in this paper, and having past mistakes in mind, carefully wrote the name. The printers of this paper we know are good, or they would have made many mistakes in our fast written articles. But strange to say, they printed the name Parker. The name is Pecker. Know ye forever the name is Pecker, and let the whole world so understand it. J. F.

True Stories.

(Cincinnati Times.)

Marlette, one evening last week, an old woman in blowing out a candle, met with a strange mishap. As she bent directly over the blaze to give it a puff, a string of corn, hanging on the wall, fell down and struck her on the head, driving her mouth over the candle, and throwing up her head the candle slipped down her throat. She still lives.

The sunken coal barge is up, and the Arap les goes forth to sea meditating on the mysterious dispensations of chance. The fact promises well for the future. We are confident, for instance, if there were prospect of renewed trouble with Spain, that patriotic barge would never have risen.

Admiral Rowan explains the sinking of the Virginius with true naval perspicuity. He says "the unfortunate calamity was owing to the fact that the water came in and the boiler gave out." The impertinence of the water in coming in is greatly to be condemned.

A Denver journalist, whose name, had he lived at Jerusalem in the fourth century, would probably have appeared in the fifth chapter of Acts instead of that of Ananias, has erected a model sensation. While a mother is washing her baby, her daughter appears covered with blood, and says that she has cut off Johnny's head. The mother asks, "Why?" "Because you said you'd do it if he took your preserves, and he took some." The mother imprinted a knock of affection on her daughter's brow with a washboard, killing her immediately, then dropped the baby into a tub of scalding water, then rushed from the house a howling maniac, uttering shrieks which filled nearly two columns of the paper. Prudent mothers in Denver now no longer wash their babies.

An Indianapolis reporter speaks of the "multitudinosity" of a crowd around a peanut stand. The incomprehensibility, semi-diaphaneity, and polysyllabicality of the adjectives of this Indianapolitan Parallelopipedon operate obfusticatingly to the ordinary intellectuality; to say the least.

An Important Torpedo Experiment.

It is not probable that the United States will ever enter the ports of Cuba in a hostile attitude; but Uncle Sam is disposed to be prepared for such an emergency, if it should occur. It is known to the officers of the United States navy that two chains, of iron two and a half inches thick, are stretched across the harbor of Havana, under water, as a guard against a foreign fleet, on a hostile mission. The chains are under water, and can be raised or lowered at pleasure.

The experiment at the Washington navy yard was made to ascertain whether a chain of that size could be broken by a torpedo. A chain two and a-half inches thick was stretched across the Eastern branch of the Potomac, at the navy yard, and strongly secured at both ends, with the centre buoyed in the position desired. A peculiarly constructed torpedo was prepared, and the experiment was made a few days ago, with entirely satisfactory results.

Patients and Physician prefer it. The genuine bears H. T. Helmbold's signature. All apothecaries sell it.

The Living Telegrapher.

Symptoms are the silent characters through which the diseased body telegraphs its condition. But they are not always read aright, and the medicines administered sometimes aggravate instead of relieving the complaint. Consequences among the ignorance of malpractice which are of daily occurrence, let the habit of dosing dyspeptic and constipated invalids with powerful cathartics. Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, in which are skillfully blended the vegetable elements best adapted to the invigoration of the stomach, and removal, without violence, of regular discharges from the bowels, should be taken twice or thrice a day as a remedy for indigestion of every type, and for costiveness, whether chronic or casual. No other medicine will be required as the cure will be rapid and painless. No medicine, as yet discovered or compounded, equals Hostetter's Bitters as a specific for all affections of the liver, as well as for diseases of the stomach, the bowels and the nerves.

The United States Dispensatory, standard and most excellent authority, says: "Pills are much better preserved in glass bottles than in the common wood or pasteboard boxes, and should always be dispensed in glass by the apothecary." If you would use medicine superior, not only in being preserved fresh and perfect by compliance with this very important rule, but also in being composed of choice, concentrated and chemically refined vegetable medicinal principles, instead of crude, bulky, cheap drugs, that constitute the huge pills put up in cheap wood or paper boxes, then take Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Purgative Pellets, or Concentrated Root and Herbal Juice, Anti-Bilious Granules, 25 cents a vial, by druggists.

Temperance Proposition No 7.

Christianity of no further use, let us put it on the shelf with all other effete systems. But stop, stop, stop, a minute. As long as human beings shall be born into this world in ignorance of the "Why?" the "Wherefore?" and the "Whither?" so long will it be needed as the only teaching. As long as they are tossed on a wild ocean they will need to know how to avoid catching at straws, and how to lay hold on the "cable of Hope." But not to dwell on these points, they being only incidental to the present purpose, it corrects and changes our estimate and conceptions as to the human body and its uses. When, pampered, glutted, &c., &c., it becomes a master too strong and overbearing "to live in the same house," it becomes what the Scripture terms "vile." But viewed as the working tool of an immortal mind, all its motions having the care and control of its God-appointed master, the reason it then is seen to be (like all the rest of the material works) a "pattern of the things that are in the Heavens." No longer to be estimated as only "vile" because there is imminent for it a change into a glorious body like Christ's. HARD PAN.

The Acheen War and the Dutch Navy.

The Pall Mall Gazette correspondent at The Hague writes: "The Dutch Navy is in a most lamentable state, notwithstanding that in the last five years—the ministerial life of Mr. Brocx was of a very unusual duration—more than twelve millions of florins a year were spent upon it. Our wooden ships are quite rotten and most of the iron ones hardly fit for use. Happily, it may be said that the war with Acheen will have no serious character so far as regards our vessels; our men-of-war have only to bombard the fortresses on the coast, and it seems that they can resist the shaking caused by the fire. But if we were involved in a war even with the smallest naval power, it would be proved that our navy is good for nothing, except for the defense of the mouths of our rivers. I need not add that a country like Holland cannot afford the outlay for a total reorganization of the navy; this would cost hundreds of millions, while the result would remain very problematical. This is proved by our military system. When the war between France and Germany broke out, fears were entertained that Holland would be involved. Nothing was ready. The army was not well trained; the state of the lines of defense was deplorable; that of our guns and rifles left much to desire. In all haste some measures were taken to improve our means of defense. A good deal of money was thrown away, but no definitive plan was adopted. Since that time six Ministers have been successively a the head of the War Department. Every year more money has been asked, and the Chambers allowed the credits asked for. But we hear now that we are only where we were in 1870, and Mr. De Roo (the leading military M. P.) gives us the consolation that 25,000,000 a year will be wanted to bring our army into a tolerable state. It seems that our present Minister of War has the very best intentions, but he has, as far as we know, not yet a definitive plan of reorganization. Nevertheless, he asks a credit of 23,000,000 florins. I need not add that this has made a very unfavorable impression throughout the country. Notwithstanding the millions which we earn yearly from our East India colonies, the Dutch are, perhaps, the most heavily taxed nation of Europe. It may be accepted as a rule that the middle class pay ten per cent. of their yearly income in taxes; and there is great probability that this will still augment, because it seems certain that the favorable balance of the East India service will, for some years to come, be needed for covering the cost of our war with Acheen."

CATARRH!

A Woman Having Catarrh 35 Years, Cured.

And Droppings in Throat, Chokings, Stranglings, Pains in the Side, Loins, Headache, Dizziness, and General Weakness, Cured by less than Three Bottles of the

CONSTITUTIONAL CATARRH REMEDY.

TO MESSRS. LITTLEFIELD & CO., Proprietors of Constitutional Catarrh Remedy, Manchester, N.H.: I reside at Manchester N. H., and previously resided at Henniker, and am a native of Weare, this State. I have had Catarrh twenty-five years, ever since I was 19 years old; had it bad all the time. It run all that period, and nights it would fill up and drop down in my throat, causing a feeling of choking, so that I would spring up in bed to save myself from strangulation. It affected my head so that I felt confused, and was troubled with severe headache at intervals, for a week at a time. I also had bad pains in shoulders, back and kidneys, from which I suffered immensely. So bad were they, that a year ago last summer I was obliged to lie in bed most of the time for three months. I have tried all kinds of snuff and Catarrh remedies with no particular benefit, and consulted physicians. I had a hacking cough. I began to take the Constitutional Catarrh Remedy last August. I began to grow better before finishing the first bottle. I am now on the third bottle. My Catarrh is cured; my lungs to be restored. I have no pains, aches, or cough. My whole system is made over new. I know it is the medicine that has rescued me from intense suffering and almost the grave. I am now able to do the hardest work and bear the greatest exposure, and feel that I cannot say too much in favor of the Constitutional Catarrh Remedy.

MRS. E. J. FLANDERS.

Manchester, N. H., Feb. 1, 1873.

I am now 53 years old, have had Catarrh ever since I was eighteen years old, and headache all the time; have suffered beyond description with running at the nose, droppings in the throat, chokings and stranglings. Have tried any quantity of Catarrh Remedies, but have found no relief till I tried your Constitutional Catarrh Remedy, six months ago. I found immediate relief.

Catarrh and all its attendant evils have left, Headache, Pains in Loins and Back, Dizziness, Loss of Appetite, and General Weakness. Less than Three Bottles of Constitutional Catarrh Remedy have cured me. I have not been so well since I can remember as now. I feel as if I could not say too much for the medicine, or thank God too heartily that through its instrumentality I have been restored to health.

AYER'S CATHARTIC PILLS,

For all the Purposes of a Family Physic

CURING

Costiveness, Jaundice, Dyspepsia, Indigestion, Dysentery, Foul Stomach and Breath, Erysipelas, Headache, Piles, Rheumatism, Eruptions and Skin Diseases, Biliousness, Liver complaint, Dropsy, Tetter, Tumors and Salt Rheum, Worms, Gout, Neuralgia, as a Dinner Pill, and purifying the Blood,

are the most congenial purgative yet perfected. Their effects abundantly show how much they excel all other Pills. They are safe and pleasant to take, but powerful to cure. They purge out the foul humors of the blood; they stimulate the sluggish or disordered organ into action, and they impart health and tone to the whole being. They cure not only the every-day complaints of everybody, but formidable and dangerous diseases. Most skillful physicians, most eminent clergymen, and our best citizens send certificates of cures performed, and of great benefits they have received from these Pills. They are the safest and best aperiente for children, because mild as well as effectual. Being sugar-coated, they are easy to take; and being purely vegetable, they are entirely harmless.

FOURTH GRAND GIFT CONCERT

FOR THE BENEFIT OF THE

Public Library of Ky.

OVER A MILION IN BANK!

SUCCESS ASSURED!

Full Drawing Certain

On Tuesday, 31st of March Next.

In order to meet the general wish and expectation of the public and the ticket-holders for the full payment of the magnificent gifts, announced for the Fourth Grand Gift Concert of the Public Library of Kentucky, the management have determined to postpone the Concert and Drawing until

Tuesday, March 31st, 1874.

They have already realized

OVER A MILLION DOLLARS,

And have a great many agents to hear from.

No doubt is entertained of the sale of every ticket before the drawing, but whether all are sold or not, the Concert and Drawing will positively and unequivocally take place on the day now fixed, and if any remain unsold they will be cancelled and the prizes will be reduced in proportion to the unsold tickets.

Only 60,000 tickets have been issued and

12,000 CASH GIFTS,

$1,500,000,

will be distributed among the ticket-holders.

The tickets are printed in coupons, of tenths, and all fractional parts will be represented in the drawing just as whole tickets are.

LIST OF GIFTS:

ONE GRAND CASH GIFT		$250,000
ONE GRAND CASH GIFT		100,000
ONE GRAND CASH GIFT		50,000
ONE GRAND CASH GIFT		25,000
ONE GRAND CASH GIFT		10,000
10 CASH GIFTS	$10,000 each	100,000
30 CASH GIFTS	5,000 each	150,000
50 CASH GIFTS	1,000 each	50,000
80 CASH GIFTS	500 each	40,000
100 CASH GIFTS	400 each	40,000
150 CASH GIFTS	300 each	45,000

325 CASH GIFTS	100 each	32,500
11,000 CASH GIFTS	50 each	550,000
TOTAL, 12,000 GIFTS, ALL CASH, amounting to		$1,500,000

The chances for a gift are as one to five.

PRICE OF TICKETS:

Whole tickets, $50; Halves, $25; Tenths, or each Coupon, $5; Eleven Whole Tickets for $500; 23 Tickets for $1,000; 113 Whole Tickets for $5,000; 227 Whole Tickets for $10,000. No discount on less than $500 worth of Tickets at a time.

The Fourth Gift Concert will be conducted, in all respects, like the three which have already been given, and full particulars may be learned from circulars which will be sent free upon this office to all who apply for them.

Orders for tickets and applications for agencies will be attended to in the order they received, and it is hoped they will be sent in promptly, that there may be no disappointment or delay in filling all. Liberal terms given to those who buy to sell again. All agents are peremptorily required to settle up their accounts and return all unsold tickets by the 30th of March.

Hale and Davis.

A specimen of the quickness and aptness of retort with which the late John P. Hale was gifted, is afforded in the following illustration. Jefferson Davis once concluded a speech on slavery with a threat that, if the North did not yield to the commands of the South, the States of that section would depart "like the tribes of Israel." John P. Hale sprang to his feet, and, in his ringing voice, said:—"And what became of the ten tribes of Israel? Dispersed, scattered, lost; and no one knows what became of them; but the ark of the covenant of the living God remained with the tribe of Judah."

AMERICAN & FOREIGN PATENTS.

R. H. EDDY, SOLICITOR OF PATENTS,

For Inventions, Trade Marks or Designs,

NO. 78 STATE ST., OPPOSITE KILBY ST., BOSTON.

After an extensive practice of upwards of thirty years, continues to secure patents in the United States; also in Great Britain, France and other foreign countries. Caveats, Specifications, Assignments, and all papers for Patents, executed on reasonable terms with dispatch. Researches made to determine the validity and utility of Patents of Inventions, and legal and other advice rendered in all matters touching the same. Copies of the claims of any patent furnished, by remitting one dollar. Assignments recorded in Washington.

No Agency in the United States possesses superior facilities for obtaining Patents or ascertaining the patentability of inventions.

All necessity for a journey to Washington to procure a Patent and the usual great delay there, are here saved inventors.

TESTIMONIALS.

"I regard Mr. R. H. Eddy as one of the most capable and successful practitioners with whom I have had official intercourse. CHARLES MASON, Commissioner of Patents."

"I have no hesitation in assuring inventors that they cannot employ a man more competent and trustworthy and more capable of putting their applications in a form to secure for them an early and favorable consideration at the Patent Office. EDMUND BURKE, Late Commissioner of Patents."

"Mr. R. H. Eddy has made for me over THIRTY applications for Patents, having been successful in almost every case. Such unmistakable proof of great talent and ability on his part leads me to recommend all inventors to apply to him to procure their Patents, as they may be sure of having the most faithful attention bestowed on their cases and at very reasonable charges. JOHN TAGGART."

IRON IN THE BLOOD.

DYSPEPSIA, DEBILITY, DROPSY AND HUMORS.

PERUVIAN SYRUP

Makes The Weak Strong.

The Peruvian Syrup, a Protected Solution of the Protoxide of Iron, is so combined as to have the character of an ailment, as easily digested and assimilated with the blood as the simplest food. It increases the quantity of Nature's Own Vitalizing Agent, Iron in the blood, and cures "a thousand ills," simply by Toning up. Invigorating and Vitalizing the System. The enriched and vitalized blood permeates every part of the body, repairing damages and waste, searching out morbid secretions, and leaving nothing for disease to feed upon.

This is the secret of the wonderful success of this remedy in curing Dyspepsia, Liver Complaint, Dropsy, Chronic Diarrhœa, Boils, Nervous Affections, Chills and Fevers, Humors, Loss of Constitutional Vigor, Diseases of the Kidneys and Bladder, Female Complaints, and all diseases originating in a bad state of the blood, or accompanied by debility or a low system. Being free from Alcohol, in any form its energizing effects are not followed by corresponding reaction, but are permanent, infusing strength, vigor, and new life into all parts of the system, and building upon an Iron Constitution.

Thousands have been changed by the use of this remedy, from weak, sickly, suffering creatures to strong, healthy, and happy men and women; and invalids cannot reasonably hesitate to give it a trial.

See that each bottle has PERUVIAN SYRUP blown in the glass.

COAL.

HAVING contracted for a quantity of the above coal, we would call the attention of Manufacturers, Dealers and Consumers to the following different grades mined and controlled by the Company:

HARD WHITE ASH COAL,
FREE BURNING WHITE ASH COAL,
SHAMOKIN WHITE ASH COAL,
SHAMOKIN RED ASH COAL,
NORTH FRANKLIN COAL,
LYKENS VALLEY COAL.

In order that all coal shall be shipped in good order, we insist upon a strict system of inspection, both at the mines and at the shipping ports, will at all times be enforced. In every district of the coal region there will be appointed a number of competent persons, skilled in the preparation of coal, as local inspectors, whose duty it will be to visit the several collieries daily to see that a proper force is at all times employed in removing slate, and to prevent, if possible, any coal being sent from the mines in bad order. In addition to these efforts at prevention, no means will be left untried at the shipping ports to cure the evil of careless preparation. At Schuylkill Haven, Port Clinton and Port Richmond, ALL COAL WILL BE SUBJECTED TO THE PERSONAL EXAMINATION OF A SKILLED INSPECTOR BEFORE IT IS SHIPPED, and if condemned by him, will be dumped in places provided for the purpose, and before being loaded into vessels WILL BE THOROUGHLY REPICKED AND CLEANED BY HAND.

We keep a fine stock of the above coal on hand, also

Harper's Weekly.

SPLENDIDLY ILLUSTRATED.

NOTICES OF THE PRESS.

The Weekly is the ablest and most powerful illustrated periodical published in this country. Its editorials are scholarly and convincing, and carry much weight. Its illustrations of current events are full and fresh, and are prepared by our best designers. With a circulation of 150,000, the Weekly is read by at least half a million persons, and its influence as an organ of opinion is simply tremendous. The Weekly maintains a positive position, and expresses decided views on political and social problems.—Louisville Courier Journal.

Harper's Bazar.

NOTICES OF THE PRESS.

The BAZAR is edited with a contribution of tact and talent that we seldom find in any journal; and the journal itself is the organ of the great world of fashion. Boston Traveller.

The BAZAR commends itself to every member of the household—to the children by droll and pretty pictures, to the young ladies by its fashion-plates in endless variety, to the provident matron by its patterns for the children's clothes, to practitioners by its tasteful designs for embroidered slippers and luxurious dressing-gowns. But the reading-matter of the BAZAR is uniformly of great excellence. The paper has acquired a wide popularity for the fireside enjoyment it affords.—N. Y. Evening Post.

PROSPECTUS FOR 1874—SEVENTH YEAR.

THE ALDINE,

An Illustrated Monthly Journal, universally admitted to be the handsomest Periodical in the world. A Representative and Champion of American Taste.

NOT FOR SALE IN BOOK OR NEWS STORES.

THE ALDINE, while issued with all the regularity, has none of the temporary or timely interest characteristic of ordinary periodicals. It is an elegant miscellany of pure, light and graceful literature, and a collection of pictures, the rarest specimens of artistic skill, in black and white. Although each succeeding number affords a fresh pleasure to its friends, the real value and beauty of THE ALDINE will be most appreciated after it has been bound up at the close of the year. While other publications may claim superior cheapness, as compared with rivals of a similar class, THE ALDINE is a unique and original conception—alone and unapproachable, utterly without competition in price or character. The possessor of a complete volume cannot duplicate the quantity of fine paper and engravings in any other shape or number of volumes FOR TEN TIMES ITS COST; AND THEN, THERE ARE THE CHROMOS, BESIDE!

ART DEPARTMENT, 1874.

The illustrations of THE ALDINE have won a world-wide reputation, and in the art centres of Europe it is admitted fact that its woodcuts are examples of the highest perfection ever attained. The common prejudice in favor of "steel plates," is rapidly yielding to a more educated and discriminating taste which recognizes the advantages of superior artistic quality with greater facility of production. The woodcut is of THE ALDINE possess all the delicacy and elaborate finish of the most costly steel plate, while they afford a better rendering of the artist's original.

In addition to designs by the members of the National Academy, and other noted American artists, THE ALDINE will reproduce examples of the best foreign masters, selected with a view to the highest artistic success and greatest general interest. Thus the subscriber to THE ALDINE will, at a trifling cost, enjoy in his own home the pleasures and refining influences of true art.

The Christmas issue for 1874 will contain special designs appropriate to the season, by our best artists, and will surpass in attractions any of its predecessors.

PREMIUM FOR 1874.

Every subscriber to THE ALDINE for the year 874 will receive a pair of chromos. The original pictures were painted in oil for the publishers of THE ALDINE, by Thomas Moran, whose great Colorado picture was purchased by Congress for ten thousand dollars. The subjects were chosen to represent "The East" and "The West." One is a view in The White Mountains, New Hampshire; the other gives The Cliffs on Green River, Wyoming Territory.

If any subscriber should indicate a preference for a figure subject the publishers will send "Thoughts of Home," a new and beautiful chromo, 14x20 inches, representing a little Italian exile whose speaking eyes betray the long ings of his heart.

TERMS.

$5 per annum, in advance, with Oil Chromos free.

For 50 CENTS EXTRA, the chromos will be sent, mounted, if desired, and prepaid by mail.

THE ALDINE will, hereafter, be obtainable only by subscription. There will be no reduced or club rates; each for subscriptions must be sent to the publishers direct, or handed to the local canvasser, without responsibility to the publishers, except in cases where the certificate is given, bearing the fac-simile signature of JAMES SUTTON & Co.

CANVASSERS WANTED.

The Country Gentleman.

Volume for 1874.

THE CULTIVATOR & COUNTRY GENTLEMAN, for the past forty years, has ranked, both in this country and abroad, as the STANDARD JOURNAL OF AMERICAN AGRICULTURE. The Editors and Proprietors, in addition to their own personal labors, are regularly assisted by a very large number of Special Correspondents and Regular Contributors, among whom are included many Leading Agriculturists, in all parts of the Country, East and West—including over Five Hundred Occasional and Voluntary Writers, directly in the ranks of the Best Farmers and Horticulturists of nearly every State in the Union. With the co-operation of so large a corps of practical writers, the Journal is intended to possess exceptional value as the chosen Medium of Intercommunication among all classes interested in the Production and Fertility of the land—those who Cultivate and those who Consume—the Buyer and Shipper, as well as the first Owner of the Crop—Breeders of Improved Animals and their Customers—Manufacturers of Improved Machinery and those who purchase and employ it—Nurserymen and Fruit Growers—and, especially, to supply fuller and better data as to the progress, prospects and returns of each successive Season, as throwing light upon one of the most important of all questions—When to Buy and When to Sell.

TERMS.—The COUNTRY GENTLEMAN is published weekly, on the following terms, when paid strictly in advance: ONE COPY, one year, $2.50; FOUR COPIES, $10, and an additional copy for the year free to the sender of the Club; TEN COPIES, $20, and an additional copy for the year free to the sender of the Club.

OF

WILD CHERRY!

THE GREAT REMEDY FOR

CONSUMPTION!

And acknowledged by many prominent physicians to be the most Reliable Preparation ever introduced for the RELIEF and CURE of all

LUNG COMPLAINTS.

This well known remedy is offered to the public, sanctioned by the experience of over forty years, and when resorted to in season seldom fails to effect a speedy cure of

COUGHS, COLDS, CROUP, BRONCHITIS, INFLUENZA, WHOOPING COUGH, HOARSENESS, PAINS OR SORENESS IN THE CHEST OR SIDE, BLEEDING AT THE LUNGS, LIVER COMPLAINTS, &c.

CONSUMPTION

CURED

By a timely resort to this standard remedy, as is proved by hundreds of testimonials received by the proprietors.

Dr. Wistar's Balsam of Wild Cherry

Does not dry up a Cough and leave the cause behind, as is the case with most preparations, but it loosens and cleanses the lungs and allays irritation, thus removing the cause of the complaint.

CLERGYMEN, LAWYERS, SINGERS,

And all those whose occupation requires an unusual exercise of the vocal organs, will find this the ONLY PREPARATION which will effectually and instantaneously relieve their difficulties.

BEWARE OF COUNTERFEITS.—Remember that the genuine Wistar's Balsam has on the outside wrapper the signature of "I. BUTTS," and the printed name of the proprietors, "SETH W. FOWLE & SONS, BOSTON." All others are base imitations. Examine the wrapper carefully before purchasing.

Portsmouth, Jan. 1, 1873.

The Singer Still Triumphant!
At the Vienna Exhibition, the SINGER received the Medal of Merit, the Medal of Progress, and three other Medals for superiority of productions. These are the highest Sewing Machine Awards at Vienna. The SINGER received all the medals awarded to either of the competing machines, and two medals more than any other obtained. Then, in the name of Truth, what is it that prompts people to claim recommendations for the Diploma of Honor? The fact is, no Diploma of Honor has been given to any Sewing Machine Company.
But immeasurably more valuable is The World's Award as shown by sales—proved by sworn returns to the owners of the principal Sewing Machine Patents—which last year amounted to TWO HUNDRED AND NINETEEN THOUSAND, SEVEN HUNDRED AND FIFTY-EIGHT (219,758) machines, nine out of ten of them being for Family Use. This is over 45,000 more Sewing Machines than were sold by any other company during the same period, and over One Quarter of all the machines sold in 1872. These enormous sales are owing to the long-tested merits of the Singer Machines, which meet the wants of the public in superiority and simplicity of construction, and capability for great variety and excellence of work. That the users of Sewing Machines find these desirable qualities in the Singer beyond all others, is shown by the sales above given, aside from the awards of International Juries, either at home or abroad.

"A New Thing Under the Sun."
SIXTEEN OIL PAINTINGS IN A BOOK!
Never before was such an idea attempted for book illustration; everyone who has seen it pronounces it superb. Mrs. Harriet Beecher Stowe's latest work,
Woman in Sacred History,
is a series of narrative sketches, drawn from Scripture, historical and legendary sources. ILLUSTRATED WITH SIXTEEN CHOICE OIL CHROMOS, after paintings by the most celebrated artists in the world, giving a rich and magnificent variety of Oriental costume and beauty. Mrs. Stowe, in her charming style, has written a book full of interest, and without a dull page in it, which even if not illustrated would sell rapidly; but the
make it one of the most unique, original and remarkable books ever offered. The pictures, if published separately, would readily sell for $2 each, or $32, while the entire book, with the sixteen pictures, together with sumptuous bindings of the volume, can be had for one fifth of that amount. The book is published in ENGLISH and in GERMAN, and is making a tremendous

Ordinance No. 41.

Requiring Sidewalks to be Cleared of Snow.

Be it ordained by the City Council of the city of Portsmouth as follows:

SEC. 1. The occupants, or, if unoccupied, the owners, of all he buildings and lands situate within the city, shall keep the sidewalk adjoining their respective premises, in all cases where a sidewalk has been or may be constructed, free from snow, by causing the snow to be removed into the street and evenly spread, within six hours after the cessation of every fall thereof, or when the snow shall have blown or drifted upon the said walk by the wind. The time herein allowed for the performance of the work to be computed from sunrise the succeeding morning whenever the fall of snow shall have ceased in the night time.

SEC. 2. Any person disregarding or offending against the provisions of this ordinance shall, upon conviction thereof, forfeit and pay a fine not exceeding ten dollars for each and every offence, with costs of prosecution; and it shall be the duty of the Street Commissioner, under the counsel and direction of the Mayor, to cause this ordinance to be enforced.

Passed Dec. 21, 1874.

Ordinance No. 65,

In Amendment of Ordinance No. 41—Requiring Sidewalks to be Cleared of Snow.

Be it ordained by the City Council of the city of Portsmouth as follows:

That ordinance number forty-one, requiring sidewalks to be cleared of snow, be so amended by adding to section one the following clause, viz: That when any of said sidewalks are covered with ice, so as to make the passing dangerous, said owners or occupants shall spread over said sidewalk ashes, sand or salt in such a manner as to prevent the same from being dangerous.

Passed Jan. 19, 1860. n23-1m

BEING A BOY.

Charles Dudley Warner in St. Nicholas.

If I was obliged to be a boy, and a boy in the country—the best kind of a boy to be, in the summer—I would be about ten years of age. As soon as I got any older, I would quit it. The trouble with a boy is, that just as he begins to enjoy himself he is too old, and has to be set to doing something else. If a country boy were wise, he would stay at just that age when he could enjoy himself most, and have the least expected of him in the way of work.

Of course the perfectly good boy will always prefer to work and to do "chores" for his father, and errands for his mother and sisters, rather than enjoy himself in his own way. I never saw but one such boy. He lived in the town of Goshen—not the place where the butter is made, but a much better Goshen than that. And I never saw him, but I heard of him; and being about the same age, as I supposed, I was taken once from Zoah, where I lived, to Goshen to see him. But he was dead. He had been dead almost a year, so that it was impossible to see him. He died of the most singular disease; it was from not eating green apples in the season of them. This boy, whose name was Solomon, before he died, would rather split up kindling-wood for his mother than go a-fishing—the consequence was that he was kept at splitting kindling-wood and such work most of the time, and grew a better and more useful boy day after day. Solomon would not disobey his parents and eat green apples—not even when they were ripe enough to knock off with a stick, but he had such a longing for them, that he pined and passed away. If he had eaten the green apples he would have died of them, probably; so that his example is a difficult one to follow. In fact, a boy is a hard subject to get a moral from, any way. All his little playmates who ate green apples came to Solomon's funeral and were verry sorry for what they had done.

John was a very different boy from Solomon, not half so good, nor half so dead. He was a farmer's boy, as Solomon was, but he did not take so much interest in the farm. If John could have had his way he would have discovered a cave full of diamonds, and lots of nail-kegs full of gold pieces and Spanish dollars, with a pretty little girl living in the cave, and two beautifully caparisoned horses, upon which, taking the jewels and money, they would have ridden off together, he did not know where. John had got thus far in his studies, which were apparently arithmetic and geography, but were in reality the "Arabian Nights," and other books of high and mighty adventure. He was a simple country boy, and did not know much about the world as it is, but he had one of his own imagination, in which he lived a good deal. I dare say he found out soon enough what the world is, and he had a lesson or two when he was quite young, in two incidents, which I may as well relate.

If you had seen John at this time you might have thought he was only a shabbily dressed country lad, and you never would have guessed what beautiful thoughts he sometimes had as he went stubbing his toes along the dusty road, nor what a chivalrous little fellow he was. You would have seen a short boy, barefooted, with trowsers at once too big and too short, held perhaps by one suspender only, a checked cotton shirt, and a hat of braided palmleaf, frayed at the edges and bulged up in the crown. It is impossible to keep a hat neat if you use it to catch bumble-bees and whisk 'em; to bail the water from a leaky boat; to catch minnows in; to put over honey-bees' nests, and to transport pebbles, strawberries, and hens' eggs. John usually carried a sling in his hand or a bow or a limber stick, sharp at one end, from which he could sling apples a great distance. If he walked in the road, he walked in the middle of it, scuffling up the dust; or if he went elsewhere, he was likely to be running on the top of the fence or the stone wall, and chasing chipmunks.

John knew the best place to dig sweet-flag in all the farm; it was in a meadow by the river, where the bobolinks sang so gayly. He never liked to hear the bobolink sing, however, for he said it always reminded him of the whetting of a scythe, and that reminded him of spreading hay, and if there was anything he hated it was spreading hay after the mowers. "I guess you wouldn't like it yourself," said John, with the stubs getting into your feet, and the hot sun, and the men getting ahead of you, all you could do."

Towards evening, once, John was coming along the road home with some stalks of the sweet flag in his hand; there is a succulent pith in the end of the stalk which is very good to eat, tender, and not so strong as the root; and John liked to pull it, and carry home what he did not eat on the way. As he was walking along he met a carriage, which stopped opposite to him; he also stopped and bowed, as country boys used to do in John's day. A lady leaned from the carriage, and said:

"What have you got, little boy?"

She seemed to be the most beautiful lady John had ever seen; with light hair, dark tender eyes, and the sweetest smile. There was that in her gracious mien and in her dress, which reminded John of the beautiful castle ladies, with whom he was well acquainted in books. He felt that he knew her at once, and he also seemed to be a sort of young prince himself. I fancy he didn't look much like one. But of his own appearance he thought not at all, as he replied to the lady's question, without the least embarrassment:

"It's sweet flag-stalk; would you like some?"

"Indeed, I should like to taste of it," said the lady with a most winning smile. "I used to be ever so fond of it when I was a little girl."

John was delighted that the lady should like sweet-flag, and that she was pleased to accept it from him. He thought himself that it was about the best thing to eat he knew. He handed up a large bunch of it. The lady took two or three stalks, and was about to return the rest, when John said:

"Please keep it all, ma'am. I can get more. I know where it's ever so thick."

"Thank you, thank you," said the lady; and as the carriage started she reached out her hand to John. He did not understand the motion, until he saw a cent drop in the road at his feet. Instantly all his illusion and his pleasure vanished. Something like tears were in his eyes as he shouted:

"I don't want your cent. I don't sell flag!"

John was intensely mortified. "I suppose," he said, "she thought I was a sort of beggar-boy. To think of selling flag!"

At any rate, he walked away and left the cent in the road, a humiliated boy. The next day he told Jim Gates about it. Jim said he was green not to take the money; he'd go and look for it now if he would tell him about where it dropped. And Jim did spend an hour poking about in the dirt, but he did not find the cent. Jim, however, had an idea; he said he was going to dig sweet-flag, and see if another carriage wouldn't come along.

John's next rebuff and knowledge of the world was of another sort. He was again walking the road at twilight, when he was overtaken by a wagon with one seat, upon which were two pretty girls, and a young gentleman sat between them, driving. It was a merry party, and John could hear them laughing and singing as they approached him. The wagon stopped when it overtook him, and one of the sweet-faced girls leaned from the seat and said, quite seriously and pleasantly:

"Little boy, how's your mar?"

John was surprised and puzzled for a moment. He had never seen the young lady, but he thought that she perhaps knew his mother; at any rate his instinct of politeness made him say:

"She's pretty well, I thank you."

"Does she know you are out?"

And thereupon all three in the wagon burst into a roar of laughter, and dashed on.

It flashed upon John in a moment that he had been imposed on, and it hurt him dreadfully. His self-respect was injured somehow, and he felt as if his lovely, gentle mother had been insulted. He would like to have thrown a stone at the wagon, and in a rage, he cried:

"You're a nice"—but he couldn't think of any hard, bitter words quick enough.

Probably the young lady, who might have been almost any young lady, never knew what a cruel thing she had done.

THURSDAY, JANUARY 8, 1874.

Republican State Convention.

There was a very full attendance at the republican State convention at Concord, Tuesday, 686 delegates being reported present. Major James F. Briggs of Manchester presided and made a most excellent speech. J. Horace Kent was one of the secretaries and E. G. Peirce, jr., was chairman of the credential committee.

An informal ballot for a candidate for Governor resulted as follows:

And Gen. LUTHER MCCUTCHINS of New London was nominated. A committee, of which John Hodgdon, 2d, was the Rockingham member, escorted Gen. McCutchins to the hall and he accepted in a brief and modest speech.

A vote for a candidate for Railroad Commissioner resulted in the nomination of Dr. Granville P. Conn of Concord, who had 245 out of 458 votes. Gustavus Sanborn of Manchester had 73, and Charles Williams of Manchester 69; all others 71.

Gen. McCutchins is a farmer, has been a member of the legislature, and has served for thirty years as chairman of the board of selectmen of the town of New London. His nomination is largely due to the influence of the Granges lately established. Dr. Conn, the nominee for Railroad Commissioner, is a brother of Mr. William Conn, of Portsmouth.

Readables.

In the United States senate, Tuesday, the consideration of the repeal of the salary bill was resumed, and Mr. Carpenter of Wisconsin made a speech opposed to the repeal. Mr. Butler of Massachusetts reported a naval appropriation bill amounting to $16,500,856 in the house of representatives; the debate on the civil rights bill was continued, and Mr. Elliot (colored) of South Carolina made a notable speech in its favor.

Hon. John E. Butler, editor of the Biddeford Journal has been elected President of the Maine Senate—a most creditable selection.

When the Pomeroy bribery case was called in the circuit court at Topeka, Kansas, on Tuesday, Pomeroy failed to appear. The governor will issue a requisition on the governor of the district of Columbia.

Gossip has it that Minister Bancroft is not popular among the American students in Berlin. He declines to preside at their festivals, and also declines to loan the use of American flags with which to embellish the banquet halls. Additionally he snubs them by not inviting them to his Sunday evening tea-parties.

Late advices from Spain report the rapid growth in strength of the new government, the resignation of several diplomatic emissaries, and the dissolution of the disaffected organizations. Castelar protests against the revolution, and Jouvellar offers co-operation from Cuba.

The New York bar association unanimously adopted resolutions, Monday evening, protesting against the nomination of Attorney-General Williams for Chief Justice as one unfit to be made.

The sale of pews in Mr. Beecher's church, Tuesday evening, was very successful, larger premiums than last years being realized.

The supreme court of Texas has decided adversely to the election law under the provisions of which the recent election was held. Judge Walker delivered the opinion of the court declaring the law unconstitutional. The decision annuls the late election, and remains in office the last legislature and the present governor. Another election will be held before April 28.

A jury in Iowa recently awarded a locomotive engineer $10,000 damages for injuries received while in the discharge of his duties.

The English having laid all the blame on the French, the French Admiralty Court has pronounced judgment, declaring the maneuver of the Ville du Havre to have been blameless, and holding the bad management of the Loch Earn as the cause of the disaster. The court eulogized Capt. Surmont.

Henry Clews & Co., the New York bankers who suspended during the September panic, have resumed business.

The Virginia Legislature has adopted joint resolutions endorsing the fourteenth amendment and claiming that Civil Rights Bill now before Congress is in violation of that amendment.

Peter Habel, son of a letter carrier in Chicago and formerly in the employ of the Post Office department, has been arrested for rifling letter boxes of their contents. He has confessed to robbing 100 boxes in Chicago, 50 in Buffalo, 50 in St. Louis. On his person were a large number of letters unopened and opened, and lock and key of the boxes.

The engineers' strike died so quietly at Columbus, O., that hardly any one knew just the process of the termination. Most of the engineers who could obtain employment have gone to work.

General Spinner favors the passage of a law which shall provide for the immediate redemption of national bank notes in legal tender notes. He states that the machinery of the Treasurer's office would enable the Government to perform the work without any additional expense, and without any increase in the clerical force

This is the present position of the Geneva award question: Fifteen and a half millions of dollars lying in the treasury invested in five per cent. bonds, about eighteen million dollars of claims filed in the State department, and three bills pending in Congress providing for the distribution of the award, but neither of them advanced beyond preliminary consideration in committees.

Of the $44,000,000 of reserve greenbacks once held by the treasury department, one-half had been issued at the opening of 1874.

The working-men of Louisville held a meeting in that city on Tuesday night and adopted resolutions calling upon the mayor to let out certain contracts for public works, and thus give employment to hundreds.

—"May it please your honor," said a lawyer addressing one of the city judges, "I brought the prisoner from jail on a habeas corpus." "Well," said a fellow in undertone, who stood in the rear of the court, "these lawyers will say anything. I saw the man get out of a hack at the court door."

On Wednesday of last week, Elijah Stevens, who killed Gardner, at Franklin, in 1860, got into a fight with Jack Corliss, in Alexandria, on a slight provocation, and gave him a severe pounding. Stevens was brought before a justice in Bristol and fined $10 and costs, and bound over to keep the peace.

Irving G. Rowell, a young man employed at Bloodt's Locomotive Works, and as sexton at the Franklin street church, Manchester, met with a painful accident on Thursday, while "fooling" with some other boys, by an anvil of 225 pounds weight falling from the block on his foot, severely bruising it but breaking no bones

Almost Buried Alive.

The St. Joseph (Mo.) Herald of December 25th relates the following strange story:

In the northern part of the city lives a carpenter with his family, who are natives of France, and have been in this country about eight years. One of their children is a little girl named Mary, and the subject of this singular story. The child was born in Paris, and was 11 years old on the 26th of June last. She speaks French, German, and English fluently, and in conversation exhibits an uncommon intensity of mental vision. She is fair complected and very beautiful, with lustrous eyes, sunny hair, and a look of spiritual maturity in her countenance. She has sometimes said that she could see the forms of persons who have died, and, as her sincerity could not be doubted, this occasioned some alarm in the minds of her parents.

The health of the child has not been good for several months, and on Saturday morning, three weeks ago, she startled her mother by saying she could see her dead sister Louise, who came near her in an angel form and spoke to her, telling her that she would make her well so that she would never be sick any more. Her mother tried to persuade her to dismiss the subject from her mind, but she could not stop talking, and continued, describing her spirit sister, saying that she was, standing near, dressed in pure white, her face bright and shining, her hair illumined with silver light, and golden dew drops dripping from her wings. She could also see her dead brother, who came close to her sister's side. While talking, her strength gave way, and she sank away as in death.

The worst forebodings of the parents had been realized, and they prepared the body for burial. No physician was called, as they supposed that death had already fallen upon their child. It was about 10 o'clock, in the morning when the apparent death occurred. The body was kept till Sunday afternoon, about 4 o'clock, nearly thirty hours, during which time no signs of returning life had be enoticed. The final look at the remains was taken, the coffin was sealed up and placed in a hearse, and the little cortege started for the grave, the parents following the hearse in a carriage.

After proceeding some distance, and coming down on Third street, the quick ear of the saddened mother caught the echo of a familiar cry, and she gave expression to her suspicion that it came from the coffin of her child. Her suspicion was overruled, but in a few moments a second cry was heard, and in compliance with the wishes of the mother the hearse was stopped and the coffin drawn out. The struggles of what was supposed to be the lifeless body could now be plainly heard. The coffin was quickly opened, and the child found to be alive, to the amazement and unspeakable delight of the parents. In her struggles she had nearly torn from herself her death robes.

She was quickly taken from the coffin and carried into the house of a French lady at hand, where they bathed her in vinegar. She recovered her strength rapidly, and in a short time was taken to the home which she had left only a few hours before an apparent corpse. Since that time she has been as well as for the last few months. Her parents make every effort to keep her mind from reverting to the terrible episode in her young life, fearing that there is a fatal fascination in it to her.

She says that while others thought her dead she could feel their touch and hear distinctly what was said, but could not move a single muscle or make the slightest sign. She knew when they dressed her for the coffin, when she was laid in it, and heard the terrible lid fastened down, but could not make a motion, and was utterly powerless until the hearse had gone some distance, when the physical forces were probably set in motion again by the motion of the vehicle.

She describes with singular enthusiasm and power, for one so young, the beautiful sights that she saw while entranced, many different beings appearing to her in wonderful beauty.

As we stated, the family have disliked the affair to become public, and have thus far endeavored to keep it secret, and it was only yesterday that it came to our ears.

—The servant: Mistress (to new servant girl from the country)—"Now, Eliza, make haste and dress yourself, and make your hair tidy before your master comes home." Servant girl—"Yes'm. Where shall I find the comb, mum?"

A Puppy with an Inquiring Mind.

Virginia (Nev.) Enterprise.

State Printer Putman, who has been sojourning in this city for a few days past, returned to Carson last Sunday noon. He was presented with a fine Newfoundland pup, about four months old, while here. For safe keeping, this juvenile son of his mother was placed in the Enterprise press room last Saturday night. After inspecting the running of a job press for some time with much interest, he went up to it and stuck his nose between a pair of cog-wheels. Leaving between the wheels a piece of skin off the end of his nose about the size of a trade dollar, he retired to a corner and sat down for a time to reflect upon his first lesson. After he had for some time pawed and licked his wound, his attention was attracted to the bed of the press, which seemed to be shooting in and out in a playful manner. After this he started—encouraged by seeing it retreating from him—but was almost instantly knocked down by the swift return of the bed. Here he thought he had found a foe worthy of his steel. At it he went tooth and nail, and was regularly knocked down as each paper was struck off, for about three hours. He then sat down, and watched the "thing" the rest of the night, bobbing his head up and down, as the bed plate moved in and out, but cured of battling with it. Being shut up in the room and left to his own devices until noon on Sunday, he found an empty ink barrel on its side and made that his home. Being black as ink himself, the condition of his coat was not discovered until his master had taken him aboard the train for Carson. It was then found that he was as full of ink as one of the ink balls used by printers in the early days of printing. Being an affectionate and playful cuss, the consternation which he created aboard that train can well be imagined. At last it was found necessary to wrap and tie him up in a lot of newspapers, and thus the printer's dog rode away with his new master.

Buchu.—The curative properties of this shrub in cases of dropsy, gravel, kidney diseases and obscure disorders are now well known to physicians. Dr. Helmbold originally popularized this medicine, and no other chemist has been able to extract its virtues with equal skill. Helmbold's Buchu is still the standard and genuine Extract. Patients and Physicians prefer it. The genuine bears H. T. Helmbold's signature. All apothecaries sell it.

Sufferers with PILES should erect a monument to DR. SILSBEE for his beneficent discovery of ANAKESIS, an infallible cure for the worst cases of piles—a failure in 20,000 cases has not been recorded. It is a simple suppository, painless and easy of application, gives instant relief, acts as an instrument, soothing poultice and medicine, and cannot fail to cure. Lotions, ointments, and internal remedies may fail, but ANAKESIS is infallible.—Price $1.00. Sold by Druggists everywhere. Principal Depot, 46 Walker st., New York.

The Living Telegrapher.

Symptoms are the silent characters through which the diseased body telegraphs its condition. But they are not always read aright, and the medicines administered sometimes aggravate instead of relieving the complaint. Conspicuous among the instances of malpractice which are of daily occurrence, is the habit of dosing dyspeptic and constipated invalids with powerful cathartics. Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, in which are skillfully blended the vegetable elements best adapted to the invigoration of the stomach, and removal, without violence, of regular discharges from the bowels, should be taken twice or thrice a day as a remedy for indigestion of every type, and for costiveness, whether chronic or casual. No other medicine will be required as the cure will be rapid and painless. No medicine, as yet discovered or compounded, equals Hostetter's Bitters as a specific for all affections of the liver, as well as for diseases of the stomach, the bowels and the nerves.

The United States Dispensatory, standard and most excellent authority, says: "Pills are much better preserved in glass bottles than in the common wood or pasteboard boxes, and should always be dispensed in glass by the apothecary." If you would use medicine superior, not only in being preserved fresh and perfect by compliance with this very important rule, but also in being composed of choice, concentrated and chemically refined vegetable medicinal principles, instead of crude, bulky, cheap drugs, that constitute the huge pills put up in cheap wood or paper boxes, then take Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Purgative Pellets, or Concentrated Root and Herbal Juice, Anti-Bilious Granules, 25 cents a vial, by druggists.

CARRIAGES.

MR. HUNTRESS having sold his interest in the late firm of Huntress, Bryant & Co. to Mr. ELLIOTT, of Concord, who served his time with the well-known firm of Abbott, Downing & Co., and has had experience in some of the best shops in Massachusetts in

Carriage Building,

we shall continue our business the same. Having met with good success the past year, by having a good share of the patronage of the city and vicinity, we hope, by being faithful and prompt in our business, to build up a

FIRST-CLASS CARRIAGE ESTABLISHMENT,

where people can order new work of all kinds, and have the old carriages repaired, without being obliged to go out of town. We shall continue to keep on hand a variety of Carriages, Sleighs, Pungs, etc., which we shall sell as cheap as can be bought elsewhere of the same quality. We return thanks to our friends for past patronage, and hope for a continuance of the same.

PRICES THAT CAN'T BE BEAT.

PRIDE OF THE WEST	$10.75
RED JACKET	12.00
GENUINE	9.75
A	10.00
LILY OF THE VALLEY	10.50

These prices are less than the same brands or quality can be bought in this State, and we guarantee everything as we say, or you can return it at our expense.

With EVERY BARREL of Flour so sold, we shall give you

Your Choice of Two

SPLENDID STEEL ENGRAVINGS,

(Samples of which can be seen at our store,)

The Village Blacksmith,

AND

Local Matters.

Laconics.

We regret to learn that Mr. Geo. W. Guppy, proprietor of the Times, injured his right hand badly in the power press on Tuesday.

There will be a dance in J. B. Trefethen's hall, Kittery Foreside, to-morrow (Friday) evening. Doors open at seven o'clock. Dancing to commence at eight.

Four first-class passenger coaches are to be placed on the Eastern Railroad at once. Seventeen more are to be finished before April 1st—all built by the company.

At the regular meeting of Damon Lodge, K. of P., No. 9, on Tuesday night, the following officers were installed: Benjamin Plummer, C. C.; Geo. H. Dame, V. C.; Albert T. Pickering, Prelate; Henry Peyser, Master of Exchequer; Wm. O. Sides, Master of Finance; John A. Durgin, K. of R. and S.; E. C. Badger, Master at Arms; Albert H. Gilbert, T. Guard.

After a thorough investigation of the recent disaster at Kennebunk, the Eastern Railroad company has discharged the engineer of the freight W and the telegraph operator at Kennebunk. The officers of the company however do not agree with the coroner's jury, and will retain the services of Mr. Wing, the train dispatcher here.

We regret to learn that the dramatic entertainment at the Temple Tuesday, evening,—which, as far as the members of the amateur company were concerned, was a grand success—was not so to the S. P. C. A., pecuniarily; the expenses of the entertainment, including a fee of $30 for the use of the Temple, amounting to ninety-nine dollars and some cents, while the extra receipts for sale of tickets amounted to $52.65. We are also told that the change from a lecture by Mr. Cudworth of Boston, to a dramatic entertainment was not a matter of necessity to the Society, Mr. Cudworth standing ready to lecture and was to be paid $10 extra for the postponement. His lecture will be delivered Feb. 17th, in place of Mr. Bergh. The change was at the request of the amateur company, who, wishing to add to the exchequer of the Society, very kindly volunteered their services.

Intemperance Proposition No 6.

The awful and mysterious "Whither?" confronts us! The never-to-be-solved "Why?" stares at us with a stolid impudence! The unanswerable "Wherefore?" looks us out of countenance! What, what, what, shall we do? Where, where, where shall we find refuge? A difficult conundrum easily answered. We must hide ourselves in the "flowing bowl!" This, as a remedial agent for the relief of the immortal mind, is found to be more efficacious than the silly panaceas offered by "Hard Pan," "or any other man." To be obtained at any drug store. If you live at a distance from the city, and cannot get this valued treasure, drink hard cider!

HARD HAND.

Good News for Music-Lovers.

Watson's Art Journal contains the following in a letter from Leipsic:—The future of the United States concerning virtuosos is splendid. You may expect first the lion pianist, Dr. Hans von Bulow, ex-son-in-law of Liszt. It is pretty sure that Bulow comes under the management of Ullmann. It is also probable that the charming pianist, Sophie Menter, who married recently the well-known violoncello virtuoso, Popper, who resigned his place as first violoncellist of the Vienna opera orchestra, for travelling purposes with his wife, will visit the United States. Sophie is known as the best female pianist of the present day, and Popper as violoncello player is immense. Abt the chapel-master in Brunswick, is working hard to finish an opera for the United States. As soon as the work is done he will send it immediately thither for study, and he himself will follow a short time after. The tenor Wachtel enjoys the best health; he told me, with a smiling face, that he will visit New York again; that he has not yet decided exactly the time; but you may expect him at any time, for he is very fond of the American dollars. Frau Dr. Clara Schumann wishes to come also, but she wants somebody who will guaranty her for six months $20,000 net on her part. That amount would not be too much, but the difficulty is she wants to come only with her friend, the well-known violinist, Joachim, in company with his wife, a very great songstress, who wants also $20,000, making $40,000. Where is Barnum, or somebody else?

Six years ago Liszt got an offer of $10,000 guaranteed by his friend and publisher, Julius Schuberth. Liszt replied, 'Not yet, my dear feiend; let us talk about the matter in later time after Rubinstein and Bulow have been there.' Of course after the visit of Bulow, Schuberth will remind his friend of his promise. But, alas! it is yet an unsettled question if the gray-haired hero feels still in the same mind as he felt six years ago. Money don't play a part with Liszt, even could he have guaranteed to him one million francs.

The fame of your Thomas orchestra is so advanced here in Germany that Liszt, Raff and Wagner wish to have their works performed by this society; even more, for Raff has recently composed for Thomas a suite in five numbers, for solo violin and grand orchestra. What a triumph for Mr. Thomas! also for Listeman and the members of that society. Another news is of Edward Mollenhauer's work, the Passions, for orchestra and chorus, decidedly a composition of great merit; the score has been asked for the second time by Chapel-master Reinecke for review, with the intention to produce it in the world-renowned Gewpndhaus concerts. I have to conclude my letter with a very bad piece of news. Henri Vieuxtemps, the great violinist and composer, has been struck with paralysis in both his arms, and they are entirely useless.

The Veiled "Model."

[New York Paper.]

By the way, the progress we have made in the last ten years in the direction of art studies is shown by the fact that, whereas a dozen years ago a female model was rare and expensive, they are now plentiful and cheap.

Perhaps I should say that the applicants for employment as models are plentiful, rather than the models themselves. For here, as elsewhere, a good female model is extremely rare. Civilization spoils the female form. If a female model has a fine bust, her waist will usually be found absurd. If her body is all right her legs are often all wrong.

You see that corsets and tight garters, and tight shoes, and irregular living will render any woman unfit to be a model.

And then a model cannot lead a dissolute life and still keep her beauty of figure. To persons whose views on art topics coincide with those of New Bedford selectmen, who fined a bookseller for placing a statue of Antonius in his window, it may seem a contradiction of terms to say that a good model must be chaste and modest; but the fact remains the same nevertheless.

Now, while poor models are as plenty as ballet girls in the 'Crook,' good models are scarce everywhere.

But the poor ones still find employment enough, since the artist must use one for a leg, another for a neck, and so on, until from a succession of models he has secured component parts of a perfect figure, unless, indeed, he has the good fortune to secure 'the Unknown.'

Who is she? Well, she is a model of extraordinary beauty, who persists in keeping her face veiled and her name a secret; who will accept no pay, and who is reputed to be a rich and eminently respectable married lady.

I won't vouch for the truth of the story, but there are those who insist that it is true of their own knowledge.

It is certainly a curious bit of romance, and the 'Unknown's' motives can only be guessed at. However, there is no absolute necessity that we should guess them at all.

CATARRH!

A Woman Having Catarrh 35 Years, Cured.

And Droppings in Throat, Chokings, Strangulings, Pains in the Side, Loins, Headache, Dizziness, and General Weakness, Cured by less than Three Bottles of the

CONSTITUTIONAL CATARRH REMEDY.

To Messrs. Littlefield & Co., Proprietors of Constitutional Catarrh Remedy, Manchester, N.H.:

I reside at Manchester N., H., and previously resided at Henniker, and am a native of Weare, this State. I have had Catarrh twenty-five years, ever since I was 19 years old; had it bad all the time. It run all that period, and nights it would fill up and drop down in my throat, causing a feeling of choking, so that I would spring up in bed to save myself from strangulation. It affected my head so that I felt confused, and was troubled with severe headache at intervals, for a week at a time. I also had bad pains in shoulders, back and kidneys, from which I suffered immensely. So bad were they, that a year ago last summer I was obliged to lie in bed most of the time for three months. I have tried all kinds of snuff and Catarrh remedies with no particular benefit, and consulted physicians. I had a hacking cough. I began to take the Constitutional Catarrh Remedy last August. I began to grow better before finishing the first bottle. I am now on the third bottle. My Catarrh is cured; my health is restored. I have no pains, aches, or cough. My whole system is made over new. I know it is this medicine that has rescued me from intense suffering and almost the grave. I am now able to do the hardest work and bear the greatest exposure, and feel that I cannot say too much in favor of the Constitutional Catarrh Remedy.

MRS. E. J. FLANDERS.

Manchester, N. H., Feb. 1, 1873.

I am now 53 years old, have had Catarrh ever since I was eighteen years old, and headache all the time; have suffered beyond description with running at the nose, droppings in the throat, c okings and strangulings. Have tried any quantity of Catarrh Remedies, but have found no relief till I tried your Constitutional Catarrh Remedy, six months ago. I found immediate relief.

Catarrh and all its attendant evils have left. Headache, Pains in Loins and Back, Dizziness, Loss of Appetite, and General Weakness. Less than three bottles of Constitutional Catarrh Remedy have cured me. I have not been so well since I can remember as now. I feel as if I could not say too much for the medicine, or thank God too heartily that through its instrumentality I have been restored to health.

AYER'S CATHARTIC PILLS,

For all the Purposes of a Family Physic

CURING

Costiveness, Jaundice, Dyspepsia, Indigestion, Dysentery, Foul Stomach and Breath, Erysipelas, Headache, Piles, Rheumatism, Eruptions and Skin Diseases, Biliousness, Liver complaint, Dropsy, Tetter, Tumors and Salt Rheum, Worms, Gout, Neuralgia, as a Dinner Pill, and purifying the Blood,

are the most congenial purgative yet perfected. Their effects abundantly show how much they excel all other Pills. They are safe and pleasant to take, but powerful to cure. They purge out the foul humors of the blood; they stimulate the sluggish or disordered organ into action, and they impart health and tone to the whole being. They cure not only the every-day complaints of everybody, but formidable and dangerous diseases. Most skillful physicians, most eminent clergymen, and our best citizens send certificates of cures performed, and of great benefits they have derived from these Pills. They are the safest and best physic for children, because mild as well as efficacious. Being sugar-coated, they are easy to take; and being purely vegetable, they are entirely harmless.

FOURTH GRAND GIFT CONCERT

FOR THE BENEFIT OF THE

Public Library of Ky.

OVER A MILION IN BANK!

SUCCESS ASSURED!

Full Drawing Certain

On Tuesday, 31st of March Next.

In order to meet the general wish and expectation of the public and the ticket-holders for the full payment of the magnificent gifts, announced for the Fourth Grand Gift Concert of the Public Library of Kentucky, the management have determined to postpone the Concert and Drawing until Tuesday, April 31st, 1874.

They have already realized

OVER A MILLION DOLLARS,

And have a great many agents to hear from.

No doubt is entertained of the sale of every ticket before the drawing, but whether all are sold or not, the Concert and Drawing will positively and unequivocally take place on the day now fixed, and if any remain unsold they will be cancelled and the prizes will be reduced in proportion to the unsold tickets.

Only 60,000 tickets have been issued, and will be distributed among the ticket-holders.

12,000 CASH GIFTS,

$1,500,000,

The tickets are printed in coupons, of tenths, and all fractional parts will be represented in the drawing just as whole tickets are.

The chances for a gift range as one to five.

PRICE OF TICKETS:

Whole tickets, $50; Halves, $25; Tenths, or each Coupon, $5; Eleven Whole Tickets for $500; 22 Tickets for $1,000; 113 Whole Tickets for $5,000; 227 Whole Tickets for $10,000. No discount on less than $500 worth of Tickets at a time.

The Fourth Gift Concert will be conducted, in all respects, like the three which have already been given, and full particulars may be learned from circulars which will be sent free from this office to all who apply for them.

Orders for tickets and applications for agencies will be attended to in the order they are received, and it is hoped they will be sent in promptly, that there may be no disappointment or delay in filling all. Liberal terms given to those who buy to sell again. All agents are peremptorily required to settle up their accounts and return all unsold tickets by the 30th of March.

AMERICAN & FOREIGN PATENTS.

R. H. EDDY, SOLICITOR OF PATENTS,

For Inventions, Trade Marks or Designs,

NO. 78 STATE ST., OPPOSITE KILBY ST., BOSTON,

After an extensive practice of upwards of thirty years, continues to secure patents in the United States; also in Great Britain, France and other foreign countries. Caveats, Specifications, Assignments, and all papers for Patents, executed on reasonable terms with dispatch. Researches made to determine the validity and utility of Patents of Inventions, and legal and other advice rendered in all matters touching the same. Copies of the claims of any patent furnished, by remitting one dollar. Assignments recorded in Washington.

No Agency in the United States possesses superior facilities for obtaining Patents or ascertaining the patentability of inventions.

All necessity for a journey to Washington to procure a Patent and the usual great delay there, are here saved to inventors.

TESTIMONIALS.

"I regard Mr. Eddy as one of the most capable and successful practitioners with whom I have had official intercourse. CHARLES MASON, Commissioner of Patents."

"I have no hesitation in assuring inventors that they cannot employ a man more competent and trustworthy and more capable of putting their applications in a form to secure for them an early and favorable consideration at the Patent Office. EDMUND BURKE, Late Commissioner of Patents."

"MR. R. H. EDDY has made for me over THIRTY applications for Patents, having been successful in almost every case. Such unmistakable proof of great talent and ability on his part leads me to recommend ALL inventors to apply to him to procure their Patents, as they may be sure of having the most faithful attention bestowed on their cases and at very reasonable charges. JOHN TAGGART."

IRON IN THE BLOOD.

DYSPEPSIA, DEBILITY, DROPSY AND HUMORS.

PERUVIAN SYRUP

Makes The Weak Strong.

The Peruvian Syrup, a Protected Solution of the Protoxide of Iron, is so combined as to have the character of an aliment, as easily digested and assimilated with the blood as the simplest food. It increases the quantity of Nature's Own Vitalizing Agent, Iron in the blood, and cures "a thousand ills," simply by Toning up, Invigorating and Vitalizing the System. The enriched and vitalized blood permeates every part of the body, repairing damages and waste, searching out morbid secretions, and leaving nothing for disease to feed upon.

This is the secret of the wonderful success of this remedy in curing Dyspepsia, Liver Complaint, Dropsy, Chronic Diarrhœa, Boils, Nervous Affections, Chills and Fevers, Humors, Loss of Constitutional Vigor, Diseases of the Kidneys and Bladder, Female Complaints, and all diseases originating in a bad state of the blood, or accompanied by debility or a low system. Being free from Alcohol, in any form its energizing effects are not followed by corresponding reaction, but are permanent, infusing strength, vigor, and new life into all parts of the system, and building upon an Iron Constitution.

Thousands have been changed by the use of this remedy, from weak, sickly, suffering creatures to strong, healthy, and happy men and women; and invalids cannot reasonably hesitate to give it a trial.

See that each bottle has PERUVIAN SYRUP blown in the glass.

Philadelphia & Reading Coal & Iron Company.

COAL.

HAVING contracted for a quantity of the above coal, we would call the attention of Manufacturers, Dealers and Consumers to the following different grades mined and controlled by the Company:

HARD WHITE ASH COAL,
FREE BURNING WHITE ASH COAL,
SHAMOKIN WHITE ASH COAL,
SHAMOKIN RED ASH COAL,
NORTH FRANKLIN COAL,
LYKENS VALLEY COAL.

In order that all coal shall be shipped in good order, a most rigid system of inspection, both at the mines and at the shipping ports, will at all times be enforced. In every district of the coal region there will be appointed a number of competent persons skilled in the preparation of coal, as local inspectors, whose duty it will be to visit the several collieries daily to see that a proper force is at all times employed in removing slate, and to prevent, if possible, any coal being sent from the mines in bad order. In addition to these efforts at prevention, no means will be left untried at the shipping ports to cure the evil of careless preparation. At Schuylkill Haven, Port Clinton and Port Richmond, ALL COAL WILL BE SUBJECTED TO THE PERSONAL EXAMINATION OF A SKILLED INSPECTOR BEFORE IT IS SHIPPED, and it condemned by him, will be dumped in places provided for the purpose, and before being loaded into vessels WILL BE THOROUGHLY REPICKED AND CLEANED BY HAND.

We keep a fine stock of the above coal on hand, also

LEHIGH, WILKESBARRE, PITTSTON

And other first class Coal. For sale by the Cargo, Car-load or at retail from our wharf.

"A Complete Pictorial History of the Times"—"The best, cheapest, and most successful Family Paper in the Union."

Harper's Weekly.

SPLENDIDLY ILLUSTRATED.

NOTICES OF THE PRESS.

The Weekly is the ablest and most powerful illustrated periodical published in this country. Its editorials are scholarly and convincing, and carry much weight. Its illustrations of current events are full and fresh, and are prepared by our best designers. With a circulation of 150,000, the Weekly is read by at least half a million persons, and its influence as an organ of opinion is simply tremendous. The Weekly maintains a positive position, and expresses decided views on political and social problems.—Louisville Courier Journal.

Harper's Bazar.

NOTICES OF THE PRESS.

The BAZAR is edited with a contribution of tact and talent that we seldom find in any journal; and the journal itself is the organ of the great world of fashion.—Boston Traveller.

The BAZAR commends itself to every member of the household—to the children by droll and pretty pictures, to the young ladies by its fashion-plates in endless variety, to the provident matron by its patterns for the children's clothes, to paterfamilias by its tasteful designs for embroidered slippers and luxurious dressing-gowns. But the reading-matter of the BAZAR is uniformly of great excellence. The paper has acquired a wide popularity for the fireside enjoyment it affords.—N. Y. Evening Post.

PROSPECTUS FOR 1874—SEVENTH YEAR.

THE ALDINE,

An Illustrated Monthly Journal, universally admitted to be the handsomest Periodical in the world. A Representative and Champion of American Taste.

NOT FOR SALE IN BOOK OR NEWS STORES.

THE ALDINE, while issued with all the regularity, has none of the temporary or timely interest characteristic of ordinary periodicals. It is an elegant miscellany of pure, light and graceful literature; and a collection of pictures, the rarest specimens of artistic skill, in black and white. Although each succeeding number affords a fresh pleasure to its friends, the real value and beauty of THE ALDINE will be most appreciated after it has been bound up at the close of the year. While other publications may claim superior cheapness, as compared with rivals of a similar class, THE ALDINE is a unique and original conception—alone and unapproached—absolutely without competition in price or character. The possessor of a complete volume cannot duplicate the quantity of fine paper and engravings in any other shape or number of volumes FOR TEN TIMES ITS COST; AND THEN, THERE ARE THE CHROMOS, BESIDE!

ART DEPARTMENT, 1874.

The illustrations of THE ALDINE have won a world-wide reputation, and in the art centres of Europe it is an admitted fact that its wood cuts are examples of the highest perfection ever attained. The common prejudice in favor of "steel plates," is rapidly yielding to a more educated and discriminating taste which recognizes the advantages of superior artistic quality with greater facility of production. The wood-cuts of THE ALDINE possess all the delicacy and elaborate finish of the most costly steel plate, while they afford a better rendering of the artist's original.

In addition to designs by the members of the National Academy, and other noted American artists, THE ALDINE will reproduce examples of the best foreign masters, selected with a view to the highest artistic success and greatest general interest. Thus the subscriber to THE ALDINE will, at a trifling cost, enjoy in his own home the pleasures and refining influences of true art.

The Christmas issue for 1874 will contain special designs appropriate to the season, by our best artists, and will surpass in attractions any of its predecessors.

PREMIUM FOR 1874.

Every subscriber to THE ALDINE for the year 874 will receive a pair of chromos. The original pictures were painte in oil for the publishers of THE ALDINE, by Thomas Moran, whose great Colorado picture was purchased by Congress for ten thousand dollars. The subjects were chosen to represent "The East" and "The West." One is a view in The White Mountains, New Hampshire; the other gives The Cliffs of Green River, Wyoming Territory.

If any subscriber should indicate a preference for a figure subject the publishers will send "Thoughts of Home," a new and beautiful chromo, 14x 20 inches, representing a little Italian exile whose speaking eyes betray the longings of life heart.

TERMS.

$5 per annum, in advance, with Oil Chromos free.

For 50 CENTS EXTRA, the chromos will be sent, mounted, varnished, and prepaid by mail.

THE ALDINE will, hereafter, be obtainable only by subscription. There will be no reduced or club rate; cash for subscriptions must be sent to the publishers direct, or handed to the local canvasser, without responsibility to the publishers, except in cases where the certificate is given, bearing the fac-simile signature of JAMES SUTTON & CO.

CANVASSERS WANTED.

The Country Gentleman.

Volume for 1874.

THE CULTIVATOR & COUNTRY GENTLEMAN, for the past forty years, has maintained, both in this country and abroad, as the STANDARD JOURNAL OF AMERICAN AGRICULTURE. The Editors and Proprietors, in addition to their own personal labors, are regularly assisted by a very large number of Special Correspondents and Regular Contributors, among whom are included many Leading Agriculturists, in all parts of the Country; East and West—and by over Five Hundred Occasional and Voluntary Writers, directly in the ranks of the Best Farmers and Horticulturists of nearly every State in the Union. With the co-operation of so large a corps of practical men, this Journal is intended to possess exceptional value as the chosen Medium of Intercommunication among all classes interested in the Products and Fertility of the land—those who Cultivate and those who Consume—the Buyer and Shipper, as well as the owner of the crop—Breeders of Improved Animals and their Customers—Manufacturers of Improved Machinery and those who purchase and employ it—Horse-men and Fruit Raisers—and, especially, to supply fuller and better data as to the progress, prospects and returns of each successive Season, as throwing light upon one of the most important of all questions—When to Buy and when to Sell.

TERMS.—The COUNTRY GENTLEMAN is published weekly, on the following terms, when paid strictly in advance: ONE COPY, one year, $2.50; FOUR COPIES, $10, and an additional copy for the year to the sender of the Club; TEN COPIES, $20, and an additional copy for the year free to the sender of the Club.

OF

WILD CHERRY!

THE GREAT REMEDY FOR

CONSUMPTION!

And acknowledged by many prominent physicians to be the most Reliable Preparation ever introduced for the RELIEF and CURE of all

LUNG COMPLAINTS.

This well known remedy is offered to the public, sanctioned by the experience of over forty years, and when resorted to in season seldom fails to effect a speedy cure of

COUGHS, COLDS, CROUP, BRONCHITIS, INFLUENZA, WHOOPING COUGH, HOARSENESS, PAINS OR SORENESS IN THE CHEST OR SIDE, BLEEDING AT THE LUNGS, LIVER COMPLAINTS, &c.

CONSUMPTION

CURED

By a timely resort to this standard remedy, as improved by hundreds of testimonials received by the proprietors.

Dr. Wistar's Balsam of Wild Cherry

Does not dry up a Cough and leave the cause behind as is the case with most preparations, but it loosens and cleanses the lungs and allays irritation, thus removing the cause of the complaint.

CLERGYMEN, LAWYERS, SINGERS,

And all those whose occupation requires an unusual exercise of the vocal organs, will find this the ONLY PREPARATION which will effectually and instantaneously relieve their difficulties.

BEWARE OF COUNTERFEITS.—Remember that the genuine Wistar's Balsam has on the outside wrapper the signature of "I. BUTTS," and the printed name of the proprietors, "SETH W. FOWLE & SONS, BOSTON." All others are base imitations. Examine the wrapper carefully before purchasing.

The Singer Still Triumphant!
At the Vienna Exhibition, the SINGER received the Medal of Merit, the Medal of Progress, and three other Medals for unequaled variety of productions. These are the highest Sewing Machine Awards at Vienna. The SINGER received all the medals awarded to either of the competing machines, and two medals more than any other obtained. Then, in the name of Truth, what is it that prompts people to claim recommendations for the Diploma of Honor? The fact is, no Diploma of Honor has been given to any Sewing Machine Company.
But immeasurably more valuable is The World's Award as shown by sales—proved by sworn returns to the owners of the principal Sewing Machine Patents—which last year amounted to TWO HUNDRED AND NINETEEN THOUSAND, SEVEN HUNDRED AND FIFTY-EIGHT (219,758) machines, nine out of ten of them being for Family Use. This is over 45,000 more Sewing Machines than were sold by any other company during the same period, and over One Quarter of all the machines sold in 1872. These community sales are owing to the long-tested merits of the Singer Machines, which meet the wants of the public in superiority and simplicity of construction, and capability for great variety and excellence of work. That the users of Sewing Machines find these desirable qualities in the Singer beyond all others, is shown by the sales above given, aside from the awards of International Juries, either at home or abroad.

Ordinance No. 41.

Requiring Sidewalks to be Cleared of Snow.

Be it ordained by the City Council of the city of Portsmouth as follows:

SEC. 1. The occupants, or, if unoccupied, the owners, of all the buildings and lands situate within the city, shall keep the sidewalk adjoining their respective premises, in all cases where a sidewalk has been or may be constructed, free from snow, by causing the snow to be removed into the street and evenly spread, within six hours after the cessation of every fall thereof, or when the snow shall have blown or drifted upon the said walk by the wind. The time herein allowed for the performance of the work to be computed from sunrise the succeeding morning whenever the fall of snow shall have ceased in the night time.

SEC. 2. Any person disregarding or offending against the provisions of this ordinance shall, upon conviction thereof, forfeit and pay a fine not exceeding ten dollars for each and every offence, with costs of prosecution; and it shall be the duty of the Street Commissioner, under the counsel and direction of the Mayor, to cause this ordinance to be enforced.

Passed Dec. 31, 1874.

Ordinance No. 65,

In Amendment of Ordinance No. 41—Requiring Sidewalks to be Cleared of Snow.

Be it ordained by the City Council of the city of Portsmouth as follows:

That ordinance, number forty-one, requiring sidewalks to be cleared of snow, be amended by adding to section one the following clause, viz: That when any of said sidewalks are covered with ice, so as to make the passing dangerous, said owners or occupants shall spread over said sidewalk ashes, sand or salt in such a manner as to prevent the same from being dangerous.

Passed Jan. 19, 1869. n23-1m

REPUBLICAN CONVENTION.

SPEECH OF HON. JAMES F. BRIGGS.

Gentlemen of the Convention:

It affords me unalloyed pleasure to meet this large and intelligent representation of the republicans of New Hampshire, in convention assembled.

You have come up here to-day, from our towns and cities, representing all sections of the state, all interests and all classes, to renew your allegiance to the old party, to proclaim a platform of principles, and to select a standard-bearer for the approaching political contest—who will lead the party to another signal and triumphant victory.

I know not upon whom the honor of your nomination may fall; that is a subject peculiarly within your province with which I have no wish to interfere. Still, as one of the rank and file of the party, in view of the present public sentiment of the state, I trust he will be emphatically a man of the people, blest with vigorous native common sense, whose name will be the synonym of economy, and whose reputation for honesty and integrity is without a stain. Upon such a man we can all rely, in him we can all confide, around him we can all rally, and with him success is assured.

It is unnecessary for me in this presence to speak in detail of the past achievements of the republican party. They adorn the brightest page in American history, and are as "familiar as household words." They are looked upon with pride by the present, and will ever be regarded with admiration by all succeeding generations.

As no other organization known to history, the republican party has done the work of God. The posterity of four millions of bondmen unshackled, will be its everlasting witnesses. Never before had human rights such an organized advocate and defender. Never before such trophies graced the shield of any sect or party. Nor is its record one of destruction, although its moral results are so positive. Its history is not written on disevered States, nor in the blood of violence. It has made freedom the complement of union, union the complement of peace.

Dealing with the wickedest and mightiest rebellion, its page yet shows no blood spot of the halter or the guillotine. It was right over night, and its foes have been neither persecuted nor humiliated. Far from it,—purged of a chronic curse, and retaining their full equality, with no single right withheld or abridged, even its enemies, though traitors, are glorified and blest by its triumph. The ulcer of human bondage has been successfully removed and the whole system feels the grateful purification. Liberty is glorified by union, union by peace. This, gentlemen, should not be the end of its mission. It has present duties to perform. Laurels, however bright and glorious, are no passport to eternal power, and all the glories of the past cannot atone if it fail to meet the great exigencies of the present.

Though human slavery has been removed, the evidences of its blight remain,—drops of the old virus, deadly and loathsome as the plague, still course the veins. The system must be completely purged and renovated. What has been done for human freedom, for personal liberty and for equal rights must be sustained and perpetuated. More than this, there is dishonesty and corruption in some departments of the public service. These must be plucked up and destroyed.

This evil, like slavery, is one of the legacies of the democratic party to the country, one of the legitimate fruits of the demoralization of the late democratic civil war, and the republican administrations have not yet been able to destroy it. We have had a democratic war to fight, a Union broken by democrats to reconstruct, and certain resultant foreign complications to adjust. These grave and responsible duties having been so successfully performed, our government is turning its attention to those evils that beset the various departments of the public service.

Here we must not falter for love nor delicacy. The work must be thorough, speedy and complete. Justice requires this at the hands of the Republican party. The people of the nation with one voice demand it of their servants. Only at its peril can a political party dally with lobby dens and public thieves. Let them be scourged and driven from official position as the money-changers were scourged and driven from the temple at Jerusalem.

Nor is this the full measure of our duty in this direction. Undeniably the age is one of marked official extravagance. Not only of political officials is this true, but the evil extends to positions of trust, and hence our newspapers are filled with reported defalcations and embezzlements. That this evil is pregnant with danger we cannot but agree, and if its deadly virus is to reach the heart of our general government, woe is the republic. That party only is wise and pure which sets upon it the seal of its unqualified condemnation. Extravagance is prolific of dishonesty and corruption. Let public servants learn the true significance of salary-grabs and all kindred putrefactions. As for that unwarranted proceeding, the wholesale grab of the last Congress, I have at my command no terms of unmixed condemnation that are not too feeble for the case. As it was not a party measure, so thank God the Republican members who supported it have only to share its responsibility. But Democratic complicity cannot extenuate the act. Nor can the fact that the measure has its exact parallel under several Democratic administrations. The measure, from whatever source or however paralleled, is still eminent for its sordid baseness, and its authors should be driven indiscriminately from their places, and ostracized by their constituents. Its immediate and unconditional repeal will alone meet the popular demand.

Another important duty pending that demands prompt and immediate attention, is to harmonize and foster the various business interests of the country.

Our present system of national banks, organized by the party while pushed by the emergencies of a great civil war is, in many respects, the best that ever had an existence, furnishing a currency of equal value in every part of our widely extended domain, thereby relieving the business of different sections of the country from the system of exchange which was so annoying and expensive under the old State system; a currency, too, so guarded and protected that loss to the bill-holders, under any circumstances, is absolutely impossible.

That there are defects in the present system, time and experience have demonstrated. These can be easily remedied by appropriate legislation, and many of the objections now urged against it will disappear with the resumption of specie payments. To this end every effort of the government should be directed. We have seen and felt enough of the evils of an inflated, irredeemable paper currency, and with the present small premium upon gold it is but a short step to specie payment, and it can produce but a small shrinkage in values. In this matter, the government must take the initiative; then banks, corporations and individuals will easily and necessarily follow. This accomplished, and the business of the country once again upon a gold basis, as I trust it soon will be, we shall enter upon a career of substantial growth and prosperity hitherto unparalleled in our national history.

The Republican party has future duties. Its mission cannot end and its work should not so long as any radical reform shall yet urge its demands in behalf of humanity. Let the party remember the glory of its youth, the glory of its devotion to a great principle; but let this stimulate and not stultify us. Let us not fancy that the work which we have performed is a finality. Is the Republican a party of one idea?

Let it not now, intoxicated by past glory, settle itself for a dreamy sleep. If it would live, let it be in the future what it has been in the past, truly and literally the party of the people. Let it be a radical party in the broadest sense, in the front rank of moral and political progress. In this way, any party may retain its strength and vigor and perpetually renew its youth.

The civil service reform is eminent and important. In this regard, the movement of the present administration is in the right direction, and yet it is only a first step of many which must ultimately be taken. Although I hold only myself personally responsible for the opinion, I sincerely believe in the complete supremacy of the elective system, that we shall find no permanent safety outside of it, and that to it we must ultimately come. As this system is the basis of a Republican government, why not, so far as the same is practicable, make the principle of universal application? By thus abridging the power of appointment, we should quite certainly destroy what may be, if it has not already been, much abused. We should do away with the ceaseless clamor about the evils of executive patronage. We should relieve the appointing power of the difficulties, embarrassments and annoyances of settling the claims of rival aspirants for official position. We should place it beyond the power of any public officer to perpetuate himself in place and power by rings of appointees, and dishonest and incompetent officials could thus be reached directly by the people, who are ever to be safely trusted.

Let all promotions and all elections come directly from them. Let them all have the power, as they have the right, (being the source of all political power in a republic,) to make and unmake their own servants. So might this also prove, as it seems to me, the most effectual check to centralization, one of the prime evils of government which it behooves us to guard against. In business relations, the evil tendency of the age undeniably, is that to centralize—to aggregate, to consolidate. If republicanism be not a sham, everything is wrong which tends to vest power in the hands of a part of a people to the exclusion of the rest. To the people, not to a part of the people, belongs the sovereignty of the nation. Let them keep it.

To this end, great care should be taken to guard against the evils of the caucus system. Nothing should be more scrupulously avoided in the management of political parties.

Anti-republican in spirit, it is sometimes unsafe and exclusive in practice. The people have the same right to nominate that they have to elect their own officers. Why not? Ultimately too, the people will take that right, and for its own sake no party can afford to make itself the nursery of caucus power. The political machinery should be simplified, that nothing which mere politicians can devise shall stand between the people and their government. In a genuine republic, every act of the government should be but a practical expression of its subjects. All the subjects, too, should share equally the power of such expression. There should be no exclusion among intelligent qualified classes. Involved in this principle is the idea of woman suffrage, the next great moral issue, in my judgment, which this country must meet, and a reform which no party can afford to despise. Indubitably right as I believe it to be, I regard its success as inevitable, and believe that whatever party opposes it is as surely destined to defeat as was the party which arrayed itself in opposition to the anti-slavery cause.

A party that would live must not flag. Keeping pace with its age it must embrace boldly the right of every issue which the age brings to it. Justly proud of the past, justly mindful of the present, the republican party must shun nothing which the great heart of humanity may demand of the future.

Let me urge upon you, in conclusion, the necessity of vigorous and well concentrated action, for it is against such action that the republicans of New Hampshire have always to contend. The Granite democracy are tireless, and the campaign on whose eve we stand must be one of unremitting effort. Let us remember 1871, the black year whose blight mark warns us of the pestilence of democratic rule. Let us lift New Hampshire out of the danger of a similar recurrence; let us put her where the ban of such a scourge shall never again be drawn over her.

There is work in the campaign before us, —work and victory. Close up the ranks. "In the hands of those who never falter, the banner never falls."

I thank you with unfeigned sincerity for the honor of your favorable notice on this occasion, and with this assurance await the pleasure of the convention.

SPEECH OF GEN. McCUTCHINS.

This is the first time since the adoption of our State constitution that a working farmer, one who works in the fields with his hands, has been nominated for the office, and I trust gentlemen, that I shall use the powers of that office to effect no special purpose whatever. Other classes of men—manufacturers, railroad men, lawyers and farmers—have come here to-day, and meeting in convention have asked you to nominate their respective candidates. It fell to my lot to be nominated, but, gentlemen, you have conferred the real honor on the farmers, and they will acknowledge and take it as such. You are well aware that the farmers are a class of men who are disposed to act; they are the men who do the work, who build the railroads, and your cities, and your corporations. They are the men who do the work while others find the capital, and it is necessary that they and the other classes should work handin hand. It has been said of me that I was opposed to all appropriations. That is not the fact. I believe in sustaining our institutions as they are, and appropriating what is necessary for their benefit. I accept the nomination. I am well aware of the responsibility I am to assume and take upon myself if I am elected. I am well aware of the criticism and the hard words which may be said in relation to myself; but, gentlemen, be assured that according to my ability, and the best powers of my mind, the best of all that is in me shall be devoted to the interests of the State of New Hampshire [applause]; and it any action I shall take shall elevate our farmers so that they shall stand an equal chance with other men of equal standing or calling with them, then I shall have accomplished my object. [Applause.]

THE PLATFORM.

Whereas, the republican party sprang into existence as the ally of liberty, justice and integrity in their contest with the slave power and the democratic party, it has battled manfully and triumphantly to preserve the Union, to crush rebellion, to emancipate and enfranchise and to establish the foundation of the republic on the eternal principles of unity, equality and freedom. Emerging from the chaos of civil war, through the valor and sacrifice of our citizen soldiery, the republican party has restored the straying States to their orbits. It has established peace, justice and tranquility; it has secured indemnity from England through arbitration, and reparation from Spain through a just and prompt demand; it has paid more than $300,000,000 of the public debt, reduced taxation and held the republic steadily on its onward and upward course; therefore

Resolved, First—While we recall with pride the noble origin, the heroic career and the beneficent achievements of the republican party, we regret and condemn the want of fidelity which has characterized a few of those whom it has trusted with place and power. Second—The bill providing for back pay and increase of salaries, passed by the forty-second Congress, was a violation of the pledge of economy contained in the Philadelphia platform, renewed by the press and on the stump throughout the presidential campaign, and reaffirmed after the re-election of President Grant. Third—We call upon our senators and representatives to vote for the unconditional repeal of the so-called salary act of the forty-second Congress, and to use their influence and votes to re-establish all salaries, including the salary of the President of the United States, at the old scale, so far as the Constitution will admit. Fourth—In view of the prevailing industrial and financial depression, we call upon our senators and representatives who have profited by the back pay voted by the forty-second Congress, to make restitution to the government which they have helped to embarrass. Fifth—We earnestly invite the co-operation of the republican party of other States in a united and determined effort to preserve the organization from reproach from any quarter, so that it may continue to occupy the proud position of being the party of the people, for the people and by the people. Sixth—As in a republic there should be no privileged class and the burdens of the government should be equally borne, we protest against any revival of the abuses of the franking privilege, and will hail the day when free passage, favoritism and all unjust discrimination shall be eliminated from railroad management and a corresponding reduction made in fares and freights to the whole. Seventh—We call upon Congress to pave the way by early and wise legislation for such improvements in our banking system, and for as speedy a return to specie payments, as will be most beneficial to the great industrial and commercial interests of the country. Eighth—We demand such a revision of the laws creating and governing saving banks as shall lead to the investment of their funds in undoubted securities and real estate in New Hampshire; and the total separation of their management from other banking institutions, to the end that their funds may be securely invested, our towns and villages built upon, our mechanics and working-men encouraged to provide homes and farms for themselves. Ninth—We call upon the next legislature to make a thorough revision of the laws relating to taxation and valuation, so that taxation shall be just and equal, and no unjust burden be imposed upon the earnings of the poor.

Resolved, That agricultural pursuits are the basis of all material prosperity, and best calculated to foster those habits which conduce to the highest welfare of a State: that we hail with gratification the advances making in the science of agriculture, and the evidence of awakening interest in it as a pursuit in our State; that the republican party will welcome the healthy influence which tillers of the soil always bring to their councils, and accord to them their full and legitimate weight in government and that we pledge our utmost efforts to redress the grievances and unjust discriminations which the farming interests suffer, to do away with special privileges and to give to all classes of men equal and exact justice.

Resolved, That we deprecate the growing tendency to special legislation as a prolific source of abuse, consuming time which should be devoted to general business, and tending to prodigality, corruption and the aggrandizement of individual and corporate monopolists at the expense of the people, and that we urge on our members of Congress to use all their influence for a reform of this increasing evil. We also approve, without reserve, President Grant's recommendation for an amendment of the organic law so as protect the country from the abuse of loaning down appropriation bills with plundering schemes and other objectionable legislation in the shape of riders and amendments in the closing hours of the sessions of Congress.

Resolved, That we deplore the prevalence of intemperance as one of the most alarming evils of our time, producing most of the ignorance, pauperism vice and crime, which burdens us with debt and shame: that we rejoice in the growth of a deep and moral sentiment in behalf of temperance principles; that we believe the work of temperance reform cannot be successfully prosecuted without a more thorough appeal to moral suasion than has been employed for the last few years, and that we indorse the unanimous action of our last legislature for the maintenance of the present temperance laws of the State.

Resolved, That we point with pride to the auspicious results of republican rule in the State of New Hampshire, a faithful and efficient administration of law, a healthy growth and development of our varied industrial interests, economy in expenditures, honesty among officials, unmarred by a single example of corruption or defalcation by the custodians of public funds, moderate taxation, prompt provision for all the republic's obligations and a steady decrease of the State and municipal debts, and we confidently appeal to the voters to continue in power a party which has given such substantial proofs of honesty of purpose and watchful care for the rights and interests of the people.

Resolved, That we heartily commend the efforts of the house of representatives, seconded by every effort of the national administration, to retrench the expenditures and reduce appropriations for the civil, military and naval service, and that no additional burdens, by the way of taxation, should be made on the business, labor and consumption of the people till every effort has been exhausted to bring the expenses of the government within its present and prospective means, and that if a resort to such taxation becomes necessary in order to meet the obligations of the government, we believe it should, as far as practical, be placed upon objects which do not enter in the daily use and comfort of the people, and on those traffics, especially, which are deleterious in their influence to the health, morals and happiness of mankind.

Daily Chronicle.

FRIDAY, JANUARY 9, 1874.

The Nomination of Gen. McCutchins

Took the republican State convention by surprise. This feeling is also shared by the mass of the party out-ide the rural districts, who were not aware of the great strength of the farmers' movement. The nomination is regarded as a strong one from the fact that the people throughout the country are less liable to regard party ties when nominations are made by "rings" of political wire-pullers. The farmers were earnest in their desire to present a man for the candidacy who was clear from all suspicion of corruption, and they were honest in their convictions. Honorable and able candidates were supported in the convention in opposition to Gen. McCutchins, whose nomination at any other time would have been next to impossible. The western elections settled the fate of all these candidates, and our nominee is a man fresh from the people, worthy the support of all fair-minded men, honest, upright and popular. With the support the farmers will bring him and the admirable platform the convention placed him on, Gen. McCutchins should be triumphantly elected.

State News.

At the republican convention for the first councillor district, at Dover, on Thursday, Charles A. Foss, of Barrington, was nominated by a vote of 51 to 21 for C. A. Whitehouse of Rochester, 16 for John A. Haines of Great Falls, and 11 for Oliver Wyatt of Dover. Mr. Foss is a practical farmer, a man of high standing and unblemished reputation, and has held several important offices in his vicinity.

The Democracy.

The democrats met in convention at Concord on Thursday, and nominated ex-Gov. Weston for Governor. The first ballot (informal) was as follows: James A. Weston, of Manchester, 240; Hiram R. Roberts, of Rollinsford, 230; Albert R. Hatch, of Portsmouth, 143; John Proctor, of Andover, 17; scattering, 20. The first formal ballot resulted in the nomination of Weston by the following vote: Weston, 323; Roberts, 257; Hatch, 51; Proctor, 1. The supporters of Roberts have threatened loudly as to what they would do if their man was defeated. We shall now see if they mean to act as well as talk.

Readables.

The nomination of Attorney-General Williams for the chief-justiceship has been withdrawn by the President, at the request of the candidate.

It is currently reported in Washington, that Senator Morton will be nominated as Chief Justice after the withdrawal of the nomination of Judge Willams. As his term of office as Senator during which the salary of Chief Justice was increased, expired on the 3d of March last, he is eligible. Whether he will accept the position or not is doubtful.

A Washington special says it is rumored that Caleb Cushing will be nominated in the place of Mr. Williams, who will retain his place in the Cabinet, and that Solicitor General Bristow will succeed Mr. Cushing as Minister to Spain.

In the United States senate, Wednesday, the salary bill was again taken up and discussed at length. In the house of representatives the debate on the supplementary civil rights bill was continued, and Mr. Butler of Massachusetts made an effective speech in its favor, after which the bill was recommitted. A bill was passed appropriating $20,000 for the pay and mileage of the Colorado legislature.

Sir Edward Watain, one of the candidates for member of Parliament, at the recent election in Exeter, Eng., finding that a voter would not go to the poll because there was no one to "mind the shop," actually stayed behind the counter himself while his supporter went away to vote.

The newspaper men at Washington are severally perched on their ears, just now, because at the New Year's reception in the White House they were made to stand in the ante-room with the lackeys and valets of the foreign ministers, while the festivities were going on within. This is the third year in which they have been thus offended, and Gen. Babcock, who made the arrangements, is now very popular with them.

Du Chaillu has found the model wife: "I remember being in a magnificent country seat in the south of Sweden, owned by a man whose annual income from land was $15,000, and yet his wife daily appeared in a calico dress, with nothing in the shape of adornment except a velvet ribbon round her neck."

At Islington, England, recently, the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals engaged a hall to which were invited the shepherds and herdsmen, gathered together for the annual cattle show, and a sermon was preached on the one point of showing kindness to the brute creation.

Business Notices.

The Living Telegrapher.

Symptoms are the silent characters through which the diseased body telegraphs its condition. But they are not always read aright, and the medicines administered sometimes aggravate instead of relieving the complaint. Conspicuous among the instances of malpractice which are of daily occurrence, is the habit of dosing dyspeptic and constipated invalids with powerful cathartics. Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, in which are skillfully blended the vegetable elements best adapted to the invigoration of the stomach, and removal, without violence, of regular discharges from the bowels, should be taken twice or thrice a day as a remedy for indigestion of every type, and for costiveness, whether chronic or casual. No other medicine will be required and the cure will be rapid and painless. No medicine, as yet discovered or compounded, equals Hostetter's Bitters as a specific for all affections of the liver, as well as for diseases of the stomach, the bowels and the nerves.

The United States Dispensatory, standard and most excellent authority, says: "Pills are much better preserved in glass bottles than in the common wood or pasteboard boxes, and should always be dispensed in glass by the apothecary." If you would use medicine superior, not only in being preserved fresh and perfect by compliance with this very important rule, but also in being composed of choice, concentrated and chemically refined vegetable medicinal principles, instead of crude, bulky, cheap drugs, that constitute the huge pills put up in cheap wood or paper boxes, then take Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Purgative Pellets, or Concentrated Root and Herbal Juice, Anti-Bilious Granules, 25 cents a vial, by druggists.

CARRIAGES.

MR. HUNTRESS having sold his interest in the late firm of Huntress, Bryant & Co. to Mr. ELLIOTT, of Concord, who served his time with the well-known firm of Abbott, Downing & Co., and has had experience in some of the best shops in Massachusetts in

Carriage Building,

we shall continue our business the same. Having met with good success the past year, by having a fair share of the patronage of the city and vicinity, we hope, by being faithful and prompt in our business, to build up a

FIRST-CLASS CARRIAGE ESTABLISHMENT,

where people can order new work of all kinds, and have the old carriages repaired, without being obliged to go out of town. We shall continue to keep on hand a variety of Carriages, Sleighs, Pungs, etc., which we shall sell as cheap as can be bought elsewhere of the same quality. We return thanks to our friends for past patronage, and hope for a continuance of the same.

SPECIAL ANNOUNCEMENT
FOR 1874.

READ AND THINK.

We have received to-day a large lot of FLOUR in Barrels and Half-Barrels, which we propose to sell at

PRICES THAT CAN'T BE BEAT.

PRIDE OF THE WEST	$10.75
RED JACKET	12.00
GENUINE	9.75
A	10.00
LILY OF THE VALLEY	10.50

These prices are less than the same brands or quality can be bought in this State, and we guarantee everything as we say, or you can return it at our expense.

With EVERY BARREL of Flour so sold, we shall give you

Your Choice of Two

SPLENDID STEEL ENGRAVINGS,

(Samples of which can be seen at our store.)

The Village Blacksmith,

AND

Signing the Compact in the Cabin of the Mayflower,

AS A PREMIUM PRESENT!

These Engravings are elegant agate, and worthy a place in any house.

Now, don't let anybody make you believe that we can't do this and give you a GOOD article of FLOUR at the same price they can; because if you do, you will be deceived. We bought these pictures in New York at such prices that we can afford to do it.

Why? 1st, because it so increases our sales that even with a small profit on the Flour, we can make big wages. 2d, because when people come to buy Flour they see the prices of other goods and buy them. 3d, because everybody knows we always do just what we advertise to do.

NOW TRY US. All we ask is for you to call, see and be convinced.

Graded Readers.

We have before us a series of school reading books, published by Ivison, Blakeman, Taylor & Co. of New York, and from a hasty review we pronounce them the best graded set of readers with which we are familiar. They commence with the simplest words neatly illustrated by some object calculated to arrest the attention and interest the child, and then, with a progress hardly realized, the young learner is taken into the mysteries of word making and word meaning. We cannot, in a brief notice, describe the merits of this little work so fully as we desire, but an examination will confirm our statements. The Second, Third and Fourth Readers continue the same easy grade that is so well begun in the First. The illustrations are profuse, especially so in the primary and second readers, and their execution is superb; surpassing anything in the line of wood engravings that we ever noticed in a school book. We are saying nothing in disparity of the Readers now in use in our schools, but would suggest to the committee that they would do well to institute a comparison between the two, and if there is a superiority, let the children have the benefit of it.

In writing upon the subject of reading books, our mind runs back to our schoolboy days when Webster's spelling book was the primary reader, jumping us from o n, on, or h a t, hat, to words of three syllables, with a celerity that was simply marvellous. However, far be it from us to decry it, for the pleasant days of childhood were due, to some degree, to the fascinating stories told in Webster's spelling book. Still the contrast between that and the nicely graded series before us forces one to the conclusion that a child will learn much more readily from the latter than the former.

Laconics.

Buckley's Serenaders will play here the 22d and 23d.

Sagamore S. F. E. Co., No. 2, will give their fifteenth annual ball at Congress Hall, Feb. 23d.

There will be a dance in J. B. Trefethen's hall, Kittery Foreside, this (Friday) evening. Doors open at seven o'clock. Dancing to commence at eight.

The Choral Society under the direction of Prof. Metcalf, will, this (Friday) evening, and thereafter, hold their meetings at Mechanics' Hall. A full attendance is desired and new members solicited.

So Esquire Hatch was not nominated for Governor. We shed tears of sympathy with Albert—crocodile tears—and wish him better luck in the future "while we vipe our weeping eyes."

This (Friday) morning, Terhune & Berry will open at their store under the Franklin House, one hundred sets children's furs, which they will sell at the remarkably low price of $1.40 per entire set. The same goods were sold last year for $5.00. They secured them at bankrupt sale.

Wm. B. Morrill of Exeter, E. G. Pierce, Jr., and John Pender of Portsmouth, W. B. Small of Newmarket, Sewell D. Tilton of Raymond, Wm. H. Titcomb of East Kingston, B. W. Hoyt of Epping, W. W. Poore of Derry, and George C. Gordon of Salem, are members of the republican State committee this year.

The article in Thursday's CHRONICLE in reference to the pecuniary results of the entertainment on Tuesday evening by the dramatic amateurs, seems to have created a misapprehension. The statements therein made were given on the authority of one of the officers of the society which was the beneficiary of the occasion, with the intent to assure the public that not withstanding the overflowing house which greeted the amateurs, the S. P. C. A. is not getting rich any too fast. The Amateurs volunteered their services after repeated requests by leading members and officers of the society, and but for the stormy weather of Tuesday night, and the almost simultaneous occurrence of political conventions at Concord, there cannot be a doubt that at least two hundred more evening tickets would have been sold. As it was, the amateurs gave the public a first-class entertainment, and are entitled to the highest praise for their disinterested efforts.

A Female Soldier.

The military annals of most European countries, says the London Echo, record a few instances of women who, having succeeded in entering the ranks of the army, have highly distinguished themselves in the apparently incongruous profession of arms. Such a fact has, however, according to the Opinione, been hitherto unprecedented in the Italian army. It was discovered, however, the other day, that a young soldier named Marcotti, who was to receive his discharge on the first of next month, having enlisted in 1866, is one of these heroines. Julia Marcotti, the Amazon in question, belonged to a poor family, living at San Ambrozio, near Turin, and worked in the mines of Upper Piedmont, to which latter circumstance her extraordinary physical strength may, probably, be attributed.

She enlisted in 1866, at the time when Italy was about to engage in the struggle with Austria, her motive being to save her brother, who was married and had six children, from being obliged to serve. Not only did Julia perform all a soldier's duties as well as her comrades, but she fought in the first rank at the battle of Custozza, and obtained the medal of military valor. On hearing of the case, King Victor Emmanuel sent for the woman, bestowed upon her the Cross of the Order of the Crown, and declared that she should be sent home with a pension of 300 lire.

Great Sale of Decorated Dinner and Tea Sets.

We would call the attention of our readers to the advertisement of Richard Briggs, 157 Washington street, Boston. Mr. Briggs, in conformity to the spirit of the times, is offering his stock of decorated dinner and tea sets at lower prices than the public have ever known. The goods are all of the best quality, having been selected personally by Mr. Briggs from the manufacturers in Europe during the past season, and he is the first to offer really desirable China sets at prices which will surprise all who examine his stock. A lady of great taste remarked in looking over these sets "that there was not a homely one among them."

CATARRH!

A Woman Having Catarrh 35 Years, Cured.

And Droppings in Throat, Choking, Strangling, Pains in the Side, Loins, Headache, Dizziness, and General Weakness, Cured by less than Three Bottles of the

CONSTITUTIONAL CATARRH REMEDY.

To MESSRS. LITTLEFIELD & Co., Proprietors of Constitutional Catarrh Remedy, Manchester, N. H.:
I reside at Manchester, N. H., and previously resided at Henniker, and am a native of Weare, this State. I have been nearly twenty-five years, ever since I was 19 years old; had it bad all the time. It ran all that period, and nights it would fill up and drop down in the throat, causing a choking or choking, so that I would spring up in bed to save myself from strangulation. It affected my head so that I felt confused, and was troubled with severe headache at intervals, for a week at a time. I also had bad pains in shoulders, back and kidneys, from which I suffered immensely. So bad were they, that a year ago last summer I was obliged to lie in bed most of the time for three months. I have tried all kinds of snuff and Catarrh remedies with no particular benefit, and consulted physicians. I had a hacking cough, I began to take the Constitutional Catarrh Remedy last August. I began to grow better before finishing the first bottle. I am now on the third bottle. My Catarrh is cured; my health is restored. I have no pains, aches, or cough. My whole system is made over new. I know it is this medicine that has rescued me from intense suffering and almost the grave. I am now able to do the hardest work and bear the greatest exposure, and feel that I cannot say too much in favor of the Constitutional Catarrh Remedy.
MRS. E. J. FLANDERS.

Manchester, N. H., Feb. 1, 1873.

I am now 33 years old, have had Catarrh ever since I was eighteen years old, and headache all the time; have suffered beyond description with running at the nose, droppings in the throat, choking and strangulings. Have tried any quantity of Catarrh Remedies, but have found no relief till I tried your Constitutional Catarrh Remedy, six months ago. I found immediate relief.

Catarrh and all its attendant evils have left, Headache, Pains in Loins and Back, Dizziness, Loss of Appetite, and General Weakness. Less than three bottles of Constitutional Catarrh Remedy have cured me. I have not been so well since I can remember as now. I feel as if I could not say too much for the medicine, or thank God too heartily that through its instrumentality I have been restored to health.
MARY M. ABBOTT,
No. 17 Manchester Corporation.

Manchester, N. H., Feb. 17, 1872.

The above lady is my mother. I am a painter by trade, and a member of the City Council of Manchester. Every word that my mother states is true.
JACOB J. ABBOTT.

Hundreds of cases of a similar nature cured within the last year. Snuffs and Lotions are only temporary relief. The CONSTITUTIONAL CATARRH REMEDY strikes at the root, builds up the constitution, makes it new, and drives away Catarrh and all diseases of the mucous membranes and their attendant pains and aches, pertaining to head, back, shoulders, kidneys, and throat.

Price $1 per Bottle. Sold by all Druggists. A Pamphlet of 32 pages, giving a Treatise on Catarrh, and containing innumerable cases of cures, sent FREE, by addressing the Proprietors,

AYER'S CATHARTIC PILLS,

For all the Purposes of a Family Physic

CURING

Costiveness, Jaundice, Dyspepsia, Indigestion, Dysentery, Foul Stomach and Breath, Erysipelas, Headache, Piles, Rheumatism, Eruptions and Skin Diseases, Biliousness, Liver complaint, Dropsy, Tetter, Tumors and Salt Rheum, Worms, Gout, Neuralgia, as a Dinner Pill, and purifying the Blood,

are the most congenial purgative yet perfected. Their effects abundantly show how much they excel all other Pills. They are safe and pleasant to take, but powerful to cure. They purge out the foul humors of the blood; they stimulate the sluggish or disordered organ into action, and they impart health and tone to the whole body. They cure not only the every-day complaints of everybody, but formidable and dangerous diseases. Most skillful physicians, most eminent clergymen, and our best citizens send certificates of cures performed, and of great benefits they have derived from these Pills. They are the safest and best physic for children, because mild as well as effectual. Being sugar-coated, they are easy to take; and being purely vegetable, they are entirely harmless.

FOURTH GRAND GIFT CONCERT

FOR THE BENEFIT OF THE

Public Library of Ky.

OVER A MILION IN BANK!

SUCCESS ASSURED!

Full Drawing Certain

On Tuesday, 31st of March Next.

In order to meet the general wish and expectation of the public and the ticket-holders for the full payment of the magnificent gifts announced for the Fourth Grand Gift Concert of the Public Library of Kentucky, the management have determined to postpone the Concert and Drawing until Tuesday, April 31st, 1874.

They have already realized

OVER A MILLION DOLLARS,

And have a great many agents to hear from.

No doubt is entertained of the sale of every ticket before the drawing, but whether all are sold or not, the Concert and Drawing will positively and unequivocally take place on the day now fixed, and if any remain unsold they will be cancelled and the prizes will be reduced in proportion to the unsold tickets.

Only 60,000 tickets have been issued and will be distributed among the ticket-holders.

12,000 CASH GIFTS,

$1,500,000,

The tickets are printed in coupons, of tenths, and all fractional parts will be represented in the drawing just as whole tickets are.

LIST OF GIFTS:

ONE GRAND CASH GIFT	$250,000
ONE GRAND CASH GIFT	100,000
ONE GRAND CASH GIFT	50,000
ONE GRAND CASH GIFT	25,000
SIX GRAND CASH GIFTS	10,000
10 CASH GIFTS $10,000 each	100,000
30 CASH GIFTS 5,000 each	150,000
50 CASH GIFTS 1,000 each	50,000
80 CASH GIFTS 500 each	40,000
100 CASH GIFTS 400 each	40,000
150 CASH GIFTS 300 each	45,000
250 CASH GIFTS 200 each	50,000
325 CASH GIFTS 100 each	32,500
11,000 CASH GIFTS 50 each	550,000
TOTAL, 12,000 GIFTS, ALL CASH, amounting to	$1,500,000

The chances for a gift are as one to five.

PRICE OF TICKETS:

Whole tickets, $50; Halves, $25; Tenths, or each Coupon, $5; Eleven Whole Tickets for $500; 22 Tickets for $1,000; 113 Whole Tickets for $5,000; 225 Whole Tickets for $10,000. No discount on less than $500 worth of Tickets at a time.

The Fourth Gift Concert will be conducted, in all respects, like the three which have already been given, and full particulars may be learned from Circular which will be sent free from this office to all who apply for them.

Orders for tickets and applications for agencies will be attended to in the order they are received, and it is hoped they will be sent in promptly, that they may be no disappointment or delay in filling all. Liberal terms given to those who may sell cards. All agents are peremptorily required to settle up their accounts and return all unsold tickets by the 5th of March.

Portsmouth Chronicle.

General Caster reports that in three months, while on the Yellowstone expedition, he killed, with a single rifle, forty-one antelopes, four buffaloes, four elks, four bucktail deer, three American deer, and two white wolves, besides geese, prairie chickens, and other feathered game in large numbers. He also says that the average distance at which the forty-one antelope were brought down exceeded 250 yards by actual measurement, and that he rarely obtained a shot at an antelope under 150 yards, while the range extended from that distance up to 630 yards.

A sensation was made New Year's day by a Boston lady, who received calls with her sister up town, and appeared in a black velvet robe trimmed with jewels and precious stones at one time the property of the Empress Eugenie. The ladies are said to have received under a bower of roses (as Mrs. Townsend did a few years ago), and at intervals during the day and evening there was music by a full band stationed in the dining-room.

It is proposed in England to construct an eighty ton rifled gun. The largest ever yet made there weighs only thirty-eight tons. The calibre of the new gun will be about seventeen inches.

AMERICAN & FOREIGN PATENTS.

R. H. EDDY, SOLICITOR OF PATENTS,

For Inventions, Trade Marks or Designs,

NO. 78 STATE ST., OPPOSITE KILBY ST., BOSTON.

After an extensive practice of upwards of thirty years, continues to secure patents in the United States; also in Great Britain, France and other foreign countries. Caveats, Specifications, Assignments, and all papers for Patents, executed on reasonable terms with dispatch. Researches made to determine the validity and utility of Patents of inventions, and legal and other advice rendered in all matters touching the same. Copies of the claims of any patent furnished, by remitting one dollar. Assignments recorded in Washington.

No Agency in the United States possesses superior facilities for obtaining Patents or ascertaining the patentability of inventions.

All necessity for a journey to Washington to procure a Patent and the usual great delay there, are here saved inventors.

TESTIMONIALS.

"I regard Mr. Eddy as one of the most capable and successful practitioners with whom I have had official intercourse. CHARLES MASON, Commissioner of Patents."

"I have no hesitation in assuring inventors that they cannot employ a man more competent and trustworthy and more capable of putting their applications in a form to secure for them an early and favorable consideration at the Patent Office. EDMUND BURKE, Late Commissioner of Patents."

"Mr. R. H. EDDY has made for me over THIRTY applications for Patents, having been successful in almost every case. Such unmistakable proof of great talent and ability on his part leads me to recommend all inventors to apply to him to procure their Patents, as they may be sure of having the most faithful attention bestowed on their cases and at very reasonable charges. JOHN TAGGART."

IRON IN THE BLOOD.

DYSPEPSIA, DEBILITY, DROPSY AND HUMORS.

PERUVIAN SYRUP

Makes The Weak Strong.

The Peruvian Syrup, a Protected Solution of the Protoxide of Iron, is so combined as to have the character of an ailment, as easily digested and assimilated with the blood as the simplest food. It increases the quantity of Nature's Own Vitalizing Agent, Iron in the blood, and cures "a thousand ills," simply by Toning up, Invigorating and Vitalizing the System. The enriched and vitalized blood permeates every part of the body, repairing damages and waste, searching out morbid secretions, and leaving nothing for disease to feed upon.

This is the secret of the wonderful success of this remedy in curing Dyspepsia, Liver Complaint, Dropsy, Chronic Diarrhœa, Boils, Nervous Affections, Chills and Fevers, Humors, Loss of Constitutional Vigor, Diseases of the Kidneys and Bladder, Female Complaints, and all diseases originating in a bad state of the blood, or accompanied by debility or a low system. Being free from Alcohol, in any form its energizing effects are not followed by corresponding reaction, but are permanent, infusing strength, vigor, and new life into all parts of the system, and building upon an Iron Constitution.

Thousands have been changed by the use of this remedy, from weak, sickly, suffering creatures to strong, healthy, and happy men and women; and invalids cannot reasonably hesitate to give it a trial.

See that each bottle has PERUVIAN SYRUP blown in the glass.

COAL.

HAVING contracted for a quantity of the above coal, we would call the attention of Manufacturers, Dealers and Consumers to the following different grades mined and controlled by the Company:

HARD WHITE ASH COAL,
FREE BURNING WHITE ASH COAL,
SHAMOKIN WHITE ASH COAL,
SHAMOKIN RED ASH COAL,
NORTH FRANKLIN COAL,
LYKENS VALLEY COAL.

In order that all coal shall be shipped in good order, a most rigid system of inspection, both at the mines and at the shipping ports, will at all times be enforced. In every district of the coal region there will be appointed a number of competent persons skilled in the preparation of coal, as local inspectors, whose duty it will be to visit the several collieries daily to see that a proper force is at all times employed in removing slate, and to prevent, if possible, any coal being sent from the mines in bad order. In addition to these efforts at prevention, no means will be left untried at the shipping ports to cure the evils of careless preparation. At Schuylkill Haven, Port Clinton and Port Richmond, ALL COAL WILL BE SUBJECTED TO THE PERSONAL EXAMINATION OF A SKILLED INSPECTOR BEFORE IT IS SHIPPED, and if condemned by him, will be dumped in places provided for the purpose, and before being loaded into vessels WILL BE THOROUGHLY REPICKED AND CLEANED BY HAND.

We keep a fine stock of the above coal on hand, also

NOTICES OF THE PRESS.

The BAZAR is edited with a contribution of tact and talent that we seldom find in any journal; and the journal itself is the organ of the great world of fashion.—Boston Traveller.

The BAZAR commends itself to every member of the household—to the children by droll and pretty pictures, to the young ladies by its fashion-plates in endless variety, to the provident matron by its patterns for the children's clothes, to paterfamilias by its tasteful designs for embroidered slippers and luxurious dressing-gowns. But the reading-matter of the BAZAR is uniformly of great excellence. The paper has acquired a wide popularity for the fireside enjoyment it affords.—N. Y. Evening Post.

PROSPECTUS FOR 1874—SEVENTH YEAR.

THE ALDINE,

An Illustrated Monthly Journal, universally admitted to be the handsomest Periodical in the world. A Representative and Champion of American Taste.

NOT FOR SALE IN BOOK OR NEWS STORES.

THE ALDINE, while issued with all the regularity, has none of the temporary or timely interest characteristic of ordinary periodicals. It is an elegant miscellany of pure, light and graceful literature; and a collection of pictures, the rarest specimens of artistic skill, in black and white. Although each succeeding number affords a fresh pleasure to its friends, the real value and beauty of THE ALDINE will be most appreciated after it has been bound up at the close of the year. While other publications may claim superior cheapness, as compared with rivals of a similar class, THE ALDINE is a unique and original conception—alone and unapproached—absolutely without competition in price or character. The possessor of a complete volume cannot duplicate the quantity of fine paper and engravings in any other shape or number of volumes FOR TEN TIMES ITS COST; AND THEN, THERE ARE THE CHROMOS, BESIDE!

ART DEPARTMENT, 1874.

The illustrations of THE ALDINE have won a world-wide reputation, and in the art centres of Europe it is an admitted fact that its wood cuts are examples of the highest perfection ever attained. The common prejudice in favor of "steel plates," is rapidly yielding to a more educated and discriminating taste which recognizes the advantages of superior artistic quality with greater facility of production. The woodcuts of THE ALDINE possess all the delicacy and elaborate finish of the most costly steel plate, while they afford a better rendering of the artist's original.

In addition to designs by the members of the National Academy, and other noted American artists, THE ALDINE will reproduce examples of the best foreign masters, selected with a view to the highest artistic success and greatest general interest. Thus the subscriber to THE ALDINE will, at a trifling cost, enjoy in his own home the pleasures and refining influences of true art.

The Christmas issue for 1874 will contain special designs appropriate to the season, by our best artists, and will surpass in attractions any of its predecessors.

PREMIUM FOR 1874.

Every subscriber to THE ALDINE for the year 1874 will receive a pair of chromos. The original pictures were painted in oil for the publishers of THE ALDINE, by Thomas Moran, whose great Colorado picture was purchased by Congress for ten thousand dollars. The subjects were chosen to represent "The East" and "The West." One is a view in The White Mountains, New Hampshire; the other gives The Cliffs of Green River, Wyoming Territory.

Any subscriber should indicate a preference for a figure subject: the publishers will send "Thoughts of Home," a new and beautiful chromo, 14x 20 inches, representing a little Italian exile whose speaking eyes betray the longings of his heart.

TERMS.

$5 per annum, in advance, with Oil Chromos free.

For 50 CENTS EXTRA, the chromos will be sent, mounted, varnished, and prepaid by mail.

THE ALDINE will, hereafter, be obtainable only by subscription. There will be no reduced or club rate; cash for subscriptions must be sent to the publishers direct, or handed to the local canvasser, without responsibility to the publishers, except in cases where the certificate is given, bearing the fac-simile signature of JAMES SUTTON & CO.

CANVASSERS WANTED.

Any person wishing to act efficiently as a local canvasser will receive full and prompt information by applying to

The Country Gentleman.

Volume for 1874.

THE CULTIVATOR & COUNTRY GENTLEMAN, for the past forty years, has ranked, both in this country and abroad, as the STANDARD JOURNAL OF AMERICAN AGRICULTURE. The Editors and Proprietors, in addition to their own personal labors, are regularly assisted by a very large number of Special Correspondents and Regular Contributors, among whom are included many Leading Agriculturists, in all parts of the Country, East and West—and by over Five Hundred Occasional and Voluntary Writers, directly in the ranks of the Best Farmers and Horticulturists of nearly every State in the Union. With the co-operation of so large a corps of practical men, this Journal is intended to possess exceptional value as the chosen Medium of Intercommunication among all classes interested in the Products and Fertility of the land—those who Cultivate and those who Consume—the Buyer and Shipper, as well as the first Grower of the crop—Breeders of Improved Animals and their Customers—Manufacturers of Improved Machinery and those who purchase and employ it—Nurserymen and Fruit Raisers—and, especially, to supply fuller and better data as to the progress, prospects and returns of each successive Season, as throwing light upon one of the most important of all questions—When to Buy and when to Sell.

TERMS.—The COUNTRY GENTLEMAN is published weekly, on the following terms when paid strictly in advance: ONE COPY, one year, $2.50; FOUR COPIES, $10, and an additional copy for the year free to the sender of the Club; TEN COPIES, $20, and an additional copy for the year free to the sender of the Club.

OF

WILD CHERRY!

THE GREAT REMEDY FOR

CONSUMPTION!

And acknowledged by many prominent physicians to be the most Reliable Preparation ever introduced for the RELIEF and CURE of all

LUNG COMPLAINTS.

This well known remedy is offered to the public, sanctioned by the experience of over forty years, and when resorted to in season seldom fails to effect a speedy cure of

COUGHS, COLDS, CROUP, BRONCHITIS, INFLUENZA, WHOOPING COUGH, HOARSENESS, PAINS OR SORENESS IN THE CHEST OR SIDE, BLEEDING AT THE LUNGS, LIVER COMPLAINTS, &c.

CONSUMPTION

CURED

By a timely resort to this standard remedy, as is proved by hundreds of testimonials received by the proprietors.

Dr. Wistar's Balsam of Wild Cherry

Does not dry up a Cough and leave the cause behind as is the case with most preparations, but it loosens and cleanses the lungs and allays irritation, thus removing the cause of the complaint.

CLERGYMEN, LAWYERS, SINGERS,

And all those whose occupation requires an unusual exercise of the vocal organs, will find this the ONLY PREPARATION which will effectually and instantaneously relieve their difficulties.

BEWARE OF COUNTERFEITS.—Remember that the genuine Wistar's Balsam has on the outside wrapper the signature of "I. BUTTS," and the printed name of the proprietors, "SETH W. FOWLE & SONS, BOSTON." All others are base imitations. Examine the wrapper carefully before purchasing.

Deposits go on interest on the FIRST day of every MONTH, and deposits made during the FIRST THREE days of each MONTH will draw interest from the FIRST day of that MONTH.
Dividends not withdrawn will be added to the principal, and draw interest from the time when declared.
Money is received on deposit, payable on checks at sight.
Portsmouth, Jan. 1, 1873.

The Singer Still Triumphant!
At the Vienna Exhibition, the SINGER received the Medal of Merit, the Medal of Progress, and three other Medals for superiority of productions. These are the highest Sewing Machine Awards at Vienna. The SINGER received all the medals awarded to either of the competing machines, and two medals more than any other obtained. Then, in the name of Truth, what is it that prompts people to claim recommendations for the Diploma of Honor? The fact is, no Diploma of Honor has been given to any Sewing Machine Company.
But immeasurably more valuable is The World's Award as shown by sales—proved by sworn returns to the owners of the principal Sewing Machine Patents—which last year amounted to TWO HUNDRED AND NINETEEN THOUSAND, SEVEN HUNDRED AND FIFTY-ONE (219,751) machines, nine out of ten of them being for Family Use. This is over 45,000 more Sewing Machines than were sold by any other company during the same period, and over One Quarter of all the machines sold in 1872. These enormous sales are owing to the long-tested merits of the Singer Machines, which meet the wants of the public in superiority and simplicity of construction, and capability for great variety and excellence of work. That the users of Sewing Machines and these desirable qualities in the Singer beyond all others, is shown by the sales above given, aside from the awards of International Juries, either at home or abroad.

"A New Thing Under the Sun."
SIXTEEN OIL PAINTINGS IN A BOOK!
Never before was such an idea attempted for book illustration; every one who has seen it pronounces it superb. Mrs Harriet Beecher Stowe's latest work,
Woman in Sacred History,
is a series of narrative sketches, drawn from Scripture, historical and legendary sources, ILLUSTRATED WITH SIXTEEN CHOICE OIL CHROMES, or paintings by the most celebrated artists in the world, giving a rich and magnificent variety of Oriental costume and beauty. Mrs. Stowe, in her charming style, has written a book full of interest, and without a dull page in it, which even if not illustrated would sell rapidly; but the
make it one of the most unique, original and remarkable books ever offered. The pictures, if published separately, would readily sell for $2 each, or $32, while the entire book, with the sixteen pictures, together with sumptuous bindings of the volume, can be had for one-fifth of that amount. The book is published in ENGLISH and in GERMAN, and is making a tremendous

EPISCOPACY vs. PURITANISM.

Rev. James DeNormandie's Historical Sketches--No. IV.

Richard Gibson, the first minister of the South Parish of Portsmouth, belonged to the Established Church of England, and the settlement was made, and the parish gathered, and the first chapel built, as we have seen, in the interests of Episcopacy. Joshua Moodey, the second minister of the parish, was a Puritan. This change, which was made during one of the most excited ecclesiastical periods in history, and has been steadily ignored or misrepresented, finds its only explanation in an understanding of the ecclesiastical matters of England and New England at that time.

All religious as well as political organizations are subject to change under the plea of reform. That vast theological movement which swept over Europe in the sixteenth century under the name of the Reformation, reached England in the reign of Henry VIII. Convocation after convocation for arranging articles of faith, broke up with only a wider separation. During the next reign, of Edward VI., (1547-1553), a committee of bishops and divines translated and arranged, from the Latin of the ancient liturgies,—enough to form the Book of Common Prayer, which, substantially in its present form, was adopted in 1548, and ordered to be read throughout the kingdom. The Established Church of England was a compromise between Papacy and Calvinism, the faith of Rome and Geneva, the two great rival centres of theology for that day. It was, and was intended to be, neither one thing nor another, but so admirably proportioned to the tastes of the discordant factions, that in it the Romanist might find enough of his old ritual to make him think he was still coming to mass, and the Puritan enough of change to make him think the church had been purified, and as a matter of history, "even those who were addicted to the Romish communion made no scruple of attending the Established Church. "Her doctrinal confession," says Macaulay, "set forth principles of theology in which Calvin or Knox would have found scarcely a word to disapprove. Her prayers and thanksgivings derived from the ancient liturgies are very generally such that Cardinal Pole might have heartily joined in them." "Utterly rejecting the doctrine of transubstantiation, and condemning as idolatrous all adoration paid to the sacramental bread and wine, she yet to the disgust of the Puritan required her children to receive the memorials of divine love, meekly kneeling. Discarding many rich vestments which surrounded the altars of the ancient faith, she yet retained to the horror of weak minds the robe of white linen which typified the purity which belonged to her as the mysterious spouse of Christ." And yet, as history found, in the very concessions which gave her birth, were the elements which forbade perpetuity, and by the gradual development of which she is now breaking to pieces.

When Mary came to the English throne, through her leaning to Catholicism, the ancient liturgies of the mass were revived, and the Book of Common Prayer abandoned. Under Queen Elizabeth the service according to the Common Prayer Book was restored. During her reign the thirty-nine articles were prepared by a convocation of the clergy, and at the same time a vote was taken in the lower house upon throwing out the ceremonies, and they were retained only by a majority of one, showing how nearly balanced the Puritans and Episcopalians had become. After these articles were adopted, the clergy were ordered to subscribe to them, and those who refused were termed non-conformists. Elizabeth liked more and more the ritual of Rome, and felt more and more that the Reformers had gone too far in casting off forms and observances. While on the other hand the non-conformists, many of them leaving on account of persecution, came back from the homes of the Reformation, whither they fled, still more embittered against all forms—and persecution was returned by persecution.

When James came to the throne, the Reformers expected from him some favors, because he had been reared in Scotland, and because as had twice sworn and subscribed to their confession of faith, and once said, in the general assembly of the Puritans, that he praised God he was born to be king of such a church, the finest in the world, and that the service and the Church of England, was "an Israelitish mass in English." But we have all found that the promises and professions of a man before gaining office, and his performances afterward, are rarely in accord. So when James became king his demeanor toward the Puritans entirely changed. He was himself a man of free living, to say the least, liked mirth and sports, and could not bear the severe discipline of the Reformers. He had learned also in Scotland, that with all their complaints against the Romanists, the Presbyterian clergy of the Scotch Kirk had quite as much of the spirit of popery as the Romish priests—and that they were bent upon a union of Church and State even more complete than at Rome, only it was to be of their ruling—moreover he found that the Puritans were tending to a democracy, sure to be his overthrow. "A Scotch Presbytery," said King James, "agrees as well with monarchy as God and the devil."

So James, as monarch, began a violent opposition to the puritans. Still the parties had not come to an open rupture, and James called a council to harmonize the differences. The subject of the greatest dispute was the cross in baptism, the ring in marriage, the use of the surplice, and bowing at the name of Jesus. Some changes were made in the common prayer, and each party went away more than ever dissatisfied. At this long reach of years, it is impossible to enter into or portray the intense excitement which pervaded every class in England. The kingdom, almost equally divided, was hastening on the temporary rule of the Puritans, during the establishment of the Commonwealth. Persecution on the side of the Established Church was met by raillery on the side of the Reformers. All the innocent amusements of life were classed with the guilty by the indiscriminating and stern Puritans. The sports of the English people came particularly under their ban—and when the king gave countenance to dancing, archery and May-poles on Sunday after worship, the wrath of the Puritans was beyond control. Bear-baiting, then a favorite sport, particularly called out the censure of the Puritans—and if with any of that humane instinct which at the present day characterizes the movement against cruelty to animals it had been well—but the Puritans opposed it, not because it was wrong in itself, or tortured the animals, but simply because their opponents indulged in it. As Macaulay has so pointedly expressed it, "The Puritans hated bear-baiting, not because it gave pain to the bear, but because it gave pleasure to the spectators. Indeed he generally contrived to enjoy the double pleasure of tormenting both spectators and bear."

All the forms of the Church which had been endeared to generations of worshippers became the butt of the Puritans. The altar was removed from the wall and placed in the middle of the church, and thenceforth denominated the communion table, while the Baptists irreverently termed them oyster boards. The services of the Puritans, the long prayer and endless sermons, became the ridicule of the Ritualists. Queen Elizabeth used to say that two or three preachers were enough for a whole country, while the Puritans found not a little compensation for their exile in listening to sermons of indefinite length whenever they pleased.

To add to the theological bitterness came also a political warfare, for it was deemed by the Puritans that the spirit of liberty could not co-exist with monarchy; that Episcopacy was the natural enemy of democracy, and the same rancor they bore toward their spiritual head, the pope, was turned against their political head, the king.

The turbulence and bitter personalities which filled all England, both in Church and State, are equalled but two or three times in history.

Now it was at the very culmination of these troubles that our settlements were made: the Bay Colony by the Puritans, Maine and New Hampshire by the adherents of the Established Church.

The first chapel on Pleasant street was built, and Richard Gibson, the first minister of the Piscataqua parish, preached in it the very year (1638) that Episcopacy was abolished in England, and the glebe, with its chapel and parsonage, was given by the inhabitants to the wardens and their successors forever, just on the eve of the civil war in England. Can any one at all acquainted with the bitterness of party feeling either in politics or theology, fail to see a sufficient explanation of the constantly repeated charges against the Piscataqua settlement, that it was begun and carried on simply in the interests of trade, and by men who had no religion?—for to the Puritans, Episcopacy was no religion. On the other hand, does not the same height of party feeling lead us to suppose that the supporters of the Established Church at this point did everything with reference to its perpetuity, if for no other reason, because it was, even though weak, an open testimony to their cause in the very face of Puritanism. No one can wish to question the purity of life, or the praiseworthy sacrifices of many of the Puritans, or that the first settlement of the Bay Colony was made singly in the interests of religious liberty; but the spirit of colonization at that time pervaded all classes alike, and the character of the various settlements soon became much the same.

One of the Hiltons of our Dover settlement, just settled at Plymouth, writes from there in 1621, and after speaking of the pleasant climate, fertile lands, plentiful timber and abundant fruits, goes on to say: "We are all freeholders; the rent day doth not trouble us, and all those good blessings we have in their seasons for taking; our companie are for most part very religious, honest people; the worship of God sincerely taught us every Sabbath, so that I know not anything a contented mind may here want." Nothing could better reveal than this private correspondence the actual character of the Bay Colony, persons who felt a glad sense of release from their persecutions, from the restraints, taxes and formalities of an old community, and who were especially pleased with the devoutness of their simple worship.

There was an additional reason why the Bay Colony should regard this colony with distrust, and follow it with all the misrepresentations born of the bitter conflict in England. Puritanism had not yet quite gained the supremacy and until it did there was all through the history of that settlement a fear of Episcopacy, lest perchance they should themselves be brought under its sway. Elements of the Established Church constantly came to the surface, and called forth such a feeling of indignation, wrath and anxiety as can now hardly be appreciated.

When Robert Gorges, son of Sir Ferdinando, came to the Massachusetts Bay with Morell, a learned and worthy minister of the English Church, and began a settlement, and other families, they found no peace; attempts to establish Episcopal churches in Massachusetts proved constant failures. At Salem common prayer was read for a while, but Maverick and Skelton, and Blackstone, and Lyford and other clergymen of the Established Church found no reception for their views and little toleration for their efforts. The Massachusetts Colony was constantly in dread lest the king should impose the ceremony of the Church of England upon them, and, either with or without just reason, constantly suspected Mason and Gorges, and the settlement at the Piscataqua, of inducing the king to do so, and charged them with misrepresenting the Bay Colony to the Government of England.

On the other hand, the settlements on the Maine coast and at Piscataqua were strictly in the interests of the established Church, and without making any claim for the special godliness of their members, the testimony is ample, that though the kind of religion was different from the Bay Colony, there was just as much interest in the kind. When the expedition under Popham reach the Maine coast, in 1607, as soon as they land they listen to a sermon from their preacher, Richard Seymour, and as soon as they disembark they build a church.

It is easy to see, therefore, that all the heat of ecclesiastical troubles in the old country was reproduced in these neighboring settlements. The question then arises, how did the Episcopal parish here pass so rapidly and completely under the control of the Puritans? The solution is not far. In the first place, as in the Bay Colony some elements of Episcopacy appear, so there were doubtless some of Puritanism already here from the beginning. Next, with the greater influence and fear of the Massachusetts Colony, all her efforts were directed towards hastening the supremacy of Puritanism. We find a letter that a merchant of London writes to John Winthrop, Jr.: "There are honest men about to buy out the Bristoll men's plantation on Piscataqua, and doe purpose to plant there five hundred good people;" and a little later Bristol merchants who had bought the patents of Edward Hilton sell them to purchasers by the encouragement of Massachusetts, "in respect they feared some ill neighborhood from them"—wherefore a Puritan historian writes: "As these new proprietors were of Puritan preferences and principles, such a consideration must have been very welcome to the Bay authorities, who naturally wished to be surrounded by those who labored for the same great cause of reformation."

To the ecclesiastical enmity which separated the colonies at the Bay and at the Piscataqua there must be added a political animosity, also, arising from the feeling on the part of some that the Bay Colony had assumed here a jurisdiction which never justly belonged to it—a feeling which seems to have remained deep-seated and active, constantly coming to the surface even to the time of the first governor of the separate province of New Hampshire.

In 1661 the king appointed commissioners to visit all these colonies and collect testimony in regard to the many complaints which had reached the court. This appointment created great opposition in the Bay Colony, and great consternation at the Piscataqua. The religious and political differences ran so high that the commissioners found hard words and ill-treatment awaiting them. John and Richard Cutt, who seem to be the leading selectmen of Portsmouth, send a messenger post-haste to Boston for advice, saying that although "our people though five to one are in their hearts for the Bay, yet have fears that the king's commissioners will gradually take advantage upon us by secret seducing the ignorant and ill-affected, then will openly prevail with the rest;" but when the commissioners came and held their meeting at Portsmouth one Henry Sherburne (the same who was a church warden) when it was demanded who would be under the immediate government of the King and renounce the Massachusetts,—the said Henry Sherburne says, "One and all," or words to that effect. Just these are the incidents which reveal to an impartial consideration the true condition of the colony, its various divisions, its theological and political excitement, and its personal animosities.

In the light of this historical sketch, we find then a far safer and more sufficient explanation of the early matters of our settlement, than it has been customary to give. All the charges that it was made only in the interest of trade, that it was wholly irreligious, or as Winthrop says, that it was the usual manner of the colonists (some of them) here to countenance all such lewd persons as fled from the Bay here,—as our settlement was composed of that class of persons,—fall to the ground. The accusation has the common sound and taint of party feeling which ran at that time so high. Many early settlers, both at the Bay and here, were of the highest class of colonists who ever left a mother country, and many were of that restless nature moved by the numberless motives which fill all new settlements. As human beings they were pretty much the same; as worshippers they were wide apart and greatly embittered against each other. The settlement at the Piscataqua I have satisfactorily shown was planned and supported enthusiastically in the interests of Episcopacy.

In the light of this historical review we have the true explanation of another point which has been so steadily misunderstood or misappreciated. If the first parish and church were Episcopal, how is it that all the services here after the departure of Gibson were by Puritan ministers, and that the chapel, parsonage, glebe land, and all the appointments for public worship, were transferred, with seemingly so little public or long-continued opposition, to the Puritans?

In the first place we must give up all those suggestions which, if they did not show themselves too partisan, would be too absurd—such as that the forms of the deed were expressed according to the Church of England, and appropriate Church terms were used because no others were at hand; that deed was purposely so drawn, so as to leave the form of worship to be decided from time to time;—would anybody have reasoned thus if a Catholic priest had been chosen, or the glebe land come under the Romanists' patronage?—or that the adherents of the Established Church, in assenting to the worship they were powerless to prevent, did ever see in the change any perversion of the original intention and employment of the gifts? We all well know that churches are never thus indifferently founded, and that the denominational spirit is not so readily transferred and does not so readily die out.

If we could ask Walford and Sherburne, the first wardens, or any of the little congregation of Churchmen who in that little log chapel on Pleasant street, saw the Puritan minister, Parker, officiate in the winter of 1642, without robes and without the book of Common Prayer, whether there was in that any perversion of the provisions for the maintenance of a church, is there any doubt what the reply would be? The parish had been gathered, the chapel and parsonage built, and the glebe land set apart, with no other thought than that the worship, according to the Established Church of England, would be perpetual in the Piscataqua settlement, but the proprietors and supporters of the settlement died, and their estates came into new hands, some of the leading Churchmen of the colony went elsewhere or died, and of course many of the settlers were as willing to support the worship of one church as another. The Bay Colony, as we have seen, was far the more populous and prosperous and even reached as far as England, to see that their neighboring settlers were of the same faith. The jurisdiction of Massachusetts was established over the Piscataqua settlement just at that time, and the very year the chapel was built Episcopacy was abolished in England.

If all the records which a sectarian zeal made way with were extant, we should doubtless find more open opposition to the rule and worship of the Puritans than we do. But the Episcopalians could no longer support public services, and their numbers were soon almost lost in the rapid increase of Puritans. In secret, without a doubt, they trusted that the Established Church would soon be triumphant, the combination with Massachusetts be dissolved; and the king confirm to them all the rights of their chapel and worship. That time never came. It remained for them to worship in their own chapel, under other forms, or to have no public worship at all; they did the former; and even Sherburne himself became much interested in subsequent ministrations of the South Parish, and in the building of the second church.

The Puritans too, as I see, could not have done or been expected to do, otherwise. There was the unused chapel, parsonage and glebe land; perhaps no one thought of objecting to their worship in it. When Sunday came round, as a company of travellers in distant lands and of diverse faiths, they were all glad of some kind of worship, and went to what they had. As to their appropriating it as their own thereafter, that was what either side was doing to the other whenever it could, during that long period of ecclesiastical anarchy, and justice from one bitterly excited sect to another is something which is still remanded to a Sunday's meditation, rather than to the consideration of a parish meeting.

I find not so much fault with what the Puritans did at the time as with their explanation of it afterwards, when a calmer survey of history, or a little meditation upon the Golden Rule, ought to have taught them better; not so much with what they did in the heat of theological warfare as with what they attempted to justify in the calm of Christian worship.

With the departure of Gibson in 1642 the public services of the Episcopacy in the Piscataqua settlement came to an end. We shall find that it was almost precisely a century when they were again opened, but not so as to have any historical association with the first parish and chapel of their faith on Pleasant street. All the worshippers there had become a part of the South Parish,—and yet it is but a fair concession to the tenacity with which we know persons hold to their inherited or adopted faith, to regard it as quite probable that during that century Episcopacy did not quite die out among the descendants of the early worshippers.

In the U. S senate, Thursday, the repeal of the bankruptcy law was again under consideration, and various amendments to the original repealing bill were offered, but no favorable action was taken thereon. The salary bill was taken up, and an amendment passed withholding the mileage allowance from the members of the first session of the present Congress. A despatch was received from the McEnery Louisiana legislature, praying for the protection and aid of the government. In the house of representatives the bill to establish an educational fund from the proceeds of the sale of public lands, and the naval appropriation bill, were discussed.

Owing to the withdrawal of the nomination of Judge Williams for the Chief-Justiceship, the name of Colonel Bristow, who had been nominated to succeed him as Attorney-General, has also been withdrawn.

It is known that a British fleet has been ordered to concentrate in Cuban waters.

State News.

The liberal republican State committee met at Concord on the same day as the democratic convention, and very generously voted to hand over themselves and their constituents to the democracy. So far as the members of the committee are concerned, they have a perfect right to walk into the parlor of the democratic spider if they want to, but it is just barely possible that their constituents may object to being traded off in this style.

The Chief Justiceship.

The following is the letter of Attorney-General Williams requesting the withdrawal of his nomination to the office of Chief Justice:

DEPARTMENT OF JUSTICE,
WASHINGTON D. C., Jan. 7, 1874.

To the President:—

Sir,—You were kind enough, without my solicitation, or any knowledge on my part that you contemplated such a thing, to nominate me for Chief Justice of the Supreme Court of the United States. Since that time the flood-gates of calumny, in all directions, have been opened upon me, my abilities have been disparaged, and my integrity brought in question, and it seems to me that public opinion adverse to my appointment has been created, which might hereafter embarrass your administration, and perhaps impair my usefulness upon the bench. With a perfect consciousness that I have performed with clean hands and an upright purpose all the duties of the various public offices to which I have been called, and trusting to time and a just public, when better informed, for my vindication, I respectfully ask you to withdraw from the senate my nomination for Chief Justice.

I have the honor to be, with great respect. GEORGE H. WILLIAMS.

In regard to the successor, there has been a general belief among the Senators that Senator Morton would receive the nomination, and, if he should, he would be immediately confirmed by a unanimous vote. The serious objection which has been considered in connection with the matter, and which will probably decide it, is the fact that a democratic senator would succeed him. The President has also had assurance that the nomination of Judge E. R. Hoar would be well received. New York influences are working for Edwards Pierrepont, and the President is very friendly to him.

All speculation, however, was set at rest on Friday by the President sending to the Senate the name of Caleb Cushing, who, it is said, will be confirmed without reference to a committee.

Death of a Distinguished Exile.

For twenty-four years the great rhinoceros of the London Zoological Gardens has been one of the great attractions of that popular place of resort. He is dead. The London News says of him:—

For twenty-four years this creature had lived in comfortable quarters and withstood the rigors of an English climate. For twenty-four years it had, day after day, partaken of its plain meals of hay and similar food, and day after day it had thrust its snout as far as possible between the massive bars of its den and opened its capacious jaws to receive the gratitude of its admiring visitors in the shape of buns or biscuits, oranges and apples and other tit-bits. The rhinoceros is liable to sudden outbursts of violent temper, and the late lamented individual was no exception to this general failing of its race.

Several years ago, in a furious attack on the rails of its den, it broke its jaw, and was for some time in a rather dangerous condition. It, however, survived the accident, and has safely passed through the vicissitudes of English weather, and it may be considered that twenty-four years is about the average length of life among this species of pachydermata. The hippopotamus has bred in the gardens, but no success has attended the efforts to breed the rhinoceros in captivity, their violent tempers rendering it dangerous for them to be temporarily housed together. The skeleton and skin of the deceased creature are to be preserved, and valuable preparations will no doubt be made. Mr. Frank Buckland has related how he has tasted roast boa constrictor, rhinoceros milk, and a steak of hippopotamus, which he declares very good. Rhinoceros flesh is said to resemble pork.

Boston Boot and Shoe Market.

[Shoe and Leather Record.]

We wrote last week of the increased number of buyers, whose presence imparted a lively appearance to our boot and shoe market. Many of them, however, have since taken their departure, intending to come again by-and-by, when they hope to find manufacturers more pliable in regard to prices than they are at present. But, for the reasons stated in our last report, we see but little prospect of any appreciable reduction in the value of seasonable goods, and it seems to be the general opinion that, although there may be some delay in the opening of the spring campaign, owing to the divergence of views between buyers and sellers, a good business at moderately remunerative rates will be done during the season, and that buyers will signally fail in their attempts to break down the market. Our own views have been sufficiently ventilated in previous reports, and in the annual review of our great industry, which appeared in our last issue, to which a very wide circulation has been given, a great many of our contemporaries having transferred it to their own columns. Our jobbers are preparing for a large trade, and feel sanguine that their expectations will not be disappointed, but the week under review is again a broken one, and we do not anticipate much animation until the holiday season has fully run its course. Manufacturers of slippers wear pretty cheerful countenances, as their machinery is not allowed to rust for want of being kept continually in motion.

Buchu.—The curative properties of this shrub in cases of dropsy, gravel, kidney diseases and obscure disorders are now well known to physicians. Dr. H Helmbold originally popularized this medicine, and no other chemist has been able to extract its virtues with equal skill. Helmbold's Buchu is still the standard and genuine Extract. Patients and Physicians prefer it. The genuine bears H. T. Helmbold's signature. All apothecaries sell it.

Sufferers with PILES should erect a monument to Dr. SIZER for his beneficent discovery of SNAKESIS, an infallible cure for the worst cases of piles—a failure in 20,000 cases has not been recorded. It is a simple suppository, painless and easy of application, gives instant relief, acts as an instrument, soothing poultice and medicine, and cannot fail to cure. Lotions, ointments, and internal remedies may fail, but SNAKESIS is infallible.—Price $1.00. Sold by Druggists everywhere. Principal Depot, 46 Walker st., New York.

The Living Telegrapher.

Symptoms are the silent characters through which the diseased body telegraphs its condition. But they are not always read aright, and the medicines administered sometimes aggravate instead of relieving the complaint. Consequences among the ills arising of malpractice which are of daily occurrence, is the habit of dosing dyspeptic and constipated invalids with powerful cathartics. Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, in which are skillfully blended the vegetable elements best adapted to the invigoration of the stomach, and removal, without violence, of regular discharges from the bowels, should be taken twice or thrice a day as a remedy for indigestion of every type, and for costiveness, whether chronic or casual. No other medicine will be required as the cure will be rapid and painless. No medicine, as yet discovered or compounded, equals Hostetter's Bitters as a specific for all affections of the liver, as well as for diseases of the stomach, the bowels and the nerves.

The United States Dispensatory, standard and most excellent authority, says: "Pills are much better preserved in glass bottles than in the common wood or pasteboard boxes, and should always be dispensed in glass by the apothecary." If you would use medicine superior, not only in being preserved fresh and perfect by compliance with this very important rule, but also in being composed of choice, concentrated and chemically refined vegetable medicinal principles, instead of crude, bulky, cheap drugs, that constitute the huge pills put up in cheap wood or paper boxes, then take Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Purgative Pellets, or Concentrated Root and Herbal Juice, Anti-Bilious Granules, 25 cents a vial, by druggists.

CARRIAGES.

MR. HUNTRESS having sold his interest in the late firm of Huntress, Bryant & Co. to Mr. E. ELIOTT, of Concord, will devote his time with the well-known firm of Abbott, Downing & Co., and has had experience in some of the best shops in Massachusetts in

Carriage Building,

we shall continue our business the same. Having met with good success the past year, by having a good share of the patronage of the city and vicinity, we hope, by being faithful and prompt in our business, to build up a

FIRST-CLASS CARRIAGE ESTABLISHMENT,

where people can order new work of all kinds, and have the old carriages repaired, without being obliged to go out of town. We shall continue to keep on hand a variety of Carriages, Sleighs, Pungs, etc., which we shall sell as cheap as can be bought elsewhere of the same quality. We return thanks to our friends for past patronage, and hope for a continuance of the same

SPECIAL ANNOUNCEMENT FOR 1874.

READ AND THINK.

We have received to-day a large lot of FLOUR in Barrels and Half-Barrels, which we propose to sell at

PRICES THAT CAN'T BE BEAT.

PRIDE OF THE WEST	$10.75
RED JACKET	12.00
GEM	9.75
A	10.00
LILY OF THE VALLEY	10.50

These prices are less than the same brands or quality can be bought in this State, and we guarantee everything as we say, or you can return it at our expense.

With EVERY BARREL of Flour so sold, we shall give you

Your Choice of Two

SPLENDID STEEL ENGRAVINGS,

(Samples of which can be seen at our store,)

The Village Blacksmith,

AND

Signing the Compact in the Cabin of the Mayflower,

AS A PREMIUM PRESENT!

These Engravings are elegant agains, and worthy a place in any house.

Now, don't let anybody make you believe that we can't do this and give you a GOOD article of FLOUR at the same price they can; because if you do, you will be deceived. We bought these pictures in New York at such prices that we can afford to do it.

Why? 1st, because it so increases our sales that even with a small profit on the Flour, we can make day wages. 2d, because when people come to buy Flour they see the prices of other goods and buy them. 3d, because everybody knows we always do just what we advertise to do.

NOW TRY US. All we ask is for you to call, see and be convinced.

Local Matters.

Infanticide.

The body of a new-born child was found floating in the river near Newcastle last evening, by Mr. James Baker. The body was packed in a "Vegetine" box marked with the name of J. Howe, Haverhill, Mass, Coroner Rider viewed the body, and had it brought to this city and if it is thought necessary will hold an inquest to-day

Senatorial Convention.

The republican Senatorial convention for this district met in this city on Friday. Henry A. Yeaton of Portsmouth was chosen president, and Charles Whitehouse of Newcastle and L. L. DeRochement of Newington, secretaries. The committee on credentials—consisting of Messrs. Foss of Rye, Smart of Newmarket and Dumas of Hampton—reported a list of 46 delegates. The first ballot for a candidate for Senator resulted as follows:

Whole number votes,	44
Necessary to a choice,	23
Thomas Entwistle, Portsmouth,	1
J. B. Smith, Newmarket,	7
Jeremiah Hall, Portsmouth,	36

The nomination of Dr. Hall was then made unanimous. The nominee was waited upon by a committee consisting of Messrs. Burleigh of Portsmouth, Smart of Newmarket, and Cotton of Hampton Falls, and on being introduced to the convention made a brief speech accepting the nomination.

The committee on resolutions—Messrs. Saunders of Durham, Sanborn of Hampton Falls, and Barker of Stratham—reported the platform of the State convention, which was adopted.

Mayor and Aldermen.

On Thursday evening, petition of Wm. G. Snow and others for use of South Ward Room, next Tuesday evening, was laid on the table.

Petition of Thomas J. Spinney to encumber Jackson street for building purposes was granted.

Petition of Henry Lombard to remove building from Noble's Island to Mt Vernon street, was referred to Mayor and committee on streets with power.

Petition of Mrs. Harratt for relay of sidewalk on Chapel street, was granted.

Notice from Supreme Judicial Court, on petition of Chas. B. Odlion and others for high way from Newcastle to Lafayette road at Davis' Gate, for a hearing at January term, was referred to the Mayor and City Solicitor to represent the city's interest.

Claims of Thomas Quinn for damages for injuries sustained in consequence of an alleged defect in the highway was received, and it was voted that he have leave to withdraw.

Notice was received from the S. J. Court, on petition of the P. & D. R. R., for the city to appear at the January term, and show cause why the road should not be released from the command of the city to build a bridge across the railroad near Freeman's Point. The city solicitor was instructed to defend the city and to employ counsel to assist him.

The finance committee was authorized to audit the city accounts and to have them published.

The annual and quarterly reports of the city marshal were received, read and placed on file.

Voted, That persons who seek lodging at the station house be required to clean street crossings and do other police duty when it is needed.

History Set Right.

It has always been popularly believed, that the early Piscataqua settlers, if not ungodly, were at least irreligious people, who came here only to fish and trade; while the Puritans of Massachusetts Bay were claimed to have come mainly in interest of religion, and to have "left untouched what there they found—freedom to worship God." But neither idea is exactly correct; and the truth is, that Gorges and Mason were as earnest and untiring in their efforts to establish Episcopacy here, as Winthrop was to build up Puritanism at the Bay; the great difference being that the Puritans were intolerant of any opposition or difference from their own religious opinions, while the Piscataqua Episcopalians were too tolerant and indulgent of their opponents and all comers, for their own growth and perpetuity, and so were finally ruled, if not overruled, by the Puritans.

We print this morning the Transcript's full report, the fourth of Rev. Mr. DeNormandie's very interesting and valuable historical discourses, which, while it gives a somewhat new and entirely reasonable explanation of a great and early religious change here, also shows that "the testimony is ample that the religious feeling and interest, at the Piscataqua, though different, was not less real and earnest than in Massachusetts"—while Piscataqua was by far the freer colony from the first.

Real Reform.

J. Horace Kent having been invited to lecture before the Newmarket Reform Club, replied in the following letter, which we copy from the Newmarket Advertiser:

PORTSMOUTH, N. H., Dec. 30, 1873.

S. A. HALEY, ESQ. Dear Sir:—Your communication bearing date of yesterday, reached me this A. M. Were it not that I shall be out of the State on Friday evening next, I would cheerfully accede to your request and be with your Reform Club on that occasion and say a few words of encouragement to its members.

That you and they are engaged in one of the noblest causes of humanity and reason, there is no doubt in my mind; and there is a cheering hope that the moral efforts like yours, which are being made throughout the State in the cause of temperance, will aid greatly in suppressing the sale of intoxicating drinks, restraining the propensity of intemperance and reforming the unfortunate victim of its powers; and this hope is made stronger from the fact that not only are men and women in advanced years taking heart in the cause; but the young are being educated that to taste, touch, or traffic in ardent spirits is not only disreputable but will lead to a fatality.

Let total abstinence be our watch-word and motto. Let us educate each individual conscience to reach wholesome legislation and enforcement. Let us by kindness and encouragement reform the inebriate. Let every man be a law to himself and he will give a stringent law to others. With these the bottle and drams shop, which are sending so many souls to perdition annually, will be driven from our midst.

Hoping to be with you before long, I remain respectfully, J. HORACE KENT.

Laconics.

The third batch of sleighing for this winter has disappeared from our streets.

A. F. Howard, Esq., the new collector of the port, was sworn into office on Friday.

The colored vocalists will sing at Trefethen's hall, Kittery, to-morrow (Sunday) evening.

W. H. Hackett will sell at auction to-day, in front of his office, some valuable bank stock.

All the Portsmouth delegates to the republican county convention are requested to meet at the Common Council room on Monday evening, at 7 1-2 o'clock.

The names of Charles Hayes, Esq., Daniel Spinney, Esq., and Storer S. Whidden, Esq, have been mentioned in connection with the next mayoralty.

Wilson & Clark's combination company will occupy the stage at the Temple next week. They have just closed a very successful engagement in Portland, where both press and people were enthusiastic in their commendations.

The members of Kearsarge S. F. E. Co., No. 3, purchased a splendid silver tea service and presented it to the Eben Simpson Co. of Biddeford on Friday evening. The affair was a complete surprise to the latter company and their gratitude at this manifestation of esteem cannot be described.

At a meeting of Storer Post, No 1, G. A. R., held January 8th, the following officers were installed: Commander, Josiah N. Jones; S. V. C., John Moore; J. V. C., Michael E. Long; Adjt., Alfred M. Lang; Surgeon, Brainard Dearborn; Q. M., Robert E. Rich; Chaplain, John H. Locke; O. D., Charles E. Berry; O. G., Daniel Donaldson; S. M., Edgar A. Morse; Q. M. S., Meshach H. Bell.

CATARRH!

A Woman Having Catarrh 35 Years, Cured.

And Droppings in Throat, Choking, Strangling, Pains in the Side, Loins, Headache, Dizziness, and General Weakness, Cured by less than Three Bottles of the

CONSTITUTIONAL CATARRH REMEDY.

TO MESSRS. LITTLEFIELD & CO., Proprietors of Constitutional Catarrh Remedy, Manchester, N. H.:

I reside at Manchester N. H., and previously resided at Hermon, and am a native of Weare, this State. I have had Catarrh twenty-five years, ever since I was 19 years old; had it bad all the time. It run all that period, and nights it would fill up and drop down in my throat, causing a feeling of choking, so that I would spring up in bed to save myself from strangulation. It affected my head so that I felt confused, and was troubled with severe headache at intervals, for a week at a time. I also had bad pains in shoulders, back and kidneys, from which I suffered immensely. So bad were they, that a year ago last summer I was obliged to lie in bed most of the time for three months. I have tried all kinds of snuff and Catarrh remedies with no particular benefit, and consulted physicians. I had a hacking cough. I began to take the Constitutional Catarrh Remedy last August. I began to improve better before finishing the first bottle. I am now on the third bottle. My Catarrh is cured; my health is restored. I have no pains, aches, or cough. My whole system is made over new. I know it is this medicine that has rescued me from intense suffering and almost the grave. I am now able to do the hardest work and bear the greatest exposure, and feel that I cannot say too much in favor of the Constitutional Catarrh remedy.

MRS. E. J. FLANDERS.

Manchester, N. H., Feb. 1, 1874.

I am now 53 years old, have had Catarrh ever since I was eighteen years old, and headache all the time; have suffered beyond description with running from the nose, droppings in the throat, choking and strangulations. Have tried any quantity of Catarrh remedies, but have found no relief till I tried your Constitutional Catarrh Remedy, six months ago. I found immediate relief.

Catarrh and all its attendant evils have left. Headaches, Pains in Loins and Back, Dizziness, Loss of Appetite, and General Weakness. Less than three bottles of Constitutional Catarrh Remedy have cured me. I have not been so well since I can remember as now. I feel as if I could not say too much for the medicine, or thank you too heartily that through its instrumentality I have been restored to health.

AYER'S CATHARTIC PILLS,

For all the Purposes of a Family Physic

CURING

Costiveness, Jaundice, Dyspepsia, Indigestion, Dysentery, Foul Stomach and Breath, Erysipelas, Headache, Piles, Rheumatism, Eruptions and Skin Diseases, Biliousness, Liver complaint, Dropsy, Tetter, Tumors and Salt Rheum, Worms, Gout, Neuralgia, as a Dinner Pill, and purifying the Blood,

are the most congenial purgative yet perfected. Their effects abundantly show how much they excel all other Pills. They are safe and pleasant to take, but powerful to cure. They purge out the foul humors of the blood; they stimulate the sluggish or disordered organ into action, and they impart health and tone to the whole being. They cure not only the everyday complaints of everybody, but formidable and dangerous diseases. Most skillful physicians, most eminent clergymen, and our best citizens send certificates of cures performed, and of great benefits they have derived from these Pills. They are the safest and best physic for children, because mild as well as effectual. Being sugar-coated, they are easy to take; and being purely vegetable, they are entirely harmless.

FOURTH GRAND GIFT CONCERT

FOR THE BENEFIT OF THE

Public Library of Ky.

OVER A MILION IN BANK!

SUCCESS ASSURED!

Full Drawing Certain

On Tuesday, 31st of March Next.

In order to meet the general wish and expectation of the public and the ticket-holders for the full payment of the magnificent gifts, announced for the Fourth Grand Gift Concert of the Public Library of Kentucky, the management have determined to postpone the Concert and Drawing until

Tuesday, March 31st, 1874.

They have already realized

OVER A MILLION DOLLARS,

And have a great many agents to hear from.

No doubt is entertained of the sale of every ticket before the drawing, but whether all are sold or not, the Concert and Drawing will positively and unquivocally take place on the day now fixed, and if any remain unsold they will be cancelled and the prizes will be reduced in proportion to the unsold tickets.

Only 60,000 tickets have been issued and will be distributed among the ticket-holders.

12,000 CASH GIFTS,

$1,500,000,

The tickets are printed in coupons, of tenths, and all fractional parts will be represented in the drawing just as whole tickets are.

LIST OF GIFTS:

ONE GRAND CASH GIFT		$250,000
ONE GRAND CASH GIFT		100,000
ONE GRAND CASH GIFT		50,000

325 CASH GIFTS	100 each	32,500
11,500 CASH GIFTS	50 each	575,000
TOTAL, 12,000 GIFTS, ALL CASH, amounting to		$1,500,000

The chances for a gift are as one to five.

PRICE OF TICKETS:

Whole tickets, $50; Halves, $25; Tenths, or each Coupon, $5; Eleven Whole Tickets for $500; 22 Tickets for $1,000; 113 Whole Tickets for $5,000; 225 Whole Tickets for $10,000. No discount on less than $500 worth of Tickets at a time.

The Fourth Gift Concert will be conducted, in all respects, like the three which have already been given, and full particulars may be learned from circular which will be sent free to the office or to anyone who apply for them.

Orders for tickets and applications for agencies will be attended to in the order they are received, and it is hoped they will be sent in promptly, that there may be no disappointment or delay in filling all. Liberal terms given to those who buy to sell again. All agents are peremptorily required to settle up their accounts and return all unsold tickets by the 6th of March.

Early Cut Grass Best.

The German papers publish the details of a series of experiments carried on at the agricultural schools of Fatherland for the purpose of testing the nutritive properties of grass and hay at various stages. The experiments were initiated by the excessive demand for forage in Germany, but are not the less valuable on that account. By an elaborate series of analyses it is shown why young grass is more easily digestible. Thus grass 2 1-2 inches high contains nearly 50 per cent. more of albumenoids than grass which is 6 inches high, and about 10 per cent. more of "crude fat" (5.24 per cent. against 4.82.) The mature grass contains more woody fibre and less flesh-forming matter than the young grass; and, besides this, it is found that the nutritious albumenoids exist in a less soluble form in hay than in young grass. Hence the difference of nutritive value and digestibility. Autumnal hay was found to be more nutritious and digestive than summer hay.

AMERICAN & FOREIGN PATENTS.

R. H. EDDY,
SOLICITOR OF PATENTS,

For Inventions, Trade Marks or Designs,

NO. 76 STATE ST., OPPOSITE KILBY ST., BOSTON.

After an extensive practice of upwards of thirty years, continues to secure patents in the United States; also in Great Britain, France and other foreign countries. Caveats, Specifications, Assignments, and all papers for Patents, executed on reasonable terms with dispatch. Researches made to determine the validity and utility of Patents of Inventions, and legal and other advice rendered in all matters touching the same. Copies of the claims of any patent furnished, by remitting one dollar. Assignments recorded in Washington.

No Agency in the United States possesses superior facilities for obtaining Patents or ascertaining the patentability of inventions.

All necessity for a journey to Washington to procure a Patent and the usual great delay there, are here saved inventors.

TESTIMONIALS.

"I regard Mr. Eddy as one of the most capable and successful practitioners with whom I have had official intercourse. CHARLES MASON.
Commissioner of Patents."

"I have no hesitation in assuring inventors that they cannot employ a man more competent and trustworthy and more capable of putting their applications in a form to secure for them an early and favorable consideration at the Patent Office.
EDMUND BURKE,
Late Commissioner of Patents."

"MR. R. H. EDDY has made for me over THIRTY Applications for Patents, having been successful in almost every case. Such unmistakable proof of great talent and ability on his part leads me to recommend all inventors to apply to him to procure their Patents, as they may be sure of having the most faithful attention bestowed on their cases and at very reasonable charges. JOHN TAGGART."

IRON IN THE BLOOD.

DYSPEPSIA, DEBILITY, DROPSY AND HUMORS.

PERUVIAN SYRUP

Makes The Weak Strong.

The Peruvian Syrup, a Protected Solution of the Protoxide of Iron, is so combined as to have the character of an aliment, as easily digested and assimilated with the blood as the simplest food. It increases the quantity of Nature's Own Vitalizing Agent, Iron in the blood, and cures "a thousand ills," simply by Toning up, Invigorating and Vitalizing the System. The enriched and vitalized blood permeates every part of the body, repairing damages and waste, searching out morbid secretions, and leaving nothing for disease to feed upon.

This is the secret of the wonderful success of this remedy in curing Dyspepsia, Liver Complaint, Dropsy, Chronic Diarrhœa, Boils, Nervous Affections, Chills and Fevers, Rumors, Loss of Constitutional Vigor, Diseases of the Kidneys and Bladder, Female Complaints, and all diseases originating in a bad state of the blood, or accompanied by debility or a low system. Being free from Alcohol, in any form its energizing effects are not followed by corresponding reaction, but are permanent, infusing strength, vigor, and new life into all parts of the system, and building upon an Iron Constitution.

Thousands have been changed by the use of this remedy, from weak, sickly, suffering creatures to strong, healthy, and happy men and women; and invalids cannot reasonably hesitate to give it a trial.

See that each bottle has PERUVIAN SYRUP blown in the glass.

COAL.

HAVING contracted for a quantity of the above coal, we would call the attention of Manufacturers, Dealers and Consumers to the following different grades mined and controlled by the Company:

HARD WHITE ASH COAL,
FREE BURNING WHITE ASH COAL,
SHAMOKIN WHITE ASH COAL,
SHAMOKIN RED ASH COAL,
NORTH FRANKLIN COAL,
LYKENS VALLEY COAL.

In order that all coal shall be shipped in good order, a most rigid system of inspection, both at the mines and at the shipping ports, will at all times be enforced. In every district of the coal region there will be appointed a number of competent persons skilled in the preparation of coal, as local inspectors, whose duty it will be to visit the several collieries daily to see that a proper force is at all times employed in removing slate, and to prevent, if possible, any coal being sent from the mines in bad order. In addition to these efforts at prevention, no means will be left untried at the shipping ports to cure the evil of careless preparation. At Schuylkill Haven, Port Clinton and Port Richmond, ALL COAL WILL BE SUBJECTED TO THE PERSONAL EXAMINATION OF A SKILLED INSPECTOR BEFORE IT IS SHIPPED, and if condemned by him, will be dumped in places provided for the purpose, and not before being loaded into vessels WILL BE THOROUGHLY REPICKED AND CLEANED BY HAND.

NOTICES OF THE PRESS.

The BAZAR is edited with a combination of tact and talent that we seldom find in any Journal; and the journal itself is the organ of the great world of fashion.—Boston Traveller.

The BAZAR commends itself to every member of the household—to the children by droll and pretty pictures, to the young ladies by its fashion-plates in endless variety, to the provident matron by its patterns for the children's clothes, to paterfamilias by its tasteful designs for embroidered slippers and luxurious dressing-gowns. But the reading-matter of the BAZAR is uniformly of great excellence. The paper has acquired a wide popularity for the fireside enjoyment it affords.—N. Y. Evening Post.

PROSPECTUS FOR 1874—SEVENTH YEAR.

THE ALDINE,

An Illustrated Monthly Journal, universally admitted to be the handsomest Periodical in the world. A Representative and Champion of American Taste.

NOT FOR SALE IN BOOK OR NEWS STORES.

THE ALDINE, while issued with all the regularity, has none of the temporary or hurry interest characteristic of ordinary periodicals. It is an elegant miscellany of pure, light and graceful literature; and a collection of pictures, the rarest specimens of artistic skill, in black and white. Although each succeeding issue by affords a fresh pleasure to its friends, the real value and beauty of THE ALDINE will be most appreciated after it has been bound up at the close of the year. While other publications may claim superior cheapness, as compared with rivals of a similar class, THE ALDINE is a unique and original conception—alone and unapproached—absolutely without competition in price or character. The possessor of a complete volume cannot duplicate the quantity of fine paper and engravings in any other shape or number of volumes FOR TEN TIMES ITS COST; AND THEN, THERE ARE THE CHROMOS, BESIDE!

ART DEPARTMENT, 1874.

The illustrations of THE ALDINE have won a world-wide reputation, and in the art centres of Europe it is an admitted fact that its wood cuts are examples of the highest perfection ever attained. The common prejudice in favor of "steel plates," is rapidly yielding to a more educated and discriminating taste which recognizes the advantages of superior artistic quality, with greater facility of production. The wood-cuts of THE ALDINE possess all the delicacy and elaborate finish of the most costly steel plate, while they afford a better rendering of the artist's original.

In addition to designs by the members of the National Academy, and other noted American artists, THE ALDINE will reproduce examples of the best foreign masters, selected with a view to the highest artistic success and greatest general interest. Thus the subscriber to THE ALDINE will, at a trifling cost, enjoy in his own home the pleasures and refining influences of true art.

The Christmas issue for 1874 will contain special designs appropriate to the season, by our best artists, and will surpass in attractions any of its predecessors.

PREMIUM FOR 1874.

Every subscriber to THE ALDINE for the year 1874 will receive a pair of chromos. The original pictures were painted in oil for the publishers of THE ALDINE, by Thomas Moran, whose great Colorado picture was purchased by Congress for ten thousand dollars. The subjects were chosen to represent "The East" and "The West." One is a view in The White Mountains, New Hampshire; the other gives The Cliffs of Green River, Wyoming Territory.

If any subscriber should indicate a preference for a figure subject the publishers will send "Twilight of Home," a new and beautiful chromo, 14x 20 inches, representing a little Italian exile whose speaking eyes betray the longings of his heart.

TERMS.

$5 per annum, in advance, with Oil Chromos free.

For 50 CENTS EXTRA, the chromos will be sent, mounted, varnished, and prepaid by mail.

THE ALDINE will, hereafter, be obtainable only by subscription. There will be no reduced or club rate; cash for subscriptions must be sent to the publishers direct, or handed to the local canvasser, without responsibility to the publishers, except in cases where the certificate is given, bearing the fac-simile signature of JAMES SUTTON & CO.

CANVASSERS WANTED.

Any person wishing to act permanently as a local canvasser will receive full and prompt information by applying to

The Country Gentleman.

Volume for 1874.

THE CULTIVATOR & COUNTRY GENTLEMAN, for the past forty years, has ranked, both in this country and abroad, as the STANDARD JOURNAL OF AMERICAN AGRICULTURE. The Editors and Proprietors, in addition to their own personal labors, are regularly assisted by a very large number of Special Correspondents and Regular Contributors, among whom are included many Leading Agriculturists, in all parts of the Country, first and foremost by over Five Hundred Occasional and Voluntary Writers, directly in the ranks of the Best Farmers and Horticulturists of nearly every State in the Union. With the co-operation of so large a corps of practical men, this Journal is intended to possess exceptional value as the chosen Medium of Intercommunication among all classes interested in the Products and Fertility of the land—those who Cultivate and those who Consume—the Buyer and Shipper, as well as the first Owner of the crop—Breeders of Improved Animals and their Customers—Manufacturers of Improved Machinery and those who purchase and employ it—Nurserymen and Fruit Raisers—and, especially, to supply fuller and better data as to the progress, prospects and returns of each successive Season, as throwing light upon one of the most important of all questions—When to Buy and when to Sell.

TERMS.—The COUNTRY GENTLEMAN is published weekly, on the following terms, when paid strictly in advance: ONE COPY, one year, $2.50; FOUR COPIES, $10, and an additional copy for the year free to the sender of the Club; TEN COPIES, $20, and an additional copy for the year free to the sender of the Club.

OF

WILD CHERRY!

THE GREAT REMEDY FOR

CONSUMPTION!

And acknowledged by many prominent physicians to be the most Reliable Preparation ever introduced for the RELIEF and CURE of all

LUNG COMPLAINTS.

This well known remedy is offered to the public sanctioned by the experience of over forty years, and when resorted to in season seldom fails to effect a speedy cure of

COUGHS, COLDS, CROUP, BRONCHITIS, INFLUENZA, WHOOPING COUGH, HOARSENESS, PAINS OR SORENESS IN THE CHEST OR SIDE, BLEEDING AT THE LUNGS, LIVER COMPLAINTS, &c.

CONSUMPTION

CURED

By a timely resort to this standard remedy, as improved by hundreds of testimonials received by the proprietors.

Dr. Wistar's Balsam of Wild Cherry

Does not dry up a Cough and leave the cause behind as is the case with most preparations, but it loosens and cleanses the lungs and allays irritation, thus removing the cause of the complaint.

CLERGYMEN, LAWYERS, SINGERS,

And all those whose occupation requires an unusual exercise of the vocal organs, will find this the ONLY PREPARATION which will effectually and instantaneously relieve their difficulties.

BEWARE OF COUNTERFEITS.—Remember that the genuine Wistar's Balsam has on the outside wrapper the signature of "I. BUTTS," and the printed name of the proprietors, "SETH W. FOWLE & SONS, BOSTON." All others are base imitations. Examine the wrapper carefully before purchasing.

The Singer Still Triumphant!
At the Vienna Exhibition, the SINGER received the Medal of Merit, the Medal of Progress, and three other Medals for superiority of productions. These are the highest Sewing Machine Awards at Vienna. The SINGER received all the medals awarded to either of the competing machines, and two medals more than any other obtained. Then, in the name of Truth, which is the first principle to claim recommendations for the Diploma of Honor? The fact is, no Diploma of Honor has been given to any Sewing Machine Company.
But immeasurably more valuable is The World's Award as shown by sales—proved by sworn returns to the owners of the principal Sewing Machine Patents—which last year amounted to TWO HUNDRED AND NINETEEN THOUSAND, SEVEN HUNDRED AND FIFTY-EIGHT (219,758) machines, nine out of ten of them being the SINGER. This is over 60,000 more Sewing Machines than were sold by any other company during the same period, and over One Quarter of all the machines sold in 1872. These enormous sales are owing to the long-tested merits of the Silk or Machine, which meet the wants of the public in superiority and simplicity of construction, and capability for great variety and excellence of work. That the users of Sewing Machines find these desirable qualities in the Singer beyond all others, is shown by the sales above given, aside from the awards of International Juries, either at home or abroad.

SIXTEEN OIL PAINTINGS IN A BOOK!
Never before was such an idea attempted for book illustration; every one who has seen it pronounces it superb. Mrs. Harriet Beecher Stowe's latest work,
Woman in Sacred History,
is a series of narrative sketches, drawn from Scriptural, historical and legendary sources. ILLUSTRATED WITH SIXTEEN CHOICE OIL CHROMOS, after paintings by the most celebrated artists in the world, giving a rich and magnificent variety of Oriental costume and beauty. Mrs. Stowe, in engaging style, has written a book full of interest, and without a dull page in it, which even if not illustrated would sell rapidly; but the
make it one of the most unique, original and remarkable books ever offered. The pictures, if published separately, would readily sell for $2 each, or $32, while the entire book, with the sixteen pictures, together with sumptuous bindings of the volume, can be had for one-fifth of that amount. The book is published in ENGLISH and in GERMAN, and is making a tremendous

Ordinance No. 41.

Requiring Sidewalks to be Cleared of Snow.

Be it ordained by the City Council of the city of Portsmouth as follows:

SEC. 1. The occupants, or, if unoccupied, the owners, of all the buildings and lands situate within the city, shall keep the sidewalk adjoining their respective premises, in all cases where a sidewalk has been or may be constructed, free from snow, by causing the snow to be removed into the street and evenly spread, within six hours after the cessation of every fall thereof, or when the snow shall have blown or drifted upon the sid walk by the wind. The time herein allowed for the performance of the work to be computed from sunrise the succeeding morning whenever the fall of snow shall have ceased in the night time.

SEC. 2. Any person disregarding or offending against the provisions of this ordin nce shall, upon conviction thereof, forfeit and pay a fine not exceeding ten dollars for each and every offence, with costs of prosecution; and it shall be the duty of the Street Commissioner, under the counsel and direction of the Mayor, to cause this ordinance to be enforced.

Passed Dec. 21, 1854.

Ordinance No. 65,

In Amendment of Ordinance No. 41—Requiring Sidewalks to be Cleared of Snow.

Be it ordained by the City Council of the city of Portsmouth as follows:

That ordinance number forty-one, requiring side walks to be cleared of snow, be an ended by adding to section one the following clause, viz: That when any of said sidewalks are covered with ice, so as to make the passing dangerous, said owners or occupants shall spread over said sidewalk ashes, sand or salt in such a manner as to prevent the same from being dangerous.

Cats and Rats.

Cats are quite clever in the act of opening latches when it suits their purpose. A family in one of the northern outskirts of London were a good deal annoyed with the frequent robbery of their larder, a small outhouse behind their dwelling. Legs of mutton and other articles were devoured or carried off, and no one could tell how. The theft was a mystery. One of the servants determined to discover the delinquent, and accordingly watched, and one night found that the thieves were a set of cats belonging to the neighborhood. The larder had a latch which had to be pressed down in opening the door. No cat could properly press it down by springing from the ground. There was, however, an adjoining wall, from which cats might leap and risk the depression of the latch as they successively passed. That is what they did. They leaped from the wall one after the other, each trying to depress the latch as it passed, until one cat, more fortunate than the others, made the needful depression with its paw. The door immediately was opened, and a leg of mutton, which had been the object of siege, was secured, and eaten all but the bone. Was there not much sagacious planning in this piece of robbery by cats? We think there was—almost as much as we see demonstrated in some of the meaner departments of the human species. The incident took place lately.

Many instances have been recorded of the display of intelligence by rats, to which we beg leave to add the following: A farmer's wife in the west of Scotland remarked that the cream on the surface of the milk in her dairy was often interfered with. At first she suspected that some of her children had taken the unwarrantable liberty of dipping pieces of bread in it, but she could find nothing to confirm this suspicion; and by-and-by she noticed strange little streaks of cream on the edges of the milk basins, as if a string had been dipped in and drawn out, so as to leave a mark. At last she discovered the secret. The cream was stolen by rats, which got upon the edges of the earthenware basins containing the milk, and not being able to reach down to it, a depth of seven inches, nor daring to attempt to go down, as they could never have climbed up the smooth surface again, dipped in the tips of their long tails, drew them up loaded with the rich cream, and licked them. An arrangement of the basins, such that the rats could not get upon the edges of them, put an end to all further depredations of this kind. There was surely something more than instinct in this case in the procedure of the rats.

We have something still to tell regarding the ingenuity of rats. A family in a country house in Hertfordshire had a fancy for rearing ducks, but could not well do so on account of rats, which systematically got hold of and carried away the young ducklings, even from close to their mother. With a view to circumvent the rats, the maternal duck and her young were housed for the night under a coop, which admitted of no opening for the furtive intruders. The rats were not to be so easily cheated of their prey. On discovering that the mother duck and her family were closely shrouded from intrusion, they devised a pretty piece of engineering, which was eminently successful. In the course of a single night they excavated a tunnel, going below the outer edge of the coop to its interior, and thus very neatly, without producing any alarm, stole every duckling from under the guardianship of the mother.

Two rats belonging to the same colony performed a feat quite as ingenious. A trap which was baited for their capture was habitually plundered without securing a single rat. They had evidently invented a single plan for safely stealing away the bait, and what the plan was could only be learned by setting a watch on the trap. We shall explain how the thing was effected. The trap was of the kind which is sometimes employed for catching mice. It was a box with a sliding door, which was sustained by mechanism connected with the bait. On the bait being nibbled at, the door descended and makes the mouse a prisoner. The two rats saw through the device, and resorted to the very simple but effectual method to take away the bait, which was a piece of toasted cheese, and yet escaped punishment. One of them placed itself under the door, so that it might fall on its back, while the other crept in and successfully carried off the morsel of cheese. The first rat then drew itself from under the door and joined its companion. This demonstration of rat intelligence, like the preceding incident, is of recent occurrence.

Readables.

When the nomination of Caleb Cushing to be Chief Justice was sent to the Senate, the republican members did not take very kindly to it. The objection to Mr. Cushing is that he is too old, being 74 years of age. He is charged also with being a State rights secession democrat and with being interested in two-thirds of the cases now before the Supreme Court.

The Haverhill Gazette has a new argument in favor of the expansion of the currency, based on the idea that contraction of the currency causes depression in business; and depression in business causes a decrease in the number of children launched from a state of nothingness, so to speak, into a condition of somethingtude, as it were If the children were consulted in the matter, which think ye would they prefer, contraction or expansion?

The Commercial Bulletin says that one of Claflin's late $8000 clerks began January 1, 1874, in Boston, at $3000. One of Stewart's old $3000 clerks doubles his salary in a Boston house this year. A bid by a New York house with a $20,000 salary for a cloak-buyer in a Boston house couldn't touch him. An old Boston dry-goods employe has just gone abroad as a buyer for a New York house at $35,000 a year and expenses. A New York firm is to-day trying to tempt a Boston cotton-goods salesman into its employ at a salary of $15,000. A worsted-goods clerk in New York, at $7000, is anxious to get back to the fold and his old employers in Boston, for $3200 a year.

State News.

The city debt of Dover is $182,130.27, having been reduced $15,245.40 during 1873. The highway work is the most expensive item. There are 1231 pupils in the public schools.

The prohibitionists have nominated Joseph H. Smith of Concord, for councillor in the first district; Jonathan P. Sanborn, of Epping, for commissioner; Francis Hillyard, of Kensington, for treasurer; and William H. Belknap, of Exeter, for register of deeds of Rockingham county.

Lorenzo G. Towle is the prohibition candidate for Senator in the second district.

The Manchester Union shows its fear of the result of the nomination of Gen. McCutchins for Governor by styling Messrs. John B. Clarke and John D. Lyman (two active McCutchins men) "agricultural deadbeats."

The Syracuse (N. Y.) Journal says the platform of the New Hampshire republicans is admirable.

The Democratic Convention.

[Manchester Mirror.]

Six hundred delegates probably never met in a convention and made a nomination which really pleased so few, and irritated, enraged and disgusted so many of their number, as those who constituted the democratic convention this year. From the time they began to arrive in Concord until they left the city the cry was for blood, and blood they got. The fight began early and lasted late.

The leading issue was between Pearson and his opponents. Early in the evening there was talk of a compromise, dividing the honors and making everything lovely; but when the old-liners,—Sinclair and Minot and Lyon,—got together and counted noses, they decided that they had the power, and would use it to crush the great rebel, who, through the columns of the People, has been hurling at them denunciation and defiance for so long a time. As a leading delegate expressed it, they meant to "hold Pearson's nose to the grindstone until there was nothing left of it but a scar."

But Pearson was active, shrewd and vigilant. He had put Judge Roberts, backed as he was by the hay-seed element, into his pocket. He pitted against his enemies the claims of Hatch and Proctor, the feeling against monopolies, rings and consolidation, and the natural disgust which the idea of going ever and eternally to Manchester for a candidate excited. And though he was disastrously beaten, he made a hot fight and went down with flying colors.

Then there was a fight over the platform, lasting from early evening until the next morning. The shrewdest and wisest of the party-leaders were opposed to a rum plank. With it they saw only odium and defeat, but the liquor-dealers stated squarely and openly that, unless their demands were acceded to, they would not support the ticket. They declared that they had been long enough privately assured by the democrats that if their party came into power the rum interest should be protected, and now they wanted a public pledge to the same effect.

As to the farmers in the convention, they got snuffed out so quick that they hardly knew whether the convention was a threshing-machine or a forty-horse power sausage-grinder. They voted for Judge Roberts, and are swearing mad because he was not nominated, but, even when assisted by Pearson's tireless energy and the hatred of Weston and all the other influences that went to help them, they were powerless against the edicts of the half dozen men who owned the convention. Many of them call all the gods to witness that they will never vote the ticket, and Sinclair and George probably don't care whether they do or not. Pearson is beaten, his "nose has been held to the grindstone," and that is all they cared for.

—A philosophical victim advertises as follows: "If the person who took a fancy to my overcoat was influenced by the inclemency of the weather, then, contrary to the weather, all is serene; but if he did so from commercial considerations, I am ready to enter into financial negotiations for its return."

An Old Story New Vamped.

A drover travelling with a large flock of young sheep was somewhat troubled to keep them in order; they not being accustomed to marching, would wander from the ranks, so he bargained with a farmer by the way for an old Patriarch of 'sable' for a 'leader in the van.' It was very warm, and as the evening shades drew nigh the old fellow grew tired and looking about himself for some place to rest, spied the rolling way to a farmer's cellar standing invitingly open, and without ceremony walked in and finding a comfortable place, laid down to rest. The farmer not being aware he had a visitor, when night came, shut up the rolling way and made all things snug and safe for the night. In the evening some of the neighbors dropped in for a social chat and of course to give zest to the stories a mug of cider must be had, consequently, 'John, take the mug, go down cellar and draw some cider,' came in tones of command from 'pater familias.' So John took the mug, lit a candle and went as commanded to get the cider, and stooping innocently down, drew out the tap and held down the mug to catch the cider, when the old ram from his hiding place saw all this and being a veteran of many battles was easy to take a challenge. The posture of the boy aroused all his fighting blood, and he made an attack well directed and unexpected, and our hero found himself sprawling, with his light extinguished and his mug in ruins. He rushed up stairs half dead with fright and exclaimed 'Father, the devil is down cellar; he has put out my candle broke my mug and half killed me!' 'Pooh!' says the old man, 'Here, Sam, you take the pitcher and go down and draw some cider.' Not daring to disobey Sam took the pitcher, and another candle and went down stairs, cautiously peering about to see if he could discover any signs of the 'old enemy,' but seeing the cider wasting he forgot his fear and put under the pitcher, which was rapidly filling when our old veteran (taking this for another challenge) gave him full as warm a reception as his brother and sent him all along, broke his pitcher and left him in darkness. He rushed to the upper regions with 'Father, there is a devil down cellar; he has broken my pitcher and most killed me.' 'Poh! ho! ho! my boys are all fools. Wife, give me the bowl and a candle and I'll see what I can do.' So he pushed boldly down to save his cider, which was fast mingling with our mother earth. He quietly stooped down, and being a portly gentleman, presented a good target for our old hero's aim, and he improved it to good advantage and the father found himself in darkness with broken crockery and aches and bruises enough for a railway accident. He crawled up stairs as fast as his wounds would allow and said to his better half, 'The devil is down cellar and he has almost killed me; now it will never do to sleep in this house unless he is laid.' Now as luck would have it a good old minister lived right across the way and to him they fled in their trouble. The good old man had retired, but to allay one evil spirit he thought it not worth while to dress fully, so he put on a long plaid cloak fastened at the neck by a monstrous hook and eye, such as were in fashion many years ago, took his glasses and Bible and went to help his neighbors in their trouble. He found the place in the Book where it reads, 'Depart ye accursed,' &c., &c., put his finger on the place and started on his mission down cellar. He told the farmer to stand at the top of the stairs and respond a hearty Amen to whatever he might hear him say. He promised faithfully, and when the good man was part way down the stairs he shouted with a loud voice, 'Depart ye cussed!' 'Amen,' came from the farmer at his post, and so on in like manner he read the command and heard the response, till he reached the cider barrel which had been the cause of all the trouble, and disliking to see the precious beverage wasting (for it had been running all the time) he stooped down to put in the tap, and the old ram seeing the spreading cloak evidently thought it too good a chance to be lost and regardless of the good old man's age or sanctity gave him a blow that fairly took his breath. But alas for the conqueror! his long curling horns became entangled in the folds of the old man's cloak, and getting frightened himself thereby he began a hasty retreat toward his corner, taking the old minister with him, Bible and all, to, he knew not where, and in his fright and anguish he cried out 'The devil has got me!' But the ungrateful farmer only responded more lustily than ever, 'Amen!' and left the old parson to his fate.

The Sewing Machine.

The London Lancet says: "Some few years ago one of the London Hospital physicians called attention to the fact which had come under his notice repeatedly among his out-patients under his care, that the use of the sewing machine was injurious to the health of those who habitually employed it for many hours together. The patients suffered from nervous debility and other symptoms referable to its employment, and admitted that the constant exertion which necessarily occurred in using heavy double-actioned machines had an exciting and exhausting effect upon them. These statements were somewhat strongly denied at the time, but we think the almost universal adoption of hand-worked machines in family life since that date shows that there was a pretty general feeling among the profession, and probably the public, too, that the exercise required for young ladies in order to work the treadle machine was not calculated to improve their health. Facts which have recently come to our knowledge show that the evil was no imaginary one, and that many workers at the sewing machine or machines of a similar character do suffer very materially in their health. One of the heaviest forms of machines is, we believe, that employed in "braiding," and young women working in this department have suffered very materially, and have been compelled to discontinue the employment. But the distress is not confined to one class of employes; it seems to effect pretty generally all those who use the feet alternately as the motive power of their machinery. If the workers themselves or their immediate supervisors were to speak out, there would, we believe, be abundant evidence found that "machining" is a most exhaustive employment, and one which gradually breaks down the health. When it is considered how great the employment of sewing and allied machinery by female operatives and is, that many city houses have dozens of them in their establishments, it is obvious that the evil we have referred to is not a slight one. We would be the last to interfere with the female labor market, always overcrowded as it is with needy seamstresses, but it is not unreasonable to ask whether, in the case of large establishments employing dozens or even hundreds of machines, it would not be possible to adopt steam as the motive power, and to retain the female hand only as the guide of the machine thus set in motion. If a steam engine can drive many spinning machines or looms, one does not fancy there could be much difficulty in giving the necessary motion to sewing or braiding machines, the work of which is not one whit more intricate.

Utilizing A Mule.

[Overland Monthly for January.]

Josh came once very near being hung for merely "utilizing" a mule. It was one of the hottest days in summer, and Josh and two other boys were travelling on foot, packing tools, provisions, and blankets through Bull's Hollow, when a lone mule was espied feeding on the hill-side. Josh resolutely put his burden down, and declared that never so long as any four-footed creature of that description was in sight and unappropriated, would he degrade himself by being a beast of burden. So he caught the mule, and proceeded to "utilize" it. Nat and Steve protested. This was in 1850, when the popular punishment for horse or mule stealing was death. But Josh would "utilize" that mule. He managed to pack him, and the utilizing went forward An hour afterward a rough customer overtook them. He was well-mounted, well-armed, heavily bearded, deep-voiced, red-eyed, and there was about him a general cloud of ugliness.

"Where did you get that mule from?" was his abrupt question.

"Hired him from Mr. Pinoly, at Chinese Camp,' was Josh's ready answer.

"Well, Mr. Pinola is the man I want to see. He's the —— that's been stealin' my stock. That's my mule. You must go back with me and identify this —— Pinola."

Josh pleaded business of the most urgent character. He must get on to Yorktown that night. Finally this most inopportune mule owner consented that the animal with Josh's baggage should go on to Yorktown, after which Josh was to return to Chinese Camp, and point out Mr. Pinola.

They arrived at Yorktown. Josh was sorely perplexed. He delayed the return trip as long as possible. He tried the effect of whiskey on the Texan. But it was a failure, as well as being fearfully expensive. Whisky was then fifty cents a glass, and contrary to Jesse's notes, the more the mule avenger swallowed, the more bent did he become on hunting up Pinola; and at last he said to Josh: "I believe you are the —— that stole my mule!"

To suspect then was to act. He "made a fuss," collected a crowd of miners and stated the case. In plying him with liquor, Josh had only furnished him with increased motive power for working indrement, and that judgment proceeded with lynch-like rapidity. A tree was selected; a rope thrown over a projecting limb. The gallows neared Josh with frightful rapidity Yet he was saved. An influential friend stepped in at the critical moment, and, in behalf of Josh, appeased the savage mule owner with sundry ounces of gold dust.

The Transit of Venus.

Active preparations are being made for the observation of the transit Venus, the great astronomical event which will come off on the eighth day of next December. The party designated to make observations in the Southern Hemisphere will leave Washington next June, and the party designated for the Northern Hemisphere will leave in the August following. Photographers on whose accuracy depends results of great importance are being carefully instructed in their duties. Transit instruments and clocks are already completed and in readiness for transportation to their distant destination. Professor Newcomb, of the Naval Observatory, is hard at work preparing for the great event, although he will not take charge of one of the parties, as was at first intended.

The following astronomers will accompany the expedition: Two from the Naval Observatory, Professors Harkness and Hall; two from the Coast Survey, Professor Davidson, the other not yet assigned; one from the army, not assigned; one from the navy, Lieutenant Commander Ryan. Professor Watson, of the Michigan Observatory and Professor Peters, of Hamilton College, New York, are also assigned to the expedition.

Stepping up to the Captain's Office.

[Philadelphia Ledger.]

Every one who has the ability to do it should make it a special point just now to settle all bills, small and large, without delay. If it is only a dollar that is outstanding, it should be paid promptly, for that one dollar may pay twenty others in the course of a day. A five-dollar bill may pay ten times five by being put into circulation at this season, and so all other sums up to the hundreds and thousands may be multiplied in the payment of debts, by passing from hand to hand in the course of prompt settlements. The tradesmen whom each of us may owe have their own debts to settle with others, and those others are waiting to be able to pay others still further removed. All wholesome trade and all payments of money move in circles. The true rule is to make as few debts as possible, but when debts are made and become due, the best investment that can be made with any money in the purse, the pocket book, in the bureau drawer or in bank is to pay. The man who is not in debt is, in one most important sense, the most independent man.

The Living Telegrapher.

Symptoms are the silent characters through which the diseased body telegraphs its condition. But they are not always read aright, and the medicines administered sometimes aggravate instead of relieving the complaint. Consequently among the instances of malpractice which are of daily occurrence, is the habit of dosing dyspeptic and constipated invalids with powerful cathartics. Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, in which are skillfully blended the vegetable elements best adapted to the invigoration of the stomach, and removal, without violence, of regular discharges from the bowels, should be taken twice or thrice a day as a remedy for indigestion of every type, and for costiveness, whether chronic or casual. No other medicine will be required an the cure will be rapid and painless. No medicine, as yet discovered or compounded, equals Hostetter's Bitters as a specific for all affections of the liver, as well as for diseases of the stomach, the bowels and the nerves.

Old Probabilities. Our learned friend, who sits at Washington, and receives, from the signal stations of a continent, reports on the vicissitudes of the weather, sorts, compases and infers from them the daily bulletins which everybody reads, might reasonably add, in view of our late sudden changes, "Colds, Coughs and affections of the throat and lungs will prevail in the East and North. Warning signals continue in the West and South." In view of the truth of these probabilities, we commend to all sufferers that excellent and potent specific, Ayer's Cherry Pectoral. It has, in countless instances, saved life, and has, within the knowledge of every one, alleviated most alarming symptoms and effected cures almost surpassing belief. So excellent is it that the medical faculty largely use it in their practice. In cases of seated consumption, it prolongs life and softens the stay of the afflicted sufferer. About these days it is well to have it in the house. By its timely use, serious disease may be checked and turned aside.—Nashua (Iowa) Post.

A Ward Three Joke.

The democratic Solons of the Weston and Roberts persuasions, who met in convention at Concord last week with the Clam-shell Corner delegates and their friends, were the victims of an "astonisher" whose primary education might have been received in the Sevastapol school of democracy. This panic-stricken individual, wishing to show the gentlemen from the country a thing or two, being desirous of acquainting the hay-seeders with the fact that he was cognizant of the virtues of that kind of pulse called the Faba vulgaris, and anxious to swell the total vote of the convention beyond that of its republican predecessor, patriotically and with malice in heart toward no man and charity toward all, deliberately deposited in the hat a roll of six votes. The Boston Post (democratic) says when the votes were counted a roll of six votes for Hatch was discovered. The Lebanon Free Press, remarking on the same fact, says "Rockingham county couldn't be trusted, and its vote was counted separately!" The Free Press should not asperse the fair fame of Rockingham by such an insinuation. Democratic tactics are inscrutable, and though sometimes peculiar and prone to sin, the mantle of charity should be thrown around those whose only fault is too much enthusiasm!

Newcastle.

The Christian church has received its bell; it rang on New Year's day for the first time.

The Y. M. C. Association lost a loved member, in the death of Wm. C. White. His death is the first in the Association since its organization, over three years ago. At a recent meeting of the young men, the following resolutions of respect were passed:

Whereas, The Allwise Father has taken unto Himself our dear and honored brother Wm. C. White, be it Resolved, That, by his death the Association has been deprived of one of its foremost and able members.

Resolved, That his memory we will cherish always as an inspiration, and, though we miss the pressure of his hand, his cheerful face and friendly voice, yet we hope as we believe he has not left us in spirit.

Resolved, That a copy of these resolutions be sent to his family, to the N. H. GAZETTE, and the Journal.

The week of prayer was held sacred. Union meetings, with preaching by Rev. John A. Goss, Portsmouth; Rev. Wm. G. Wade, Starkey, N. Y.; Rev. Mr. Smith, Andover, Mass., were had each evening.

R.

Kittery.

The Austin school gave an exhibition at their school house, Friday evening. The house was crowded to its utmost capacity. Misses Carrie and Sadie Pettigrew with master Roderick Grace, were the life of the occasion and sustained their laborious parts with ease and their songs were loudly applauded.

Dr. Appleton's lecture, "Reminiscences of the Seminole War," was quite good, and the people seemed well pleased with the speaker.

Trefethen Hall is occupied nearly all the time.

Laconics.

Dear Journal; That friend at our elbow did not stop his CHRONICLE, still takes it and pays for it.

Rev. A. C Hardy has accepted the prohibition nomination for Senator in this district. The temperance men claim a strength of 150 votes.

The Portsmouth delegates to the republican county convention are requested to meet at the Common Council room this (Monday) evening, at 7 1-2 o'clock.

Col. Hackett sold by auction, Saturday, several shares of Eastern in N. H. railroad stock at $75; 44 shares Rockingham National Bank at $65; and 10 shares National Mechanics & Traders' Bank at $130.50.

The Supreme Judicial Court will commence a session at Exeter, to-morrow under Chief Justice Hibbard, but will adjourn to this city Wednesday for the trial of the case of Jefferson C. Rowe against the Eastern Railroad.

The directors of the Eastern and Boston & Maine railroads have been in consultation the past week to devise some plan to ensure harmony in their business relations, reduce expenditures and prevent further hostile competition.

A post mortem examination of the infant found floating in the river was conducted by Dr. Potter, Saturday, who gave his opinion that the child never breathed, but could not decide if unnatural means were used to prevent it. Coroner Rider summoned Messrs. John H. Bailey, Wm. H. Emery and Ashuela T. Thurston as a jury.

The Eastern Railroad has had for a couple of weeks a new railroad signal on trial at the station in Ipswich, which has given such satisfaction that it is proposed to erect them at each station on the road. The invention is a large wooden box in a tin case, set up at such height as to be visible from approaching trains. By day the signals are tin, painted red and blue, and by night colored glass, shown by a lamp inside the signal-box. The signals are raised and lowered by shafts and pulleys attached to a chain, and will be worked by telegraph operators in their offices. The night signal is said to be visible, under favorable circumstances, three miles.

The Portsmouth democrats do not relish the re-nomination of Ex-Gov. Weston, and one of their delegates to the recent convention informs us that fully one hundred members of the party here will not vote for the nominee. There is considerable reason for their irritation, but the democracy have heretofore blindly supported regular nominations and we expect them to go to the polls as unitedly as in the past. The majority against Weston in Portsmouth, however, is liable to be double that of last March.

Dearborn S. F. E. company will give its seventh annual ball, Feb. 20th, and the members feel confident that it will be as well conducted in all respects as any ball given this season. The members feel keenly the imputations cast upon them by others in connection with their Christmas Eve ball. They are well aware that the conduct of some persons present was ungentlemanly, and regret it exceedingly. It could not be avoided under the circumstances without causing great noise and disturbance, and knowing that the balls and assemblies given by them in years before were orderly and quiet, and would compare favorably with those given by other companies, they believed that kindly disposed persons would not make public mention of the disturbing elements of the Christmas Eve festivities.

A committee of Kearsarge S. F. E. Co., No. 3, consisting of foreman, first and second assistants, clerk and other members, accompanied by W. L. Hidden, Clerk of the Fire Department, left this city, Friday evening, to pay a visit to their brother firemen of Biddeford (Eben Simpson S. F. E Co., No. 2.) for the purpose of attending their annual tea party; and presented the Ebens with an elegant silver tea service of seven pieces valued at $75 Arriving in Saco, Capt. Seymour, with a well chosen speech, presented the tea service in behalf of Kearsarge. John R. Pike, Esq., Ex-Foreman of the Ebens, accepted the token of esteem in their behalf, and for Capt. Morse of the Ebens. Capt. Pike, in behalf of the Ebens, presented Capt. Seymour, 1st Asst. Sampson, Clerks Hazel and Hidden with large loaves of cake, which will be on exhibition at H. B. Buzzell & Son's book store. Raymond's Band furnished music for the dancers until 2 o'clock in the morning. The "Sarges" are highly pleased with their trip.

Killed, Wounded and Missing.

[Manchester Mirror.]

The following is a very incomplete list of the casualties in the late Democratic fight at Concord: John H. Pearson, Lieut.-General commanding the army of the rebels; Edmund Burke, Colonel of the Black Horse Cavalry; Judge Roberts, standard-bearer of the veteran reserves.

The hay-seed corps was wiped out in a single charge and left upon the ground a corpse. The laboring man's division went down in an attempt to support the hay-seeds, and its few surviving members were taken prisoners, and will be put to work on the trencnes by their captors.

The temperance brigade was blown up in a mine.

General Goodie was drugged by the enemy before the fight, and his troops were only in as stragglers.

Capt. Albert R. Hatch, of the marines, was drawn into an ambush, and slain by the Artful Dodgers from Manchester.

"And all that the flag of the Bourbons might wave Over Pearson's and Hatch's political grave."

Dinner and Tea Sets. — We would again refer to the advertisement of Richard Briggs, 137 Washington street, Boston, which appears in our columns to-day. This house was established in 1793, and has a world-wide reputation. Mr. Briggs has, in conformity with the custom adopted in other branches of business, marked down his entire stock of decorated dinner and tea sets, and gives the public the benefit of his taste and judgment in selecting, as well as his special facilities for purchasing, as he orders direct from the manufacturers of Europe. This unusual opportunity will only continue until the 1st of February, and we advise all our friends to avail themselves of it without delay.

Special Notices.

Chapped Hands, face, rough skin, pimples, ringworm, salt rheum and other cutaneous affections cured, and the skin made soft and smooth, by using the Juniper Tar Soap, made by Caswell, Hazard & Co., New York. Be certain to get the Juniper Tar Soap, as there are many imitations made with common tar which are worthless. r3

SPECIAL ANNOUNCEMENT FOR 1874.

READ AND THINK.

We have received to-day a large lot of FLOUR in Barrels and Half-Barrels, which we propose to sell at

PRICES THAT CAN'T BE BEAT.

PRIDE OF THE WEST	$10.75
RED JACKET	12.00
GENUINE	9.25
A	10.00
LILY OF THE VALLEY	10.50

These prices are less than the same brands or quality can be bought in this State, and we guarantee everything as we say, or you can return it at our expense.

With EVERY BARREL of Flour so sold, we shall give you

Your Choice of Two

SPLENDID STEEL ENGRAVINGS,

(Samples of which can be seen at our store,)

The Village Blacksmith,

AND

Signing the Compact in the Cabin of the Mayflower,

AS A PREMIUM PRESENT!

These Engravings are elegant agaiss, and worthy a place in any house.

Now, don't let anybody make you believe that we can't do this and give you a GOOD article of FLOUR at the same price they can; because if you do, you will be deceived. We brought these pictures in New York at such prices that we can afford to do it.

Why? 1st, because it so increases our sales that even with a small profit on the Flour, we can make day wages. 2d, because when people come to buy Flour they see the prices of other goods and buy them. 3d, because everybody knows we always do just what we advertise to do.

NOW TRY US. All we ask is for you to call, see and be convinced.

AYER'S HAIR VIGOR,

FOR RESTORING GRAY HAIR

TO ITS NATURAL VITALITY AND COLOR.

Advancing years, sickness, care, disappointment, and hereditary predisposition, all turn the hair gray, and either of them incline it to shed prematurely.

AYER'S HAIR VIGOR, by long and extensive use, has proven that it stops the falling of the hair immediately; often renews the growth, and always surely restores the color when faded or gray. It dissolves the nutritive organs to healthy activity, and preserves both the hair and its beauty. Thus brashy, weak or sickly hair becomes glossy, pliable and strengthened; lost hair regrows with lively expression; falling hair is checked and established; thin hair thickens; and faded or gray hair resumes its original color. Its operation is sure and harmless. It cures dandruff, heals all humors, and keeps the scalp cool, clean and soft—under which conditions diseases of the scalp are impossible.

As a dressing for ladies' hair, the VIGOR is praised for its grateful and agreeable perfume, and valued for the soft lustre and richness of tone it imparts.

WINDING THE SKEIN.

Woman has wiles,
Wherewith she beguiles
Our sensitive sex, whose resistance is vain;
But she's no better plan
For inveigling a man,
Than to get him to help her in winding a skein.

His glance fondly lingers
On deft little fingers;
He gets into tangles again and again,
Which while she unravels,
He a fond fancy travels
To tying a knot, and not winding a skein.

Why, Heaven preserve us,
'Tis fit to unnerve us,
To see with what ease in the snare we are ta'en;
And how slender the net
Into which we all get,
But cannot escape from, in winding a skein.

Though you'd fain remain single,
Your fingers will tingle,
You've blood to the cast, and you've love on
If but once you consent (the brain,
To the treachery meant
By the harmless employment of winding a skein.

CATARRH!

A Woman Having Catarrh 35 Years. Cured.

And Droppings in Throat, Choking, Stranglings, Pains in in the Side, Loins, Headache, Dizziness, and General Weakness, Cured by less than Three Bottles of the

CONSTITUTIONAL CATARRH REMEDY.

To Messrs. Littlefield & Co., Proprietors of Constitutional Catarrh Remedy, Manchester, N.H.:

I reside at Manchester N., H., and previously resided at Hooniker, and am a native of Weare, this State. I have had Catarrh twenty-five years, ever since I was 19 years old; had it bad all the time. It ran all that period, and nights it would fill up and drop down in my throat, causing a feeling of choking, so that I would spring up in bed to save myself from strangulation. It affected my head so that I felt confused, and was troubled with severe headache at intervals, for a week at a time. I also had bad pains in shoulders, back and kidneys, from which I suffered immensely. So bad were they, that a year ago last summer I was obliged to lie in bed most of the time for three months. I have tried all kinds of catarrh remedies without no particular benefit, and consulted physicians. I had a hacking cough. I began to take the Constitutional Catarrh Remedy last August. I began to improve from the first bottle. I am now on the third bottle. My Catarrh is cured; my health is restored. I have no pains, aches, or cough. My whole system is made over new. I know it is this medicine that has rescued me from intense suffering and almost the grave. I am now able to do the hardest work and bear the greatest exposure, and feel that I cannot say too much in favor of the Constitutional Catarrh Remedy.

MARCUS E. J. FLANDERS.

Manchester, N. H., Feb. 1, 1873.

I am now 53 years old, have had Catarrh ever since I was eighteen years old, and headache all the time; have suffered beyond description; have had running at the nose, droppings in the throat, chokings and stranglings. Have tried any quantity of Catarrh Remedies, but have found no relief till I tried your Constitutional Catarrh Remedy, six months ago. I found immediate relief.

Catarrh and all its attendant evils have left, Headache, Pains in Loins and Back, Dizziness, Loss of Appetite, and General Weakness. Less than three bottles of Constitutional Catarrh Remedy have cured me. I have not been so well since I can remember as now. I feel as if I could not say too much for the medicine, or thank God too heartily that through its instrumentality I have been restored to health.

Manchester, N. H., Jan. 27, 1872.

The above lady is my mother. I am a painter by trade, and a member of the City Council of Manchester. Every word that my mother states is true.

JACOB J. ABBOTT.

Hundreds of cases of a similar nature cured within the last year. Snuffs and Lotions are only temporary relief. The CONSTITUTIONAL CATARRH REMEDY strikes at the root, builds up the constitution, makes it new, and drives away Catarrh and all diseases of the mucous membranes and their attendant pains and aches, pertaining to head, back, shoulders, kidneys, and throat.

Price $1 per Bottle. Sold by all Druggists. A Pamphlet of 32 pages, giving a Treatise on Catarrh, and containing innumerable cases of cures, sent FREE, by addressing the Proprietors,

IRON IN THE BLOOD.

DYSPEPSIA, DEBILITY, DROPSY AND HUMORS.

PERUVIAN SYRUP

Makes The Weak Strong.

The Peruvian Syrup, a Protected Solution of the Protoxide of Iron, is so combined as to have the character of an ailment, as easily digested and assimilated with the blood as the simplest food. It increases the quantity of Nature's Own Vitalizing Agent, Iron in the blood, and cures "a thousand ills," simply by Toning up, Invigorating and Vitalizing the System. The enriched and vitalized blood permeates every part of the body, repairing damages and waste, searching out morbid secretions, and leaving nothing for disease to feed upon.

This is the secret of the wonderful success of this remedy in curing Dyspepsia, Liver Complaint, Dropsy, Chronic Diarrhœa, Boils, Nervous Affections, Chills and Fevers, Humors, Loss of Constitutional Vigor, Diseases of the Kidneys and Bladder, Female Complaints, and all diseases originating in a bad state of the blood, or accompanied by debility or a low system. Being free from Alcohol, in any form its energizing effects are not followed by corresponding reaction, but are permanent, infusing strength, vigor, and new life into all parts of the system, and building upon an Iron Constitution.

Thousands have been changed by the use of this remedy, from weak, sickly, suffering creatures to strong, healthy, and happy men and women; and invalids cannot reasonably hesitate to give it a trial.

See that each bottle has PERUVIAN SYRUP blown in the glass.

AMERICAN & FOREIGN PATENTS.

R. H. EDDY, SOLICITOR OF PATENTS,

For Inventions, Trade Marks or Designs,

No. 78 State St., Opposite Kilby St., Boston.

After an extensive practice of upwards of thirty years, continues to secure patents in the United States; also in Great Britain, France and other foreign countries. Caveats, Specifications, Assignments, and all papers for Patents, executed on reasonable terms with dispatch. Researches made to determine the validity and utility of Patents of Inventions, and legal and other advice rendered in all matters touching the same. Copies of the claims of any patent furnished, by remitting one dollar. Assignments recorded in Washington.

No Agency in the United States possesses superior facilities for obtaining Patents or ascertaining the patentability of inventions.

All necessary for a journey to Washington to procure a Patent and the usual great delay there, are here saved inventors.

TESTIMONIALS.

"I regard Mr. Eddy as one of the most capable and successful practitioners with whom I have had official intercourse. CHARLES MASON,
Commissioner of Patents."

"I have no hesitation in assuring inventors that they cannot employ a man more competent and trustworthy and more capable of putting their applications in a form to secure for them an early and favorable consideration at the Patent Office.

EDMUND BURKE,
Late Commissioner of Patents."

"Mr. R. H. Eddy has made for me over THIRTY applications for Patents, having been successful in almost every case. Such unmistakable proof of great talent and ability on his part leads me to recommend ALL inventors to apply to him to procure their Patents, as they may be sure of having the most faithful attention bestowed on their cases and at very reasonable charges.

COAL.

HAVING contracted for a quantity of the above coal, we would call the attention of Manufacturers, Dealers and Consumers to the following different grades mined and controlled by the Company:

HARD WHITE ASH COAL,
FREE BURNING WHITE ASH COAL,
SHAMOKIN WHITE ASH COAL,
SHAMOKIN RED ASH COAL,
NORTH FRANKLIN COAL,
LYKENS VALLEY COAL.

In order that all coal shall be shipped in good order, a most rigid system of inspection, both at the mines and at the shipping ports, will at all times be enforced. In every district of the coal region there will be appointed a number of competent persons, skilled in the preparation of coal, as local inspectors, whose duty it will be to visit the several collieries daily to see that a proper force is at all times employed in removing slate, and to prevent, if possible, any coal being sent from the mines in bad order. In addition to these efforts at prevention, no means will be left untried at the shipping ports to cure the evil of careless preparation. At Schuylkill Haven, Port Clinton and Port Richmond, ALL COAL WILL BE SUBJECTED TO THE PERSONAL EXAMINATION OF A SKILLED INSPECTOR BEFORE IT IS SHIPPED, and if condemned by him, will be dumped in places provided for the purpose, and before being loaded into vessels WILL BE THOROUGHLY REPICKED AND CLEANED BY HAND.

We keep a fine stock of the above coal on hand, also

NOTICES OF THE PRESS.

The BAZAR is edited with a contribution of tact and talent that we seldom find in any journal; and the journal itself is the organ of the great world of fashion.—Boston Traveller.

The BAZAR commends itself to every member of the household—to the children by droll and pretty pictures, to the young ladies by its fashion-plates in endless variety, to the provident matron by its patterns for the children's clothes, to paterfamilias by its tasteful designs for embroidered slippers and luxurious dressing-gowns. But the reading-matter of the BAZAR is uniformly of great excellence. The paper has acquired a wide popularity for the fireside enjoyment it affords.—N. Y Evening Post.

PROSPECTUS FOR 1874—SEVENTH YEAR.

THE ALDINE,

An Illustrated Monthly Journal, universally admitted to be the handsomest Periodical in the world. A Representative and Champion of American Taste.

NOT FOR SALE IN BOOK OR NEWS STORES.

THE ALDINE, while issued with all the regularity, has none of the temporary or ephemeral interest characteristic of ordinary periodicals. It is an elegant miscellany of pure, light and graceful literature; and a collection of its pages, the rarest specimens of artistic skill, in black and white. Although each succeeding num ber affords a fresh pleasure to its friends, the real value and beauty of THE ALDINE will be most appreciated after it has been bound up at the close of the year. While other publications may claim superior cheapness, as compared with rivals of a similar class, THE ALDINE is a unique and original conception—alone and unapproached—also lately without competition in price or character. The possessor of a complete volume cannot duplicate the quantity of fine paper and engravings in any other shade or number of volumes FOR TEN TIMES ITS COST; AND THEREFORE ARE THE CHROMOS, BESIDE!

ART DEPARTMENT, 1874.

The illustrations of THE ALDINE have won a world-wide reputation, and in the art centres of Europe it is an admitted fact that its wood cuts are examples of the highest perfection ever attained. The common prejudice in favor of "steel plate," is rapidly yielding to a more educated and discriminating taste which recognizes the advantages of superior artistic quality with greater facility of production. The wood-cuts of THE ALDINE possess all the delicacy and elaborate finish of the most costly steel plate, while they afford a better rendering of the artist's original.

In addition to designs by the members of the National Academy, and other noted American artists, THE ALDINE will reproduce examples of the best foreign masters, selected with a view to the highest artistic success and greatest general interest. Thus the subscriber to THE ALDINE will, at a trifling cost, enjoy in his own home the pleasures and refining influences of true art.

The Christmas issue for 1874 will contain special designs appropriate to the season, by our best artists, and will surpass in attractions any of its predecessors.

PREMIUM FOR 1874.

Every subscriber to THE ALDINE for the year 1874 will receive a pair of chromos. The original pictures were painted in oil for the publishers of THE ALDINE, by Thomas Moran, whose great Colorado picture was purchased by Congress for ten thousand dollars. The subjects were chosen to represent "The East" and "The West." One is a view in The White Mountains, New Hampshire; the other gives The Cliffs of Green River, Wyoming Territory.

If any subscriber should indicate a preference for a figure subject, the publisher will send "Thoughts of Home," a new and beautiful chromo, 14x 20 inches, representing a little Italian exile whose speaking eyes betray the homesickness of his heart.

TERMS.

$5 per annum, in advance, with Oil Chromos free.

For 50 CENTS EXTRA, the chromos will be sent, mounted, varnished, and prepaid by mail.

THE ALDINE will, hereafter, be obtainable only by subscription. They will be no reduced or club rate; cash for subscriptions must be sent to the publishers direct, or handed to the local canvassers, without responsibility to the publishers, except in cases where the certificate is given, bearing the fac-simile signature of JAMES SUTTON & CO.

CANVASSERS WANTED.

Any person wishing to act permanently as a local canvasser will receive full and prompt information by applying to

The Country Gentleman.

Volume for 1874.

THE CULTIVATOR & COUNTRY GENTLEMAN, for the past forty years, has maintained, both in this country and abroad, as the STANDARD JOURNAL OF AMERICAN AGRICULTURE. The Editors and Proprietors, in addition to their personal labors, have been materially assisted by a very large number of Special Correspondents and Regular Contributors, among whom are included many Leading Agricultural Editors, in all parts of the Country, East and West—and by over Five Hundred Occasional and Voluntary Writers, directly in the ranks of the Best Farmers and Horticulturists of nearly every State in the Union. With the co-operation of so large a corps of practical men, this Journal is intended to possess exceptional value as the chosen Medium of Intercommunication among all classes interested in the Products and Fertility of the land—the one Cultivate and those who Consume—the Buyer and Shipper, as well as the first Owner of the crop—Breeders of Improved Animals and their Customers—Manufacturers of Improved Machinery and those who purchase and employ it—Nurserymen and Fruit Raisers—and, especially, to supply fuller and better data as to the prospects and returns of each successive Season, as throwing light upon one of the most important of all questions—When to Buy and when to Sell.

TERMS.—The COUNTRY GENTLEMAN is published weekly, on the following terms when paid strictly in advance: ONE COPY, one year, $2.50; FOUR COPIES, $10, and an additional copy for the year to the sender of the Club; TEN COPIES, $20, and an additional copy for the year free to the sender of the Club.

WISTAR'S BALSAM OF WILD CHERRY!

THE GREAT REMEDY FOR

CONSUMPTION!

And acknowledged by many prominent physicians to be the most Reliable Preparation ever introduced for the RELIEF and CURE of all

LUNG COMPLAINTS.

This well known remedy is offered to the public sanctioned by the experience of over forty years, and when resorted to in season seldom fails to effect a speedy cure of

COUGHS, COLDS, CROUP, BRONCHITIS, INFLUENZA, WHOOPING COUGH, HOARSENESS, PAINS OR SORENESS IN THE CHEST OR SIDE, BLEEDING AT THE LUNGS, LIVER COMPLAINTS, &c.

CONSUMPTION

CURED

By a timely resort to this standard remedy, as is proved by hundreds of testimonials received by the proprietors.

Dr. Wistar's Balsam of Wild Cherry

Does not dry up a Cough and leave the cause behind as is the case with most preparations, but it loosens and cleanses the lungs and allays irritation, thus removing the cause of the complaint.

CLERGYMEN, LAWYERS, SINGERS,

And all those whose occupation requires an unusual exercise of the vocal organs, will find this the ONLY PREPARATION which will effectually and instantaneously relieve their difficulties.

BEWARE OF COUNTERFEITS.—Remember that the genuine Wistar's Balsam has on the outside wrapper the signature of "I. BUTTS," and the printed name of the proprietors, "SETH W. FOWLE & Sons, Boston." All others are base imitations. Examine the wrapper carefully before purchasing.

$1 PER BOTTLE. SIX BOTTLES, $5.

The Singer Still Triumphant!
At the Vienna Exhibition, the SINGER received the Medal of Merit, the Medal of Progress, and three other Medals for superiority of standard excellence. These are the highest Sewing Machine awards at Vienna. The Singer received all the medals awarded to either of the competing machines, and two medals more than any other obtained. Then, in the name of Truth, what is it that prompts people to claim recommendations for the Diploma of Honor? The fact is, no Diploma of Honor has been given to any Sewing Machine Company.
But immeasurably more valuable is The World's Award as shown by sales recorded by sworn returns to the owners of the principal Sewing Machine Patents—which last year amounted to TWO HUNDRED AND TWENTY THOUSAND, SEVEN HUNDRED AND FIFTY-EIGHT (219,758) machines, nine out of ten of them being Singer's. This leaves 25,000 more Sewing Machines than were sold by any other company during the same period, and over One Quarter of all the machines sold in 1872. These enormous sales are owing to the long-tested merits of the Singer Machines, which meet the wants of the public in the rigidity and simplicity of construction, and capability for great variety and excellence of work. That the sales of Sewing Machines full of undesirable qualities in the Singer beyond all others, is shown by the sales above given, under from the awards of International Juries, either at home or abroad.

SIXTEEN OIL PAINTINGS IN A BOOK!
Never before was such an idea attempted for book illustration; every one who has seen it pronounces it superb. Mrs. Harriet Beecher Stowe's latest work.
Woman in Sacred History,
is a series of narrative sketches, drawn from Scripture, historical and secondary sources, ILLUSTRATED WITH SIXTEEN CHOICE OIL CHROMOS, after paintings by the most celebrated artists in the world, giving a rich and magnificent variety of Oriental costume and beauty. Mrs. Stowe, in our charming style, has written a book full of interest, and without a dull page in it, which even if not illustrated would sell rapidly; but the
make it one of the most unique, original and remarkable works ever offered. The pictures, if published separately, would readily sell for $2 each, or $32, while the entire book, with the sixteen pictures, together with sumptuous bindings of the volume, can be had for one-fifth of that amount. The book is published in ENGLISH and in GERMAN, and is making a tremendous

Ordinance No. 41.

Requiring Sidewalks to be Cleared of Snow.

Be it ordained by the City Council of the city of Portsmouth as follows:

SEC. 1. The occupants, or, if unoccupied, the owners, of all buildings and lands situate within the city, shall keep the sidewalk adjoining their respective premises, in all cases where a sidewalk has been or may be constructed, free from snow, by causing the snow to be removed into the street and evenly spread, within six hours after the cessation of every fall thereof, or when the snow shall have blown or drifted upon the old walk by the wind. The time herein allowed for the performance of the work, to be computed from sunrise the succeeding morning whenever the fall of snow shall have ceased in the night time.

SEC. 2. Any person disregarding or offending against the provisions of this ordinance shall, upon conviction thereof, forfeit and pay a fine not exceeding ten dollars for each and every offence, with costs of prosecution; and it shall be the duty of the street commissioner, under the counsel and direction of the Mayor, to cause this ordinance to be enforced.

Passed Dec. 31, 1874.

Ordinance No. 65.

An Amendment of Ordinance No. 41—Requiring Sidewalks to be Cleared of Snow.

Be it ordained by the City Council of the city of Portsmouth as follows:

That ordinance number forty-one, requiring sidewalks to be cleared of snow, be so amended by adding to section one the following clause, viz: That when any of said sidewalks are covered with ice, so as to make the passing dangerous, said owners or occupants shall spread over said sidewalk ashes, sand or dust in such a manner as to prevent the same from being dangerous.

Passed Jan. 79, 1860. n25.1m

A Strange Suit and a Stranger Verdict.

Mr. Harry Knack, of Wolcot, Iowa, lost fifty dollars in March, 1872, that sum being stolen from him very mysteriously. Hearing his wife are believers in magic, and being familiarly acquainted with students of the black art in the neighborhood, invited them to hold a seance at their house to determine where the money had gone. The name of the thief could not be extracted from stones or herbs, as was proved by experiment, so a door-key and a Bible were procured, and the key being placed between the leaves of the Bible, it was secured by cords bound around the book, when the whole was held suspended by two of those present, while a third called over the names of all the people in the neighborhood. When the name of Jacob Barker, a very respectable citizen, was pronounced, the charm operated, and the book fell with a crash, leaving the key still suspended. The Knacks very promptly called on Mr. Barker for restitution, he as promptly declining to make any, having none to make. His disclaimer was not convincing, and his neighbors made his ears burn by their general circulation of remarks concerning his character. At length matters went so far that feeling that he must leave the town where he was no longer respected, or else vindicate himself against the charges so freely made and so weakly sustained, Mr. Baker chose the latter course and brought suit against the Knacks for defamation of character. The case came to trial recently and the jury gave a verdict for the defendants, thus virtually allowing that in the magic revelation made to them the Knacks had sufficient ground for their charges. Wolcot, Iowa, is either a centre from which a new light is to be diffused over the scientific world, or it is a field for the labors of a practical, common-sense missionary.

Purity of Character.

Henry Ward Beecher draws the following beautiful parallel:

"Over the beauty of the plum and apricot there grows a bloom and beauty more exquisite than the fruit itself; a soft, delicate flush that overspreads its blushing cheek.

Now if you strike your hand over that, and it is once gone, it is gone forever, for it never grows but once. The flower that hangs in the morning, impearled with dew—arrayed with jewels—once shake it, so that the heads fall off, and you may sprinkle water over it as you please, yet it can never be made again what it was when the dews fell lightly upon it from heaven. On a frosty morning you may see the panes of glass covered with landscapes, mountains, lakes, and trees, blended into a beautiful, fantastic picture. Now lay your hands upon the glass, and by the scratch of your finger or by the warmth of the palm all the delicate tracery will be obliterated.

So there is in youth a beauty and purity of character which when once touched and defiled can never be restored; a fringe more delicate than frostwork, and which when torn and broken will never be re-embroidered. A man who has spotted and soiled his garments in youth, though he may seek to make them white again, can never wholly do it, even were he to wash them with his tears. When a young man leaves his father's house with the blessing of his mother's tears still wet upon his forehead, if he once loses that early purity of character it is a loss that he can never make whole again. Such is the consequence of crime. Its effect can not be eradicated, it can only be forgiven."

Advice to Young Skaters.

Never try to skate in more than one direction at once

Eat a few apples for refreshment's sake while skating, and be sure to throw the cores on the ice for fast skaters to break their shins over.

There is no law to prevent a beginner from sitting down whenever he is so inclined.

Skate over all the small boys at once. Knock 'em down. It makes great fun, and they like it.

If you skate into a hole in the ice, take it coolly. Think how you would feel if the water were boiling hot.

If your skates are too slippery, buy a new pair. Keep buying new pairs until you find a pair that is not slippery.

In sitting down, do it gradually. Don't be too sudden; you may break the ice.

When you fall headlong, examine the straps of your skates very carefully before you get up. That will make everybody think you fell because your skate was loose.

Wear a heavy overcoat or cloak until you get thoroughly warmed up, then throw it off, and let the wind cool you. This will insure you a fine cold.

After you get so you can skate tolerable well skate three or four hours—skate frantically—skate till you can't stand.

Cost of a Congressman's Death.

The death of a member is something of a perquisite, custom having established the usage of maintaining a sort of professional mourning on the part of the House, something after the style of the hired mourners of England and Scotland. If a member dies in Washington, the Sergeant-at-Arms may pay the landlord of his hotel $100 for having granted the privilege of a death in his house. Six stalwart men must then watch with two relieds by his bed during the period that the body is in the custody of the house. Better for some of the dead that they had been more closely watched before they left the legislative halls! Deputies must attend the body to its destination in the State of the deceased, unless the friends claim the right of burial in the Congressional burying-ground. Altogether, and I have a definite case in mind, it costs about $2,000 to bury a Congressman decently who dies in Washington. The funeral expenses cost a little more than the back-pay for one year. Perhaps the back-pay will serve as funeral expenses for some, with out the benefit of clergy. Gentlemen, watch-dogs of the Treasury anxious to practice economy, would do their constituency and the country a service by dying at home.

Readables.

The republican forces besieging Carthagena, Spain, were repulsed with heavy loss on Friday. An insurrection broke out in Barcelona on Thursday.

The revenue steamer Levi Woodbury has been ordered from Boston to Portland to perform winter cruising duty on the coast of Maine in the place of the revenue steamer McCulloch, which is undergoing repairs.

James G. Speight, the young violinist, who has been playing at the Boston Theatre, died of heart disease, Saturday night. He was but seven years old and was a wonderful performer, being known as "Young Americus."

The youngest man in the United States House of Representatives is Lynch, the colored member from Mississippi. He was a slave at Natchez until the Union army entered that town, and had no education then. He is but 26 years old.

The air of a coal mine has been discovered in Bloomington, Ill., to be a sure cure for whooping cough, and whenever children have it, they are incontinently placed down in a coal mine underneath the ground till they recover.

The Montreal firemen are to have a new kind of respirator, consisting of a metal case filled with glycerine and powdered charcoal. These will not only preserve the men from suffocation, but also effectually prevent them from yelling, which all firemen used to think particularly efficacious in extinguishing fires.

The people of Desmoines, Iowa, are gossiping because a big, good-natured, well-meaning dog, intending with the best of motives to perform his portion of the duties at an aristocratic wedding, carried a bride's train in his mouth as she went forward in church to be married, and then gravely sat down on the train, "on guard," till the ceremony was over.

The Toledo Press says: "If we have bread riots Congress must answer for it." To which the Dubuque Times responds forcibly if not elegantly: "Some persons are so prone to cast the blame of every failure or mishap upon the government, that they would insist 'Congress must answer for it' every time a country editor makes an ass of himself."

Mr. Crutchfield (Rep., Tenn.,) an uneducated and singular genius, who calls himself "Davy Crockett, Second," and "Plough Boy," and who desires to be the funny man of the House, offered an amendment to the Civil Rights bill that any white woman who refuses an offer of marriage from any negro shall be fined a sum of not less than $1,000 nor more than $5,000. The amendment was greeted with laughter, but General Butler, who has charge of the bill, declined to accept it.

State News.

Congressman Small has introduced into the House a bill for the improvement of the Exeter and Nashua rivers.

One track layer at Wilton gouged out the eye of a fellow workman.

A Concord young lady, eighteen years old, weighs 202 pounds and hasn't finished eating yet.

The Franklin Journal says Congressman Pike is still ill at home, but is improving. He will hardly be able to resume his duties at Washington this month.

Green Spencer, a resident of Stratford Hollow, can do something which but few persons can or want to. He can stick his tongue out under his jaw, a hand-spike having rebounded in a saw mill and hit him there.

At about half-past nine o'clock on Friday evening a fire, caused by the upsetting of a kerosene lamp, broke out in G. F. Green's millinery store, in Hill's block, Pittsfield. Mr. Green's stock of goods is a total loss; damaged by smoke and water. Insurance on goods, $3000.

A barn connected with the hotel in Chesterfield, belonging to Peter B. Hayward and Morgan J. Sherman of Keene, was burned on Friday night; loss about $2000, which is partially insured. A person was arrested on suspicion of being the incendiary, but discharged for want of proof. An uninhabited house in Keene village was burned the same night; loss light.

A fire at Nashua, Sunday, destroyed a building on Hollis street, formerly occupied by N. W. Burke & Son as a bakery. It was owned by the Smith heirs, and valued at $5000. It was insured for $3000. Burke & Son lose between $300 and $400 on property in the building; no insurance. The fire communicated with several buildings belonging to the manufacturing establishment of Warner & Whitney, and it was with considerable difficulty that their large establishment was saved. The loss is estimated at $2000 on the buildings, on which there is $900 insurance in several companies. The loss on patterns and stock is between $3000 and $4000, on which there is no insurance.

Washington Correspondence.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 10.

The Congressional action has been exciting over the civil rights bill. After four days' discussion, it went back to committee, for the further consideration of amendments and to see if any change was required in the bill. It will probably be reported back for action early in the week. The telegraph has given you full accounts of the debate so far as it was of interest. The exhibition of plantation manners of the overseer style by Harris of Virginia, has at least taught others if not himself a lesson of caution. The castigation and contempt he received from Elliott of South Carolina, a full-blooded negro, amid the cheers of the House and galleries, will probably so reconstruct his manners as to keep him still or decent hereafter. Elliott's speech is everywhere spoken of as brilliant and able, and delivered in a manner to secure the undivided attention of House and galleries.

ALEX. STEPHENS.

Alex. Stephens' speech, was liberal in sentiment, but for leaving the regulation of the matter to the State. His shrill voice, and shrivelled appearance, as he stood behind a pile of books and a desk to lean upon, with black smoking cap on the back of his head, and a fringe of gray hair,—almost white, coming down about two inches below it, made a grotesque appearance. It was a curious sight to see Stephens and Butler sitting and holding each other by the hand while talking over the bill like the most intimate friends. The contrast in personal appearance could not have been greater as they sat back of the outside row of seats. Notwithstanding his feeble and shrivelled appearance, at a distance, upon a near look his face has a healthy appearance, and his eye is remarkably bright and clear, with a pleasant expression. He has so long been an historical character as to make him an object of attention at all times.

Speaking of Butler calls to mind the fact that he has recently had republished a speech he made in January, 1869, upon financial questions. It was a speech of marked ability and is commanding more attention now than when first delivered. It was a speech of great labor and care, and presents the paper money and elastic currency view of the financial question.

MONEY EAST.

The prediction of your correspondent made some months ago that money to let would be a drug in the markets by the middle of January, seems about to be realized. The inflation already made by putting out the reserve, and untying the old stocking has started speculation, and the demand for legislation to give further increase halts. The estimates for the next year are receiving a searching scrutiny, and objects which can roast without much detriment will have to do so. It now seems pretty certain there will be no increase of taxation.

THE GRAB TALK.

The Senate is still at work on the salary bill, and nobody can predict what will be done in the end. The trouble is they all like the money and but few are willing to stand the reduction. There may be some doubt whether a reduction made under such compulsion as public opinion is now imposing, would hold. It isn't free legislation. Men are as unwilling to cut down their pay as they are to increase their taxes. Senator Pratt of Indiana made one of the best speeches for repeal. He shew that the law of 1866, which raised the salary from $3000 to $5000 when gold was worth 150, only increased the pay of members on a gold standard $333.33 per year, while the decline of gold had been such as to make the pay of members on a gold standard, a thousand dollars a year more than it was immediately after it was raised to $5000 in 1866, and in view of that fact, there was no just occasion for the increase made at the last Congress.

THE CHIEF JUSTICESHIP.

The withdrawal of the name of Attorney General Williams for Chief Justice, and the substitution of that of Caleb Cushing, while it improves the matter in point of legal record and ability, has other objections which quite offset it, and will make the nomination unsatisfactory.

THE NEW HAMPSHIRE PLATFORM.

The calm and decided tone of the Republicans of New Hampshire in their State convention is matter of favorable comment here, and braces up the the man determined on retrenchment.

A St. Louis Funny Man Abroad.

NEW ORLEANS, December, 1873.

Editor Republican: Glad you noticed the undersigned in your paper 'tother day—everybody likes to be noticed, except taxpayers and jurymen. Wanted to write you before, but have been up in Mississippi and got appointed purchasing agent for a grange. Buying sugar and bacon is easy enough but some of the orders pester me right smartly; for instance, one for a fashionable calico dress for a female lady granger about my size, with a hump on her back. Have been to a dressmaker every morning for a week to try it on. She puts a corn basket on my back for a hump, with my arms through the handle. Got it pretty near right now if we can only match the figures. I don't mind the trouble so much as I do the sewing girls' snickering.

Went into a boot maker's shop in Charles street, to buy a left boot for a granger with one limb left. Had to buy the pair, and will have to wait for some one contrarily wise affected for the other. Shoemaker was angry at somebody, and asked me if I thought it was right for boots to be left after being ordered; told him I supposed they wouldn't have been left if they were right. I left him scratching his head with an awl and studying over it.

Dropped in at the Southern Express office and asked the agent if they could take a joke. Said they could if it wasn't sent in a "Roundabout" way.

I noticed a door mat hanging in front of a house-furnishing store on Camp street, with the word "salve" on it. The man told me it meant "welcome." I know better—salve isn't welcome to anybody. If I kept a 'pothecary shop I would buy that mat.

You don't know how many hours I have spent gazing at the fountain on Canal street. It beats anything in the way of a squirt I ever saw, except Catawba; and it was considerate in the projector to put a pilothouse over it, so that the lady wouldn't be exposed to the rain. Why don't they build a high board fence across Canal street to keep the wind from blowing the water out of the pilothouse windows? If I was Henry Clay I'd come down some night when the policemen were asleep, and kick it over, or else turn around and gaze lakeward.

A lady in the country wants me to buy "Bitter Sweet," by Doctor Holland. Went to Finlay's, but he didn't have it, wanted to sell me Hoofland's Bitters; said maybe I could get 'other at Eyrich's, but he couldn't fool me—they don't keep drugs in book stores.

Been out on the levee to-day. Saw how they raise cotton—raise it on a scales. A man stood by the scales writing in a book; asked him if he was writing "notes by the weigh side;" he told me it I wanted to see a curiosity to go up to the Planters' Press, where they squeeze the juice out of the bales and make cottonade. Is that so?

Well, so long. I promised to meet a gentleman on St. Charles at two o'clock. Wants me to see him draw the money on a lottery ticket; says he knows me. Somebody must have told him who I am.

I. X. PECK.

Sleep.

[Gail Hamilton in Harper's Bazar.]

The one requisite to good health, good looks, sweet temper, prosperity in business and general success in life, is sleep. I do not know whether we shall be able, as Matthew Arnold says, to "hit it off happily" with Solomon. It is, perhaps, not quite easy to tell exactly what he had in his mind; but if he meant that poor people should try and cut down their sleep to the smallest possible allowance, it may be superfluous, but is certainly irresistible, to remark that I do not agree with him. But he did not probably mean that. He certainly would not be likely to differ from me. The necessity of sleep, it may be admitted, is a disagreeable necessity. To turn aside from all the pleasures of life, from the sweet consciousness of existence, to give over our thoughts and love, and memory and hope—all plans of pursuits—and go down into forgetfulness or unconsciousness, is, or seems to be, an unspeakable loss. It is a death, temporary, but imperious and ever recurring. Yet it is so universal, so gradual, so natural, that we yield to it not only without dread, but with delight. In the silent splendor of the star-lit nights, which seems to put us on a brotherly footing with the whole universe, in the blackness of the nights which know no star, when we seem to be standing alone in the solitude of eternity, life is too fascinating, and we begrudge a moment lost; but even then, without will, against will, the heavy eyelids droop, and, all unhindered, the sly soul slips away into some remote recess of the brain, to lie in ambush for the rising dawn and the strong new world.

If we could have been made to get along without sleep, I should like it better, but since sleep we must, why should we quarrel with fate? Our ancestors, staunch men in many regards, have yet done the world harm by their indiscriminate abuse of sleep. One would think, to read some books, that slumber was an invention of the Evil One, to be repressed and subdued continually. On the contrary, sleep comes nearer being a panacea than any pill or potion ever concocted. We do, indeed, yield to the truth of history so far as to tell the children of beauty, sleep, and bid them go to bed early; but we forget all about it in the morning, and stimulate them to early rising. Indeed, ignorance and folly sometimes go so far as to awaken children for the purpose of getting them up, which is just not murder in the first degree. Lay it down as the rule of family life that nobody is to be waked by external means. There may be extraordinary circumstances which justify a violation of the rule. If the house is on fire, and hand and steam engines fail to extinguish the flames, sleepers must be awakened; but even then begin with those nearest the fire, and bestir others only as the danger advances. I suppose it is absolutely certain that when a man has slept long enough, he will wake of his own accord. The time at which sleep is taken is of less account than the amount of sleep. If it can be had in the darkness, doubtless that is best; but sleep by daylight is a good thing too. Some people take credit to themselves for accomplishing much before breakfast, but after breakfast you are constantly finding them napping on the sofa, or nodding in the lounging chair.

—The Duke of Edinburgh and the Grand Duchess Maria will board with Queen Victoria until their house is ready for housekeeping. There will be the stoves for the Duke to put up, and Maria will want to paper her own bed-room, and there will be carpets to put down, which will give them both something to do; and when they get under way, Victoria will run in and help, baking days; come over to wring out things, Mondays, as it were. So the young couple have a clear future before them. Here's to their goot helt unt der families; unt may dey leef long unt broosper.

—A careful estimate has been made concerning this shower we've all been enjoying so much, and the result is as follows: If it had been snow, instead of rain, the snow would just reach the tops of the boots of a man seven hundred and thirty-seven feet two inches high, provided the man wore boots which came up to his knees. Or, if he lived in an eighteen story house he could have touched the top of the snow with a match from his twelfth-story window. It is one ground of thankfulness that this rain wasn't snow.

The York Senators.

The Kennebec Journal thus describes the members of the Maine Senate from York county:

Butler, John Edward, Biddeford, (York county). Republican, Free Baptist, Editor and Lawyer, married; age 38. Born in Berwick, and educated at Bowdoin College. As editor of the Biddeford Union and Journal he has shown himself a forcible and graceful writer, and has taken a prominent part in the politics of York county and of the State. Member of the Philadelphia National Convention of 1872, as delegate from the First District of Maine, and for five years has been the York member of the Republican State Central Committee, and twice chairman of York Republican County Committee; entered the editorial profession in 1863; was admitted to the bar in 1865; member of the Senate in 1873, and was re-elected by the largest majority ever before given to any candidate in York county. Always a Republican.

Hall, John, North Berwick, (York co.) Republican, Free Baptist, farmer and dealer in wood and lumber, married; age 51. Born in North Berwick; attended school in that town. Was Quartermaster's Sergeant in the 26th Regiment Me. Vols., and afterwards Quartermaster of the 32d Regiment Me. Vols.; was promoted to Commissary in Gen. F. Fessenden's brigade. Formerly a whig.

Hanson, P. F., Sanford, (York county.) Republican, Baptist, farmer and merchant, married; age 55. Born in Sanford; attended the common schools; County Commissioner for six years; member of the Legislature in 1863. Formerly a whig.

Business Notices.

If you feel dull, drowsy, debilitated, have frequent headache, mouth tastes badly, poor appetite and tongue coated, you are suffering from Torpid Liver or "Billiousness," and nothing will cure you so speedily and permanently as Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. 708

Buchu.—The curative properties of this shrub in cases of dropsy, gravel, kidney diseases and obscure disorders are now well known to physicians. Dr. Helmbold originally popularized this medicine, and no other chemist has been able to extract its virtues with equal skill. Helmbold's Buchu is still the standard and genuine Extract. Patients and Physicians prefer it. The genuine bears H. T. Helmbold's signature. All apothecaries sel it.

Sufferers with PILES should erect a monument to Dr. SITZNER for his beneficent discovery of ANAKESIS, an infallible cure for the worst cases of piles—a failure in 20,000 cases has not been recorded. It is a simple suppository, painless and easy of application, gives instant relief, acts as an instrument, soothing poultice and medicine, and cannot fail to cure. Lotions, ointments, and internal remedies may fail, but ANAKESIS is infallible.—Price $1.00. Sold by Druggists everywhere. Principal Depot, 46 Walker st., New York.

The Living Telegrapher.

Symptoms are the silent characters through which the diseased body telegraphs its condition. But they are not always read aright, and the medicines administered sometimes aggravate instead of relieving the complaint. Conspicuous among the instances of malpractice which are of daily occurrence, is the habit of dosing dyspeptic and constipated invalids with powerful cathartics. Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, in which are skilfully blended the vegetable elements best adapted to the invigoration of the stomach, and removal, without violence, of regular discharges from the bowels, should be taken twice or thrice a day as a remedy for indigestion of every type, and for costiveness, whether chronic or casual. No other medicine will be required as the cure will be rapid and painless. No medicine, as yet discovered or compounded, equals Hostetter's Bitters as a specific for all affections of the liver, as well as for diseases of the stomach, the bowels and the nerves.

Old Probabilities. Our learned friend, who sits at Washington, and receives, from the signal stations of a continent, reports on the vicissitudes of the weather, sorts, compares and infers from them the daily bulletins which everybody reads, might reasonably add, in view of our late sudden changes, "Colds, Coughs and affections of the throat and lungs will prevail in the East and North. Warning signals continue in the West and South." In view of the truth of these probabilities, we commend to all sufferers that excellent and potent specific, Ayer's Cherry Pectoral. It has, in countless instances, saved life, and has, within the knowledge of every one, alleviated most alarming symptoms and effected cures almost surpassing belief. So excellent is it that the medical faculty largely use it in their practice. In cases of seated consumption, it prolongs life and softens the stay of the afflicted sufferer. About these days it is well to have it in the house. By its timely use, serious disease may be checked and turned aside.—Nashua (Iowa) Post.

Local Matters.

Ox-Team Fashions.

In all countries except the United States, teams passing on the streets or roads, and persons walking on the side-walks, turn out to the left, while in this country, we turn to the right. The reason for this is that they, when driving, turn to the left that they may watch the wheels of their vehicle and not collide with passing teams. By sitting on the right they can better see the wheels on their sides. The gentleman, and not the lady receives the mud thrown by the passing team. In walking in other countries, one always gives his left arm to the lady, conceding to her the use of the right. Then, by turning to the left, he takes all the chances of colliding with those he may meet, thus shielding the lady from such inconveniences as well as protecting her from the liability of receiving an ejection of smoke or saliva from the tobacco or cigar.

Now the question suggests itself, if they have such strong reasons for their customs, why did our ancestors change? It is because our grand-parents, when they came to this country, used oxen more than horses; and walking beside their teams when driving, had the same reason for turning to the right that others had for turning to the left, that they might the better watch the side next the passer by. But why we still, now that the ox has almost passed out of use, keep up this old ox-team fashion, people must answer for himself. But another very important question arises—In how many other particulars are we keeping up just such old ox-team fashions? It is pleasant to retain the style and customs of our fathers when we can reasonably do so. Yet we would hardly wish to ignore all modern improvements; the use of steam, telegraphing, etc.; and it is economy oftentimes, to change even when it incurs an expense for the time being, as in taking up the cobble stone paving in our streets and replacing with a "Nicholson" or some other modern improvement, as the wear and tear of horses and carriages would be sufficient to pay the difference in cost, to say nothing of the pleasure of having smooth streets, and not being constantly reminded of the saying, "Rattle his bones over the stones!" Also the cobble-stone crosswalks, which have been the cause of many weak ankles, and perhaps some life cripples; and again the changing of such roofs of buildings as slope toward the streets, causing snow-slides, and mashing new hats and bonnets, to say nothing of heads—particularly the business streets. The passing of an ordinance creating a "fire district," prohibiting the building of wooden buildings in the more compact part of the city, as well as many other old ox-team styles of our grand-fathers, time has improved upon.

TOWN TALK.

Rye.

The Orthodox society is arranging for a levee to be holden in the new Town Hall some time next month.

The manager of the School lecture course is arranging to have one evening supplied by local talent, entirely from the schools. Each of the schools in town will be invited to contribute its quota of picked reading and speakers, and they are already "brushing up" for the occasion.

Mrs. H. M. Miller's reading on Saturday and Sunday evenings was greeted with very large audience's. She has never read in town before, and her masterly rendering of several choice selections, was greatly admired.

ATLANTIC.

Kittery.

The New England Jubilee Singers gave an enjoyable concert at Trefethen Hall, Sunday evening, an appreciative audience being present. The singers showed a marked improvement since their debut a short time ago. There is a desire to hear them sing genuine plantation songs.

Laconics.

In Rye, in 1873, twenty persons died out of 1000 inhabitants. In Lancaster, 38.

Mr. Elijah Clough has been appointed master joiner in the department of Yards & Docks at the navy Yard, vice Mr. Joshua Stackpole.

Abram Evans, a poor laboring man, was robbed of $30 by two ruffians while returning home from the post office, Thursday evening.

Wilson & Clarke's company opened at the Temple, last evening, and gave a good entertainment. They have a change of programme for this evening.

We presume it is our worthy friend Howard F. Hill who remarks in the Concord Patriot that the grunt of Daniel H. Spinney's big hog "sounds like a bass drum."

Nearly 10,000 feet of close board fence has been erected on the Portland division of the Eastern railroad, at different points where the snow blows in and drifts.

At the request of a number of their friends the members of Kearsarge S. F. E. Co., No. 3, will give a series of assemblies, the first to take place Thursday evening next.

The Biddeford Times says Eben Simpson fire company's ball was successful and the appearance of the Portsmouth "Sarges" with their elegant present was a "bewildering surprise."

Mr. George N. Loomis died very suddenly of heart disease at his residence on Summer street, early Monday morning. He was the general agent of the Continental Life Insurance Co., and it is said had his life insured. Mr. Loomis was a respected citizen, quiet and unassuming.

"Whenever," says an aged patriot, "I see a man with a scar about him which may have been received in battle, I read it as a certificate of indebtedness, or a draft at sight on my gratitude, and honor it accordingly." This is all very well, but let it be paid in coin, and not in sentiment, or indorsed over.

Among the announcements for the January number of the Historical and Genealogical Register is a memoir of the famous Captain Francis Champernowne, a kinsman of Sir Walter Raleigh and of Sir Ferdinand Gorges, who came to Portsmouth in the time of Charles the First, and died in Kittery, at an advanced age, in the reign of James the Second. It is a very interesting paper.

A Haverhill (Mass.) dispatch says: The body of an infant found in a box bearing the direction of "J. Howe, Haverhill," as telegraphed from Portsmouth on Saturday, proves to be that of a still born child which was given to some medical students of this city for dissection, but through neglect became so decomposed that dissection was not advisable, and the body was put in the box and thrown into the river.

They don't go in for so much rotation in office, in Massachusetts. The Boston Transcript states that Leonard Huntress of Tewksbury, (a native of Portsmouth, who learned the printer's trade in the Journal office,) has just been again chosen chairman of the Board of County Commissioners, which office he has held for twenty-five years! Of course, his long experience is very valuable to the county, in that responsible position.

Boston Sympathy for Portsmouth Sixty Years Ago.

Early in 1814 collections were taken up in the churches of Boston in aid of the sufferers by a serious fire in Portsmouth. The contributions amounted to nearly $6000. Besides this collection were large offerings through other channels. Boston was then but a small town compared with its present size and population, and the times were peculiarly hard, owing to war with England, and the maintenance, in New England, of specie payments. The contributions were in coin or its equivalent, worth elsewhere a premium of eighteen to twenty per cent.

—A letter from Georgia says that labor is cheap there—"that is, negro labor, for much of the white labor of the South would not be cheap at any price. The better classes seem to devote themselves to brandy and billiards; while the chief occupation of the lower orders seem to be whiskey and whistling."

—Housekeepers should remember, when boiling cabbage, that a bit of red pepper, the size of the finger-end, dropped into the boiler, will kill all unpleasant odor.

—They have a three-eyed cat in Noank, and the mayor of that municipality proudly asks the country at large, "How is that for eye?"

We have received to-day a large lot of FLOUR in Barrels and Half-Barrels, which we propose to sell at

PRICES THAT CAN'T BE BEAT.

PRIDE OF THE WEST	$10.75
RED JACKET	12.00
GE-LINE	9.25
A	10.00
LILY OF THE VALLEY	10.50

These prices are less than the same brands of quality can be bought in this State, and we guarantee everything as we say, or you can return it at our expense.

WITH EVERY BARREL of Flour so sold, we shall give you

Your Choice of Two

SPLENDID STEEL ENGRAVINGS,

(Samples of which can be seen at our store.)

The Village Blacksmith,

AND

Signing the Compact in the Cabin of the Mayflower,

AS A PREMIUM PRESENT!

These Engravings are elegant agaits, and worthy a place in any house.

Now, don't let anybody make you believe that we can't do this and give you a GOOD article of FLOUR at the same price they can; because if you do, you will be deceived. We thought these pictures in New York at such prices that we can afford to do it.

Why? Just because it so increases our sales that even with a small profit on the Flour, we can make dry wages. 2d, because when people come to buy Flour they see the prices of other goods and buy them. 3d, because everybody knows we always do just what we advertise to do.

NOW TRY US. All we ask is for you to call, see and be convinced.

AYER'S HAIR VIGOR,

FOR RESTORING GRAY HAIR

TO ITS NATURAL VITALITY AND COLOR.

Advancing years, sickness, care, disappointment, and hereditary predisposition, all turn the hair gray, and either of them incline it to shed prematurely.

AYER'S HAIR VIGOR, by long and extensive use, has proven that it stops the falling of the hair immediately; often renews the growth, and always surely restores the color when faded or gray. It stimulates the nutritive organs to healthy activity, and preserves both the hair and its beauty. Thus brashy, weak or sickly hair becomes glossy, pliable and strong; the lost hair regrows with lively expression; falling hair is checked and established; thin hair thickens; and faded or gray hair resumes its original color. Its operation is sure and harmless. It cures dandruff, heals all humors, and keeps the scalp cool, clean and soft—under which conditions diseases of the scalp are impossible.

As a dressing for ladies' hair, the VIGOR is praised for its grateful and agreeable perfume, and valued for the soft lustre and richness of tone it imparts.

Heat and Disease.

During the reheating of the furnaces in an iron establishment in England, says the British Journal of Science, the men worked when the thermometer, placed so as not to be influenced by the radiation of heat from the open doors, marked 120 degrees. In the Bessemer pits, the men continue a kind of labor requiring great muscular effort at 140 degrees. In some of the operations of glass making, the ordinary summer working temperature is considerably over 100, and the radiant heat to which the workmen are subjected far exceeds 212 degrees. In a Turkish bath the shampooers continue four or five hours at a time in a moist atmosphere at temperatures ranging from 105 to 110 degrees. In enamel works, men labor daily in a heat of over 300 degrees. On the Red Sea steamers, the temperature of the stoke hole is 145 degrees. And yet in none of these cases does any special form or type of disease develope itself.

CONSTITUTIONAL CATARRH REMEDY.

To Messrs. Littlefield & Co., Proprietors of Constitutional Catarrh Remedy, Manchester, N.H.:

I reside at Manchester N., H., and previously resided at Hooksett, and am a native of Weare, this State. I have had Catarrh twenty-five years, ever since I was 10 years old; had it bad all the time. It run all that period, and nights it would fill up and drop down in my throat, causing a feeling of choking, so that I would spring up in bed to save myself from strangulation. It affected my head so that I felt confused, and was troubled with severe headache at intervals, for a week at a time. I also had bad pains in shoulders, back and kidneys, from which I suffered immensely. So bad was they, that a year ago last summer I was obliged to lie in bed most of the time for three months. I have tried all kinds of snuff and Catarrh remedies with no particular benefit, and consulted physicians. I had a hacking cough. I began to take the Constitutional Catarrh Remedy last August. I began to grow better before finishing the first bottle. I am now on the third bottle. My Catarrh is cured; my health is restored. I have no pains, aches, or cough. My whole system is made over new. I know it is this medicine that has cured me from intense suffering and almost the grave. I am now able to do the hardest work and bear the greatest exposure, and feel that I cannot say too much in favor of the Constitutional Catarrh remedy.

MRS. E. J. FLANDERS.

Manchester, N. H., Feb. 1, 1873.

I am now 35 years old, have had Catarrh ever since I was eighteen years old, and headache all the time; have suffered beyond description with running at the nose, droppings in the throat, coughings and strangulings. Have tried any quantity of Catarrh Remedies, but have found no relief till I tried your Constitutional Catarrh Remedy, six months ago. I found immediate relief.

Catarrh and all its attendant evils have left, Headache, Pains in Loins and Back, Dizziness, Loss of Appetite, and General Weakness. Less than three bottles of Constitutional Catarrh Remedy have cured me. I have not been so well since I can remember as now. I feel as if I could not say too much for the medicine, or thank God too heartily that through its instrumentality I have been restored to health.

MARY M. ABBOTT,
No. 17 Manchester Corporation.

Manchester, N. H., Jan. 27, 1872.

The above lady is my mother. I am a painter by trade, and a member of the City Council of Manchester. Every word that my mother states is true.

JACOB J. ABBOTT.

Hundreds of cases of a similar nature cured within the last year. Snuffs and Lotions are only temporary relief. The CONSTITUTIONAL CATARRH REMEDY strikes at the root, builds up the constitution, makes it new, and drives away Catarrh and all diseases of the mucous membranes and their attendant pains and aches, pertaining to head, back, shoulders, kidneys, and throat.

Price $1 per Bottle. Sold by all Druggists. A Pamphlet of 32 pages, giving a Treatise on Catarrh, and containing innumerable cases of cures, sent FREE, by addressing the Proprietors,

IRON IN THE BLOOD.

DYSPEPSIA, DEBILITY, DROPSY AND HUMORS.

PERUVIAN SYRUP

Makes The Weak Strong.

The Peruvian Syrup, a Protected Solution of the Protoxide of Iron, is so combined as to have the character of an aliment, as easily digested and assimilated with the blood as the simplest food. It increases the quantity of Nature's Own Vitalizing Agent, Iron in the blood, and cures "a thousand ills," simply by Toning up, Invigorating and Vitalizing the System. The enriched and vitalized blood permeates every part of the body, repairing damages and waste, searching out morbid secretions, and leaving nothing for disease to feed upon.

This is the secret of the wonderful success of this remedy in curing Dyspepsia, Liver Complaint, Dropsy, Chronic Diarrhœa, Boils, Nervous Affections, Chills and Fevers, Humors, Loss of Constitutional Vigor, Diseases of the Kidneys and Bladder, Female Complaints, and all diseases originating in a bad state of the blood, or accompanied by debility or a low system. Being free from Alcohol, in any form its energizing effects are not followed by corresponding reaction, but are permanent, infusing strength, vigor, and new life into all parts of the system, and building upon an Iron Constitution.

Thousands have been changed by the use of this remedy, from weak, sickly, suffering creatures to strong, healthy, and happy men and women; and invalids cannot reasonably hesitate to give it a trial.

See that each bottle has PERUVIAN SYRUP blown in the glass.

AMERICAN & FOREIGN PATENTS.

R. H. EDDY,
SOLICITOR OF PATENTS,

For Inventions, Trade Marks or Designs,

No. 76 State St., Opposite Kilby St., Boston.

After an extensive practice of upwards of thirty years, continues to secure patents in the United States; also in Great Britain, France and other foreign countries. Caveats, Specifications, Assignments, and all papers for Patents, executed on reasonable terms with dispatch. Researches made to determine the validity and utility of Patents of Inventions, and legal and other advice rendered in all matters touching the same. Copies of the claims of any patent furnished, by remitting one dollar. Assignments recorded in Washington.

No Agency in the United States possesses superior facilities for obtaining Patents or ascertaining the patentability of inventions.

All necessity for a journey to Washington to procure a Patent and the usual great delay there, are thereby saved inventors.

TESTIMONIALS.

"I regard Mr. Eddy as one of the most capable and successful practitioners with whom I have had official intercourse. CHARLES MASON,
Commissioner of Patents."

"I have no hesitation in assuring inventors that they cannot employ a man more competent and trustworthy and more capable of putting their applications in a form to secure for them an early and favorable consideration at the Patent Office.

EDMUND BURKE,
Late Commissioner of Patents."

"Mr. R. H. Eddy has made for me over THIRTY applications for Patents, having been successful in almost every case. Such uninstandable proof of great talent and ability on his part leads me to recommend ALL inventors to apply to him to procure their Patents, as they may be sure of having the most faithful attention bestowed on their cases and at very reasonable charges.

JOHN TAGGART."

COAL.

HAVING contracted for a quantity of the above coal, we would call the attention of Manufacturers, Dealers and Consumers to the following different grades mined and controlled by the Company:

HARD WHITE ASH COAL,
FREE BURNING WHITE ASH COAL,
SHAMOKIN WHITE ASH COAL,
SHAMOKIN RED ASH COAL,
NORTH FRANKLIN COAL,
LYKENS VALLEY COAL.

In order that all coal shall be shipped in good order, a most rigid system of inspection, both at the mines and at the shipping ports, will be at all times enforced. In every district of the coal region there will be appointed a number of competent persons skilled in the preparation of coal, as local inspectors, whose duty it will be to visit the several collieries daily to see that a proper force is at all times employed in removing slate, and to prevent, if possible any coal being sent from the mines in bad order. In addition to these efforts at prevention, no means will be left untried at the shipping ports to cure the evil of careless preparation. At Schuylkill Haven, Port Clinton and Port Richmond, ALL COAL WILL BE SUBJECTED TO THE PERSONAL EXAMINATION OF A SKILLED INSPECTOR BEFORE IT IS SHIPPED, and if condemned by him, will be dumped in places provided for the purpose, and before being loaded into vessels WILL BE THOROUGHLY RE-PICKED AND CLEANED BY HAND.

We keep a fine stock of the above coal on hand, also

NOTICES OF THE PRESS.

The BAZAR is edited with a contribution of tact and talent that we seldom find in any journal; and the journal itself is the organ of the great world of fashion.—Boston Traveler.

The BAZAR commends itself to every member of the household—to the children by droll and pretty pictures, to the young ladies by its fashion-plates in endless variety, to the provident matron by its patterns for the children's clothes, to paterfamilias by its tasteful designs for embroidered slippers and luxurious dressing-gowns. But the reading-matter of the BAZAR is uniformly of great excellence. The paper has acquired a wide popularity for the fireside enjoyment it affords.—N. Y. Evening Post.

PROSPECTUS FOR 1874—SEVENTH YEAR.

THE ALDINE,

An Illustrated Monthly Journal, universally admitted to be the handsomest Periodical in the world. A Representative and Champion of American Taste.

NOT FOR SALE IN BOOK OR NEWS STORES.

THE ALDINE, while issued with all the regularity, has none of the temporary or ephemeral characteristic of ordinary periodicals. It is an elegant miscellany of pure, light and graceful literature; and a collection of the choicest specimens of artistic skill, in black and white. Although each succeeding number affords a fresh pleasure to its friends, the real value and beauty of THE ALDINE will be most appreciated after it has been bound up at the close of the year. While other publications may claim superior cheapness, as compared with rivals of a similar class, THE ALDINE is a unique and original conception—alone and unapproached—absolutely without competition in price or character. The possessor of a complete volume of THE ALDINE duplicates the quantity of fine paper and engravings in any other shape or number of volumes FOR TEN TIMES ITS COST; AND THEN, THERE ARE THE CHROMOS, BESIDE!

ART DEPARTMENT, 1874.

The illustrations of THE ALDINE have won a world-wide reputation, and in the art centres of Europe it is an admitted fact that its wood cuts are examples of the highest perfection ever attained. The common prejudice in favor of "steel plate engravings" is rapidly yielding to a more enlarged and discriminating taste which recognizes the advantages of superior artistic quality with greater facility of production. The wood cuts of THE ALDINE possess all the delicacy and elaborate finish of the most costly steel plate, while they afford a better rendering of the artist's original.

In addition to designs by the members of the National Academy, and other noted American artists, THE ALDINE will reproduce examples of the best foreign masters, selected with a view to the highest artistic success and greatest general interest. Thus the subscriber to THE ALDINE will, at a trifling cost, enjoy in his own home the pleasures and refining influences of true art.

The Christmas issue for 1874 will contain special designs appropriate to the season, by our best artists, and will surpass in attractions any of its predecessors.

PREMIUM FOR 1874.

Every subscriber to THE ALDINE for the year 1874 will receive a pair of chromos. The original pictures were painted in oil for the publishers of THE ALDINE, by Thomas Moran, whose great Colorado picture was purchased by Congress for ten thousand dollars. The subjects were chosen to represent "The East" and "The West." One is a view in The White Mountains, New Hampshire; the other gives the Falls of Green River, Wyoming Territory.

Every subscriber should indicate a preference for picture subject the publishers will send "Thoughts of Home," a new and beautiful chromo, 14x20 inches, representing a little Italian exile whose speaking eyes betray the longings of his heart.

TERMS.

$5 per annum, in advance, with Oil Chromos free.

Five 50 CENTS EXTRA, the chromos will be sent, mounted, varnished, and prepaid by mail.

THE ALDINE will, hereafter, be obtainable only by subscription. There will be no reduced or club rate; cash for subscriptions must be sent to the publishers direct, or handed to the local canvasser, without responsibility to the publishers, except in cases where the certificate is given, bearing the fac-simile signature of JAMES SUTTON & CO.

CANVASSERS WANTED.

Any person wishing to act permanently as a local canvasser will receive full and prompt information by applying to

The Country Gentleman.

Volume for 1874.

THE CULTIVATOR & COUNTRY GENTLEMAN, for the past forty years, has ranked, both in this country and abroad, as the STANDARD JOURNAL OF AMERICAN AGRICULTURE. The Editors and Proprietors, in addition to their own personal labors, have secured the assistance of a very large number of Special Correspondents and Regular Contributors, among whom are included many Leading Agriculturists, in all parts of the Union. East and West—served by over Five Hundred Occasional and Voluntary Writers, directly in the ranks of the Best Farmers and Horticulturists of nearly every State in the Union. With the co-operation of so large a corps of practical men, this Journal is intended to possess exceptional value as the chosen Medium of Intercommunication among all classes interested in the Products and Fertility of the land—those who Cultivate and those who Consume—the Buyer and Shipper, as well as the first Owner of the crop—Breeders of Improved Animals and their Customers—Manufacturers of Improved Machinery and those who purchase and employ it—Dairymen and Fruit Raisers—and, especially, to supply fuller and better data as to the progress, prospects and returns of each successive Season, as throwing light upon one of the most important of all questions—When to Buy and when to Sell.

TERMS.—The COUNTRY GENTLEMAN is published weekly, on the following terms when paid strictly in advance: ONE COPY, one year, $2.50; FOUR COPIES, $10, and an additional copy to the year free to the sender of the Club; TEN COPIES, $20, and an additional copy for the year free to the sender of the Club.

The Singer Still Triumphant!
At the Vienna Exhibition, the SINGER received the Medal of Merit, the Medal of Progress, and three other Medals for superiority of machines. These are the highest Sewing Machine Awards at Vienna. The SINGER received all the medals awarded to either of the competing machines, and two medals more than any other obtained. Then, in the name of Truth, what is it that prompts people to claim recommendations for the Diploma of Honor? The fact is, no Diploma of Honor has been given to any Sewing Machine Company.
But immeasurably more valuable is The World's Award as shown by sales—proved by sworn returns to the owners of the general Sewing Machine Patents—which last year amounted to TWO HUNDRED AND SIXTEEN THOUSAND, SEVEN HUNDRED AND FIFTY-EIGHT (216,758) machines, nine out of ten of them being for Family Use. This is over 45,000 more Sewing Machines were sold by any other company during the same period, and over One Quarter of all the machines sold in 1873. These experiences are owing to the long-tested merits of the Singer Machines, which meet the wants of the public in superiority and simplicity of construction, and capacity for great variety and excellence of work. That the users of Sewing Machines find these desirable qualities in the Singer, and all others, is shown by the sales above given, aside from the awards of International Juries, either at home or abroad.

Ordinance No. 41.

Requiring Sidewalks to be Cleared of Snow.

Be it ordained by the City Council of the city of Portsmouth as follows:

SEC. 1. The occupants, or if unoccupied, the owners, of all buildings and lands situate within the city, shall keep the sidewalk adjoining their respective premises in all cases when a sidewalk has been or may be constructed, free from snow, by causing the snow to be removed into the street and evenly spread, within six hours after the cessation of every fall thereof, or when the snow shall have blown or drifted upon the said walk by the wind. The time herein allowed for the performance of the work to be computed from sunrise the succeeding morning when over the fall of snow shall have ceased in the night time.

SEC. 2. Any person disregarding or offending against the provisions of this ordinance shall, upon conviction thereof, forfeit and pay a fine not exceeding ten dollars for each and every offence, with costs of prosecution; and it shall be the duty of the Street Commissioner, under the counsel and direction of the Mayor, to cause this ordinance to be enforced.

Passed Dec. 21, 1874.

Ordinance No. 65.

In Amendment of Ordinance No. 41—Requiring Sidewalks to be Cleared of Snow.

Be it ordained by the City Council of the city of Portsmouth as follows:

That ordinance number forty-one, requiring sidewalks to be cleared of snow, be amended by adding to section one the following clause, viz: That when any of said sidewalks are covered with ice so as to make the passing dangerous, said owners or occupants shall spread over said sidewalks ashes or salt in such a manner as to prevent the same from being dangerous.

Passed Jan. 19, 1860. n2-1m

Daily Chronicle.

Dear Experience.

David Commodore Halsey is one of the worst-used pedagogues that ever flourished the rod and ferrule. He has been teaching the young idea among the hills of Jefferson County, near the picturesque village of Hillsboro. He has a wife, but, like Richard III, he does not intend to "keep her long." Her name is Martha Ann. She became his in April, 1865, in Davis County, Iowa. After spending the last days of the honeymoon, he removed to Peoria, and remained there until 1870, when he went to Jefferson County, Mo., purchased a farm seven miles from Hillsboro, and opened a country school. Within a mile of his farm lived a family named Myers, consisting of the old man, the old woman, a superstitious and mischievous daughter named Augusta, and a handsome, stalwart young son named Lewis, who runs a distillery. While the patient pedagogue was cramming the alphabet into the craniums of his pupils, Mrs. Halsey, from sheer loneliness, sought the congenial society of the Myers family.

The Commodore then sings of his woes as follows: She frequently stayed away from home all night, and sometimes for days and nights together, leaving the Commodore to enjoy the solitude of his cabin as best he might. The domestic arrangements of the Myerses did not excite his admiration. Their cabin contained but two rooms, one up-stairs and one down-stairs. His wife was very fond of the society of Augusta, and spoke of Lewis in terms of admiration. Lewis had a favorite mare, which he would allow no one but Martha Ann to back, not even his sister Augusta. To the jealous mind of the Commodore this was confirmation strong as proofs of holy writ. When he reproached Martha Ann for her partiality for the Myers family, she said she went there for the purpose of assisting Augusta in performance of certain "mysterious ceremonies" which would give her an inkling of her future destiny. These ceremonies consisted of bathing in a creek near Myers' house, under the pale moonlight, and then sitting on the grass, clad in scanty garments, to see what would occur. If a man showed himself it was a sure sign of a marriage, and if a coffin passed by it was an indication of death. She tried this charm on two occasions, but with no satisfactory results. She and Lewis were in the habit of sitting close together and reading out of one book—a proceeding always dangerous when the parties are young and impulsive, and the book not a religious one.

One day the Commodore went over to the Myers mansion to take his Martha Ann home, when Lewis interfered and knocked the schoolmaster down. He had the young man arrested for assault and battery, and tried before Squire Mockley. Martha Ann went to the trial in a wagon with a lot of dissolute men, who guzzled rum furnished by Myers. She appeared as a witness against her husband, and the jury wanted to acquit Lewis, but the Squire told them they ought to fine him; and they imposed a fine of one dollar and costs, the whole amounting to twenty dollars. Martha Ann paid the fine herself, and sold a cow to raise the money. This brought matters to a focus, and now the schoolmaster sues for a divorce, and has employed Mr. J. M. Loring to get it for him.

The New Combustible.

Wetstated, says Galignani's Messenger, a short time ago that a Belgian peasant had made the extraordinary discovery that peat earth, coal, and soda, mixed up together would burn as well and better than any other combustible, and the fact has since then been proved beyond doubt. The way in which he found this out is curious. He had been scraping the floor of his cabin with a shovel in order to bring all the bits of coal lying about into a heap, which, mixed as it was with earth and other impurities, he put into his stove. To his astonishment he found that this accidental compound burnt better instead of worse than he expected, and emitted much greater heat. Being an intelligent man, he endeavored to discover the cause, and found that a great deal of soda, probably the remnant of the last wash, lay about on the floor of the cellar, and that some of it must have got into his heap. He then made a few experiments and at length improved his compound sufficiently to render it practical. The publicity given in Belgium to this discovery caused trials to be made everywhere and it has now been ascertained that three parts of earth and one of coal-dust, wetted with a concentrated solution of soda, will burn well and emit great heat. Many Parisian papers talked of it, but only one, the Moniteur, went so far as to make the experiment at its printing office. A certain quantity of friable and slightly sandy earth was mixed with the quantum of coal-dust prescribed; the two ingredients were well incorporated with each other, and then made into a paste with the solution abovementioned. The fire-place of one of the boilers had previously been lighted with coal, and the fire was kept up with shovelsful of the mixture. The latter, in a few seconds, was transformed into a dry brown crust, which soon after became red-hot, and then burnt brightly, without being very rapidly consumed. The fact of the combustion is therefore well ascertained; but before the system can be universally adopted there are some important points to be considered, such as the calorific power of the mixture compared to that of pure coal, its price, and, above all, a remedy for the great drawback attaching to it—its fouling the firegrate considerably.

Items about Women.

Quaker gray is the color still popular among brides for travelling dresses.

Embroidery representing ivy leaves is the latest, and very handsome it is.

Brigham Young is getting particular. He doesn't want any women converts over thirty sent to Salt Lake.

No man is safe these times. A convict at Sing Sing has had notice of a breach of promise suit served on him.

A cynical lady, rather inclined to flirt, says most men are like a cold, very easily caught, but very hard to get rid of.

Paris ladies are wearing a gray felt hat turned up on one side, and with a pink rose and long drooping feather as ornaments.

Detroit ladies are said to be the most prolific in the United States. The last census gave over 300 pairs of twins and 98 triplets.

An Ohio lady bases her claim for a divorce on the ground that on one occasion her husband put her to soak in the rain-water barrel.

Some ladies still cling to the bustle, notwithstanding the fact that they are entirely out of fashion, and it is hoped will not be revived.

An old woman in Durham, England, claims Brigham Young as her long-lost husband. He deserted her and came to America forty years ago.

Kid-gauntlets which can be worn with any glove, are new. They come in all shades, have the desired number of buttons, and cannot be detected.

Ladies now have their handkerchiefs hanging at their side by a gold or gilt chain instead of the fan. This is a temptation to thieves, who seldom have the article themselves.

A Kentucky jury has just decided that $9,000 would scarcely compensate Miss Tubb for the breach of promise which deprived her of an opportunity to change her name.

Wedding cards are very plain this season, and not disfigured by gaudy, illuminated monograms. The initials at the top of the note-sheet and on the envelope is all that is necessary.

A new style of trimming black silk dresses is to slash the front of the skirt and waist with black velvet, a la Hussar. A double row of black velvet buttons enhances the "military" effect.

German women boast the best heads of hair of any nation on the globe, but the Italian women have more brilliant complexions, and are regarded as the prettiest on the European continent.

In the Indian Territory every settler who marries a squaw is hereafter to be presented with a section of land. A good-looking gent'em an could gobble up the whole Territory in a year or two.

A farmer's wife fell into a well, and it was four days before he missed her and made search. He said he thought the house unusually quiet, but didn't know what made it so.

The Boston Globe talks about "handsome weather." Whereupon the Troy Whig suggests that "if that young man wouldn't be thinking of his girl all the time when he is butchering adjectives he would make a good writer."

Mrs. Julia Ward Howe asserts that white men riot and revolutionize "there is nothing but dumb submission for women." Which the Kingston Freeman supplements with the sympathetic remark that "Julia's dumbness is one of the most affecting spectacles of the age."

The Princeton (Ill.) Clarion blows a blast about a dry goods merchant of that town, who, in a fit of somnambulism, arose from his couch, neatly cut the bed-quilt in two with his pocket scissors, and then asked his terrified wife it he could not shop her something else.

Watterson, of the Courier-Journal, having been informed that Baltimore has 10,000 more women than men, says: "We never go to that blessed city that the number and beauty of the girls there, don't make us long to seize a couple of car-loads of them and fly to the bosom of the Mormon Church as a city of refuge.

Barnum's Next Sensation.
[London Em.]

The greatest showman of the day is once more in London completing preparations for the opening of the immense Hippodrome which he is erecting in New York. He has leased from the Harlem Railway Company a property in the very centre of the city opposite Madison Park, Fifth Avenue Hotel, St. James's Hotel, and other principal buildings. The "track" of the Hippodrome is to be a sixth of a mile in length, and some idea of the means which are being taken to create a sensation may be derived from the following facts: Mr. Barnum has not only sent agents to Spain and Africa to secure attractions, but has himself visited the Hippodrome in Paris, the Circus Renz at Vienna, Myer's Circus at Dresden, Salamonski and Carre's Circus at Cologne, the Zoological Gardens of Hamburg, Amsterdam, and other continental cities, selecting and purchasing the choicest and rare procurable, and engaging the most talented artists. He has secured what may fairly be called an endless variety of attractions, ranging from a race horse to a Roman chariot. With the Messrs. Sanger alone he has done business "to the tune" of £11,000. He has already shipped to New York elephants, camels and horses, trained for every species of circus performance. On the 25th a further "batch" will be despatched, including sixteen ostriches, ten elands, ten zebras, a team of reindeer, with Lapland drivers, a troupe of performing ponies, monkeys, dogs, goats, &c., &c. The armor and costume makers of London are to be set to work immediately the pantomimes are off their minds and hands, and some portion of the paraphernalia which is to contribute to the gigantic whole will be shipped weekly. The hippodrome will open in April next, and in the preliminary parade, we have no doubt, the citizens will find reason to say that their gre test and most popular showman has far outstripped all his former efforts. We may add that the New York enterprise will in no way interfere with the famous tent show everywhere known as "Barnum's Great Museum, Menagerie, Circus, and Travelling World's Fair."

Daily Chronicle.

WEDNESDAY, JANUARY 14, 1874.

Congress.

On Monday the Senate passed the salary bill, which provides that so much of the act of March 3, 1873, entitled "An act making appropriations for civil, executive and judicial expenses of the government for the year ending June 30, 1874," as provided for the increase of the compensation of public officers and employes, whether members of Congress, delegates or others, except the President of the United States and the Justices of the Supreme Court, be and the same hereby is repealed; and the salaries, compensation and allowances of all said persons, except as aforesaid, shall be fixed by the law in force at the time of the passage of said act, provided, that mileage shall not be allowed for the first session of the forty-third Congress; that all moneys appropriated as compensation to the members of the forty-second Congress in excess of the mileage and allowances fixed by law at the commencement of said Congress, and which shall not have been drawn by the members of said Congress respectively, or which having been drawn have been returned in any form to the United States, are hereby covered into the Treasury of the United States, and declared to be the moneys of the United States absolutely, the same as if they had never been appropriated as aforesaid.

Yeas and nays being ordered, the bill was passed as above reported, by the following vote:

YEAS—Messrs. Allison, Anthony, Bayard, Bogy, Bruman, Boutwell, Buckingham, Cameron, Carpenter, Chandler, Clayton, Conkling, Crozier, Davis, Dorsey, Edmunds, Fenton, Ferry of Michigan, Frelinghuysen, Goldthwaite, Hamilton of Maryland, Hamlin, Hitchcock, Howe, Ingalls, Logan, McCreery, Merrimon, Mitchell, Morrill of Maine, Morrill of Vermont, Morton, Oglesby, Patterson, Pratt, Ramsey, Robertson, Sargent, Saulsbury, Schurz, Scott, Sherman, Spencer, Stevenson, Stockton, Sumner, Wadleigh, West, Windom, Wright—50.

NAYS—Brownow, Conover, Flanagan, Gordon, Lewis, Norwood, Sprague, Tipton—8.

Mr. Cooper of Tennessee announced that he had paired with Mr. Cragin of New Hampshire, who would have voted for the bill and he (Cooper) against it.

NOT VOTING—Messrs. Alcorn, Ames, Dennis, Ferry of Conn., Gilbert, Hamilton of Texas, Johnston, Jones, Kelly, Ransom, Stewart and Thurman.

The bill goes back to the house for the concurrence of that body.

The house took most significant votes on inflation. Kelley's proposition received a vote of 155 to 82. Forty of the negative were from New York and New England. Of those voting in the affirmative, however, a large number voted chiefly on account of an anti-taxation clause. Following this came the vote which almost wholly neutralized what Kelley claimed as a vote for his low bond, by passing Holman's resolution by 221 to 3, declaring that taxation was not necessary if proper retrenchment was adopted. Then as a climax to these steps, passed without even the formality of division, General Hawley's resolution, declaring as the sense of the house that there should be no addition to the interest or non-interest bearing debt, and the terms of the resolution were held to cover the issuing of forty-four million reserve.

New Hampshire Gazetteer.

A. J. Fogg of Concord has been hard at work for the past year, completing a much needed work with the above title, and if we can judge by the prospectus of the work shown, we should say he has succeeded admirably well. The work will contain a history of each town in the State separately besides giving a concise history of the State taken as a whole. There will be over one hundred pages of statistical tables pertaining to the population, wealth, industries, churches, schools, post offices, soldiers in the late Rebellion, &c. There will be quite a number of fine illustrations, and a map of the State colored in townships. The book will contain about seven hundred pages, and will be a work every intelligent citizen of New Hampshire will be glad to obtain. We understand it is meeting with a heavy sale in all parts of the State. Mr. L. B. Bailey is canvassing this city, and has already got his list well started, and it will be rapidly increased. The Gazetteer will be delivered in February.

—"I'se got two grand-mothers," bragged a little three-year-old to his play-fellow, "how many has you got?" "I'se got one," replied the other, independently. "Shan't I buy you another, so's you can have two?" he asked. "Not till I have weared this one out," replied the second; "one's enough for me at a time."

—The boys who had sleds for Christmas presents think that if their parents had been wise they would have given them butterfly nets, or sets of garden tools.

A Virginia Trip.

"Society" having made visiting and receptions almost obligatory upon everybody in Washington, a trip was taken to Harper's Ferry and the valley of Virginia, on New Year's, to escape its almost inexorable demands. The route from Washington over the Metropolitan Railroad to Point of Rocks where it connects with the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad is through a fairly good agricultural country (never enough to make it a succession of sharp and short cuts and fills. Point of Rocks is a quaint, dilapidated old town, where in former times a rich agricultural country brought the crops to be shipped by canal to Georgetown and Alexandria and received their supplies. From this point to Harper's Ferry the road runs by the side of the canal, when there is room enough for both between the mountains and the Potomac river, and when there is not the railroad tunnels the solid rock of the mountain for long distances in several places. The scenery is varied, but mostly wild and grand, especially so at Harper's Ferry, where the Shenandoah joins the Potomac in cutting an almost perpendicular passage through the highest point of the Blue Ridge, after cutting a long channel between high, rough and craggy banks, with a dashing current, abounding with water powers for a long distance. To describe Harper's Ferry would require genius with time for study. Dilapidation has grown steadily upon it from the day of the removal of the U. S. Armory. Its great water power is unused, except for a flouring mill, and about all the employment for the people is from the railroad and canals, after supplying a limited trade. The bridge across the Potomac is a magnificent iron structure used by the public and the railroad, but every thing within sight of it created by man, is going to decay. Two churches half way up its rugged steps, and the old engine house, by the river, where old John Brown resisted the State of Virginia, vie with each other in decay, the doors and windows being gone already. On the heights above there is less decay and Storer College, a Baptist institution, is having fair success.

From Harper's Ferry to Winchester, the railroad rises out of the valley of the river and runs through the towns along the Valley of Virginia, between the Blue Ridge and the Alleghany mountains, which varies in width from five to forty miles. It has a gently rolling surface of limestone formation and during the rebellion, was the granary of the rebel army. The soil is very productive, and its fertility is kept up by an occasional heavy liming, and resting in clover. Being almost exclusively agricultural the towns have grown up around the country seats, and their size and importance seems to be in proportion to the width of the valley and the extent of the surrounding country, which make them a place for market and supplies. A macadamized turnpike of broken limestone extends up through the valley over which the traveller is charged three cents a mile if he travels with horse and buggy.

At Winchester, the valley is some twenty-five miles wide, and of the best of farming lands. The town is correspondingly large and well conditioned, with two good hotels, I can recommend Hart's Hotel as one of the best any where, and the very best I have ever seen South. Every thing is clean and neat, with attentive servants; and the proprietor and his lady both know how to keep a hotel. I have said this much of Hart's Hotel because I found everything upon the table in variety and abundance and palatable to my New England taste, while in most places South there was some taste in the cooking which made eating a matter of necessity alone. I found the proprietor had been a steamboat captain on the Mississippi from New Orleans to Natchez and a Confederate quartermaster from Bull Run to the collapse of the rebellion. His interesting narratives of what he saw, takes out much of the poetry surrounding historic names.

As you approach Strasburg the valley narrows, and is more broken, and farther up where a bald spur of the Blue ridge pushes up making a fork of the Shenandoah, it is not more than five miles wide. The south fork, which is the largest, leaves the valley proper near Harrisonburg and runs through several counties east of this spur in a narrow valley, and comes into the valley proper again below Strasburg. From Strasburg across to Front Royal and out through Manassas Gap into the Piedmont county, the soil was of much poorer quality, very uneven, and at the summit, where the railroad crosses the Gap in the Blue Ridge was a succession of deep cuts and sharp curves, but no tunneling: At one point after passing Front Royal, was a large quantity of iron ore by the side of the track, which was from a mine just opened, and destined for Pennsylvania, to be used in mixing with her ores to give a required quality of iron. Still farther on was a large quantity of underground plaster, brought from Nova Scotia to Alexandria by water, and from there near forty miles by rail, and then to be taken to some mill and ground and used for fertilizing. It was an unexpected sight. Large quantities of commercial fertilizers are purchased and used east of the Blue Ridge, while domestic manures are suffered to waste, and cattle were roaming the fields unhoused. In some localities this is changing. On the famous Meem farm, one of the largest and best in Virginia, lying on the river between New Market and Mount Jackson, which I visited six years ago, and whose proprietor I met at Winchester, they sell no corn and instead of buying commercial fertilizers have this year bought fifteen hundred bushels of corn to feed to stock. The practice on this farm is to take two heavy wagon loads of shocked corn daily, and distribute it over the land to be broken up in the spring, so as to give a peck and a half of ears to each animal. In this way there is no husking, and everything but the coarsest of the stock is eaten, a pig follows each steer and picks up the undigested corn and in rooting for it distributes the manure over the ground. About three hundred and fifty acres of wheat are raised, the bran of which is also fed to stock; beef and pork, and manufactured flour are the only products sold from the farm, and its fertility is kept up. Its assessed value for taxation is a hundred dollars an acre. When purchased in 1840 it cost a hundred and twenty-five dollars per acre. EXE.

Old Time Chronicles, No. 102.

BY UNCLE JOSEPH.

FIRST CIVIL GOVERNMENT OF NEW HAMPSHIRE.—There was no chief Magistrate till after the separation from the jurisdiction of Massachusetts in 1680. The highest officer was after called President. His power was that of a Chief Magistrate so far as was necessary in the infant State of the Province. The appointment and commission of the President was a sort of Constitution, providing for a council and legislative assembly, and specifying the duties of each. John Cutt, Esq., a merchant of Portsmouth, was appointed by king Charles II, as President, or governor. The king also appointed men of the council. There were Rich. Martyn, William Vaughan, Thos. Daniel, Esquires, of Portsmouth, John Gilman of Exeter, Christopher Hussey of Hampton and Richard Waldron of Dover. The council was authorized to appoint three others. Those thus appointed were Elias Stilesman of Great Island, then a part of Portsmouth, Samael Dalton of Hampton, and Job Clement of Dover. Mr. Martyn, of the council, was chosen treasurer and John Roberts, a citizen not in office, was made marshal.

The President and Council were the executive, appointed military offices, and were a court to try civil and criminal cases.

The following were chosen by the several towns in 1680 to constitute the first Assembly: Portsmouth, Robert Elliot, Philip Lewis, John Pickering; Dover, Peter Coffin, Anthony Nutter, Richard Waldron Jr; Hampton, Anthony Stanyan, Thomas Marston, Edward Gove; Exeter, Bartholomew Tippen, Ralph Hall.

This Assembly of eleven members commenced in Portsmouth March 16, 1680. Rev Joshua Moody of Portsmouth performed religious services, offering prayer and preaching a sermon.

A few notes will be given of some of the members of this first civil government of the Province. First of the council, Richard Martyn was of good influence in Portsmouth and had been very active in settling Rev. J. Moody as the first pastor of the North church. William Vaughan was of Welsh descent, lived for a time in London, and in Portsmouth was one of the early and wealthy merchants. Thomas Daniel it is said was popular in Portsmouth and when he died Mr. Moody preached from the words, "There lacked of David's servants nineteen men and Asshel."

Richard Waldron of Dover held various civil and military offices and was killed by the Indians in his garrison in 1689, aged 80. Christopher Hussey was from Dorking in England, came to Hampton in 1638 with the first settlers. After being Councillor, he was cast away on the coast of Florida in 1685. John, one of his sons, lived in Hampton.

In the Assembly were three members, Coffin and Nutter of Dover and Stanyan of Hampton, who had had experience in legislation, having been Deputies to the Massachusetts General Court while New Hampshire was united to that Province. Edward Gove lived in that part of Hampton now Seabrook. Resolute, hasty and warlike, a few years later he flew to arms to resist the arbitrary rule of Cranfield, the Provincial Governor. He was tried for treason, condemned to death, but sent to London, imprisoned in the Tower, released, came back and died at his home.

State News.

In Dover in 1873 there were 132 deaths, three-fourths of which took place among native-born citizens. One-third were aged under five years and seventeen over 70, the oldest being almost 94.

The Dover City Government allowed $300 to Daniel Moulton for damages in consequence of his wife's breaking her leg on Franklin street in 1873.

The young lady who 'disappeared' from Greenland did not disappear at all. She is well and happy with a relative.

Nine men belonging to the Sixteenth Regiment, enlisting from Stratham, are all dead, the last one within a month.

The affairs of the National Savings Bank, at Concord, the treasurer of which, W. W. Storrs, lately proved a defaulter, are now assuming a rather queer phase. The bondsmen of the treasurer claim that the defalcation was not in the savings bank, but in the First National Bank. The two banks are in the same room, and it is said that the savings bank had no till, but that the money was dropped into the till of the First National Bank and credited on the books of the latter bank. If this view is correct the bondsmen claim that it will release them.

Fires.

About half-past four o'clock, Tuesday morning, fire was discovered in Sherman's frame block, on Main street, Natick, Mass., from which it spread to J. B. Walcott's shoe factory, took a dwelling house on Summer street, owned by the heirs of James Tash, Olney Daniel's frame block, and the Town Hall. Spreading in a southerly direction Clark's brick block on Main street, and a frame block adjoining, were seized. From there in a westerly direction again on Central street, E. H. Walcott's tenement house was taken. Crossing Main street to the east, Winch's block, Union block, owned by James Morse, Rice's block, the engine house, P. F. Woodbury's store and the Congregational Church were consumed. Bartlett's dwelling house and bakery on Central street were next in order. On Washington street Kilburn's grain store three dwelling houses, C. W. Childs' shoe factory, E. B. Saunders' shoe factory, and on Railroad avenue C. H. Perry's block, A. W. Burke's coffin warehouse and a frame building, occupied as a dwelling house, grocery, and baker shop, were destroyed. The Concert Hall in Clark's block cost $100,000. The fire was got under control about six o'clock, its damage amounting to a half million dollars. Two children are missing. An area of two acres was burned over, being the entire business part of the town.

A fire originated in McQuade's cork manufactory in the five-story Codman building on Sudbuay street, Boston, about eight o'clock Tuesday morning. Fleming's bindery in the same building was soon on fire; loss $50,000. One hundred men and fifty women are turned out of employment. Various publishing houses lose largely. The total loss will reach $150,000.

The residence of Mr. Stiner, a well known tea merchant, on Madison Avenue, New York, was burned, and he lost his life, and his wife and child were burned to death and their bodies covered in the ruins of the house, on Monday night.

Unhealthy Surroundings.

To breathe pure, healthful air, and to follow occupations conducive to health and long life are the privileges of the minority. The majority must dwell wherever their lot is cast, however insalubrious the locality may be, and work at the craft assigned to them, however destructive to health and vigor. Medical science has, however come to the aid of the latter. In Hostetter's Stomach Bitters they have (and have had for the last twenty-five years) the best defence against the morbid influences which create and foster disease that the vegetable kingdom can supply. Its ingredients are among the finest botanic specifics which research has yet revealed to man. As a preventive of, and remedy for the diseases generated by swamps, miasma, the foul air of factories, excessive heat, over exertion of body or mind, unwholesome water or any other morbid cause, Hostetter's Stomach Bitters bear away the palm from all medicines of the present day.

While engaged at his vocation, that of carriage builder, on Saturday last, Mr. Jonathan K. Plaisted stepped suddenly to the door, and in so doing stepped upon a round piece of wood, which tripped him, and in trying to save himself from falling, he broke two middle fingers of his right hand, and also caused a slight fracture of the arm above the wrist. He was attended by Dr. J. J. Hazen.

The town house, under the supervision of Hon. N. G. Marshall, assisted by all good citizens, and a vote appropriating $1950, has now assumed a very neat and respectable appearance—and is now ready to receive its furnishings. A subscription, by our wealthy citizens, has swelled to upward of $400, for the purpose of furnishing the hall in the upper story; and we hope soon to be able to offer for lectures and entertainments, a respectable hall, instead of the rather disgraceful "room" heretofore used for such purposes.

The sum of $53 58 toward the purchase of an organ, was the net amount raised at a festival held by the ladies of the First Congregational church on New Year's eve.

The First Congregational and Methodist churches at the village have held a series of union prayer meetings, from Tuesday till Friday (inclusive) of the past week.

Eld. Charles E. Goodwin, pastor of the First Christian church, who has labored with his people for 20 years, during which time he has built up the church to a respectable number, has been instrumental in the purchase of a site, and the erection of a splendid parsonage building, on the credit of the society; and of paying the debt, thoroughly renovating, repairing and painting the meeting-house; and doing many other things for the good of his people in temporal things, is now about to depart to go to a larger field of labor. Whether he takes final leave your correspondent has thus far been unable to learn. I am informed however that Eld. Graves of Kittery is to supply his desk for the time being. Eld. Goodwin is very much loved and respected by all who know him, and should he take final leave, it will create cause for deep regret.

The Floating Box.

The Haverhill (Mass.) Bulletin has the following explanation of the recent sensation regarding the box containing the body of a dead infant picked up near Newcastle:

On the 24th day of December last a physician was called to visit a married woman living a few miles out of the city, and on his arrival at the house found that she had been delivered of a child which was dead. Upon inquiry he became satisfied that the child was still-born and that no charge of a criminal nature could be brought against the woman. He therefore made no report of the matter to the authorities. He took the child away with him and delivered it to some medical students for dissection. They neglected the matter so long that the body became somewhat decomposed, and it was thought advisable not to dissect it. Evidently the easiest way to dispose of it was to put it under the ice in the river. According the body, already wrapped in the thick paper as stated in the despatch, was taken and wrapped in newspapers, and with several bricks placed in the box, a hole was cut through the ice and the box, as was supposed, sunk. Probably it remained under the ice until the breaking up last week, and then floated down the river and out to sea, and the westward tide carried it toward Newcastle.

The fact of the card bearing the lady's name being in the box is explained by one of the parties in this wise: One of the students had exchanged cards with the lady, and the card had been lying around upon the table. He had sometimes while talking used it to "scribble" upon, had drawn the picture of the man with the hat, and written another student's name, and the other words upon the card. This card must have been mixed with the newspapers taken from the table to put around the body of the child, and thus been placed in the box.

An Acknowledgement.

The President and Directors of the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals desire hereby to acknowledge their indebtedness, and express their thanks to the ladies and gentlemen of the "Portsmouth Dramatic Club" for the admirable entertainment they gave in aid of the S. P. C. A. Lyceum course. The hearty applause and commendation bestowed by the large and discriminating audience was well merited. The generous actors asked no compensation the pleasure their fine performance afforded the patrons of the society.

The pay roll at the navy yard for January will be $90,000.

It is thought that the Portsmouth & Dover Railroad will be open for travel on the 20th.

The democrats have renominated Lafayette Hall of Newmarket for their candidate for State Senator in this district.

Gen. M. F. Wentworth of Kittery is appointed chairman of the military committee in the Maine House of Representatives.

Mr. Israel P. Miller has resigned his position as weigher in the department of Yards & Docks at the navy yard, and returns to the newspaper business.

The annual meeting of the Eastern Railroad occurs next month. The Transcript intimates that the president desires to retire and practice his profession.

The theatrical company of Wilson & Clark, which is giving a series of entertainments at the Temple, embraces much varied talent; and the laughing philosophers—those who enjoy farce and comedy, should not lose the opportunity for a good deal of fun.

An elderly woman named Hayes, 80 years of age, belonging in Newmarket, formerly of this city, was run over by the afternoon train for Boston, over the Boston & Maine Railroad, between Newmarket and the Junction, while sitting on the track near a curve, Tuesday. She had with her a mirror and bottle. One of her sons was killed while walking on the track near the Eastern engine house in this city, last year.

The ship Ericsson, Capt. J. T. Marcy, arrived at San Francisco, Jan. 12th, one hundred and twenty days from New York, which is an uncommon quick passage at this season of the year. It will be remembered, also, that Capt. Marcy is a Portsmouth boy, and like his father has skill and ability in handling a ship. It gives us pleasure to record the signal success that always attends those who work their way up to positions of honor and trust as has Capt. Marcy.

The work of grading Noble Island is still in progress and should the weather hold good the force now employed will continue all winter. The hill on the south-east part is leveled and has been used for filling up for the wharf now building, which when completed will be two hundred feet long. A cargo of coal has arrived for the Eastern Railroad and will be landed at this wharf and conveyed to their sheds by rail. Its track will be laid from the wharf to connect with all the roads running from this city.

County Convention.

The Rockingham County republican convention will meet at Exeter on Thursday morning. The present Treasurer and Register of Deeds will without doubt be renominated. Among the candidates for County Commissioner, in place of Mr. Pollard, whose time is nearly out, are Capt. Brown of Derry, Dr. Varney of South Newmarket, Nath'l. E. Tuck of Kingston, William G. Brown of Stratham, and doubtless others. It is thought that Capt. Brown will receive the nomination.

Decorated China Sets Cheap.—We recently called the attention of our readers to the advertisement of Richard Briggs, 137 Washington street, Boston, who is offering decorated dinner and tea sets at greatly reduced prices. The plan which he has adopted for the first time in this country, of offering really desirable China sets at very low prices, is meeting with great success, and we advise all to avail themselves of the rare opportunity to supply their tables with a handsome service for about the usual cost of ordinary white China.

'73 REUNION.

THE "HISTORY OF THE RETURN OF THE SONS & DAUGHTERS OF PORTSMOUTH, JULY, 1873," is just published. It contains 96 pages, octavo, and is a thorough detail of everything relating to the three Festal Days,

The Reunion, July 4th,

High School Reunion, 5th,

The Praise Meeting, 6th;

and containing a

Verbatim Report

of every speech that was uttered at the Tent on the 4th and 5th, besides giving a full report of all the Reunion preliminary movements in Portsmouth, Boston and New York. Much of the matter of this work has never yet appeared in any form, and we think it will prove interesting to all who participated in the Three Days' Jubilee.

The work is for sale at the Chronicle Office, J. H. Foster's Bookstore, and at Wm. R. Preston's

SPECIAL ANNOUNCEMENT

FOR 1874.

READ AND THINK.

We have received to-day a large lot of FLOUR in Barrels and Half-Barrels, which we propose to sell at

PRICES THAT CAN'T BE BEAT.

PRIDE OF THE WEST	$10.75
RED JACKET	12.00
GENUINE	9.75
A	10.00
LILY OF THE VALLEY	10.50

These prices are less than the same brands or quality can be bought in this State, and we guarantee everything we say, or you can return it at our expense.

With EVERY BARREL of Flour so sold, we shall give you

Your Choice of Two

SPLENDID STEEL ENGRAVINGS,

(Samples of which can be seen at our store,)

The Village Blacksmith,

AND

Signing the Compact in the Cabin of the Mayflower,

AS A PREMIUM PRESENT!

These Engravings are elegant again, and worthy a place in any house.

Now, don't let anybody make you believe that we can't do this and give you a GOOD article of FLOUR at the same price they can; because if you do, you will be deceived. We buy just these pictures in New York at such prices that we can afford to do it.

Why? 1st, because it so increases our sales that even with a small profit on the Flour, we can make fair wages. 2d, because when people come to buy Flour they see the prices of other goods and buy them. 3d, because everybody knows we always do just what we advertise to do.

NOW TRY US. All we ask is for you to call, see and be convinced.

AYER'S HAIR VIGOR,

FOR RESTORING GRAY HAIR

TO ITS NATURAL VITALITY AND COLOR.

Advancing years, sickness, care, disappointment, and hereditary predisposition, all turn the hair gray; and either of them incline it to shed prematurely. AYER'S HAIR VIGOR, by long and extensive use, has proven that it stops the falling of the hair immediately; often renews the growth, and always surely restores its color when faded or gray. It stimulates the nutritive organs to healthy activity, and preserves both the hair and its beauty. Thus brashy, weak or sickly hair becomes glossy, pliable and strengthened; lost hair regrows with lively expression; falling hair is checked and established; thin hair thickens; and faded or gray hair resumes its original color. Its operation is sure and harmless. It cures dandruff, heals all humors, and keeps the scalp cool, clean and soft—under which conditions diseases of the scalp are impossible.

As a dressing for ladies' hair, the VIGOR is praised for its grateful and agreeable perfume, and valued for the soft lustre and richness of tone it imparts.

—A Chicago newspaper tells the following story: "A runner for a Milwaukee house was, a few days ago, in La Crosse, anxious to get across the river on the ice, but was told it was dangerous, so he got on his hands and knees and crawled across, hauling a skiff on the ice to get into in case the ice broke. After he had crawled about half across, and was all tired and discouraged, he heard a noise behind him, and thinking the ice was breaking he got on his knees and said his 'Now I lay one,' just as a load of wood came up behind him. The ice was a foot thick, and some other runners had played it on him. He is searching for the fellow who told him the ice was thin."

CATARRH!

A Woman Having Catarrh 35 Years, Cured.

And Droppings in Throat, Choknigs, Stranglings, Pains in the Side, Loins, Headache, Dizziness, and General Weakness, Cured by less than Three Bottles of the

CONSTITUTIONAL CATARRH REMEDY.

To Messrs. Littlefield & Co., Proprietors of Constitutional Catarrh Remedy, Manchester, N.H.:

I reside at Manchester, N. H., and previously resided at Hooksett, and am a native of Weare, this State. I have had Catarrh twenty-five years, ever since I was 19 years old; and it had all the time. It run all that period, and nights it would fill up and drop down in my throat, causing a feeling of choking, so that I would spring from bed to save myself from strangulation. It affected my head so that I felt confused, and was troubled with severe headache at intervals, for a week at a time. I also had bad pains in shoulders, back and kidneys, from which I suffered immensely. So bad were they, that a year ago last summer I was obliged to lie in bed most of the time for three months. I have tried all kinds of snuff and Catarrh remedies with no particular benefit, and consulted physicians. I had a hacking cough. I began to take the Constitutional Catarrh Remedy last August. I began to grow better before finished the first bottle. I am now on the third bottle. My Catarrh is cured; my health is restored. I have no pains, aches, or cough. My whole system is made over new. I know it is the medicine that has rescued me from intense suffering and almost the grave. I am now able to do the hardest work and bear the greatest exposure, and feel like I cannot say too much in favor of the Constitutional Catarrh Remedy.

MRS. E. J. FLANDERS.

Manchester, N. H., Feb. 1, 1872.

I am now 55 years old, have had Catarrh ever since I was eighteen years old, and headache all the time; have endured beyond description with running at the nose, droppings in the throat, cockings and stranglings. Have tried any quantity of Catarrh Remedies, but have found no relief, till I tried your Constitutional Catarrh Remedy, six months ago. I found immediate relief.

Catarrh and all its accompanying evils have left, Headache, Pains in Loins and Back, Dizziness, Loss of Appetite, and General Weakness. Less than three bottles of Constitutional Catarrh Remedy have cured me. I have not been so well since I can remember as now. I feel as if I could not say too much for the medicine, or thank God too heartily that through its instrumentality I have been restored to health.

MARY M. ABBOTT,
No. 17 Manchester Corporation.

JACOB J. ABBOTT.

Hundreds of cases of a similar nature cured within the last year. Snuffs and Lotions are only temporary relief. The CONSTITUTIONAL CATARRH REMEDY strikes at the root, builds up the constitution, makes it new, and drives away Catarrh and all diseases of the mucous membranes and their attendant pains and aches, pertaining to head, back, shoulders, kidneys, and throat.

Price $1 per Bottle. Sold by all Druggists. A Pamphlet of 32 pages, giving a Treatise on Catarrh, and containing innumerable cases of cures, sent FREE, by addressing the Proprietors,

IRON IN THE BLOOD.

DYSPEPSIA, DEBILITY, DROPSY AND HUMORS.

PERUVIAN SYRUP

Makes The Weak Strong.

The Peruvian Syrup, a Protected Solution of the Protoxide of Iron, is so combined as to have the character of an aliment, as easily digested and assimilated with the blood as the simplest food. It increases the quantity of Nature's Own Vitalizing Agent, Iron in the blood, and cures "a thousand ills," simply by Toning up, Invigorating and Vitalizing the System. The enriched and vitalized blood permeates every part of the body, repairing damages and waste, searching out morbid secretions, and leaving nothing for disease to feed upon.

This is the secret of the wonderful success of this remedy in curing Dyspepsia, Liver Complaint, Dropsy, Chronic Diarrhœa, Boils, Nervous Affections, Chills and Fevers, Humors, Loss of Constitutional Vigor, Diseases of the Kidneys and Bladder, Female Complaints, and all diseases originating in a bad state of the blood, or accompanied by debility or a low system. Being free from Alcohol, in any form its energizing effects are not followed by corresponding reaction, but are permanent, infusing strength, vigor, and new life into all parts of the system, and building upon an Iron Constitution.

Thousands have been changed in the use of this remedy, from weak, sickly, suffering creatures to strong, healthy, and happy men and women; and invalids cannot reasonably hesitate to give it a trial.

See that each bottle has PERUVIAN SYRUP blown in the glass.

AMERICAN & FOREIGN PATENTS.

R. H. EDDY, SOLICITOR OF PATENTS.

For Inventions, Trade Marks or Designs,

No. 76 State St., Opposite Kilby St., Boston.

After an extensive practice of upwards of thirty years, continues to secure patents in the United States; also in Great Britain, France and other foreign countries. Caveats, Specifications, Assignments, and all papers for Patents, executed on reasonable terms with dispatch. Researches made to determine the validity and utility of Patents of Inventions, and legal and other advice rendered in all matters touching the same. Copies of the claims of any patent furnished, by remitting one dollar. Assignments recorded in Washington.

No Agency in the United States possesses superior facilities for obtaining Patents or ascertaining the patentability of inventions.

All necessary for a journey to Washington to procure a Patent and the usual great delay there, are here saved inventors.

TESTIMONIALS.

"I regard Mr. Eddy as one of the most capable and successful practitioners with whom I have had official intercourse. CHARLES MASON,
Commissioner of Patents."

"I have no hesitation in assuring inventors that they cannot employ a man more competent and trustworthy and more capable of putting their applications in a form to secure for them an early and favorable consideration at the Patent Office.

EDMUND BURKE,
Late Commissioner of Patents."

"Mr. R. H. Eddy has made for me over THIRTY applications for Patents, having been successful in almost every case. Such unmistakable proof of great talent and ability on his part leads me to recommend ALL inventors to apply to him to procure their Patents, as they may be sure of having the most faithful attention bestowed on their cases and at very reasonable charges. JOHN TAGGART."

COAL.

HAVING contracted for a quantity of the above coal, we would call the attention of Manufacturers, Dealers and Consumers to the following different grades mined and controlled by the Company:

HARD WHITE ASH COAL,
FREE BURNING WHITE ASH COAL,
SHAMOKIN WHITE ASH COAL,
SHAMOKIN RED ASH COAL,
NORTH FRANKLIN COAL,
LYKENS VALLEY COAL.

In order that all coal shall be shipped in good order, a most rigid system of inspection, both at the mines and at the shipping ports, will at all times be enforced. In every district of the coal region there will be appointed a number of competent persons skilled in the preparation of coal, as local inspectors, whose duty it will be to visit the several collieries daily to see that a proper force is at all times employed in removing slates and to prevent, if possible, any coal being sent from the mines in bad order. In addition to these efforts at prevention, no means will be left untried at the shipping ports to cure the evils of careless preparation. At Schuylkill Haven, Port Clinton and Port Richmond, ALL COAL WILL BE SUBJECTED TO THE PERSONAL EXAMINATION OF A SKILLED INSPECTOR BEFORE IT IS SHIPPED, and if condemned by him, will be dumped in places provided for the purpose, and before being loaded into vessels WILL BE THOROUGHLY REPICKED AND CLEANED BY HAND.

We keep a fine stock of the above coal on hand, also

LEHIGH, WILKESBARRE, PITTSTON

And other first class Coal. For sale by the Cargo, Car-load or at retail from our wharf.

Harper's Weekly.

SPLENDIDLY ILLUSTRATED.

NOTICES OF THE PRESS.

The Weekly is the ablest and most powerful illustrated periodical published in this country. Its editorials are scholarly and convincing, and carry much weight. Its illustrations of current events are full and fresh, and are prepared by our best designers. With a circulation of 150,000, the Weekly is read by at least half a million persons, and its influence as an organ of opinion is simply tremendous. The Weekly maintains a positive position, and expresses decided views on political and social problems.—Louisville Courier Journal.

Harper's Bazar.

NOTICES OF THE PRESS.

The BAZAR is edited with a contribution of tact and talent that we seldom find in any journal; and the journal itself is the organ of the great world of fashion.—Boston Traveller.

The BAZAR commends itself to every member of the household—to the children by droll and pretty pictures, to the young ladies by its fashion-plates in endless variety, to the provident matron by its patterns for the children's clothes, to paterfamilias by its tasteful designs for embroidered slippers and luxurious dressing-gowns. But as reading-matter of the BAZAR is uniformly of great excellence, the paper has acquired a wide popularity for the fireside enjoyment it affords.—N. Y. Evening Post.

PROSPECTUS FOR 1874—SEVENTH YEAR.

THE ALDINE,

An Illustrated Monthly Journal, universally admitted to be the handsomest Periodical in the world. A Representative and Champion of American Taste.

NOT FOR SALE IN BOOK OR NEWS STORES.

THE ALDINE, while issued with all the regularity, has none of the temporary or timely interest characteristic of ordinary periodicals. It is an elegant miscellany of pure, light and graceful literature, and a collection of the rarest specimens of artistic skill, in black and white. Although each succeeding number adorns a fresh pleasure in its friends, the real value and beauty of THE ALDINE will be most appreciated after it has been bound up at the close of the year. While other publications may claim superior cheapness, as compared with rivals of a similar class, THE ALDINE is a unique and original conception—alone and unapproached—the lately written competitor proves conclusively. The possessor of a complete volume cannot duplicate the quantity of fine paper and engravings in any other shape or number of volumes FOR TEN TIMES ITS COST; AND THEN, THERE ARE THE CHROMOS, BESIDE!

ART DEPARTMENT, 1874.

The illustrations of THE ALDINE have won a world-wide reputation, and in the art centres of Europe it is an admitted fact that its wood cuts are the examples of the highest perfection ever attained. The common prejudice in favor of "steel plates" is rapidly yielding to a more educated and discriminating taste which recognizes the advantages of superior artistic quality with greater facility of production. The wood-cuts of THE ALDINE possess all the delicacy and elaborate finish of the most costly steel plate, while they afford a better rendering of the artist's original.

In addition to designs by the members of the National Academy, and other noted American artists, THE ALDINE will reproduce examples of the best foreign masters, selected with a view to the highest artistic success and greatest general interest. Thus the subscriber to THE ALDINE will, at a trifling cost, enjoy in his own home the pleasures and refining influences of true art.

The Christmas issue for 1874 will contain special designs appropriate to the season, by our best artists, and will surpass in attractions any of its predecessors.

PREMIUM FOR 1874.

Every subscriber to THE ALDINE for the year 1874 will receive a pair of chromos. The original letters were painted in oil for the publisher of THE ALDINE, by Thomas Moran, whose great Colorado picture was purchased by Congress for ten thousand dollars. The subjects were chosen to represent "The East" on "the West." One is a view in The White Mountains, New Hampshire; the other gives The Cliffs of Green River, Wyoming Territory.

If any subscriber should indicate a preference for figure subject the publishers will send "Thoughts of Home," a new and beautiful chromo, 14x20 inches, representing a little Italian girl, whose speaking eyes betray the longings of her heart.

TERMS.

$5 per annum, in advance, with Oil Chromos free.

For 50 CENTS EXTRA, the chromos will be sent, mounted, varnished, and prepaid by mail.

THE ALDINE will, hereafter, be obtainable only by subscription. There will be no reduced or club rates; cash for subscriptions must be sent to the publishers direct, or to agents who can show authority from the publishers, except in cases where the certificate is given, bearing the fac-simile signature of JAMES SUTTON & CO.

The Country Gentleman.

Volume for 1874.

THE CULTIVATOR & COUNTRY GENTLEMAN, for the past forty years, has been the leading journal in this country and abroad, as the STANDARD JOURNAL OF AMERICAN AGRICULTURE. The Editors and Proprietors, in addition to their own personal labors, are regularly assisted by a very large number of Special Correspondents and Regular Contributors, among whom are the ablest and most practical Agricultural Editors, in all parts of the Country, East and West—and by over Five Hundred Occasional and Voluntary Writers, directly in the ranks of the Best Farmers and Horticulturists of nearly every State in the Union. With the co-operation of so large a corps of practical men, this Journal is intended to possess exceptional value as the chosen Medium of Intercommunication among all classes interested in the Production and Fertility of the Soil—those who Cultivate and those who Consume—the Buyer and Shipper, as well as the first Owner of the crop—Breeders of Improved Animals and their Customers—Manufacturers of Improved Implements and those who purchase and employ them—Nurserymen and Fruit Raisers—and, especially, to supply fuller and better data as to the progress, prospects and returns of each successive season, as throwing light upon one of the most important of all questions—When to Buy and when to Sell.

TERMS.—The COUNTRY GENTLEMAN is published weekly, on the following terms when paid strictly in advance: ONE COPY, one year, $2.50; FOUR COPIES, $10, and an additional copy (free) for 10 to the sender of the Club; TEN COPIES, $20, and an additional copy for the year free to the sender of the Club.

OF

WILD CHERRY!

THE GREAT REMEDY FOR

CONSUMPTION!

And acknowledged by many prominent physicians to be the most Reliable Preparation ever introduced for the RELIEF and CURE of all

LUNG COMPLAINTS.

This well known remedy is offered to the public sanctioned by the experience of over forty years, and when resorted to in season seldom fails to effect a speedy cure of

COUGHS, COLDS, CROUP, BRONCHITIS, INFLUENZA, WHOOPING COUGH, HOARSENESS, PAINS OR SORENESS IN THE CHEST OR SIDE, BLEEDING AT THE LUNGS, LIVER COMPLAINTS, &c.

CONSUMPTION

CURED

By a timely resort to this standard remedy, as is proved by hundreds of testimonials received by the proprietors.

Dr. Wistar's Balsam of Wild Cherry

Does not dry up a Cough and leave the cause behind as is the case with most preparations, but it loosens and cleanses the lungs and allays irritation, thus removing the cause of the complaint.

CLERGYMEN, LAWYERS, SINGERS,

And all those whose occupation requires an unusual exercise of the vocal organs, will find this the ONLY PREPARATION which will effectually and instantaneously relieve their difficulties.

BEWARE OF COUNTERFEITS.—Remember that the genuine Wistar's Balsam has on the outside wrapper the signature of "I. BUTTS," and the printed name of the proprietors, "SETH W. FOWLE & SONS, BOSTON." All others are base imitations. Examine the wrapper carefully before purchasing.

The Singer Still Triumphant!

At the Vienna Exhibition, the SINGER received the Medal of Merit, the Medal of Progress, and three other Medals for superiority of productions. These are the highest Sewing Machine Awards at Vienna. The SINGER received all the medals awarded to either of the competing machines, and two medals more than any other obtained. Then, in the name of Truth, it is it that prompts people to claim recommendation for the Diploma of Honor? The fact is, no Diploma of Honor has been given to any Sewing Machine Company.

But more favorably more valuable is The World's Award as shown by sales—proved by sworn returns to the owners of the patented Sewing Machine Patents—which last year amounted to TWO HUNDRED AND NINE TEEN THOUSAND, SEVEN HUNDRED AND SIXTY-EIGHT (219,768) machines, nine out of ten of them being for Family Use. This is over 45,000 more Sewing Machines than were sold by any other company during the same period, and over One Quarter of all the machines sold in 1872. These enormous sales are owing to the longest merits of the Singer Machines, which meet the wants of the public in superiority and simplicity of construction, and capability for great variety and excellence of work. That the users of Sewing Machines find these desirable qualities in the Singer beyond all others, is shown by the sales above given, aside from the awards of International Juries, either at home or abroad.

Ordinance No. 41.

Requiring Sidewalks to be Cleared of Snow.

Be it ordained by the City Council of the city of Portsmouth as follows:

SEC. 1. The occupants, or, if unoccupied, the owners, of all he buildings and lands situate within the city, shall keep the sidewalk adjoining their respective premises, in all cases where a sidewalk has been or may be constructed, free from snow, by causing the snow to be removed into the street and evenly spread, within six hours after the cessation of every fall thereof, or when the snow shall have blown or drifted upon the sidewalk by the wind. The time herein allowed for the performance of the work to be computed from sunrise on the succeeding morning whenever the fall of snow shall have ceased in the night time.

SEC. 2. Any person disregarding or offending against the provisions of this ordinance shall, upon conviction thereof, forfeit and pay to the use aforesaid, ten dollars for each and every offence, with costs of prosecution; and it shall be the duty of the Street Commissioner, under the counsel and direction of the Mayor, to cause this ordinance to be enforced.

Passed Dec. 21, 1874.

Ordinance No. 65,

In Amendment of Ordinance No. 41—Requiring Sidewalks to be Cleared of Snow.

Be it ordained by the City Council of the city of Portsmouth as follows:

That ordinance number forty-one, requiring sidewalks to be cleared of snow, is amended by adding to section one the following clause, viz: That when any of said sidewalks are covered with ice, so as to make the passing dangerous, said owners or occupants shall spread over said sidewalk ashes, sand or salt in such a manner as to prevent the same from being dangerous.

Passed Jan. 19, 1860. n25-3m

A Forgotten Celebrity.

[Frankfort Gazette.]

The following advertisement appears every now and then in the Corriere di Torrino:—

Lessons in German, English and Hungarian given, at moderate rates, by L. KOSSUTH, 164 Strada Nuova.

The advertiser is none other than the celebrated dictator of Hungary. He is now almost utterly forgotten, even in Hungary; he has grown very old, and is now so poor that he will gladly give you a lesson for a single franc. This would seem very humiliating for him, and yet he is proud of his poverty. He says: "Three years ago my friends at home in Hungary offered me a present of fifty thousand florins. I rejected the offer, and never have regretted it, even when I was hungry, and had no money to pay for a fire?" I had occasion, the other day, to call upon him. I was no stranger to Kossuth. Twenty years ago he had given me, in London, a great deal of valuable information for my book, "Hungary in 1849." I found him in a very small room, in the fourth story of a dingy old building. He sat alone in an easy chair, poring over an old volume. When I entered he did not recognize me. I recognized him and was shocked. What a change these twenty years had produced in his once handsome and interesting face. His hair was entirely white, his cheeks wan and hollow, and his eyes utterly dimmed. His form, once erect and proud, was now painfully bent. He almost groaned as he raised himself to bid me welcome. He was deeply moved when I informed him who I was. His face brightened as he warmly clasped my hand.

"Oh, yes! oh, yes!" he said in German, "I know you now. Everybody forgets me; no one cares any more for me! Why should I remember those who once were my friends?"

To this I objected. I asked him how he could be forgotten when his friends in Hungary wanted him to return to his native country, and take again an active part in its affairs. Kossuth smiled very bitterly.

"Oh, yes," he said, "return to Hungary dishonored, with an oath of allegiance to the Hapsburgs, who murdered my friends and kinsmen, and who set a price upon my head. I am neither a Deak nor an Andrassy."

I asked him how he got along.

"Well," he said, sadly, "were my good children and my poor wife alive yet, I would be happy, even in my old age and poverty. But they are all dead, and I am very lonesome! That is what renders my exile here, where people are so kind to me, so distressing. It would be no better in Hungary. I have no kinsfolk anywhere but in the New World."

"Why, then, not go to America again, where your name is still revered?" I ventured to say.

"Oh!" he replied, "I have often been sorely tempted to go back to the United States, but there are two obstacles in the way. In the first place it would cost more money than I have to spare; and next, I am almost sure that in my present enfeebled condition I would be unable to bear the sea voyage."

All this was very melancholy, and I hastened to change the subject of our conversation. I showed him the proof sheets of the chapter on Andrassy in my new work on Austria. He put on his spectacles, and, holding the paper in his trembling hand, read carefully what I had written. Meanwhile I had time to look around in the room. Against the rear wall stood a narrow, plain bed. On the walls hung portraits of Mazzini, Bixio, Kisz, and, strangely enough, of Louis Napoleon. On the book-shelf, by my side, I noticed Victor Hugo's "Annee Terrible," Kinglake's "Crimea," and ten or twelve well worn grammars. On a table, close to the bed, lay a loaf of bread and a plate of dried meat. To my dismay I found that my glancing round the room had attracted Kossuth's attention.

"You," he said with a smile, "see for yourself now that I am very poor; and yet, when I left Hungary in 1849, I was charged by all the mean organs of the Hapsburgs with having enriched myself at my country's expense. Do you know what my whole income was last year? Within a fraction of eight hundred lire!" (less than two hundred dollars.)

I shook my head sorrowfully. He told me what he thought of the chapter on Andrassy, gave me plenty of valuable and interesting information on the subject, and then dismissed me, saying that it was time for one of his pupils to make his appearance.

A Story of an Adventurous Boy.

The New York Tribune considers it impossible longer to resist the conclusion that the waters of the ocean have closed over the young and gifted correspondent, Ralph Keeler, who had recently been representing that paper at Santiago de Cuba. Mr. Keeler was the son of an old farmer, and after passing his early boyhood at home, his juvenile whims led him to organize a band of minstrels; but this enterprise failed, and he became a train boy, enjoying a monopoly of selling newspapers and lemonade to the passengers. His skill at dancing soon led to his being engaged by a company of strolling players giving performances in the western cities. Soon after this the idea of going to Europe seized him, and he started with $181 in his pocket. He went from Toledo to New York as a cattle-drover, bought a steerage ticket to London and reached the English capital during the World's Fair in 1862. He went thence to Paris and almost immediately left that city for Heidelberg, where he reached the end of his $181.

He had written letters to innumerable American newspapers, but he had received only $25 for them, and with this he went through Belgium and Holland, and a few months later occupied an obscure garret in the Quartier Latin, in Paris. In that city he met George Alfred Townsend, who suggested him to write for some English magazine. Some of his articles were accepted and others respectfully declined, and after much trouble and tribulation he started for Leghorn, where he found an American captain, who consented to take him home and let him owe him $50. When he reached Boston, without a cent in his pocket, he found a letter which had been forwarded, containing a draft on London for the almost forgotten article which he had sent to Edinburgh in sheer desperation. This enabled him to pay for his passage and reach Toledo, his starting place, after an absence of a little over two years, and at an expense of a little over $300. Keeler was then 22 years of age. After this he devoted himself to literary pursuits, and soon achieved a merited distinction in his chosen profession.

Agriculture a Fraud.

The Cincinnati Times thus humorously goes for Agriculture:

The best fraud of earth is Agriculture. The deadliest ignis fatuus that ever glittered to beguile and dazzled to betray is Agriculture. I speak with feeling on the subject, for I have been glittered and beguiled, and dazzled, and destroyed by this same arch deceiver.

No wonder Cain killed his brother. He was a tiller of the ground. The wonder is that he didn't kill his father, and then wept because he hadn't a grandfather to kill. No doubt his Early Rose potatoes, for which he paid Adam $7 a barrel, had been cut down by bugs from the head waters of the Euphrates. His Pennsylvania wheat had been winter-killed and wasn't worth cutting. His Norway oats had gone to straw, and would not yield five pecks per acre, and his black Spanish water-melons had been stolen by boys, who had pulled up the vines, broken down his patent picket fence, and written scurrilous doggerel all over his back gate. No wonder he felt mad when he saw Abel whistling along with his fine French merinos worth eight dollars a head, and wool going up every day. No wonder he wanted to kill somebody, and thought he'd practice on Abel.

And Noah's getting drunk was not at all surprising. He had become a husbandman. He had thrown away magnificent opportunities. He might have had a monopoly of any profession or business. Had he studied medicine there would not have been another doctor within a thousand miles to call him "Quack;" and every family would have bought a bottle of "Noah's Compound Extract of Gopher Wood and Anti-Deluge Syrup." As a politician, he might have carried his own ward solid, and controlled two-thirds of the delegates to every convention. As a lawyer, he would have been retained in every case tried at the Ark High Court of Admiralty. But he threw away all those advantages and took to Agriculture.

For a long time the ground was so wet he could raise nothing but sweet flag and bulrushes, and these at last became a drug in the market. What wonder that when he did get a half peck of grapes that were not stung to death by Japhet's honey bees, he should have made wine and drowned his sorrows in a "flowing bowl."

The fact is, Agriculture would demoralize a saint. I was almost a saint when I went into it; I'm a demon now. I fight myself out of bed at four o'clock, when all my better nature tells me to lie till seven. I fight myself into the garden to work like a brute, when reason and instinct tell me to stay in the house and enjoy myself like a man. I fight the pigs, the chickens, the moles, the birds, the bugs, the worms—everything in which is the breath of life. I fight the ducks, burdocks, the mullins, the thistles, the grapes, the weeds, the roots—the whole vegetable kingdom. I fight the heat, the frost, the rain, the hail—in short, I fight the universe, and get whipped in every battle.

Somnambulism.

The Montreal Gazette of Tuesday relates the following: "Between 2 and 3 o'clock yesterday morning a respectable young married female, living in the neighborhood of the General Hospital, appeared at the door of the institution and rang the bell for admittance. The female night watch, who happened to be in attendance, opened the door, when, to her surprise, a lady entered, scantily clad, her wearing apparel consisting only of a night-dress. Her eyes were open, and in her hand she held an open Bible, which, addressing the waiter, she requested to be given to one of the patients in the hospital. Thinking the woman to be insane, the watch called the house surgeon, who, perceiving what was the matter, put a few questions to the former, when she awoke with a screech, and finding where she was, began making the most frantic appeals for help. The doctor kindly ordered the nurse to supply her with clothes, and accompany her to her house. On arriving there they found her husband in bed, fast asleep, entirely unconscious of his wife's adventure."

Daily Chronicle.

THURSDAY, JANUARY 15, 1874.

Caleb Cushing Slaughtered.

The republican Senators held a caucus Tuesday, to consider the nomination of Caleb Cushing to be Chief Justice. Senator Sargent of California referred to Mr. Cushing's antecedents and produced a letter written by Mr. Cushing to Hon. Daniel Marcy in 1862, denouncing the war in a style that would have done credit to Vallandigham. Senators Cameron, Scott and Frelinghuysen followed in opposition to Mr. Cushing, Mr. Scott speaking of the importance of the office. He said it was essentially a political one, and that it would not answer to put a man there if any reasonable suspicion existed that he was not in the fullest accord with the settlements of the war. His speech had great effect.

Senators Boutwell and Conkling defended Mr. Cushing, and then Senator Sargent produced the following letter dated at Washington, March 21, 1861, and addressed to Jefferson Davis:

My Dear Sir: This will introduce to you my friend, Abraham Rowene, who has been clerk in one of the departments here for six or seven years. He leaves the service here on account of his opinions, and being a Southern man by birth and education, and devoted to what he regards as his country, the Confederacy, he has been a contributor to DeBow's Review, and is fully acquainted with the questions which undermined and have now broken up the American Union. I commend him to your favorable notice as a man who will be of value, and who is worthy of your confidence. CALEB CUSHING.

The reading produced an immense sensation. Those who had defended Mr. Cushing looked blank and amazed. Mr. Lewis of Virginia cried out to learn whether the political disabilities of Caleb Cushing had ever been removed. The caucus was for a time broken up. The senators were in confusion, talking the matter over and asking again for the points. At last order was restored, when it was at once decided without opposition that the judiciary committee should wait on the President and ask him to withdraw the nomination of Mr. Cushing, on the ground of correspondence with the enemy during the rebellion. The gentleman thus commended to Davis was a clerk in the Attorney-General's office under Caleb Cushing. He was, before, a midshipman from Texas. With this letter he went to Montgomery, and on the strength of the letter he was made chief of the Confederate States produce bureau and served in that capacity in the Confederacy.

The case has recalled the letter of Jesse D. Bright, to Jeff Davis, for which he was expelled from the Senate. This letter, dated three weeks before Mr. Cushing's, was as follows;

My Dear Sir; Allow me to introduce to your acquaintance my friend Thomas B. Lincoln of Texas. He visits your capital mainly to dispose of what he regards a great improvement in fire-arms. I recommend him to your favorable consideration as a gentleman of the first respectability, and reliable in every respect. JESSE D. BRIGHT.

Although the senate has confirmed Mr. Cushing as minister to Spain, it is the universal opinion that he will not be allowed to sail and that the President will revoke his commission. It is rather early to speculate on a next choice for Chief Justice.

Mr. Cushing has written a letter to the President, in which he asks the withdrawal of his nomination as Chief Justice, and clearly defines his position on the Constitutional amendments.

On Wednesday, the President withdrew Mr. Cushing's name.

Safety at Fires.

The awful experience of the Stiner family in New York and the narrow escape of working women in the book bindery on Sudbury steet, Boston, teach builders and tenants a needed lesson. Carelessness and avarice imperil the lives of thousands who trust too implicitly to the care of others. Large hotels accommodating guests for the night are liable to be scenes of horror in case of fire, and travellers shrink with undefined feelings of dread as they are carried in the elevator a half dozen stories from the ground floor. The poorest classes are liable to be burned to death in the labyrinthine building where scores are employed and little care is shown for safety. Even in the residences of the wealthy, fire in the basement soon cuts off the ill-fated inmates. That which should be first provided for is left to chance, and occasionally a fire breaks out and the bewildered occupants awakened from sleep die helplessly. If individuals desiring to provide homes for others forget the preventive measures necessary to insure safety—if heartless employers place their working people in fire-traps from which escape is difficult—if hotel keepers are so blinded by the greed of gain that fire-escapes are unthought of—the stern arm of the law should be invoked in behalf of those who cannot help themselves. The law making it criminal for builders to erect dangerous dwelling-houses, making landlords and owners responsible for disasters that may occur, should be stringent and impartially enforced. Culpable negligence often does as much injury as criminal intent, and safety lies only in prompt action. The public suffers long and forgets easily. It is generous and forgiving; but that fact does not lessen responsibility.

Weston Repudiated.

The Dover Democrat, edited by Joshua L. Foster, has made things lively in the democratic camp, and ably advocated the claims of the farmers and their candidate, Judge Roberts, before the meeting of the democracy in convention at Concord. The Democrat also protested against the proposed insertion of a license-to-sell-rum resolution in the democratic platform John H. Pearson, of the Concord People, finally joined in support of Judge Hiram R. Roberts as the most available candidate with which to defeat his old enemies of the railroad ring, John H. George, James A. Weston, et als. The People, however, advocates the license view of the temperance question, and although the Pearson element was crushed by the preponderance of railroad influence, their leader had the satisfaction of seeing the license resolution adopted. The old party leaders triumphed over him and bound the party as effectually to their side of the controversy, as it their majority had been large.

The position of the Dover Democrat has been an anomalous one since the convention. Joshua couldn't make the sun stand still. Hiram had been worsted. License had been boldly proclaimed as the policy of the party. And Joshua has shifted his moorings. His strength was with the farmers and his open utterances were diametrically opposed to the results of the balloting at Concord. He has been thoughtful for a day or or two, and finally is out with a pronunciamento in which he repudiates the nomination of Weston and denounces the convention which nominated him and its platform. For this campaign, Jos ua drops his boat out of the eddy of the democratic maelstrom, lets go the ears of the conservative mule, and drifts where the masses of the farmers in the democratic party must inevitably drift, away from its present leaders toward more healthful influences. The influence of the Democrat on its thousands of readers must have a demoralizing effect on those with whom the farmers are parting company.

Passage of the Salary Bill.

The House of Representatives on Tuesday passed the salary bill as received from the Senate by a vote of 226 to 25. All the New England members voted yea. The bill reduces the salaries of members from $7500 to $5000 and actual travelling expenses.

Our Navy—On Paper.

[N. Y. Times.]

The curious feauture of the recent debate was that while the republican member having the bill (on naval appropriation) in charge was defending it as a measure of economy, Mr. Fernando Wood, the nominal leader of the democrats, was denouncing the department as extravagant, and Mr. Beck, the real leader of the democrats, and Mr. Archer, of Maryland, a very able democratic member of the Naval Committee, were protesting that the appropriation was altogether too small. On the facts of the case as they stand, Mr. Archer made a strong statement. According to the Navy Register of 1873, the United States possesses 167 vessels, carrying 1,321 guns—apparently a respectable, though by no means a powerful navy. But when the list of these vessels is critically examined a very different impression is received. Of the 167 vessels, twenty-seven are tugs, not in any sense war vessels, and useful solely for towing and messenger boats—the errand-boys of the navy. Twenty-nine more are sailing vessels, of as little use in actual warfare against modern vessels as a Queen Anne's arm would be against a repeating rifle. These sailing vessels are now used principally as store-ships, practice-ships, and receiving-ships, and are steadily rotting away. This reduces the number to ninety-one. Of this number, sixty-three are steamers. Of these, according to Mr. Archer, sixteen are on the stocks, work suspended and the vessels decaying, two are worthless, two are undergoing reconstruction, which will occupy six months, and five are small three-gun ships, not to be regarded as ships of war, leaving only thirty-eight available vessels, including ten white-oak vessels, which have been condemned by a board of naval officers as "worthless for war purposes."

To these thirty-eight steamers we must add our effective iron-clads. But what are our effective iron-clads? Only six are available and only three are ready for sea. These are the Mahopac, Manhattan, and Saugus, now at Key West. Thus it happened that when the Spanish troubles first became serious, the Secretary of the Navy could command in all but thirty-seven vessels, carrying 530 guns, in the European, North Atlantic, and South Atlantic waters. To have recalled these would have left the commerce of the country at the mercy of any privateer Spain should send out.

In point of quality, it must be admitted that we have no first-class war vessels. Our iron-clads are not sea-going. Some of them are by courtesy and custom classified as sea-going, but they have not gone, and they could not go to sea with any confidence that they could carry their crews safely, or remain afloat in any condition to give battle on the open ocean with the iron clad vessels of modern navies. As we lack in quality, so we lack still more in quantity of naval force. The iron-clads we have would prove, we have every reason to believe, an utterly worthless reliance in any serious struggle. Nor does the Navy Appropriation bill allow any remedy for this condition of things. We have not a war navy, and we cannot, by the annual expenditure of sixteen millions and a half of dollars, obtain one. We can have, with the sloops-of-war authorized last year, a fair cruising navy on this expenditure, and we can keep it, thanks to the energy and skill of the Naval Department, in good working condition for times of peace. But that is all.

The question, then, for Congress to decide, when it comes soberly to consider the appropriation for the navy, is, whether we are to be content with a mere cruising navy. We need hardly say that, in the present condition it is sure to be answered in the affirmative. Congress cannot keep clearly before it more than one purpose. Its present purpose is economy. It is sure to cut the expenditures at every point that it well can, and it is no more likely to spare the navy on account of remoter considerations than those of present saving, than it is to spare any other department. If Congress had to spend the money as well as authorize its expenditure; if it were consciously, as it is in reality, responsible for the condition of the country—in that case we should have the question dealt with very differently. For our own part, we regret that this is not the case. We believe that with our present policy in regard to certain grave foreign questions and with the power which Congress possesses, and may possibly exercise, of hurrying the nation by rash action into a position where at least a decently strong navy will be needed, grave misfortunes and great humiliation may be the consequence of this substantial irresponsibility of Congress, this tendency to act on one aspect of a public matter without thinking or caring what it may yet do on another aspect of the same matter.

State News.

John P. Moore, Esq., of Goff's Falls, is the republican nominee for Senator in the third district.

The Nashua Telegraph says it is very generally believed among the friends of Judge Roberts, and openly avowed, that he "was cheated out of his nomination." The evidence is too overwhelming to be doubted.

About two years ago Charles A. Knowlton, of Nashua, then in the employ of Barr & Co., a young man of business capacity and promise, was admitted to the Nashua Novelty Works as a partner, the firm name being Fletcher, Knowlton & Atwood. The firm has done a good business and two of the partners had abundant reason to suppose that it was a prosperous one. The books and accounts were under the charge of Knowlton, and it has turned out that he has carried on a series of speculations by false entries in his bank accounts, and has robbed his partners of $5000 or more. No arrest has been made, and it is said that Knowlton's capital originally put into the concern will save his partners from loss, although had his breach of trust not been discovered it must have led to ruin.

A man working in the cotton mill of the Cocheco Company at Dover found the rear portion of his clothing well on fire from a lighted pipe in his pocket. The point of it is that he was at work in the midst of highly inflammable material.

Mrs. Eveline Dearborn of Plymouth, about 70 years of age, was robbed of a carpet bag containing $100 and a ticket from Buffalo to California, worth $133, at Worcester, on Wednesday last, by a man who assisted her off the train. The bag and the money were recovered, but the ticket was gone.

The noon train down, on the 8th, came near meeting with a fearful accident on the lower intervale in Plymouth. A culvert forty feet wide was washed out underneath, leaving the stringers in place, so that to the coming train there was no sign of danger. A Frenchman walking up the track saw the state of affairs, and, by swinging his hat and other gestures, stopped the train, saving it by scarcely a second of time, the cow-catcher going over the edge of the gorge. There were about forty people in the cars.

A sleigh, aged over 100 years, is yet in active service at Lancaster.

Gilsum had but four deaths last year, the smallest number for 72 years.

Thomas Walker of Carroll got a bad cut in the face from an axe in the hands of Thomas Parks, ruining his nose.

Mary Davis of Manchester, aged sixteen, has been missing ten or eleven days. Her friends are feeling very anxious.

On the 1st, Edwin W. Drew of Stewartstown met with an accident, while cutting in the woods, by which his right leg was broken in two places. He cut a crutch and hobbled home.

On the 3d, in Exeter, George M. Perkins, in throwing a package from a baggage car, was hit by a switch on the right arm, cutting it badly and paralyzing it. He was knocked against the car door, injured his face and head and almost went under the wheels.

John Dodge of Marlow committed suicide by hanging, while under a temporary fit of insanity. His body was not found until the next evening. He had for several years represented his town in the State Legislature, and was an estimable citizen.

The republicans of the second district have nominated Hon. L. D. Stevens of Concord for Councillor.

Rev. M. T. Runnels of Sanbornton is the author of a very extensive and valuable genealogy of the Runnels family. It is through the line of Samuel Runnels of Bradford, Mass., 1703, Job of Durham, N. H., 1713, John of Durham 1713, then of several others of the name Runnels, and Reynolds. From James Runnels of Portsmouth, 1663, were some of later generations, living in Candia, Chester and Raymond.

The advertised demonstration of workingmen in New York resulted in a gathering of about five thousand men in Tompkin's square and a short, but lively, conflict with the police. The rioters were soon put to flight and several of them arrested. Some blood was shed, but no one was killed.

Mr. Ai Brooks, cashier of the First National Bank of Lewiston, Me., has been detected in a system of appropriating the interest on notes discounted at the bank.

The New York Graphic must have seen how navy yard and other jobs work on modern democracy, judging by its remark that "three-quarters of the democracy are good republicans when there is an office to be filled."

The Spanish frigate Arapiles has gone ashore on the rocks off Pollon's ship-yard, at the foot of Bridge street, Brooklyn. She is not likely to get off for a good while to come, and then only at the expense of great, if not irreparable damage.

Fire.

Shortly after eight o'clock, Wednesday evening, fire was discovered in the rear portion of Bodge's shoe manufactory on High street. The flames spread rapidly, although checked by snow shovelled in, and the residence of Hon. Albert A. Fernald seemed likely to be burned. The streets were in bad condition from the drifted snow, but the firemen tugged diligently at their machines and in a short time had streams on. After playing five minutes the water suddenly gave out and a sheet of flame poured from the burning building and seemed to cover the easterly end of Mr. Fernald's house. Shortly afterward a supply of water was obtained, and the streams were put where they would do the most good, resulting in the extinguishment of the fire. Several firemen were hurt by falling glass, and Mr. John D. Randall of S. F. E. Co. No. 2 received a severe cut on the hand, severing a chord. The fire was evidently incendiary, and during its continuance the hose was cut by some miscreant. Our city was saved from a more serious conflagration by the well-directed exertions of the firemen, and the fact that the fire did not occur later in the night. The building was owned by Came Bros., and was only partially burned. The loss will be about $5000; not so much as if the shoe manufactory had been running. After the fire the company of Kearsarge No. 3 received a liberal refreshing from Mr. Wm. Kennedy.

Laconics.

A furious north-east snow storm prevailed all day yesterday, drifting badly and rendering out-of-door locomotion anything but comfortable. Clear the sidewalks.

Religious meetings will be held to-day and to-morrow under the direction of the executive committee, the Young Men's Christian Association of New Hampshire, commencing at 9 o'clock this morning at the Congregational chapel, Middle Street; the evening meeting will be at the Methodist Church.

Intelligence was received on Monday, of the death of Manning Kennard of Florence, a native of Portsmouth, which occurred in Florence on the 21st ultimo. Mr. Kennard was many years ago well known in business circles of Philadelphia, as a successful merchant. He was a brother of James Kennard, jr., whose genial writings in the Knickerbocker, in the palmy days of that magazine, will be remembered by many. Mr. Kennard married a Philadelphia lady, and for about twenty years past has resided abroad. He leaves a widow, but no children.

Four cargoes of coal, amounting to eighteen hundred tons, arrived at this port on Tuesday.

Such is the intense feeling in favor of the reappointment of Major Vaughan to the Pension Agency, that our sanctum is crowded every evening by callers desiring to know what the news is from Washington. It resembles the interest shown on election nights.

Our Relations with Spain.

There is a feeling of uneasiness in official circles with regard to our future relations with Spain. This Government has not recognized and will not at present recognize the new Government at Madrid. Serrano's movements will meanwhile be watched with interest. It is not at all improbable that, as the Virginius negotiations were the means of overthrowing the Castelar Government, he may seek to build himself up by assuming a hostile attitude toward this country. Even when the Virginius case was in a fair way of settlement and there were no indications of the downfall of Castelar, the opinion that we might eventually drift into war with Spain was expressed by more than one member of the Cabinet. In this connection may be mentioned a rumor current for the past few days that the President will interfere to prevent the cutting down of the appropriations for the army and navy, on the ground that contingencies may arise which will render it necessary to have both branches of the service in a state of efficiency.

Theory of Winds and Hurricanes.

The sunshine accompanied by heat comes in the most unpretentious manner on the earth, blessing man, beast and vegetation. But when an undue amount falls in one locality the air is rarified or becomes light so that a sort of vacuum exists. The colder air rushes in, and this moving air is wind. When the vacuum is great, the rush of air is rapid, sometimes a tempest or a hurricane.

Fred Grant Goes for Donn Piatt.

Don Piatt recently published a card in the Washington Capital, giving notice that he could be found at his office daily, and that when an aggrieved person attempts to call him to account in his own house such person will be met by the police. It appears Mr. Piatt made an attack on Mrs. Grant's receiving on New Year's day in the columns of his paper, and the article coming to the notice of Lieutenant Fred. Grant, who is there on a visit, he went to Piatt's residence, intending to resent the insult. Piatt sent word by the servant that he was not at home, but could be seen at his office, and Lieutenant Grant retired. Piatt then wrote a note to the Chief of Police stating that he had been menaced by two ruffians, armed with loaded canes, and asked protection. Two policemen were accordingly detailed to guard Piatt's house. Piatt also stated that one of his assailants was Lt. Grant, and asked for intercession. The Chief of Police, in compliance with this request, got Governor Shepherd out of a sick bed to go and see General Babcock. A conference was then held, at which Mrs. Grant and Lieutenant Grant were present, and young Grant finally, at the entreaties of his mother, consented to let the matter drop. He says he did not intend to shoot Piatt, but to give him a good thrashing.

Received Payment.

The following went the rounds of the papers many years ago:

"One meets with many curious things who peers into the old Church registers of England; but the following, taken from the Record office of Winchester Cathedral is certainly unique. It is a paid workman's bill, and this is a literal copy:

—The treasures of the deep are not so precious as are the concealed comforts of a man locked up in a woman's love.

—A householder in a Western village, in filling up his census schedule, under the column headed "Where born," describes one of his children as "born in the parlor," and the other "up stairs."

—Absolute purity of soul is, perhaps, never seen here upon earth. There is so much all about us, impure and unclean, that we cannot pass unsullied. Our souls early lose the whiteness of their youth, and are thenceforward soiled beyond our cleansing.

Business Notices.

If you feel dull, drowsy, debilitated, have frequent headache, mouth tastes badly, poor appetite and tongue coated, you are suffering from Torpid Liver or "Biliousness," and nothing will cure you so speedily and permanently as Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. 708

Something certain at last.—Piles is not only one of the most painful of human diseases, but professional men had almost despaired of finding a remedy, until the introduction of ANAKESIS by Dr. Silsbee, and after an experience of 20,000 cases in five years, doctors agree that an infallible remedy has been found. Sufferers will appreciate ANAKESIS after trying everything else in vain and then experiencing the bliss of instant relief and ultimate cure.—Price $1.00. Sold by Drug dealers everywhere. Principal Depot, 46 Walker st., New York.

Unhealthy Surroundings.

To breathe pure, healthful air, and to follow occupations conducive to health and long life are the privileges of the minority. The majority must dwell wherever their lot is cast, however insalubrious the locality may be, and work at the craft assigned to them, however destructive to health and vigor. Medical science has, however come to the aid of the latter. In Hostetter's Stomach Bitters they have (and have had for the last twenty-five years) the best defence against the morbid influences which create and foster disease that the vegetable kingdom can supply. Its ingredients are among the finest botanic specifics which research has yet revealed to man. As a preventive of, and remedy for the diseases generated by swamp, miasma, the foul air of factories, excessive heat, over exertion of body or mind, unwholesome water or any other morbific cause, Hostetter's Stomach Bitters bear away the palm from all medicines of the present day.

Vegetine cleanses and purifies the blood, thereby causing humors of all kinds to disappear.

The Kidneys, although but little understood, are among the most important of the vital parts. All diseases pertaining to them or to the organs they supply with health and vigor, in either sex, are cured by Helmbold's Extract Buchu. By Helmbold's process Buchu becomes a specific. No other chemist has so skillfully extracted its virtues. Sufferers will avoid disappointment, failure and exposure, by obtaining only Helmbold's Buchu. For sale by all druggists.

Special Notices.

Chapped Hands, face, rough skin, pimples, ringworm, salt rheum and other cutaneous affections cured, and the skin made soft and smooth, by using the Juniper Tar Soap, made by Caswell, Hazard & Co., New York. Be certain to get the Juniper Tar Soap, as there are many imitations made with common tar which are worthless. f3

Thousands die every Winter of Consumption, Bronchitis, Diphtheria, and lung fever, when a few doses of Hale's Honey of Horehound and Tar, given in time, would have saved from a premature grave. Criterion's, 7 8th Avenue. Sold by all Druggists.

AYER'S HAIR VIGOR,

FOR RESTORING GRAY HAIR

TO ITS NATURAL VITALITY AND COLOR.

Advancing years, sickness, care, disappointment, and hereditary predisposition, all turn the hair gray, and either of them incline it to shed prematurely.

AYER'S HAIR VIGOR, by long and extensive use, has proven that it stops the falling of the hair immediately; often renews the growth, and always surely restores its color when faded or gray. It stimulates the nutritive organs to healthy activity, and preserves both the hair and its beauty. Thus brashy, weak or sickly hair becomes glossy, pliable and strengthened; lost hair re-grows with lively expression; falling hair is checked and established; thin hair thickens; and faded or gray hair resumes its original color. Its operation is sure and harmless. It cures dandruff, heals all humors, and keeps the scalp cool, clean and soft—under which conditions diseases of the scalp are impossible.

As a dressing for ladies' hair, the VIGOR is praised for its grateful and agreeable perfume, and valued for the soft lustre and richness of tone it imparts.

FOURTH GRAND GIFT CONCERT

FOR THE BENEFIT OF THE

Public Library of Ky.

OVER A MILION IN BANK!

SUCCESS ASSURED!

Full Drawing Certain

On Tuesday, 31st of March Next.

In order to meet the general wish and expectation of the public and the ticket-holders for the full payment of the magnificent gifts announced for the Fourth Grand Gift Concert of the Public Library of Kentucky, the management have determined to postpone the Concert and Drawing until

Tuesday, March 31st, 1874,

They have already realized

OVER A MILLION DOLLARS,

And have a great many agents to hear from.

No doubt is entertained of the sale of every ticket before the drawing, but whether all are sold or not, the Concert and Drawing will positively and unequivocably take place on the day now fixed, and if any remain unsold they will be cancelled and the prizes will be reduced in proportion to the unsold tickets.

Only 60,000 tickets have been issued and will be distributed among the ticket-holders.

12,000 CASH GIFTS,

$1,500,000,

The tickets are printed in coupons, of tenths, and fractional parts will be represented in the drawing just as whole tickets are.

Portsmouth Chronicle.

—A complicated case has made its way up to the Supreme Court of Massachusetts. Mr. Perkins, a tardy traveller, wanted to catch a train that was starting out of Boston sooner than suited his leisurely convenience. He offered Mr. Gage, a hackman, two dollars to get him to the depot in time. Mr. Gage did it, but in doing so drove faster than the ordinance allowed, and was arrested. He argued that the occasion and the extra compensation condoned his fault, whereupon he was also prosecuted for taking more than the regular fare. Competent counsel have fought his case to the cost of $1,000, and now the final decision is that he must pay the fines originally imposed for charging an exorbitant fare and fast driving.

—"I have lost flesh," said a toper to his companion. "No great loss," replied the other, "since you have made it up in spirits."

CATARRH!

A Woman Having Catarrh 35 Years, Cured.

And Droppings in Throat, Choking, Strangulings, Pains in the Side, Loins, Headache, Dizziness, and General Weakness, Cured by less than Three Bottles of the

CONSTITUTIONAL CATARRH REMEDY.

To Messrs. Littlefield & Co., Proprietors of Constitutional Catarrh Remedy, Manchester, N.H.:

I reside at Manchester N., H., and previously resided at Kennikec, and am a native of Weare, this State. I have had Catarrh twenty-five years, ever since I was 19 years old; had it bad all the time. It run all that period, and nights it would fill up and drop down in my throat, causing a feeling of choking, so that I would spring up in bed to save myself from strangulation. It affected my head so that I felt confused and was troubled with severe headache at intervals, for a week at a time. I also had bad pains in shoulders, back and kidneys, from which I suffered immensely. So bad were they, that a year ago last summer I was obliged to lie in bed most of the time for three months. I have tried all kinds of snuff and Catarrh remedies that have particular benefit, and consulted physicians. I had a hacking cough. I began to take the Constitutional Catarrh Remedy last August. I began to grow better before finishing the first bottle. I am now on the third bottle. My Catarrh is cured; my health is restored. I have no pains, aches, or cough. My whole system is made over new. I know it is this medicine that has rescued me from intense suffering and almost the grave. I am now able to do the hardest work and bear the greatest exposure, and I think I cannot say too much in favor of the Constitutional Catarrh Remedy.

MRS. E. J. ELANDERS.

Manchester, N. H., Feb. 1, 1872.

I am now 35 years old, have had Catarrh ever since I was eighteen years old, and headache all the time; have suffered beyond description with running at the nose, droppings in the throat, chokings and strangulings. Have tried any quantity of Catarrh Remedies, but have found no relief till I tried your Constitutional Catarrh Remedy, six months ago. I found immediate relief.

Catarrh and all its attendant evils have left. Headache, Pains in Loins and Back, Dizziness, Loss of Appetite, and General Weakness. Less than three bottles of Constitutional Catarrh Remedy have cured me. I have not been so well since I can remember as now. I feel as if I could not say too much for the medicine, or thank God too heartily that through its instrumentality I have been restored to health.

MARY M. ABBOTT,
No. 17 Manchester Corporation.

Manchester, N. H., Jan. 27, 1872.

The above lady is my mother. I am a painter by trade, and a member of the City Council of Manchester. Every word that my mother states is true.

JACOB J. ABBOTT.

Hundreds of cases of a similar nature cured within the last year. Snuffs and Lotions are only temporary relief. The CONSTITUTIONAL CATARRH REMEDY strikes at the root, builds up the constitution, makes it new, and drives away Catarrh and all diseases of the mucous membranes and their attendant pains and aches, pertaining to head, back, shoulders, kidneys, and throat.

Price $1 per Bottle. Sold by all Druggists. A Pamphlet of 32 pages, giving a Treatise on Catarrh, and containing innumerable cases of cures, sent FREE, by addressing the Proprietors,

IRON IN THE BLOOD.

DYSPEPSIA, DEBILITY, DROPSY AND HUMORS.

PERUVIAN SYRUP

Makes The Weak Strong.

The Peruvian Syrup, a Protected Solution of the Protoxide of Iron, is so combined as to have the character of an ailment, as easily digested and assimilated with the blood as the simplest food. It increases the quantity of Nature's Own Vitalizing Agent, Iron in the blood, and cures "a thousand ills," simply by Toning up, Invigorating and Vitalizing the system. The enriched and vitalized blood permeates every part of the body, repairing damages and waste, searching out morbid secretions, and leaving nothing for disease to feed upon.

This is the secret of the wonderful success of this remedy in curing Dyspepsia, Liver Complaint, Dropsy, Chronic Diarrhœa, Boils, Nervous Affections, Chills and Fevers, Rumors, Loss of Constitutional Vigor, Diseases of the Kidneys and Bladder, Female Complaints, and all diseases originating in a bad state of the blood, or accompanied by debility or a low system. Being free from Alcohol, in any form its energizing effects are not followed by corresponding reaction, but are permanent, infusing strength, vigor and new life into all parts of the system, and building upon an Iron Constitution.

Thousands have been changed to health by use of this remedy, from weak, sickly, suffering creatures to strong, healthy, and happy men and women; and invalids cannot reasonably hesitate to give it a trial.

See that each bottle has PERUVIAN SYRUP blown in the glass.

AMERICAN & FOREIGN PATENTS.

R. H. EDDY, SOLICITOR OF PATENTS,

For Inventions, Trade Marks or Designs,

No. 76 State St., Opposite Kilby St., Boston.

After an extensive practice of upwards of thirty years, continues to secure patents in the United States; also in Great Britain, France and other foreign countries. Caveats, Specifications, Assignments, and all papers for Patents, executed on reasonable terms with dispatch. Researches made to determine the validity and utility of Patents of inventions, and legal and other advice rendered in all matters touching the same. Copies of the claims of any patent furnished, by remitting one dollar. Assignments recorded in Washington.

No Agency in the United States possesses superior facilities for obtaining Patents or ascertaining the patentability of inventions.

All necessity for a journey to Washington to procure a Patent and the usual great delay there, are here saved inventors.

TESTIMONIALS.

"I regard Mr. Eddy as one of the most capable and successful practitioners with whom I have had official intercourse. CHARLES MASON,
Commissioner of Patents."

"I have no hesitation in assuring inventors that they cannot employ a man more competent and trustworthy and more capable of putting their applications in a form to secure for them an early and favorable consideration at the Patent Office.

EDMUND BURKE,
Late Commissioner of Patents."

"Mr. R. H. Eddy has made for me over THIRTY applications for Patents, having been successful in almost every case. Such unmistakable proof of great talent and ability on his part leads me to recommend all inventors to apply to him to procure their Patents, as they may be sure of having the most faithful attention bestowed on their cases and at very reasonable charges.

JOHN TAGGART."

COAL.

HAVING contracted for a quantity of the above coal, we would call the attention of Manufacturers, Dealers and Consumers to the following different grades mined and controlled by the Company:

HARD WHITE ASH COAL,
FREE BURNING WHITE ASH COAL,
SHAMOKIN WHITE ASH COAL,
SHAMOKIN RED ASH COAL,
NORTH FRANKLIN COAL,
LYKENS VALLEY COAL.

In order that all coal shall be shipped in good order, a most rigid system of inspection, both at the mines and at the shipping ports, will at all times be enforced. In every district of the coal region there will be appointed a number of competent persons skilled in the preparation of coal, as local inspectors, whose duty it will be to visit the several collieries daily to see that a proper force is at all times employed in removing slate, and to prevent, if possible, any coal being sent from the mines in bad order. In addition to these efforts at prevention, no means will be left untried at the shipping ports to cure the evile of careless preparation. At Schuylkill Haven, Port Clinton and Port Richmond, ALL COAL WILL BE SUBJECTED TO THE PERSONAL EXAMINATION OF A SKILLED INSPECTOR BEFORE IT IS SHIPPED, and if condemned by him, will be dumped in places provided for the purpose, and before being loaded into vessels WILL BE THOROUGHLY REPICKED AND CLEANED BY HAND.

We keep a fine stock of the above coal on hand, also

LEHIGH, WILKESBARRE, PITTSTON

And other first class Coal. For sale by the Cargo, Car-load or at retail from our wharf.

Harper's Weekly.

SPLENDIDLY ILLUSTRATED.

NOTICES OF THE PRESS.

The Weekly is the ablest and most powerful illustrated periodical published in this country. Its editorials are scholarly and convincing, and carry much weight. Its illustrations of current events are full and fresh, and are prepared by our best designers. With a circulation of 150,000, the Weekly is read by at least half a million persons, and its influence as an organ of opinion is simply tremendous. The Weekly maintains a positive position, and expresses decided views on political and social problems.—Louisville Courier Journal.

Harper's Bazar.

NOTICES OF THE PRESS.

The BAZAR is edited with a contribution of tact and talent that we seldom find in any journal; and the journal itself is the organ of the great world of fashion.—Boston Traveller.

The BAZAR commends itself to every member of the household—to the children by droll and pretty pictures, to the young ladies by its fashion-plates in endless variety, to the provident matron by its patterns for the children's clothes, to paterfamilias by its tasteful designs for embroidered slippers and luxurious dressing-gowns. But the reading-matter of the BAZAR is uniformly of great excellence. The paper has acquired a wide popularity for the fireside enjoyment it affords.—N. Y. Evening Post.

PROSPECTUS FOR 1874—SEVENTH YEAR.

THE ALDINE,

An Illustrated Monthly Journal, universally admitted to be the handsomest Periodical in the world. A Representative and Champion of American Taste.

NOT FOR SALE IN BOOK OR NEWS STORES.

THE ALDINE, while issued with all the regularity, has none of the temporary or timely interest characteristic of ordinary periodicals. It is an elegant miscellany of pure, light and graceful literature; and a collection of pictures, the rarest specimens of artistic skill, in black and white. Although each succeeding number affords a fresh pleasure to its friends, the real value and beauty of THE ALDINE will be most appreciated after it has been bound up at the close of the year. While other publications may claim superior cheapness, as compared with rivals of a similar class, THE ALDINE is a unique and original conception—alone and unapproached—absolutely without competition in price or character. The possessor of a complete volume cannot duplicate the quantity of fine paper and engravings in any other shape or number of volumes FOR TEN TIMES ITS COST; AND THEN, THERE ARE THE CHROMOS, BESIDE!

ART DEPARTMENT, 1874.

The illustrations of THE ALDINE have won a world-wide reputation, and in the art centres of Europe it is an admitted fact that its wood cuts are examples of the highest perfection ever attained. The common prejudice in favor of "steel plates," is rapidly yielding to a more educated and discriminating taste which recognizes the advantages of superior artistic quality with greater facility of production. The wood-cuts of THE ALDINE possess all the delicacy and elaborate finish of the most costly steel plate, while they afford a better rendering of the artist's original.

In addition to designs by the members of the National Academy, and other noted American artists, THE ALDINE will reproduce examples of the best foreign masters, selected with a view to the highest artistic success and greatest general interest. Thus the subscriber to THE ALDINE will, at a trifling cost, enjoy in his own home the pleasures and refining influences of true art.

The Christmas issue for 1874 will contain special designs appropriate to the season, by our best artists, and will surpass in attractions any of its predecessors.

PREMIUM FOR 1874.

Every subscriber to THE ALDINE for the year 1874 will receive a pair of chromos. The original pictures were painted in oil for the publishers of THE ALDINE, by Thomas Moran, whose great Colorado picture was purchased by Congress for ten thousand dollars. The subjects were chosen to represent "The East" and "The West." One is a view in The White Mountains, New Hampshire; the other gives The Cliffs of Green River, Wyoming Territory.

If any subscriber should indicate a preference for a figure subject the publishers will send "Thoughts of Home," a new and beautiful chromo, 14x 20 inches, representing a little Italian exile whose speaking eyes betray the longings of his heart.

TERMS.

$5 per annum, in advance, with Oil Chromos free.

For 50 CENTS EXTRA, the chromos will be sent, mounted, varnished, and prepaid by mail.

THE ALDINE will, hereafter, be obtainable only by subscription. There will be no reduced or club rate; cash for subscriptions must be sent to the publisher direct, or handed to the local canvasser, without responsibility to the publishers, except in cases where the certificate is given, bearing the fac-simile signature of JAMES SUTTON & CO.

CANVASSERS WANTED.

Any person wishing to act permanently as a local canvasser will receive full and prompt information by applying to

The Country Gentleman.

Volume for 1874.

THE CULTIVATOR & COUNTRY GENTLEMAN, for the past forty years, has ranked, both in this country and abroad, as the STANDARD JOURNAL of AMERICAN AGRICULTURE. The Editors and Proprietors, in addition to their own personal labors, are regularly assisted by a very large number of Special Correspondents and Regular Contributors, among whom are included the ablest Leading Agricultu ists, in all parts of the Country, East and West—and by over Five Hundred Occasional and Voluntary Writers, directly in the ranks of the Best Farmers and Horticulturists of nearly every State in the Union. With the co-operation of so large a corps of practical men, this Journal is intended to possess exceptional value as the chosen Medium of Intercommunication among all classes interested in the Products and Fertility of the Landscape—the Cultivator and those who Consume—the Buyer and Shipper, as well as the first Owner of the crop—Breeders of Improved Animals and their Customers—Manufacturers of Improved Machinery and those who purchase and employ it—Nurserymen and Fruit Raisers—and, especially, to supply fuller and better data as to the progress, prospects and seasons of each successive Season, as throwing light upon one of the most important of all questions—When to Buy and when to Sell.

TERMS.—The COUNTRY GENTLEMAN is published weekly, on the following terms, when paid strictly in advance: ONE COPY, one year, $2.50; FOUR COPIES, $10, and an additional copy for the year free to the sender of the Club; TEN COPIES, $20, and an additional copy for the year free to the sender of the Club.

WISTAR'S BALSAM OF WILD CHERRY!

THE GREAT REMEDY FOR

CONSUMPTION!!

And acknowledged by many prominent physicians to be the most Reliable Preparation ever introduced for the RELIEF and CURE of all

LUNG COMPLAINTS.

This well known remedy is offered to the public sanctioned by the experience of over forty years, and when resorted to in season seldom fails to effect a speedy cure of

COUGHS, COLDS, CROUP, BRONCHITIS, INFLUENZA, WHOOPING COUGH, HOARSENESS, PAINS OR SORENESS IN THE CHEST OR SIDE, BLEEDING AT THE LUNGS, LIVER COMPLAINTS, &c.

CONSUMPTION CAN BE CURED

By a timely resort to this standard remedy, as is proved by hundreds of testimonials received by the proprietors.

Dr. Wistar's Balsam of Wild Cherry

Does not dry up a Cough and leave the cause behind as is the case with most preparations, but it loosens and cleanses the lungs and allays irritation, thus removing the cause of the complaint.

CLERGYMEN, LAWYERS, SINGERS,

And all those whose occupation requires an unusual exercise of the vocal organs, will find this the ONLY PREPARATION which will effectually and instantaneously relieve their difficulties.

BEWARE OF COUNTERFEITS.—Remember that the genuine Wistar's Balsam has on the outside wrapper the signature of "I. BUTTS," and the printed name of the proprietors, "SETH W. FOWLE & SONS, BOSTON." All others are base imitations. Examine the wrapper carefully before purchasing.

The Singer Still Triumphant!
At the Vienna Exhibition, the SINGER received the Medal of Merit, the Medal of Progress, and three other Medals for superiority of productions. These are the highest Sewing Machine Awards at Vienna. The SINGER received all the medals awarded to either of the competing machines, and two medals more than any other obtained. Then, in the name of Truth, what is it that prompts people to claim recommendations for the Diplomas of Honor? The fact is, no Diploma of Honor has been given to any Sewing Machine Company.
But immeasurably more valuable is The World's Award as shown by sales—proved by sworn returns to the owners of the principal Sewing Machine Patents—which last year amounted to TWO HUNDRED AND NINETEEN THOUSAND, SEVEN HUNDRED AND FIFTY-EIGHT (219,758) machines, nine out of ten of them being for Family Use. This is over 45,000 more Sewing Machines than were sold by any other company during the same period, and over One Quarter of all the machines sold in 1872. These enormous sales are owing to the long-tested merits of the Singer Machines, which meet the wants of the public in veracity and simplicity of construction, and capability for great variety and excellence of work. That the users of Sewing Machines find these desirable qualities in the Singer beyond all others, is shown by the sales above given, aside from the awards of International Juries, either at home or abroad.

CATARRH REMEDY.
TO MESSRS. LITTLEFIELD & CO., Proprietors of Constitutional Catarrh Remedy, Manchester, N.H.:
I reside at Manchester, N., H., and previously resided at Hermiker, and am a native of Weare, this State. I have had Catarrh twenty-five years, ever since I was 19 years old; and it had all the time. It run all that period, and nights it would fill up and drop down in my throat, causing a feeling of choking, so that I would spring up in bed to save myself from strangulation. It affected my head so that I felt confused, and was troubled with severe headache at intervals, for a week at a time. I also had bad pains in shoulders, back and kidneys, from which I suffered immensely. So bad were they, that a year ago last summer I was obliged to lie in bed most of the time for three months. I have tried all kinds of snuff and Catarrh remedies with no particular benefit, and consulted physicians. I had a hacking cough. I began to take the Constitutional Catarrh Remedy last August. I began to grow better before finishing the first bottle. I am now on the third bottle. My Catarrh is cured, my health is restored, my cough, pains, aches, or cough. My whole system is made over new. I know it is this medicine that has rescued me from intense suffering and almost the grave. I am now able to do the hardest work and bear the greatest exposure, and feel that I cannot say too much in favor of the Constitutional Catarrh Remedy.
MRS. E. J. FLANDERS.
Manchester, N. H., Feb. 1, 1873.
I am now 53 years old, have had Catarrh ever since I was eighteen years old, and headache all the time, have suffered beyond description with running at the nose, droppings in the throat, coughings and strangulings. Have tried any quantity of Catarrh Remedies, but have found no relief till I tried your Constitutional Catarrh Remedy, six months ago. I found immediate relief.
Catarrh and all its attendant evils have left, Headache, Pains in Loins and Back, Dizziness, Loss of Appetite, and General Weakness. Less than three bottles of Constitutional Catarrh Remedy have cured me. I have not been so well since I can remember as now. I feel as if I could not say too much for the medicine, and thank God too heartily that through its instrumentality I have been restored to health.

EPISCOPACY vs. PURITANISM.

Rev. James DeNormandie's Historical Sketches--No. V.

[Boston Transcript.]

Our last discourse brought the history of the parish down to the building of the second church, in 1657. On the 27th of August, that year, the town with joint consent gave unto the selectmen the power to provide a minister, to order the building of a meeting house and to repair the old meeting house, being the chapel on Pleasant street.

The second church was built facing the bridge over the South mill pond, on the rise of ground as the roads lead off in the direction of Newcastle and the South Cemetery. We have in the Rockingham county records the agreement of the selectmen with one John Hutchinson, to build the new meeting house, to repair the old meeting house, and "finish it and fit it up for a dwelling house for our minister." This record shows the house to have been by the contract forty feet square, with a flat roof and a sub-tantial turret, with a gallery about it, with twelve windows and three doors. (It also gives particularly the changes to be made in the old chapel, so that I think an architect with some knowledge of ancient building could faithfully reconstruct both church and parsonage. For both structures the builder was to have from the town the sum of 140 pounds "in shop goods a portion and some money to the value of 5 pounds and cattle;" one-fourth part when the "old meeting house is repaired, and ye timber for ye new meeting house brought in place"; one-third part when the church was raised and covered, and the remainder when the church was finished.) And in 1671 John Pickering was ordered by the town to make shutters for the meeting house, to draw backwards and forwards, for 30 shillings, and "in case it be too little, then the said Pickering shall have something more."

The panes of the windows were about four inches long and three wide, set in lead and strengthened by small oak bars on the inside. The church had no pews until thirty-three years after it was built.

A part of the business of the selectmen in that day was to seat the worshippers. We find in the town records as early as April 17, 1654, "Ordered, That Richard Cutt, Jno. Pickering and Thomas Walford are to place the inhabitants in their seats in the meeting house, the which is to be done at their best direction." This, of course, referred to the chapel on Pleasant street.

Again, under date of February 14, 1658, just after the new church was built, we find it expressed by general vote of town meeting, "the selectmen are chosen to place the women in the seats according to their direction." This seems to have occasioned some dissatisfaction, for we find another record on the following year, under date of March 1, '58-9, "at a meeting held by the selectmen this day, having some discourse with John Pickering concerning some affronts in giving distaste concerning placing the neighbors in the seats in the new meeting house, the selectmen do think meet to bind him over to answer to the next County Court for his misdemeanor in that case in the bonds of £10 sterling."

Captain Pickering had to be found fault with another time in the same matter of seating the parishioners. Mr. Pickering was a leading man in Church and State, a large landholder, moderator at town meetings, where he carried matters either by persuasion or power, as it suited, and with a good faculty of getting into trouble with any opposing townsmen. The tradition is that he was a man of great strength, and on that account perhaps was chosen, a few years after, at the ordination of Mr. Moodey, to provide seats for the people, supposing that he could preserve order and reserve proper seats for the dignitaries of the occasion. Mr. Pickering opened the doors for any one to take what place he pleased, making no reservation for the guests of the pastor of the town. For so doing he was summoned before the ecclesiastical body, and censured for neglect of duty. His only apology was that he did not believe in preferred seats or invidious distinctions, and that one man was as good as another.

The new meeting house did not stand alone, for with the new house and the provision for a permanent ministry, and the gathering of a body of communicants with the church, came also the other appointments, which were then regarded as the necessary part of the meeting house. On the 25th of September, 1662, it was ordered at a town meeting "that a cage be made, or some other means invented by the selectmen, to punish such as sleepe or take tobacco on the Lord's day out of the meetings in time of the public services;" and at the same meeting it was ordered that "whosoever shall kill a wolfe in the bounds of the town, shall bring some of the neighbors to testify it has been done in the town bounds, and shall nayle the head upon the meeting-house door, shall have £5 for his pains."

In 1671, synonymous with the formation of the church, as a body of communicants, this same Captain Pickering was ordered to build a "cage twelve feet square and seven feet high, the studs to be six inches broad and four inches thick, and the openings between them to be three inches. The studs are to be round the said cage and at the bottom and overhead. The said Pickering to make a good strong door and make a substantial pair of stocks and place in said cage, and also build on the rough of said cage a firm pillory. All which cage, stocks and pillory to be built and raised some convenient space from the westward end of the meeting house." The pillory was a frame, erected posts with holes and movable boards, through which the head and hands of the offender were put for punishment. The stocks was a machine constructed of wood, with holes through which the feet of offenders were passed, and their bodies thus confined. It was no slight thing, during the strictness of the Puritan rule, to offend against the order of the sanctuary—a dangerous matter to sleep during time of service in the meeting house, or to take tobacco anywhere outside the meeting house. Not only were there those buildings for the terror of offenders, a little to the west of the meeting house,—but there was another building near by for the comfort of the worshippers. In 1669, permission was granted to one Fryer of Newcastle, a prominent parishioner, "the towne's right of 20 foote square of land neere the meeting house to sett up a house to keep woode in for to accommodate himself and family in winter time when he comes to meeting." It was customary in the early days of New England history for small houses a few feet square called "noon-houses," or "Sabba-day Houses" to be built near the church, with a fire place where the worshippers went, before, between and after services, to warm themselves. With no pews in the meeting house then, and no fires except the "eternal ones, in the future, and sermons from one to two hours long;—congregations at the present day certainly have to be grateful for the comfort of their worship in contrast. Nothing then depended on the sensationalism or eloquence of the minister. People went to church from a sense of duty, all unwillingness to be fined or punished in the pillory,—and trembled all through the tedious services from a threefold fear—the fear of God, the fear of hell and the fear of the magistrate.

The new meeting house was soon filled, and even overflowing, so that a good deal of confusion was occasioned by the crowd, and in March 1660-61 there is a record on the town books that "the selectmen for the regulating disorders in the meeting house have placed the women in their seats as commodiously as the room will afford, and see a necessity of making a gallery for better accommodation, which they intend as soon as with convenience they can." From time to time leading parishioners were granted permission to build, at their own cost, seats or pews for themselves in various parts of the meeting house,—seats and pews of various length and breadth and height,—so that it was a strange contrast to the uniformity of modern pews and aisles; the alleys, as they were called, instead of aisles, seem to have run among the seats and pews; but in April, 1693, at a general town meeting, there was an agreement entered into by those who had and those who desired pews, to build them all of one height and uniform, according to a plan, at the expense of the owners. The same day the selectmen and a committee seated all the people as they must have remained until the parish was divided, and the third church of Portsmouth, the present North Church, was built. There are two or three items in the town records worth a notice. We find the choice of a sexton to make clean the meeting house and ring the bell at £4 a year. We find one Nicholas Bond engaged by the parish "for to look after the demeanor of the boys at meeting," at twenty shillings per annum; and it was voted to one Partridge and five or six more people to have the liberty to build a pair of stairs up to the westward beame within the meeting house, and a pew upon the beame at their own charge, and the pew shall be to their own use, and the stayrs are not to be discommodious to the meeting house." Here are also two or three items about seats for younger persons or strangers or stray listeners: "The back seat in the men's gallery is left for younger persons, about fourteen years of age. As for boys under that age, they are to sit in the men's alleys, and the girls in the women's alleys. Also, that no boys be suffered to sit on the stairs or above stairs, and that no young men or young women offer to crowd into any seat where either men or women are seated." The memory of the sanctuary could not have been very grateful to the children.

We have in that last seating of the worshippers in the Old South the names of 203 persons, with one pew left for young persons, about fourteen years of age, unmatched, besides two men appointed to sit with the minister in the pulpit, and three in a seat under the pulpit—making room in the entire building for about 270 persons.

One of the difficulties of the parish during those early years was to secure the minister's salary. It must have been owing to the strength of the Episcopal element that the rigid system of the Puritans for the support of the clergy could not be carried out here, so that to gain any support whatever from that element the subscriptions had to be voluntary.

In 1653 we find this record: "It is generally agreed that from henceforth the minister's wages shall be paid by way of rate of the whole estates; the invoice shall be taken within two months after the date hereof"—but as soon as a settled annuity was obtained we find this record: "14 Feb., 1658. This day, by general vote, Mr. Moodey is to have his maintenance for this year by way of subscription," but the subscriptions were not promptly or fully paid, and in 1650, the selectmen confirmed to the minister, Moodey, one hundred acres of land. Again in 1661, "Whereas it doth appear that Mr. Moody is short of what is due him according unto the subscriptions of the inhabitants,—for a great part of the time he hath been in this place,—the selectmen therefore order that forthwith there be several deputies to make a demand of those who have neglected to pay hitherto or to know the reason of their withholding their due, that soe Mr. Moodey may have all due encouragement in the work of the ministry, and such as shall wilfully refuse to pay their just due, that there may be a legal course taken with such to compel them."

All the time Mr. Moodey was gaining in the general favor of the parish, but the legal measures to secure his salary could not be enforced, and the voluntary would not bring in the salary. It is not at all unlikely that, as in the present day, so even then some of those who most loudly admired Mr. Moodey, wanted others to pay for the preaching they enjoyed. At all events Mr. Moodey's salary was year by year in greater arrears. At last, in 1667, that brilliant thought which is so frequent in our day, came into the mind of some one at the town meeting, that if only the back pay could be taken out of the town treasury, and the town make up the deficiencies in the salary for the future, nobody would feel the burden—so widespread is the error that if only you can make the government do it, nobody will have to pay much, forgetting constantly there is no hope for society until it learns that government has no right to do anything but afford protection to each one to do for himself, forgetting that government cannot do the least thing in the world as well as the citizens.

The record runs thus: "For the better and more regular providing for Mr. Moodey's maintenance and discharge of our duty towards him for his great pains and labor in the work of the ministry among us in the town, and that as the way has been hitherto by way of voluntary subscriptions, which hath been and is most pleasing to him, it is voted that the town will, and doo hereby, promise to make good unto him all and every sum or sums subscribed by the several inhabitants from year to year, so long as they shall see meet to go on in this way of subscription, provided that such be not permitted to subscribe that are pensioners in the town."

Further, "the selectmen are hereby desired, and henceforth it shall be accounted a presential act, from time to time to see that all and every inhabitant and dweller in the town doo subscribe to the ministry, and those that shall refuse to give or subscribe, or shall neglect to pay what they ought in duty to, the selectmen have hereby power delegated to them to rate according to law, and compel such as shall be delinquent in what they have or shall subscribe from time to time." But while the Episcopal element was doubtless willing to contribute rather than be without worship of any kind, no compulsion could collect the pay, and the next year they returned to voluntary subscriptions, the town to pay the arrears.

In 1671, the year a church was founded, it was voted that Mr. Moodey be honorably maintained, and should have one hundred pounds in money or merchantable goods, and his house and barn be kept in good repair at the town's expense; and here the matter seems to have rested.

We have referred frequently in this sketch to a minister by the name of Moodey,—one who played so important a part in the early history of the parish, that we must now return to his ministry.

The town record for the 5th April, 1659-60 runs thus: "Mr. Moodey is called by the whole town by vote in general to be our minister."

Joshua Moodey, the second minister of Portsmouth, who was regularly settled, and the first minister of the South parish, whose pastorate was of any considerable duration, being minister of the parish from 1658 to 1697, a period of thirty-nine years, was born in Wales in 1632, and was brought by his father to this country the following year. He probably lived for a time at Ipswich, and removed to Newbury in 1635. Joshua Moodey was fitted for college at Newbury, graduated at Harvard in 1653, and began the study of theology.

He came to Portsmouth probably near the close of the year 1658, and preached in the new meeting house with so much approval that a subscription was taken for his maintenance for a year, and the next year he was called to be the minister. Yet such was the division of sentiment among Episcopalians and Puritans, preventing any permanent action, that Mr. Moody was minister of the parish for twelve years before a church as a body of communicants was gathered over which Moody was regularly ordained. It has been customary for the Puritans to explain this by the worldly and ungodly character of the settlers here, who had no interest in religious matters, but a great majority of the parish was of their own faith, and they had everything in their own hands. They might as well have gathered a church the year Moodey was settled, were there not some better reason than the one generally assigned. I take it that the explanation unquestionably is this: The Episcopalian element, though small, was so important and influential that, in regard to all matters pertaining to the minister's support, it had to be regarded, and it persistently opposed everything which tended toward the strict organization of Puritanism. Moodey was married probably in 1660, and began housekeeping in the old chapel on Pleasant street, then converted into a parsonage. Eminent as he undoubtedly was in all matters of Church and State, wielding a great influence for a long ministry, I should be inclined to concede a great deal more to his ability, were he not unfortunate enough to have handed down to our times the number (almost incredible) of sermons he wrote. The 4070th sermon closes a manuscript volume of his discourses in the library of the Massachusetts Historical Society, from which I have planned to give some extracts merely as a matter of style and historical curiosity, not as of any literary help or religious edification. If Mr. Moodey had been imprisoned by Governor Cranfield for writing so many discourses, instead of for refusing to celebrate the communion according to the ritual of the church of England,* it would be easier to excuse him; for such intemperance of writing, such mental self-abuse, ought to be punished instead of being commended as it has sometimes been; and, after all, of the kind, probably the mental labor was not very exhausting, and the number and length were so great because the fashion of preaching ran in that direction.

It would be too much for us to give to-night the history of the formation of the church within the South Parish, which still remains in Moodey's own handwriting, or the account of his imprisonment by the governor. Reserving the remainder of Moodey's ministry for our next sketch, I close by giving the first covenant of our church.

"We doo this day, solemnly and publicly, in the presence of God and his people, avouch the one only living and true God, father, son and spirit, to be our God, and his word as revealed will to be our Rule, and doo with ourselves give up our children to bee the Lord's. We doo also professedly and heartily subject ourselves to Jesus Christ as the Head of his church, and doo covenant and promise that we will submit ourselves to the government of Christ, in this particular Church, according to the laws of his house, that we will watch over our brethren, and bee watched over by them according to rule, and we will in all things so demean ourselves towards our pastor and fellow members, as also towards all others, as becomes the gospel, that the Lord may dwell among us and bless us, and we may be a peculiar people to his service and glory, and all this we promise by the help of Jesus Christ, and in his name looking up to him for his countenance, as being of ourselves capable of nothing."

It is a part of our faith that the doctrines and creeds which man has arranged can by men be revised and rearranged to help the changing conditions of thought and worship. It is not our boast, and would be to us a sad reflection instead of a subject for approval, that the first covenant of our church has remained unchanged. As a matter of history, it has been changed during every principal pastorate since, and there is still room for great improvement.

* Almost if not quite the only instance of religious persecution recorded of early Portsmouth, is this imprisonment of Rev. Mr. Moodey, and this was entirely a personal quarrel, without sectarian bias. A wealthy merchant, who had violated the revenue laws, and was before the courts, "settled" his case with the English governor, Cranfield. But being a member of Mr. Moodey's (North) church, the offending merchant was brought before it, and led to confess his sin. This offended Cranfield, and in his revenge he ordered Moodey to administer the sacrament to himself and others in the Episcopal form, which Moodey refusing, he was deposed from his ministry, cast into prison, and obliged to leave New Hampshire. He was for four years a colleague pastor of the First Church in Boston; was elected to, but declined, the presidency of Harvard College, and took a firm stand against the witchcraft delusion in its time. He afterwards resumed his pastorate of the North Church in Portsmouth, and the last baptism of a child recorded by him was that of the infant who became the famous Sir William Pepperell.

Will Show 'Em Up.

John H. Pearson of Concord doesn't follow in the wake of Foster's Democrat, but bolsters the cause of Weston in the People, which goes out out of its way to inform its friends that it didn't get hit by Sinclair, Jones & Co., when Judge Roberts was defeated. One would think from reading the people that those shrewd political managers had gone to work and allowed their nasal organs to be used as bait instead of patronizing the facial adornments of the Pearson faction. Mr. Pearson has no lament to make over the action of the convention, but some kind of disturbing influence seems to bear heavily on his political conscience, for says the People:

> There were many things in connection with the democratic State convention, holden in this city on Thursday of last week, which demand, and will receive at the proper time, such plain treatment at our hands as will leave no one of our readers doubtful as to what we say and mean. The time has gone by when either the interests of the party at large, or of individual members requires silence in respect to such doings as we refer to; it is simply necessary that an appropriate time should be taken for their exposure and discussion. All that justice requires is that the truth should be told without the risk of being mixed with error which frequently attaches itself to undue precipitancy—and we desire to avoid all such risk. But let no one of our Democratic friends imagine for a single moment that our silence, at this time, means submission to party wrong, or to gratuitous personal indignity.

The Cushing Fiasco.

The Advertiser's special says the President anticipated the visit of the judiciary committee on Mr. Cushing's case, and, in fact, had written a message recalling the nomination before the action of the caucus was concluded, or in fact before the letter to Jeff. Davis was read there. Mr. Butler was one of the busiest men in the city to get him and Mr. Cushing out of the scrape, as easily as possible, and after the discovery in the rebel archives became known, the letter of defence on Mr. Cushing's part for other matters was positively drawn up, containing also a request that the nomination might be withdrawn. With this Mr. Butler hastened to the White House only to find, to his great discomfiture, that the President had already finished a message to the senate recalling Mr. Cushing's name. Mr. Butler's letter was, however, sent with a second message setting forth the relative time of its receipt. All the information in regard to the matter shows that the President, at the moment he became convinced that the letter found was genuine, acted with the greatest promptness in withdrawing the nomination. There is a general interest in the question whether Mr. Cushing will now go to Spain. Many hold that he is disqualified on the ground of having held correspondence with the rebel President, and that unless Congress removes his disabilities, he cannot become qualified.

The following is a text of Mr. Cushing's letter to Jefferson Davis:

WASHINGTON, March 29, 1861.

Dear Sir; Mr. Archibald Roane, for the last six or seven years a clerk in the Attorney-General's office, desires from me a letter of introduction to you, and he desires it not in the view of anticipating administrative favors, but that he may have the honor of your personal intercourse. Of this I take pleasure in assuring you he is eminently worthy. A southern man by birth, family and affection, he has carefully studied and ably discussed in Mr. De Bow's Review and other southern works the lamentable events which have been gradually undermining, and have at length overthrown the American Union. Whilst a practical man, he is also a ripe and accomplished scholar, with indeed predominant literary tastes and habits. In the discharge of his official duties he has combined in a singular degree the purest integrity and most enlightened intelligence with modest contentment in his lot. Having more than once declined offices of more conspicuous employment in the public service, he now resigns his present office from sentiments of devotion to that which alone he can feel to be his country,—namely the Confederate States,—from one of which—Texas—he was appointed. I most heartily commend him, as a gentleman and a man, to your confidence and esteem; and I am with the highest consideration, your obedient servant,

C. CUSHING.

The letter of Mr. Cushing to Hon. Daniel Marcy, read by Mr. Sargent in the republican caucus, begins by alluding to the scheme to colonize Florida, and proceeds as follows:

> This belongs to that base brood of pestilent schemes of policy toward the insurgent States—subjugation, confiscation, colonization, emancipation, devastation, extermination—which sound like the delirious ravings of bedlam let loose; which, if carried into actual operation, would, in the ultimate effect, most of all injure the loyal States, and which tend to cause a great national uprising, entailed upon us for the maintenance of the Constitution and the Union, to sink down into a mere desperate struggle of suicidal, blind rage of self-destruction, the abolition of the Constitution, and the overthrow of the Union by our own fatal hand, not that of our enemies. This gospel of death, this radical destructiveness, is the only practical disunionism existing among us in the loyal States. Though it makes believe support, it fiercely opposes, the administration. It is in deadly hostility to the freedom, prosperity and happiness of the people. It is treasonable conspiracy against the government. May God in his mercy confound all such loyal counsels.

Readables.

Mrs. George Fletcher of South Woodstock, Vt., smothered her infant child with too many wraps while out sleigh-riding last week.

It is said that the earnings of the Maine Central Railroad for the year just closed will foot up fifty per cent. over those of the year preceding the recent consolidation.

The New York Graphic's Washington correspondent says Caleb Cushing is full of law and without conviction, full of books and without an inmortal hope, full of philosophy and without context, and full of record without identity. He served democracy to the brink of rebellion, when they had nothing else to give him. Then he disappeared, and was fished like a cold lump out at sea watching the surf. When it was manifest that he had thrown away his fame and toile d for Laban all these years and got only Lea h, he girded up his loins and proceeded to Washington to work seven years for Rachel. * * * Take the Spanish mission, Caleb Cushing! Where liberty is not there is your country.

There is a man in Newburyport who visits the post office at every mail, and if he receives no letters, takes an old one from his pocket and reads it as he goes through the street. This has an air of business.

Donn Piatt, of the Washington Capital, in entering upon the third year of his publication, says: "It was said when our senior editor visited Europe last summer for the sole purpose of giving rest to his gigantic intellect, that he had sold out his interest in this journal for the pitiful sum of $25,000. He would dash soon quit-claim his title to massive s in the skies for a few North Pacific or Seneca Sandstone bonds. And now we see running like the epizootic the story that the same gentleman has sunk $16,000 in the Capital. How this world is given to lying." To the wide circle of our readers—which includes not only our own land, but six subscribers in Canada, two in New Jersey, and thousands over the ocean, which includes Spain, Portugal, and Turkey—we tender assurances of good health and renewed strength for the new year."

A steam radiator burst in a Nashua school house, doing small damage but scaring every one.

Curious Accident.

John McCurdy of the Branch mills, in China, Me., was killed in Freedom on Sunday by a curious accident. He was employed in Daniel W. Dodge's currying shop in that place, where he had been for many years. The stock of leather had disappeared at times from the left of the store, and Mr. McCurdy and his employer had rigged a plan to catch the thief by placing a loaded gun beneath the stairs in such a position that any one ascending and attempting to raise the trap door to enter the loft where the leather is kept would be quite sure to discharge the gun. McCurdy had charge of the contrivance and had probably arranged it on Saturday night as usual. He was seen to enter the shop on Sunday noon and soon after the report of a gun was heard, succeeded by a heavy fall. On Monday morning at eight o'clock the shop was entered and the body of Mr. McCurdy was found lying at the foot of the second stairs in a pool of blood with a wound in his neck made by the contents of the gun. He had probably forgotten the fatal trap and received in his own person the charge intended for the thief. The deceased was an industrious, steady and respected man, 55 years old, and leaves a wife and three children.

J. Wilkes Booth's Romance.

The Washington correspondent of the Cleveland Leader writes: "Several years ago, when John P. Hale was here as Senator, his daughters were among the most admired of all the belles. They lived in elegant style at the National, and entertained with a great deal of vivacity all who visited them. The youngest was really a very pretty, fresh, piquant girl of eighteen or so. Of course there were a great many admirers, and among them the actor John Wilkes Booth was the most devoted to Miss Eighteen. You perhaps remember Booth's appearance, a handsome, dark, melodramatic fellow, and among a certain set here he was a great favorite socially. At night he played his Charles, in Schiller's 'Robbers,' and Miss Hale was always at the play, with bouquet and smiles for him. In those days who could guess the sad sequel to a romance of love that promised bright enough? I remember a night when the hotel was a blaze of light. The guests were giving a 'hop' for their friends, and between the waltzes every one was good naturedly gossiping at the devotion of a couple who walked up and down the rooms, and were apparently oblivious of place and surroundings. They were a very attractive pair, he tall and dark-eyed, she fair and sweet as an English rose. There were some who cavilled at her choice; the father must be wild to permit such an alliance, they said—the daughter of a United States Senator to marry a play actor. But the many to whom the young girl's sweet face seemed excuse for any infatuation, looked with indulgence at the little drama of the 'old, old story.' I remember too well another night, just the eve of two days later. We were at Ford's old theatre. Again a blaze of light and music, and a crowded house, to look on at Laura Keene in the 'American Cousin.' How many times have you heard the story of that night, too dreadful to talk of even? The sudden pistol shot, the uproar that followed, and in the figure that sprang from the President's box I saw the lover of two nights ago, and knew that even as he whispered in that young girl's ear he was planning this dreadful scene. In Wilkes Booth's pocket was found the picture of his betrothed, and she wrote of the assassin that she would marry him at the foot of the gallows. Such devotion hangs like a divine fragrance about our recollections of this wretched, mistaken man, and though it cannot blot out, yet surely let it dim a little the horror we rightly feel at his work."

—There is only one love; but there are a hundred imitations.

—The thinking man has wings; the acting man has only feet and hands.

—Every member of Congress from Minnesota was either born or spent the early part of his life in Maine.

—A Titusville paper says: 'A man called at one of our shoe stores yesterday and vainly essayed to get on either number, 11, 12 or 13 shoes. The storekeeper then suggested that he should put on a thinner pair of stockings and try on the box.'

A Skipper's Gratitude.

The captain of schooner H. M. Brookings, of Bath, Me., while laying at Sise & Co.'s wharf on Tuesday evening, was visited on board his vessel by a man who professed to expose a conspiracy which he had discovered, having overheard certain parties laying plans to rob the captain of a large sum of money. The son of Neptune may have had the large sum referred to, but he was not inclined to invest very heavily in his visitor's "yarn;" and not liking the latter's appearance any too well he told him to clear out, whereat he took offence and demanded satisfaction for his wounded honor. Producing a big six-shooter and pointing it at the irate gentleman's head, the skipper anxiously enquired if that was apology enough; the stranger thought may be it was, and that possibly his society wasn't appreciated, so he sloped, the captain following him some distance up Market street until near the police station, when the philanthrophist took to his heels without even bidding the ungrateful skipper good by.

Laconics.

An interesting feature in the management of fires (by the public, not the firemen) in this city is the remarkable courage and ability displayed by persons who wish to see but not to work, in crowding the streets in the immediate vicinity of the fire so that the firemen have to turn edgewise to get through. This is a great assistance to the firemen in speedily running out their lines of hose, and when coupled with such cheering remarks (from men standing exactly in the way, with their hands in their pockets) as "Where in the world are the firemen?" "Way don't they put on the water?" etc., tends greatly to insure the safety of the city from any serious conflagration. We only fear at some time or another a hose-pipe may accidentally get pointed at the assisting spectators.

Capt. Henry Libbey, formerly of this city, has taken command of the new ship Triumphant, built at Quincy, Mass. The vessel will load at New York for San Francisco and thence proceed to Liverpool. Her measurement is 2246 tons and she will carry 3000 tons wheat or dead weight, 4500 tons weight or measurement goods, or 6500 bales cotton. Her actual cost, without spare spars or sea stores, $143,220. Capt. Libbey will take his family with him. Mr. Geo. W. Thompson is to go as mate.

The Came building which was partially burned, Wednesday evening, was insured for $2000 with A. F. Craig; Mr. Bodge's stock, most of which was in the corner where the fire did the most damage, was insured for $4000 in Sise's agency. There had been no fire in the building for several days.

The Y. M. C. A. meetings were opened at the North Chapel, Thursday, a delegation from various parts of the State attending, including Messrs. John Bragdon of Hillsboro' Bridge, Morrill of Canterbury, Coggswell and Bosworth of Manchester, Hutchinson, Critchett, Durgin, Drake and Crawford of Concord, Burge of Hollis, Gerould of Goffstown and Dudley of Canaan. Mr. Henry Martyn Moore of Boston, called the best christian lay worker in New England will be present this afternoon and evening.

We received a call from Mr. C. F. Burge, a native of Hollis, who is visiting our city with the Christian workers who are holding meetings in this place, as has been announced in our columns. Mr. B. has travelled much in the western states, was a resident of Kansas City, Mo., was attached to the Kansas City Bulletin and the Journal of Commerce, dailies of that city; and is at present connected with the Rural American and Western Planter of that city.

The Manchester Union pays Foster's Democrat a poor compliment when it says its "defection is quite as likely to increase as diminish Mr. Weston's vote."

The Rockingham county republican convention was held in Exeter, Thursday. The convention organized by the choice of George W. Pendexter of Portsmouth as Chairman and Henry Crowell of Londonderry as Secretary. Winthrop N. Dow of West Epping, the present incumbent, was unanimously nominated by acclamation as candidate for County Treasurer. George W. Weston of Windham, also the present incumbent, was unanimously nominated by acclamation as candidate for Register of Deeds. Nathaniel H. Brown of Derry was nominated on the first ballot as candidate for County Commissioner, receiving fifty-two out of ninety-one votes cast. Albert H. Varney of South Newmarket had 23, Nathaniel E. Tuck of East Kingston 12, scattering 4.

Who Kissed the Admiral?

The Washington Capital tells the following story: "Quite a startling event occurred to one of our gallant naval officers who has sailed the salty seas, carrying our banner in the days when the stars and stripes floated in honored recognition on every ocean. The gay old Rear Admiral P. of I Street was calling on New Year's day, and as the shades of night came on he found himself descending the steps of a house where the bevy of beauties made the Admiral dizzy. He was feeling his way down, and had just gained the bottom step, when suddenly a pair of female arms were thrown about his marine neck, and two soft lips imprinted a kiss upon his seafaring mouth that sounded like the explosion of a Dahlgren. The astounded Admiral was so dumbfounded by the salute that he went down, to use a nautical phrase, on his beam ends. He hinged on his centre and seated himself somewhat violently on the bottom step. Here, before he could recover his breath or understanding, the violence upon him was repeated, and a sweet voice said: 'There, take that for a parting!' And then voice, kisses, female arms and all disappeared into the night. The Rear Admiral P. ascended the steps, re-entered the mansion, and resolved himself into a naval board of inquiry. He stated his case and put the question, 'Who kissed the Admiral?' There was some musical laughter and a roguish twinkle in bright eyes, but no satisfactory answer or explanation was elicited. From that out until midnight the gallant Admiral went among his friends wanting to know who kissed him, but in vain. And to this hour it is involved in mystery. When the question of who kissed the Admiral is answered we have one other, and that is—'Why in the old Scratch did she kiss him?'"

—A young man started from Terre Haute on the last day of the year for Matoon, Ind., where he was engaged to be married at 2 P. M. At Paris he stepped off the train to get a cigar and it started off without him; in pure desperation he started to walk and proceeded some distance when a handcar came along. He was allowed to get aboard and helped propel the concern until within three miles of his destination when the men of the car stopped and positively refused to go further. He then hired a mule of a farmer. There was no saddle in this stable which he would allow to go with the beast, and therefore the young man was compelled to go it bare-back. When he arrived at the house the clock had struck three, and the entire party was in consternation as he rode up to the door, both legs wrapped around that mule's body, slashing him with a club at every jump, and followed in his career by half the boys in town.

—A Des Moines druggist sent his clerk out to drum for sales of oil. He called upon a tradesman, and tossed a card upon the counter, saying that he represented that establishment. The tradesman picked it up, gave it a steady look, and said it was a fine establishment, and was informed by the clerk that he had represented it about three years, whereupon he remarked to the youth that he supposed he would soon be a partner. The youth said he would be pleased to sell him some oil, and that his establishment handled more oil than any other in Des Moines. The tradesman took another look at the card, and asked the boy if he wasn't mistaken. He, blushingly, guessed he was, as he returned his girl's picture to his pocket.

—A writer in Fraser's Magazine argues that "when you are bent on doing anything wrong, you should begin by convincing yourself that it is wrong; because then, though you are guilty of the transgression, you retain your principles unimpaired."

—Mr. Elliott, the colored representative from South Carolina, was born and educated in England.

—George Vandenhoff is again on his way to America.

—Energy is a good capital to commence life on.

Business Notices.

Something certain at last.—Piles is not only one of the most painful of human diseases, but professional men had almost despaired of finding a remedy, until the introduction of ANAKESIS by Dr. Silsbee, and after an experience of 20,000 cases in five years, doctors agree that an infallible remedy has been found. Sufferers will appreciate ANAKESIS after trying everything else in vain and then experiencing the bliss of instant relief and ultimate cure.—Price $1.00. Sold by Drug ists every where. Principal Depot, 46 Walker st., New York.

Unhealthy Surroundings.

To breathe pure, healthful air, and to follow occupations conducive to health and long life are the privileges of the minority. The majority must dwell wherever their lot is cast, however insalubrious the locality may be, and work at the craft assigned to them, however destructive to health and vigor. Medical science has, however come to the aid of the latter. In Hostetter's Stomach Bitters they have (and have had for the last twenty-five years) the best defence against the morbid influences which create and foster disease that the vegetable kingdom can supply. Its ingredients are among the finest botanic specifics which research has yet revealed to man. As a preventive of, and remedy for the diseases generated by swamps, miasma, the foul air of factories, excessive heat, over exertion of body or mind, unwholesome water or any other morbific cause, Hostetter's Stomach Bitters bear away the palm from all medicines of the present day.

Vegetine cleanses and purifies the blood, thereby causing humors of all kinds to disappear.

The Kidneys, although but little understood, are among the most important of the vital parts. All diseases pertaining to them or to the organs they supply with health and vigor, in either sex, are cured by Helmbold's Extract Buchu. By Helmbold's process Buchu becomes a specific. No other chemist has so skillfully extracted its virtues. Sufferers will avoid disappointment, failure and exposure, by obtaining only Helmbold's Buchu. For sale by all druggists.

Special Notices.

Chapped Hands, face, rough skin, pimples, ringworm, salt rheum and other cutaneous affections cured, and the skin made soft and smooth, by using the Juniper Tar Soap, made by Caswell, Hazard & Co., New York. Be certain to get the Juniper Tar Soap, as there are many imitations made with common tar which are worthless. f3

AYER'S HAIR VIGOR,

FOR RESTORING GRAY HAIR

TO ITS NATURAL VITALITY AND COLOR.

Advancing years, sickness, care, disappointment, and hereditary predisposition, all turn the hair gray, and either of them incline it to shed prematurely.

AYER'S HAIR VIGOR, by long and extensive use, has proven that it stops the falling of the hair immediately; often renews the growth, and always surely restores its color when faded or gray. It stimulates the nutritive organs to healthy activity, and preserves both the hair and its beauty. Thin brashy, weak or sickly hair becomes glossy, pliable and strengthened; lost hair re-grows with lively expression; falling hair is checked and established; dim hair thickens; and faded or gray hair resumes its original color. Its operation is sure and harmless. It cures dandruff, heals all humors, and keeps the scalp cool, clean and soft—under which conditions diseases of the scalp are impossible.

As a dressing for ladies' hair, the VIGOR is praised for its grateful and agreeable perfume, and valued for the soft lustre and richness of tone it imparts.

FOURTH GRAND GIFT CONCERT

FOR THE BENEFIT OF THE

Public Library of Ky.

OVER A MILION IN BANK!

SUCCESS ASSURED!

Full Drawing Certain

On Tuesday, 31st of March Next.

In order to meet the general wish and expectation of the public and the ticket-holders for the full payment of the magnificent gifts announced for the Fourth Grand Gift Concert of the Public Library of Kentucky, the management have determined to postpone the Concert and Drawing until

Tuesday, March 31st, 1874.

They have already realized

OVER A MILLION DOLLARS,

And have a great many agents to hear from.

No doubt is entertained of the sale of every ticket before the drawing, but whether all are sold or not, the Concert and Drawing will positively and unequivocally take place on the day now fixed, and if any remain unsold they will be cancelled and the prizes will be reduced in proportion to the unsold tickets.

Only 60,000 tickets have been issued and

12,000 CASH GIFTS,

$1,500,000,

will be distributed among the ticket-holders.

The tickets are printed in coupons, of tenths, and all fractional parts will be represented in the drawing just as whole tickets are.

Real Hair Switches.

FOR $1.50, at M. E. JOHNSON'S HAIR AND FACTORY, 50 Congress Street.

Portsmouth Chronicle.

—There have been one thousand bills presented to Congress this season, and one Williams.

—A popular doctor in Chicago has been presented with a silver mounted skeleton by his admiring patients.

—Not long since a workman in Johnson & Co.'s organ factory in Westfield, Mass. had an attack of somnambulism which he turned to good account. One evening he was directed to carry some wood into the shop on the next morning, and when the time came was agreeably surprised to find that it had been carried in and carefully piled up. The watchman says that the man did it himself in the night, and that he failed to answer when spoken to, and was evidently asleep. As soon as his work was finished he went home and to bed, and the next morning complained of being rather tired.

SPECIAL ANNOUNCEMENT FOR 1874.

READ AND THINK.

We have received to-day a large lot of FLOUR in Barrels and Half-Barrels, which we propose to sell at

PRICES THAT CAN'T BE BEAT.

PRIDE OF THE WEST	$10.75
RED JACKET	12.00
GENUINE	9.25
A	10.00
LILY OF THE VALLEY	10.50

These prices are less than the same brands or quality can be bought in this State, and we guarantee everything as we say, or you can return it at our expense.

With EVERY BARREL of Flour so sold, we shall give you

Your Choice of Two

SPLENDID STEEL ENGRAVINGS,

(Samples of which can be seen at our store.)

The Village Blacksmith,

AND

Signing the Compact in the Cabin of the Mayflower,

AS A PREMIUM PRESENT!

These Engravings are elegant again, and worthy a place in any house.

Now, don't let anybody make you believe that we can't do this and give you a GOOD article of FLOUR at the same price they can; because if you do, you will be deceived. We'll sight these pictures in New York at such prices that we can afford to do it.

Why? 1st, because it so increases our sales that even with a small profit on the Flour, we can make day wages. 2d, because when people come to buy Flour they see the prices of other goods and buy them. 3d, because everybody knows we always do just what we advertise to do.

NOW TRY US. All we ask is for you to call, see and be convinced.

IRON IN THE BLOOD.

DYSPEPSIA, DEBILITY, DROPSY AND HUMORS.

PERUVIAN SYRUP

Makes The Weak Strong.

The Peruvian Syrup, a Protected Solution of the Protoxide of Iron, is so combined as to have the character of an ailment, as easily digested and assimilated with the blood as the simplest food. It increases the quantity of Nature's Own Vitalizing Agent, Iron in the blood, and cures "a thousand ills," simply by Toning up, Invigorating and Vitalizing the System. The enriched and vitalized blood permeates every part of the body, repairing damages and waste, searching out morbid secretions, and leaving nothing for disease to feed upon.

This is the secret of the wonderful success of this remedy in curing Dyspepsia, Liver Complaint, Dropsy, Chronic Diarrhœa, Boils, Nervous Affections, Chills and Fevers, Humors, Loss of Constitutional Vigor, Diseases of the Kidneys and Bladder, Female Complaints, and all diseases originating in a bad state of the blood, or accompanied by debility or a low system. Being free from Alcohol, in any form its energizing effects are not followed by corresponding reaction, but are permanent, infusing strength, vigor, and new life into all parts of the system, and building upon an iron Constitution.

Thousands have been changed by the use of this remedy, from weak, sickly, suffering creatures to strong, healthy, and happy men and women; and invalids cannot reasonably hesitate to give it a trial.

See that each bottle has PERUVIAN SYRUP blown in the glass.

AMERICAN & FOREIGN PATENTS.

R. H. EDDY, SOLICITOR OF PATENTS,

For Inventions, Trade Marks or Designs,

No. 76 STATE ST., OPPOSITE KILBY ST., BOSTON,

After an extensive practice of upwards of thirty years, continues to secure patents in the United States; also in Great Britain, France and other foreign countries. Caveats, Specifications, Assignments, and all papers for Patents, executed on reasonable terms with dispatch. Researches made to determine the validity and utility of Patents of Inventions, and legal and other advice rendered in all matters touching the same. Copies of the claims of any patent furnished, by remitting one dollar. Assignments recorded in Washington.

No Agency in the United States possesses superior facilities for obtaining Patents or ascertaining the patentability of inventions.

All necessity for a journey to Washington to procure a Patent and the usual great delay there, are here saved inventors.

TESTIMONIALS.

"I regard Mr. Eddy as one of the most capable and successful practitioners with whom I have had official intercourse. CHARLES MASON, Commissioner of Patents."

"I have no hesitation in assuring inventors that they cannot employ a man more competent and trustworthy and more capable of putting their applications in a form to secure for them an early and favorable consideration at the Patent Office. EDMUND BURKE, Late Commissioner of Patents."

"MR. R. H. EDDY has made for me over THIRTY applications for Patents, having been successful in almost every case. Such unmistakable proof of great talent and ability on his part leads me to recommend ALL inventors to apply to him to procure their Patents, as they may be sure of having the most faithful attention bestowed on their cases and at very reasonable charges. COAL.

HAVING contracted for a quantity of the above coal, we would call the attention of Manufacturers, Dealers and Consumers to the following different grades mined and controlled by the Company:

HARD WHITE ASH COAL,
FREE BURNING WHITE ASH COAL,
SHAMOKIN WHITE ASH COAL,
SHAMOKIN RED ASH COAL,
NORTH FRANKLIN COAL,
LYKENS VALLEY COAL.

In order that all coal shall be shipped in good order, a most rigid system of inspection, both at the mines and at the shipping ports, will at all times be enforced. In every district of the coal region there will be appointed a number of competent persons skilled in the preparation of coal, as local inspectors, whose duty it will be to visit the several collieries daily to see that a proper force is at all times employed in removing slate, and to prevent, if possible, any coal being sent from the mines in bad order. In addition to these efforts at prevention, no means will be left untried at the shipping ports to cure the evils of careless preparation. At Schuylkill Haven, Port Clinton and Port Richmond, ALL COAL WILL BE SUBJECTED TO THE PERSONAL EXAMINATION OF A SKILLED INSPECTOR BEFORE IT IS SHIPPED, and if condemned by him, will be dumped in places provided for the purpose, and before being loaded into vessels WILL BE THOROUGHLY REPICKED AND CLEANED BY HAND.

We keep a fine stock of the above coal on hand, also

LEHIGH, WILKESBARRE, PITTSTON

And other first class Coal. For sale by the Cargo, Car-load or at retail from our wharf.

Harper's Weekly.

SPLENDIDLY ILLUSTRATED.

NOTICES OF THE PRESS.

The Weekly is the ablest and most powerful illustrated periodical published in this country. Its editorials are scholarly and convincing, and carry much weight. Its illustrations of current events are full and fresh, and are prepared by our best designers. With a circulation of 150,000, the Weekly is read by at least half a million persons, and its influence as an organ of opinion is simply tremendous. The Weekly maintains a positive position, and expresses decided views on political and social problems.—Louisville Courier Journal.

Harper's Bazar.

NOTICES OF THE PRESS.

The BAZAR is edited with a contribution of tact and talent that we seldom find in any journal; and the journal itself is the organ of the great world of fashion.—Boston Traveller.

The BAZAR commends itself to every member of the household—to the children by droll and pretty pictures, to the young ladies by its fashion-plates in endless variety, to the provident matron by its patterns for the children's clothes, to paterfamilias by its tasteful designs for embroidered slippers and luxurious dressing-gowns. But the reading-matter of the BAZAR is uniformly of great excellence. The paper has acquired a wide popularity for the fireside enjoyment it affords.—N. Y. Evening Post.

PROSPECTUS FOR 1874—SEVENTH YEAR.

THE ALDINE,

An Illustrated Monthly Journal, universally admitted to be the handsomest Periodical in the world. A Representative and Champion of American Taste.

NOT FOR SALE IN BOOK OR NEWS STORES.

THE ALDINE, while issued with all the regularity, has none of the temporary or timely interest characteristic of ordinary periodicals. It is an elegant miscellany of pure, light and graceful literature, and a collection of pictures, the rarest specimens of artistic skill, in black and white. Although each succeeding number affords a fresh pleasure to its friends, the real value and beauty of THE ALDINE will be most appreciated after it has been bound up at the close of the year. While other publications may claim superior cheapness, as compared with rivals of a similar class, THE ALDINE is a unique and original conception—alone and unapproached—also lately without competition in price or character. The possessor of a complete volume cannot duplicate the quantity of fine paper and engravings in any other shade or number of volumes FOR TEN TIMES ITS COST; AND THEN, THERE ARE THE CHROMOS, BESIDE!

ART DEPARTMENT, 1874.

The illustrations of THE ALDINE have won a world-wide reputation, and in the art centres of Europe it is an admitted fact that its wood cuts are examples of the highest perfection ever attained. The common prejudice in favor of "steel plates," is rapidly yielding to a more educated and discriminating taste which recognizes the advantages of superior artistic quality with greater facility of production. The woodcuts of THE ALDINE possess all the delicacy and elaborate finish of the most costly steel plate, while they afford a better rendering of the artist's original.

In addition to designs by the members of the National Academy, and other noted American artists, THE ALDINE will reproduce examples of the best foreign masters, selected with a view to the highest artistic success and greatest general interest. Thus the subscriber to THE ALDINE will, at a trifling cost, enjoy in his own home the pleasures and refining influences of true art.

The Christmas issue for 1874 will contain special designs appropriate to the season, by our best artists, and will surpass in attractions any of its predecessors.

PREMIUM FOR 1874.

Every subscriber to THE ALDINE for the year 1874 will receive a pair of chromos. The original pictures were painte in oil for the publishers of THE ALDINE, by Thomas Moran, whose great Colorado picture was purchased by Congress for ten thousand dollars. The subjects were chosen to represent "The East" and "The West." One is a view in The White Mountains, New Hampshire; the other gives The Cliffs of Green River, Wyoming Territory.

If any subscriber should indicate a preference for a figure subject the publishers will send "Thoughts at Home," a new and beautiful chromo, 16x 20 inches, representing a little Italian exile whose speaking eyes betray the longings of his heart.

TERMS.

$5 per annum, in advance, with Oil Chromos free.

For 50 CENTS EXTRA, the chromos will be sent, mounted, varnished, and prepaid by mail.

THE ALDINE will, hereafter, be obtainable only by subscription. There will be no reduced or club rate; cash for subscriptions must be sent to the publishers direct, or handed to the local canvasser, without responsibility to the publishers, except in cases where the certificate is given, bearing the fac-simile signature of JAMES SUTTON & CO.

CANVASSERS WANTED.

Any person wishing to act permanently as a local canvasser will receive full and prompt information by applying to

The Country Gentleman.

Volume for 1874.

THE CULTIVATOR & COUNTRY GENTLEMAN, for the past forty years, has ranked, both in this country and abroad, as the STANDARD JOURNAL OF AMERICAN AGRICULTURE. The Editors and Proprietors, in addition to their own personal labors, are regularly assisted by a very large number of Special Correspondents and Regular Contributors, among whom are included many Leading Agriculturists, in all parts of the Country, East and West—and by over Five Hundred Occasional and Voluntary Writers, directly in the ranks of the Best Farmers and Horticulturists of nearly every State in the Union. With the co-operation of so large a corps of practical men, this Journal is intended to possess exceptional value as the chosen Medium of Intercommunication among all classes interested in the Products and Fertility of the land—those who Cultivate and those who Consume—the Buyer and Shipper, as well as the first Owner of the crop—Breeders of Improved Animals and their Customers—Manufacturers of Improved Machinery and those who purchase and employ it—Nurserymen and Fruit Raisers—and, especially, to those who Cultivate and Better Sell the Products. Prospects and statistics of each successive Season, as throwing light upon one of the most important of all questions—When to Buy and when to Sell.

TERMS.—The COUNTRY GENTLEMAN is published weekly, on the following terms when paid strictly in advance: ONE COPY, one year, $2.50; FOUR COPIES, $10, and an additional copy for the year free to the sender of the Club; TEN COPIES, $20, and an additional copy for the year free to the sender of the Club.

WISTAR'S BALSAM

OF

WILD CHERRY!

THE GREAT REMEDY FOR

CONSUMPTION!

And acknowledged by many prominent physicians to be the most Reliable Preparation ever introduced for the RELIEF and CURE of all

LUNG COMPLAINTS.

This well known remedy is offered to the public sanctioned by the experience of over forty years, and when resorted to in season seldom fails to effect a speedy cure of

COUGHS, COLDS, CROUP, BRONCHITIS, INFLUENZA, WHOOPING COUGH, HOARSENESS, PAINS OR SORENESS IN THE CHEST OR SIDE, BLEEDING AT THE LUNGS, LIVER COMPLAINTS, &c.

CONSUMPTION

CURED

By a timely resort to this standard remedy, as is proved by hundreds of testimonials received by the proprietors.

Dr. Wistar's Balsam of Wild Cherry

Does not dry up a Cough and leave the cause behind as is the case with most preparations, but it loosens and cleanses the lungs and allays irritation, thus removing the cause of the complaint.

CLERGYMEN, LAWYERS, SINGERS,

And all those whose occupation requires an unusual exercise of the vocal organs, will find this the ONLY PREPARATION which will effectually and instantaneously relieve their difficulties.

BEWARE OF COUNTERFEITS.—Remember that the genuine Wistar's Balsam has on the outside wrapper the signature of "I. BUTTS," and the printed name of the proprietors, "SETH W. FOWLE & SONS, Boston." All others are base imitations. Examine the wrapper carefully before purchasing.

The Singer Still Triumphant!
At the Vienna Exhibition, the SINGER received the Medal of Merit, the Medal of Progress, and three other Medals for superiority of productions. These are the highest Sewing Machine Awards at Vienna. The SINGER received all the medals awarded to either of the competing machines, and two medals more than any other obtained. Then, in the name of Truth, what is it that prompts people to claim recommendations for the Diploma of Honor? The fact is, no Diploma of Honor has been given to any Sewing Machine Company.
But immeasurably more valuable is The World's Award as shown by sales—proved by sworn returns to the owners of the principal Sewing Machine Patents—which last year amounted to TWO HUNDRED AND NINETEEN THOUSAND, SEVEN HUNDRED AND FIFTY-EIGHT (219,758) machines, nine out of ten of them being for Family Use. This is over 45,000 more Sewing Machines than were sold by any other company during the same period, and over One Quarter of all the machines sold in 1872. These enormous sales are owing to the long-tested merits of the Singer Machines, which meet the wants of the public in superiority and simplicity of construction, and capability for great variety and excellence of work. The makers of Sewing Machines find these desirable qualities in the Singer beyond all others, is shown by the sales above given, aside from the awards of International Juries, either at home or abroad.

CATARRH!
A Woman Having Catarrh 35 Years. Cured.
And Droppings in Throat, Choknigs, Strangulings, Pains in the Side, Loins, Headache, Dizziness, and General Weakness, Cured by less than Three Bottles of the
CONSTITUTIONAL CATARRH REMEDY.
TO MESSRS. LITTLEFIELD & CO., Proprietors of Constitutional Catarrh Remedy, Manchester, N.H.
I reside at Manchester N., H., and previously resided at Henniker, and am a native of Weare, this State. I have had Catarrh twenty-five years, ever since I was 19 years old; had it bad all the time. I ran all the time, and nights it would fill up and drop down in my throat, causing a feeling of choking, so that I would spring up in bed to save myself from strangulation. It affected my head so that I felt confused, and was troubled with severe headache at intervals, for a week at a time. I also had bad pains in shoulders, back and kidneys, from which I suffered immensely. So bad were they, that a year ago last summer I was obliged to lie in bed most of the time for three months. I have tried all kinds of Catarrh remedies with no particular benefit, and consulted physicians. I had a hacking cough. I began to take the Constitutional Catarrh Remedy last August. I began to grow better before finishing the first bottle. I am now on the third bottle. My Catarrh is cured, my health is restored. I have no pains, aches, or cough. My whole system is made over new. I know it is this medicine that has restored me from intense sufferings, and I know that any I am now able to do the hardest work and bear the greatest exposure, and feel that I cannot say too much in favor of the Constitutional Catarrh remedy.
MRS. E. J. FLANDERS.
Manchester, N. H., Feb. 1, 1873.
I am now 53 years old, have had Catarrh ever since I was eighteen years old, and headache all the time; have suffered beyond description with running at the nose, droppings in the throat, chokings and strangulings. Have tried any quantity of Catarrh Remedies, but have found no relief till I tried your Constitutional Catarrh Remedy, six months ago. I found immediate relief.
Catarrh and all its attendant evils have left. Headache, Pains in Loins and Back, Dizziness, Loss of Appetite, and General Weakness. Less than three bottles of Constitutional Catarrh Remedy have cured me. I have not been so well since I can remember as now. I feel as if I could not say too much for the medicine, or thank God too heartily that through its instrumentality I have been restored to health.

The Pepperrells of Kittery Point--A Leaf from the Early History of Maine.

[Samuel A. Drake in Appleton's Journal.]

Very few points on our coast excel in interest the promontory stretching out into the Atlantic between the Piscataqua and Wells Bay, and terminating in Mount Agamenticus. It is one of the headlands of history. I have traversed it afoot, and have often plied the oar almost beneath the shadow of grim old 'Mendicus' as the fishermen along shore call it. I have scrambled over the ledges, and have explored the wonderful little coves that here and there indent the jagged dead-line of the mariner. Lying becalmed on a summer day, I have speculated whether Cabot, Verazzani, Cartier, or De Monts might not have made his first landfall thereabouts—for on a clear day Agamenticus is visible near forty miles at sea—or dreamed of the discoveries of an even more remote antiquity.

Gosnold must have sighted old Agamenticus in 1602, as he fell in with the New England coast in latitude 43 deg. Smith's caravel, with its oddly shaped prow, and high, ornamental stern, no doubt breasted the strong tide of the Piscataqua in 1614.

On one side of the cape is a good harbor and safe anchorage; on the other side are tremendous cliffs of tawny rock, grinning ledges, and long reaches of sandy beach with salt marshes intersected by creeks. A good sailor will not be caught in Well's Bay in a northeaster if he can help it. I doubt if there can be found a more dangerous looking coast than the shores of the fishing village of Ogunquit, where the Isidore, a bran new ship, on her first voyage, was lost, with every soul on board, on a wild winter's night in 1842. I recollect a single stanza of the thirty-two dedicated to that ill-fated vessel:

"Come let us all deeply deplore
The fate of the bark Isidore,
Which on November, forty two,
Perished with all her gallant crew."

Old York, lying at the extremity of the cape, is one of the oddest places imaginable. It has but lately been rediscovered by those persistent pioneers, the summer tourists. It once boasted a considerable commerce, of which no other evidence now remains than its decaying wharves, dilapidated warehouses, and a few vessels of small tonnage. The areas belonging to the cottages are, at the proper season, aglow with lilacs, scarlet beans, and poppies, while the walks and flower-beds are bordered with sea-shells or mosaics of beach-pebbles—the indubitable marks of a seaport town. Continue on to the wharves, and you may chance to pick up a piece of coral, brought home years ago from a West-Indian port as ballast. A yawl high and dry with half her side stove, a broken spar, or discarded caboose, are objects common enough in such a place, and are in entire accord with the few weather-beaten loungers always encountered at the water-side. On my first visit, having inquired of one of these rusted-out old sea-dogs for an hotel, he gravely assured me there was none in the village, but offered to direct me to the tavern, a distinction more nice than I could have expected in such a place.

Yet Old York, first called Agamenticus, was the first incorporated city of America. Sir Ferdinando Gorges having, about 1640, given it a charter, appointed a mayor and aldermen, and made it a free port under the name of Georgiana. It still boasts the possession of some of the early garrison-houses of the Indian wars, remarkable in their decrepitude. Those relics indicate a time when travel to the eastward kept the seaboard, and when Old York was a place of much greater relative importance than at present. During the savage inroads communication between the settlements was extremely difficult. Low tide afforded the adventurous messenger a way, by making use of the sea-beaches wherever practicable. When the journey appeared too hazardous for even the hardy settlers, dogs were dispatched with a pouch of letters attached to their collars.

Mason and Gorges spent twenty thousand pounds each in trying to effect settlements in Maine. The former, known as the founder of New Hampshire, was Governor of Portsmouth Castle, England, when George Villiers, Duke of Buckingham, was preparing to renew his descent on La Rochelle. It was in Mason's house that the duke was assassinated by Felton.

Kittery Point is, like Old York, become a resort during the summer months. It abounds in the materials of picturesque history, which throw around the place a charm rivaling its natural attractions. The seat of the Peppercells is not far from the hotel of nine host Safford, the depositary of all the local traditions.

The Pepperrell mansion is formed of two houses, the south part having been built by the father of the conqueror of Louisburg, and the north part by Sir William. The building was once much more extensive than it now appears, having been, about twenty years ago, curtailed of ten feet at either end. Until the death of the elder Pepperrell in 1734, the house was occupied by his own and his son's families, and must have contained as many apartments as a good sized modern hotel. The lawn in front reached to the sea, and an avenue, a quarter of a mile in length, skirted by branching trees, conducted to the house of Colonel Sparhawk, east of the village church. Plain as its exterior, the Pepperrell mansion represents one of the greatest fortunes of the colonial time in New England. It used to be said that Sir William could ride to Saco, thirty miles distant from his home, without going off his possessions.

The elder Sir William, by his will, made the son of his daughter Elizabeth and Colonel Sparhawk his residuary legatee, requiring him at the same time, to relinquish the name of Sparhawk and assume that of Pepperell. The baronetcy, extinct with the elder Sir William, was revived by the king for the benefit of his grandson, who being a loyalist, went to England in 1775, and the large estates in Maine and elsewhere were confiscated. The last baronet is the prominent figure in West's "Reception of the American Loyalists by Great Britain." The poet Longfellow has a picture painted by Copley in England, representing the children in a park, the portraits being those of William and Elizabeth Royall Pepperrell. In the Essex Institute at Salem, Massachusetts, is a full-length portrait of the victor of Louisburg, at the age of fifty-five, painted in London in 1761, by Smibert. The baronet appears attired in a laced coat of scarlet cloth, and is holding a baton in his hand. In the background the painter has reproduced the siege, with bombs traversing the heavens toward a beleaguered fortress.

The year 1745 opened with Europe in commotion—the Emperor Charles VII. dead in January; all the petty German princes striving for the imperial crown; France supporting the pretensions of the Grand-Duke of Tuscany; Austria, seeing her advantage in the muddle, invades Bohemia; Frederick the Great swoops upon Saxony, and marches into Dresden at the head of his grenadiers, war is surging along the Rhish frontier, and blazing fiercely in Silesia, Hungary, and Italy; France is in the field with a powerful army, under the illustrious soldier and profligate, Maurice de Saxe.

England has, of course, a hand in the broil. Dissension is in her cabinet when unity is most essential. Lord Chesterfield is sent to induce the States-General to engage in the war. The quadruple alliance is signed at Warsaw—England, as usual, furnishing the money. The allied army, under the Duke of Cumberland advances against the French, and Belgium becomes once more the battle-ground. Fontenoy follows. Marshal Saxe, carried along his lines in a litter, wins the day, and with it all the Austrian Netherlands. Duke William, afterward the red-handed victor of Drumossie Moor, falls back upon Brussels.

Here the beaten army is roused from its despondency by the news of the fall of Louisburg, the great French stronghold, sometimes called the Dunkirk of America. Great were the rejoicings in the allied camp. A review of the whole army, by order of the duke, signalized the event. The forces were drawn up in battle order, the park of artillery being formed on an extensive plain near Villvorden. According to the military etiquette of the time, the field-officers saluted his royal highness as he passed the line by dropping the points of their swords, while the other officers, who carried fusees only took off their hats.

Nothing better illustrates the ever-changing fortunes which nations experience than the fact that the mighty fortress which cost twenty-five years to build, sustained two sieges, and before whose strong walls hundreds of lives were sacrificed, would, if it were now in existence, possess not the least political consequence. It is scarcely less curious to remark that, while the solid bastions of Louisburg have almost disappeared, the homely dwelling of the Pepperrells still remains, overlooking the sea much as when the flag of France waved above the battlements of Cape Breton.

In the neighborhood of the Pepperrell mansion are several other houses of scarcely inferior interest. I remember that several years ago, when the Maine Historical Society held one of its anniversaries, it was resolved to have an informal meeting in the old Cutts house, but when the members and invited guests applied for admission on the spot, the door was shut in their faces, and the learned pundits departed with a cold shoulder apiece.

I have known a hundred sail riding at anchor in full view from the Pepperrell House, the haven being the usual refuge for coasters caught along shore in a northeaster. It is a sight worth seeing when the whole fleet gets under way with a fair wind. The sharp click of the windlasses, the rattling chains, and the creaking of blocks, together with the cheery refrains of the crews, made the harbor all alive with animation. The sailors' "shanty," as they heave away at the windlass, is borne to your ears with a sonorous rounding off of the refrain. Here it is, rhyme being of little consequence on the forecastle:

"Then heave away, my bully boys,
Heave away, my Johnnies!"

Or, this:

"Then heave up the anchor, boys,
Brace round the main-yard;
Haul taut your on bowline,
And let the good ship fly!"

—Arthur Helps, in his last work, has this suggestive sentence: 'And then she smiled, thinking to herself that just thoughts of how much wiser and older young women are than young men, even when the latter have the apparent superiority of age.'

—People obey willingly where they are commanded kindly.

SATURDAY, JANUARY 17, 1874.

An Interview with Gen. McCutchins.

Messrs. Editors: It was my good fortune to obtain an interview with the nominee of the republican convention, a few days since, at his residence in New London; and as much of the conversation which took place was of a personal nature in relation to his position in the campaign, it may not be uninteresting to your readers, should I give a hasty sketch of our next Governor.

Leaving the Northern Railroad at Potter Place, the road to New London takes one up into the clouds between Mount Kearsarge and Ragged Mountain, a distance (by the road) of eight miles. After a two hours' ride, I was cordially received by Mrs. McCutchins, who kindly urged upon me the hospitalities of the house.

The General being absent—"logging"—I was pleasantly entertained until his return, half an hour later, when the house was again placed at my disposal My business being private and important, I presented letters of introduction, and begged permission to trespass upon his patience a few moments.

My statement was somewhat lengthy, and supported mainly by my own assertions; and I was not a little surprised to hear a decision as soon as I had finished speaking. I was prepared for argument and delay, such as is customary when a stranger asks an important service; but the General had quietly taken my measure while I was speaking, and satisfied himself that I was not indulging in misrepresentation. I am inclined to believe that perspicacity will be found a leading trait in his character.

In referring to his quick acceptance of my statements, I expressed surprise, when the General turned, and looking squarely in my face for a moment said, slowly, "I believe in men, yet."

In reply to my remark that he was unknown in the southern part of the State, he frankly and voluntarily gave me an epitome of his life and habits.

I am glad to be able to correct the report that he is an illiterate foreigner. His great grandfather came to this country from Scotland and settled in Londonderry, in this State.

The male members of his family were thereafter, mainly in the military service. General McCutchins was born in Pembroke, N. H., and is, if my memory serves me rightly, 64 years old. Sixteen years of his early life were spent as a school teacher, an occupation from which he has derived a great and lasting profit.

He has been foremost in public matters in the town in which he resides, having holden the office of selectman for thirty years. He is well posted in the affairs of the nation and is singularly free from pedantry.

As a financier, he is famous in his county; his own success, pecuniarily, affords an instance of sagacious investments.

His creed is "Loyalty and Honesty." Their possession excuses all the minor faults. In personal appearance he offers little else than is commonly shown by the well-to-do farmer, except, perhaps, in the matter of size. In that respect, nature has been lavish. Six feet in height, and large in proportion, the man appears massive. Perfect health, and a well-balanced brain complete the picture.

In household affairs, is observed the utmost plainness; comfort and not display being sought

The General insisted upon providing for my horse, which office he performed in person; and upon the termination of my visit, as he brought the team to the door, remarked, with a parting shake of the hand, "Tell your people that the republican candidate for Governor took good care of your horse," a fact which I am happy to record as evincing that kindness of heart to all living creatures, which has made him so well-beloved wherever he is known.

I could not help being vividly impressed with the substantial sterling qualities of the man; and I am convinced that General Luther McCutching will prove an able successor of the ablest of a long line of distinguished Governors, while the Gubernatorial mansion will claim equal honor with the State, is being presided over by dignified, matronly grace and refinement.

REPORTER.

The Democratic State Convention.

(Fosters (Dover) Democrat.)

It is presumed that all of our readers expect us to give our opinion of the democratic convention and its proceedings. This we now propose to do plainly and fairly, independently and honestly, without hesitation and without fear of consequences in any quarter. We write as a free, independent democrat, who owns himself and is no man's man.

It is well known that we proposed and earnestly advocated the nomination of Judge Roberts for Governor. In this we were seconded and backed by the entire democracy of Strafford county. We went to the convention under the most free, full and ample assurances from the friends of Mr. Weston, who were authorized to speak and act in his behalf, that he was not and would not be, under any circumstances, a candidate for another nomination. These positive assurances were repeated over and over again for weeks prior to the convention and at the convention itself down to the time when the balloting commenced. But on the eve of the convention, after it became apparent that Judge Roberts had a large plurality, if not the majority of the delegates present, it also became apparent that the friends of our candidate were being imposed upon by the most base and monstrous falsehoods and hypocrisy. The constant asseverations that Mr. Weston was not and would not be a candidate, were lies of the most unmitigated sort, uttered by men who knew they were lying and meant to cheat us by that unjustifiable and infamous device. Not only this, which would of itself have been ineffectual, but they had their lackeys and runners and button-holers all about, constantly on the alert, circulating falsehoods and slander against Judge Roberts, reporting sentiments which he never expressed or entertained, and doing their best to alienate those inclined to his support, but who were not so well acquainted with his honest and sterling character as some of the rest of us. Not only this, but fearing at last that they could not win on that line, when the balloting in the convention commenced they had men there who voted double and triple on the informal ballot in order to swell Mr. Weston's vote higher than either of the other candidates. This was seen by men whose word cannot be doubted. There were three ballot-boxes, and some of these men put votes into them all. We exonerate Mr. Weston entirely from all knowledge of, or complicity in this business. He was not there and could know nothing about it. We believe him to be an honest man, but we believe his name was put to a very unscrupulous use.

The power behind was the combined management of the Boston & Lowell, the Lowell & Nashua, the Concord, and Northern Railroads. They were spurned from the republican convention the day before, and then fell back to recruit and carry the democratic convention by storm. And by such means as we have stated they did their work. We were a vigilant looker-on and know whereof we speak.

Mr. Hatch was also a prominent candidate, a true and worthy man, but two-thirds of his pretended friends were enemies in disguise. They abandoned him and went with the railroads on the second ballot, as wanton a piece of treachery as was ever practiced in the name of democracy.

The purpose of this grand railroad movement is the consolidation of all the roads from Boston up through the centre of our State west to Ogdensburg,—how much farther we know not, with the transfer of the entire control to Boston, out of reach of the New Hampshire legislature. And these railroads were backed in their efforts to carry the democratic convention by the combined liquor interests of this State and of Boston. It was a log rolling game between the two. The liquor dealers want their nefarious traffic licensed and protected by 'democratic' law. And this brings us to an examination of the platform. No sooner had the caucus committee on resolutions become seated in their room, than in pushed the rumsellers' committee, appointed by a previous conclave, and demanded that a license plank be interpolated into the platform, which would be shifting whatever responsibility there might be for the liquor traffic and its concomitant deviltry, from republican to democratic shoulders. They promised the votes of all their fraternity, drunk or sober, if that could be done. We can only judge of the sort of material of which the majority at least of that democratic committee were made, by the license iniquity and local option humbuggery which they put into their report, and which was subsequently adopted by the regular platform committee appointed by the convention, and then by the convention itself, without opportunity for debate. It was not intended that it should be debated. One of the committee told us that they adopted it to prevent the liquor dealers from going with it upon the floor of the convention, where it was feared there might be a disturbance. Thus did these men bow the knee to Baal, and succeed in advertising to the world that the democratic party is to be henceforth the rum party of New Hampshire. They have pledged the party to protect dramselling and dramdrinking, drunkard makers and drunkards by law. The only qualifications are that we must 'judiciously' sell and 'judiciously' get drunk, and that one town may forbid drunkenness by driving its thirsty people into another town to get their rum. We believe they call this 'local option' a euphonic name for the stupidest nonsense that ever entered the brain of civilized mankind, a disgrace to the man who conceived it and to the convention that adopted it.

But let us look a little further. The preamble to the platform reasserts the 7th article of our Bill of Rights, which is right and sound. But in the very next breath it is 'Resolved, That we are in favor of the Union of States, and the rights of States as declared and defined by the Constitution of the United States.'

'The rights of the States as defined by the Constitution of the United States' is a novel and extremely brilliant idea. We should like to know whereabouts in that Constitution the definition of State Rights can be found? We have searched diligently, and reached the conclusion that it is not in our copy of the Constitution, not even in the 15th amendment. Every schoolboy will readily see the nonsense of that resolution. Sillier than school girls must have made it.

But a little further and we have done for to-day with this platform and its makers, this convention and its candidates. The 6th resolution reaffirms the Greeley, mixed, moongrel, heterodoxical hodgepodge of 1872, upon which the Democratic party was worse beaten than any party ever was since parties have been known amongst men. It may show a species of 'pluck' to renew the fight again on that line, but the discretion of the thing does not commend itself to our judgment.

But once more, it is "resolved that we recognize the grievances of which the farmers and other producing classes complain." And this after the combined monopoly of railroads and rum had beaten the only farmers' candidate before the convention. This resolution will be taken as an insult by every farmer in the State.

In conclusion, we say here and now, after mature consideration, we will have none of this thing. We are opposed to consolidated monopolies and we are opposed to rum. We are also opposed to all candidates who do not stand inflexibly opposed to both. There are thousands of good and true democrats who think with us and will act accordingly. They propose to administer a stunning rebuke to the charlatans and mountebanks who have so basely betrayed us at the behests of railroad consolidationists and rum.

State News.

The New Hampshire Printers, Editors and Publishers' Association holds its next annual meeting at Odd Fellows Hall, Manchester, on Tuesday next. The Association will hold a meeting at 11:30 A. M. and a grand banquet will be given at 2 o'clock by the members of the Association who reside in that city. In the evening a reception and levee is to be given at the residence of a prominent gentleman. Wednesday morning an opportunity will be given to visit the Mills and Locomotive works. It is expected that a very large number of the printers and publishers of the State and their ladies, will be present on the occasion.

The democrats of the Wolfeboro' senatorial district have been improving upon the tactics that the Portsmouth democracy gave them an insight of at the State convention. They assembled to nominate a candidate for Senator and balloted twice, casting more ballots each time than there were delegates! Hon. John W. Sanborn had a majority both times, and his opponents withdrew from the convention, refusing to vote for the nominee. Things don't look well for the democracy in Carroll and Strafford counties.

Francis Hatch of Gilford was killed Thursday by the accidental discharge of his gun while hunting.

Readables.

Senator Boutwell's "hole in the sky" has been eclipsed by the appearance of a cloud, Friday noon, resembling the hull of a ship and pointing seaward. It was a nice kind of a day to be cloud-gazing, we'll admit; but who could be expected to look for signs in the heaven then but school-boys, who never have dust or snow in their eyes for some unknown reason?

The steamer China, Captain Cobb, from Yokohama December 8, about which grave fears began to be entertained, arrived safely at San Francisco Thursday forenoon, all well.

Charles Bradlaugh's lecture at Manchester was attended by less than fifty people.

The Germania band will make music for the Amoskeag Veterans of Manchester at their anniversary next month.

An enterprising New York farmer gives a chromo to every purchaser of a load of manure.

Illinois got ahead a peg in the reform business on Friday. Miss Charlton of Chicago was elected third assistant clerk of the House of Representatives, after several close ballots. She will now know the luxury of getting $6 a day,—the same that a man would get—for doing little or nothing, a rare experience for a woman.

The fate of Mrs. Badger seems to be decided now beyond a doubt, it having been ascertained that the boat coupon of ticket No. 7909, which was the one sold to Mrs. Badger, was not taken up on the arrival of the boat—a fact which proves quite conclusively that the unfortunate lady never reached New York.

The House of Representatives has passed the naval appropriation bill as reduced by the committee. Several lucrative clerkships at the navy yard are cut off.

The report of the congressional committee, which has investigated affairs in Louisiana, shows Judge Durell's conduct to be such that he will hardly escape impeachment.

During the past year there were received at the registry department of the New York post office 256,202 letters, not one of which was lost.

Prominent business men of Portland, Me., are taking steps to organize a company in that city for the manufacture of cordage of all kinds. The capital stock will be $150,000.

Thos. A. Pike murdered his wife at Portland, Wednesday night. Both had been drinking. Six men were present and kept on playing cards within three feet of the corpse after the deed was done. Mrs. Pike was nineteen years old.

Gov. William Pickney Whyte has been nominated for U. S. Senator from Maryland by the democrats. He will succeed Senator Hamilton.

By an accident on the New Bedford railroad, Thursday, eleven persons were hurt, three it is feared fatally.

The President has nominated Gen. A. B. Underwood to be surveyor of customs at Boston.

Hey-Seed Ascendant.

[Amherst Cabinet.]

It was the most singular convention we ever attended. When it convened everything seemed to be afloat. Those best posted did not dare venture a prediction. There were over a score of candidates, and each had warm supporters. It was marked by none of the traditional buncombe of usual party gatherings, and the 'rehearsing of stale platitudes and glittering generalities.' In fact it was a novelty in the way of a political convention, as distinguishing itself by the bold and advanced position it took. This was noticeable from the outset. Major Briggs in his address, condemned salary grabs, official extravagance and corruption in high places in no measured terms, advocated a prompt return to specie payments, and called upon the party to be radical and politically progress. He believed in civil service reform, but would attain it by making the system of election 'universal in its application,' and placing all promotions and selections for office in the hands of the people. Not only this, but he would make the general mass of the citizens the original source of power by abolishing the caucus system and allowing people to select their candidates as well as their officers. Still further he was prepared to include in the mass of citizens women as well as men. Woman suffrage he declared to be the next great moral issue which the country must meet, and a 'reform which no party can afford to despise.'

The platform has the boldness to condemn the salary act without any qualifications, and demands the restoration of the old standard in all departments, including the Presidential office, and the return by Senators and Representatives of New Hampshire of their ill-gotten gains.

Then add the novelty of the nomination of a farmer for Governor—one who tills his own broad acres, follows his plow in the field, and whose locks are dusted with clover seed and red-top. We choose, however, to regard the nomination of General McCutchins rather as the indication of a desire to secure, in the administration of public affairs, the rigid honesty generally accredited to farmers, than any purpose to promote a warfare between the producers of the objects of wealth and those who are engaged in the intermediate process between production and consumption. In any enthusiasm over the nominee, or his calling, none should forget that the work in the other great departments of industry are just as important to the prosperity of the body politics, as that of tilling the soil. We are all workers, and should work together for the general good, securing to ourselves a fair share of the rewards of labor, and conceding same to others.

Fire in Boston.

(Special dispatch to the Daily Chronicle.)

BOSTON, JAN. 16.

At a few minutes past 2 o'clock this afternoon a fire broke out in the dry goods store of S. S. Houghton, Nos. 72 and 74 Tremont street, opposite Tremont House, between the western section of the Parker House and the Tremont Temple. The fire originated in the third story and worked upward to the roof and burned with great intensity. Dense volumes of smoke rolled out from the upper windows, rendering the streets in the immediate neighborhood as dark as night. The flames burst out of the roof and were swept by the wind around the marble front of the Parker House, the fate of which for some time excited the fears of the thousands of spectators who rallied to the scene. The fire was confined to the third and fourth stories of the building, and these with the roof above the store numbered 72 were pretty much destroyed. The stock destroyed was mostly fancy goods, and the total loss together with the damage to the building will probably not be very heavy. At one time it appeared as if the flames would force their way into the windows on the Tremont street side of the Parker House, but the firemen evidently appreciated the situation—the powerful streams from a half dozen steamers soon began to have a noticable effect and the fierce flames gradually succombed to the large body of water which was being forced into the burning building. The interior of the Parker House was filled with smoke; the occupants of apartments in the Tremont street wing fled from their rooms. The fire was under control at 3.30.

SPECIAL ANNOUNCEMENT FOR 1874.

READ AND THINK.

We have received to-day a large lot of FLOUR in Barrels and Half-Barrels, which we propose to sell at

PRICES THAT CAN'T BE BEAT.

PRIDE OF THE WEST	$10.75
RED JACKET	12.00
GE UINE	9.75
A	10.00
LILY OF THE VALLEY	10.50

These prices are less than the same brands or quality can be bought in this State, and we guarantee everything as we say, or you can return it at our expense.

With EVERY BARREL of Flour so sold, we shall give you

Your Choice of Two

SPLENDID STEEL ENGRAVINGS,

(Samples of which can be seen at our store,)

The Village Blacksmith,

AND

Signing the Compact in the Cabin of the Mayflower,

AS A PREMIUM PRESENT!

These Engravings are elegant again, and worthy a place in any house.

Now, don't let anybody make you believe that we can't do this and give you a GOOD article of FLOUR at the same price they can; because if you do, you will be deceived. We bought these pictures in New York at such prices that we can afford to do it.

Why? 1st, because it so increases our sales that even with a small profit on the Flour, we can make day wages. 2d, because when people come to buy Flour they see the prices of other goods and buy them. 3d, because everybody knows we always do just what we advertise to do.

NOW TRY US. All we ask is for you to call, see and be convinced.

City Council.

In board of Mayor and Aldermen, Thursday evening, a recommendation of Chief Engineer Marston for the purchase of three Automatic Relief Valves, was referred to the Committee on Fire Department with power to purchase two.

Petition of John H. Grant for lease for years of the store in the City building at a rent of $300 per year, was referred to committee on City Lands and Buildings to report.

Petition of T. S. Nowell & Co. for exemption of factory and stock in trade from taxation for ten years from Jan. 1, 1874, was granted.

Voted, That on the subject of the petition of P. & D. railroad the City Solicitor be allowed to use his discretion as to when he shall employ counsel to assist him.

Death of a Hero.

We chronicle to day the death of Sergeant John B. Yeaton of Newcastle, who served in the regular army during the rebellion, and in all a period of seven years. He died of consumption contracted in Libby prison. His discharge paper credits him with being engaged in thirty battles, in one of which he was taken prisoner and was afterward carried to Richmond, from whence he returned, a mere wreck of his former self, to his widowed mother's home to die. For six years kind friends have helped supply his wants, and the situation of the mother is such at this time as to need the pecuniary assistance of patriotic and charitably disposed persons to enable her to bury her son in a manner worthy of one who gave his life for his country.

One More for Maj. Vaughan.

[Dover Enquirer.]

There is a very strong and growing public sentiment in Portsmouth against the contemplated displacement of Maj. Daniel J. Vaugnan, the popular Pension Agent in that city. The feeling is largely shared in this vicinity and in many other sections where Maj. Vaughan is well known and his excellent qualities appreciated. Indeed there is a very general protest against the removal of one whose record as a soldier is so creditable and whose fidelity and efficiency in the discharge of his official duties cannot be gainsaid.

Laconics.

Miss A. C. Morgan, who for eighteen years has been an assistant teacher at the High School, is soon to open a boarding school for young ladies in this city. Our best wishes for her success.

Rear Admiral Parrott has been ordered home on account of sickness

Hon. W. H. Y. Hackett, Dr. Daniel H. Pierce, Rev. Daniel Austin, and Mrs. E. H. Winchester for Master Charles Francis Winchester, have recently contributed $25 each as a nucleus of a permanent fund for the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals. The money is drawing interest in the Portsmouth Savings Bank.

The Dover & Portsmouth R. R. seems to be almost ready for the transportation of passengers and freight.

The third assessment made by the Rockingham Relief Association, I. O. O. F. of this city, $616, was paid this week to the widow of the late Bro. Geo. Willand, of Rochester, N. H., who also received $1034, from the Strafford Association, being the tenth assessment therein made, making a total of $1650, being a member of both organizations.

Mr. Josiah Wilson and wife celebrated their golden wedding on the evening of the 15th, at their residence on Wentworth street in this city, a large number of friends gathering to offer their congratulations to the happy couple. Numerous gifts appropriate to the occasion were received by Mr. and Mrs. Wilson, among them a gold-headed cane from Hon Jonathan Dearborn, for many years Mr. Wilson's employer. A bountiful feast was provided and full justice done to the same; and a very neat poem was read.

"Old Probs.," disgusted with the unceasing torrent of abuse and reproach showered upon him, on account of the "demoralized winter" he manufactured, has commenced to serve out the genuine article; and now the people wish they had attended to their own business and let O. P. attend to his, without any of their interference or advice.

The Eastern R. R. Co. have just put on four new cars and have fifteen more in process of completion. The cars are of elegant design and are fitted with the latest devices for safety and convenience.

A preliminary meeting looking to the starting of a gymnasium in our city will be held at the office of Dr. A. P. Stevens, No. 5 Daniel street, at half past seven Monday evening. All interested are invited to be present.

The Journal publishes a list of the bank officers of this city and in it gives the name of the wrong person as president of the Rockingham National Bank. It also names as a trustee in the Portsmouth Savings Bank a gentleman who has been dead a year. The president of the Rockingham is John J. Pickering; the Savings Bank is officered as follows: President, William Simes; Treasurer, J. F. Shores; Trustees, W. H. Y. Hackett, John P. Lyman, Augustus Lord Lyman D. Spalding, John E. Salter, John Stavers, Wm. L Dwight, Jos. Hiller Foster, Wm. R. Preston, Samuel Adams, Geo. L. Treadwell, Wm. H. Rollins, True M. Ball, Joseph H. Thacher, Chas. H. Mendum, John Knowlton, Chas. Rev. Fannie U. Roberts is to occupy the pulpit of the Universalist church to-morrow, and not Rev. Mr. Breare as announced.

Kearsarge S. F. E. Co., No. 3, gave the first of a series of social assemblies in Mechanics' Hall on Thursday evening. The dance was well attended and well conducted, and a source of pleasure to all concerned. The next assembly will be given on Wednesday evening, the 21st.

Mr. Moodey's Pastorate.

Editors Chronicle; I notice in Friday morning's paper, a note appended to my historical sketch, which is not mine, and which gives an entirely wrong impression in regard to the early history of religious matters in this settlement. Mr. Moodey was never, by any latitude of interpretation whatever of the historical facts, minister of the North Church or Parish, of Portsmouth, for the North Church and Parish or the South Church and Parish had no separate existence until seventeen years after Mr. Moodey's death. He was pastor of the one church and parish of Portsmouth, worshipping in the old meeting house beyond the South Mill bridge, of which the church and parish of Newcastle is the first, and the North Church and Parish of Portsmouth the second offshoot.

Most truly yours,

JAMES DENORMANDIE.

Business Notices.

Something certain at last.—Piles is not only one of the most painful of human diseases, but professional men had almost despaired of finding a remedy, until the introduction of ANAKESIS by Dr. Silsoe, and after an experience of 20,000 cases in five years, doctors agree that an infallible remedy has been found. Sufferers will appreciate ANAKESIS after trying everything else in vain and then experiencing the bliss of instant relief and ultimate cure.—Price $1.00. Sold by Druggists every where. Principal Depot, 48 Walker st., New York.

Unhealthy Surroundings.

To breathe pure, healthful air, and to follow occupations conducive to health and long life are the privileges of the minority. The majority must dwell wherever their lot is cast, however insalubrious the locality may be, and work at the craft assigned to them, however destructive to health and vigor. Medical science has, however come to the aid of the latter. In Hostetter's Stomach Bitters they have (and have had for the last twenty-five years) the best defence against the morbid influences which create and foster disease that the vegetable kingdom can supply. Its ingredients are among the finest botanic specifics which research has yet revealed to man. As a preventive of, and remedy for the diseases generated by swamps, miasma, the foul air of factories, excessive heat, over exertion of body or mind, unwholesome water or any other morbid cause, Hostetter's Stomach Bitters bear away the palm from all medicines of the present day.

Vegetine cleanses an impure blood, thereby causing humors of all kinds to disappear.

If you feel dull, drowsy, debilitated, have frequent headache, mouth tastes badly, poor appetite and tongue coated, you are suffering from Torpid Liver or "Billiousness," and nothing will cure you so speedily and permanently as Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. 708

The Kidneys, although but little understood, are among the most important of the vital parts. All diseases pertaining to them or to the organs they supply with health and vigor, in either sex, are cured by Helmbold's Extract Buchu. By Helmbold's process Buchu becomes a specific. No other chemist has so skillfully extracted its virtues. Sufferers will avoid disappointment, failure and exposure, by obtaining only Helmbold's Buchu. For sale by all druggists.

'73 REUNION.

THE "HISTORY OF THE RETURN OF THE SONS & DAUGHTERS OF PORTSMOUTH, JULY, 1873," is just published. It contains 96 pages, octavo, and is a thorough detail of everything relating to the three Festal Days,

The Reunion, July 4th,

High School Reunion, 5th,

The Praise Meeting, 6th;

and containing a

Verbatim Report

of every speech that was uttered at the Tent on the 4th and 5th, besides giving a full report of all the Reunion preliminary movements in Portsmouth, Boston and New York. Much of the matter of this work has never yet appeared in any form, and we think it will prove interesting to all who participated in the Three Days' Jubilee.

The work is for sale at the Chronicle Office, J. H. Foster's Bookstore, and at Wm. R. Preston's.

AYER'S HAIR VIGOR,

FOR RESTORING GRAY HAIR

TO ITS NATURAL VITALITY AND COLOR.

Advancing years, sickness, care, disappointment, and hereditary predisposition, all turn the hair gray, and either of them incline it to shed prematurely.

AYER'S HAIR VIGOR, by long and extensive use, has proven that it stops the falling of the hair immediately, then renews the growth, and always surely restores its color to faded or gray. It stimulates the nutritive organs to healthy activity, and preserves both the hair and its beauty. Thus brushy, weak or sickly hair becomes glossy, pliable and strengthened; lost hair regrows with healthy expression; falling hair is checked and establishes; thin hair thickens; and faded or gray hair resumes its original color. Its operation is sure and harmless. It cures dandruff, heals all humors, and keeps the scalp cool, clean and soft—under which conditions diseases of the scalp are impossible.

As a dressing for ladies' hair, the VIGOR is praised for its grateful and agreeable perfume, and valued for the soft lustre and richness of tone it imparts.

FOURTH GRAND GIFT CONCERT

FOR THE BENEFIT OF THE

Public Library of Ky.

OVER A MILION IN BANK!

SUCCESS ASSURED!

Full Drawing Certain

On Tuesday, 31st of March Next.

In order to meet the general wish and expectation of the public and the ticket-holders for the full payment of the magnificent gifts announced for the Fourth Grand Gift Concert of the Public Library of Kentucky, the management have determined to postpone the Concert and Drawing until

Tuesday, March 31st, 1874.

They have already realized

OVER A MILLION DOLLARS,

And have a great many agents to hear from.

No doubt is entertained of the sale of every ticket before the drawing, but whether all are sold or not, the Concert and Drawing will positively and unequivocally take place on the day now fixed, and if any remain unsold they will be cancelled and the prizes will be reduced in proportion to the unsold tickets.

Only 60,000 tickets have been issued and

12,000 CASH GIFTS,

$1,500,000,

will be distributed among the ticket-holders.

The tickets are printed in coupons, of tenths, and all fractional parts will be represented in the drawing just as whole tickets are.

Portsmouth Chronicle.

—An old seaman, at a religious meeting recently held in New York, in relating his experience, stated that when at sea in storms and tempests, he had often derived great consolation from that beautiful passage of Scripture, "Faint heart never won fair lady."

—A Cincinnati court has decided that any one purchasing a ticket for a theatre after the hour announced for the curtain to rise, or the entertainment to begin, will be entitled to any seat in the departments of parquette, dress circle or gallery which he finds unoccupied on entering.

—Alfonzo Barrano, a native of Spain, died a pauper at Dayton, Ohio, without knowing that a deceased brother of his had left him a fortune of $33,000,000 in the Philippine Islands. But his daughter, Mrs. Giroud, the owner and engineer of a stern-wheel peanut stand in New Orleans, is now reaching out for the money.

—A Bombay newspaper says that among the hill people it is a common practice to place infants beneath a constant jet of water conveyed through a bamboo spout from a mountain stream, so that the water falls upon the head of the child, which goes to sleep under this cooling influence and sleeps for hours at a stretch. This water is believed to strengthen the brain and make the children not only healthy, but hardy and fearless.'

—Archbishop Whately used to hold that there was one characteristic distinction between men and women. When men, he said, were spoken of disparagingly as a whole they were apt to coincide; but when any particular man was attacked they usually stood up for him and did their best to show that he was not such a bad sort of fellow after all. On the other hand—this was Whateley's theory, and we accept no responsibility for it—women were extremely sensitive as to the general character of their sex, while qu te ready to join in cutting up the sisterhood in detail.

—Dr. Earle, of the State Lunatic Hospital at Northampton Mass., in his clear, crisp report to the trustees, thus hits off the mania for "blooded stock," as indicated by the great sale made in New York State recently, which sale attracted purchasers even from England: "Several men who have been here were ready at any time to present a check for a hundred thousand or a million of dollars to any one of their friends or acquaintances; and one man invited the whole household to accompany him, free of charge in a journey round the world, upon a railroad to be built by himself, and to cross both oceans upon substantial stone bridges; but no one of the hitherto 2400 inmates has ever offered $40,000 for a cow.

IRON IN THE BLOOD.

DYSPEPSIA, DEBILITY, DROPSY AND ZHUMORS.

PERUVIAN SYRUP

Makes The Weak Strong.

The Peruvian Syrup, a Protected Solution of the Protoxide of Iron, is so combined as to have the character of an aliment, as easily digested and assimilated with the blood as the simplest food. It increases the quantity of Nature's Own Vitalizing Agent, Iron in the blood, and cures "a thousand ills," simply by Toning up, Invigorating and Vitalizing the System. The enriched and vitalized blood permeates every part of the body, repairing damages and waste, searching out morbid secretions, and leaving nothing for disease to feed upon.

This is the secret of the wonderful success of this remedy in curing Dyspepsia, Liver Complaint, Dropsy, Chronic Diarrhœa, Boils, Nervous Affections, Chills and Fevers, Humors, Loss of Constitutional Vigor, Diseases of the Kidneys and Bladder, Female Complaints, and all diseases originating in a bad state of the blood, or accompanied by debility or a low system. Being free from Alcohol, in any form its energizing effects are not followed by corresponding reaction, but are permanent, infusing strength, vigor, and new life into all parts of the system, and building upon an iron Constitution.

Thousands have been changed by the use of this remedy, from weak, sickly, suffering creatures to strong, healthy, and happy men and women; and invalids cannot reasonably hesitate to give it a trial.

See that each bottle has PERUVIAN SYRUP blown in the glass.

MER CAN & FORE GN PATENTS

R. H. EDDY, SOLICITOR OF PATENTS,

For Inventions, Trade Marks or Designs,

No. 78 State St., Opposite Kilby St., Boston.

After an extensive practice of upwards of thirty years, continues to secure patents in the United States; also in Great Britain, France and other foreign countries. Caveats, Specifications, Assignments, and all papers for Patents, executed on reasonable terms with dispatch. Researches made to determine the validity and utility of Patents of Inventions, and legal and other advice rendered in all matters touching the same. Copies of the claims of any patent furnished, by remitting one dollar. Assignments recorded in Washington.

No Agency in the United States possesses superior facilities for obtaining Patents or ascertaining the patentability of inventions.

All necessity for a journey to Washington to procure a Patent and the usual great delay there, are here saved inventors.

TESTIMONIALS.

"I regard Mr. Eddy as one of the most capable and successful practitioners with whom I have had official intercourse. CHARLES MASON, Commissioner of Patents."

"I have no hesitation in assuring inventors that they cannot employ a man more competent and trustworthy and more capable of putting their applications in a form to secure for them an early and favorable consideration at the Patent Office. EDMUND BURKE, Late Commissioner of Patents."

"Mr. R. H. Eddy has made for me over THIRTY applications for Patents, having been successful in almost every case. Such unmistakable proof of great talent and ability on his part leads me to recommend ALL inventors to apply to him to procure their Patents, as they may be sure of having the most faithful attention bestowed on their cases and at very reasonable charges. NORTH FRANKLIN COAL,
LYKENS VALLEY COAL.

In order that all coal shall be shipped in good order, a most rigid system of inspection, both at the mines and at the shipping ports, will at all times be enforced. In every district of the coal region there will be appointed a number of competent persons skilled in the preparation of coal, as local inspectors, whose duty it will be to visit the several collieries daily to see that a proper force is at all times employed in removing slate, and to prevent, if possible, any coal being sent from the mines in bad order. In addition to these efforts at prevention, no means will be left untried at the shipping ports to cure the evils of careless preparation. At Schuylkill Haven, Port Clinton and Port Richmond, ALL COAL WILL BE SUBJECTED TO THE PERSONAL EXAMINATION OF A SKILLED INSPECTOR BEFORE IT IS SHIPPED, and if condemned by him, will be dumped in places provided for the purpose, and before being loaded into vessels WILL BE THOROUGHLY REPICKED AND CLEANED BY HAND.

We keep a fine stock of the above coal on hand, also

LEHIGH, WILKESBARRE, PITTSTON

And other first class Coal. For sale by the Cargo. Car-load or at retail from our wharf.

ALL COAL WELL SCREENED

And delivered in any part of the City. Also a cargo of

Georges Creek Cumberland Coal

For Smith's use, now discharging.

"A Complete Pictorial History of the Times"—"The best, cheapest, and most successful Family Paper in the Union."

Harper's Weekly.

SPLENDIDLY ILLUSTRATED.

NOTICES OF THE PRESS.

The Weekly is the ablest and most powerful illustrated periodical published in this country. Its editorials are scholarly and convincing, and carry much weight. Its illustrations of current events are full and fresh, and are prepared by our best designers. With a circulation of 150,000, the Weekly is read by at least half a million persons, and its influence as an organ of opinion is simply tremendous. The Weekly maintains a positive position, and expresses decided views on political and social problems.—Louisville Courier Journal.

"A Repository of Fashion, Pleasure, and Instruction."

Harper's Bazar.

NOTICES OF THE PRESS.

The BAZAR is edited with a contribution of tact and talent that we seldom find in any journal; and the journal itself is the organ of the great world of fashion.—Boston Traveller.

The BAZAR commends itself to every member of the household—to the children by droll and pretty pictures, to the young ladies by its fashion-plates in endless variety, to the provident matron by its patterns for the children's clothes, to paterfamilias by its tasteful designs for embroidered slippers and luxurious dressing-gowns. But the reading-matter of the BAZAR is uniformly of great excellence. The paper has acquired a wide popularity for the fireside enjoyment it affords.—N. Y Evening Post.

PROSPECTUS FOR 1874—SEVENTH YEAR.

THE ALDINE,

An Illustrated Monthly Journal, universally admitted to be the handsomest Periodical in the world. A Representative and Champion of American Taste.

NOT FOR SALE IN BOOK OR NEWS STORES.

THE ALDINE, while issued with all the regularity, has none of the temporary or timely interest characteristic of ordinary periodicals. It is an elegant miscellany of pure, light and graceful literature; and a collection of pictures, the rarest specimens of artistic skill, in black and white. Although each succeeding number affords a fresh pleasure to its friends, the real value and beauty of THE ALDINE will be most appreciated after it has been bound up at the close of the year. While other publications may claim superior cheapness, as compared with rivals of a similar class, THE ALDINE is a unique and original conception—alone and unapproached—absolutely without competition in price or character. The possessor of a complete volume cannot duplicate the quantity of fine paper and engravings in any other shape or number of volumes FOR TEN TIMES ITS COST; AND THEN, THERE ARE THE CHROMOS, BESIDE!

ART DEPARTMENT, 1874.

The illustrations of THE ALDINE have won a world-wide reputation, and in the art centres of Europe it is an admitted fact that its wood cuts are examples of the highest perfection ever attained. The common prejudice in favor of "steel plate," is rapidly yielding to a more educated and discriminating taste which recognizes the advantages of superior artistic quality with greater facility of production. The wood-cut is of THE ALDINE possess all the delicacy and elaborate finish of the most costly steel plate, while they afford a better rendering of the artist's original.

In addition to designs by the members of the National Academy, and of other noted American artists, THE ALDINE will reproduce examples of the best foreign masters, selected with a view to the highest artistic success and greatest general interest. Thus the subscriber to THE ALDINE will, at a trifling cost, enjoy in his own home the pleasures and refining influences of true art.

The Christmas issue for 1874 will contain special designs appropriate to the season, by our best artists, and will surpass in attractions any of its predecessors.

PREMIUM FOR 1874.

Every subscriber to THE ALDINE for the year 1874 will receive a pair of chromos. The original pictures were painted in oil for the publishers of THE ALDINE, by Thomas Moran, whose great Colorado picture was purchased by Congress for ten thousand dollars. The subjects were chosen to represent "The East" and "The West." One is a view in The White Mountains, New Hampshire; the other gives The Cliffs of Green River, Wyoming Territory.

If any subscriber should indicate a preference for aure subject, the publishers will send "Thoughts Home," a new and beautiful chromo, 14x20 inches, representing a little Italian exile whose speaking eyes betray the homesickness of his heart

TERMS

$5 per annum, in advance, with Oil Chromos free.

For 50 CENTS EXTRA, the chromos will be sent, mounted, varnished, and prepaid by mail.

THE ALDINE will, hereafter, be obtainable only by subscription. There will be no reduced or club rate; cash for subscriptions must be sent to the publishers direct, or handed to the local canvasser, without responsibility to the publishers, except in cases where the certificate is given, bearing the fac-simile signature of JAMES SUTTON & Co.

CANVASSERS WANTED.

The Country Gentleman.

Volume for 1874.

THE CULTIVATOR & COUNTRY GENTLEMAN, for the past forty years, has ranked, both in this country and abroad, as the STANDARD JOURNAL OF AMERICAN AGRICULTURE. The Editors and Proprietors, in addition to their own personal labors, are regularly assisted by a very large number of Special Correspondents and Regular Contributors, among whom are included many Leading Agriculturists, in all parts of the Country, East and West—and by over Five Hundred Occasional and Voluntary Writers, directly in the ranks of the Best Farmers and Horticulturists of nearly every State in the Union. With the co-operation of so large a corps of practical men, this Journal is intended to possess exceptional value as the chosen Medium of Intercommunication among all classes interested in the Products and Fertility of the land—as we who Cultivate and those who Consume—the Buyer and Shipper, as well as the first Owner of the crop—Breeders of Improved Animals and their Customers—Manufacturers of Improved Machinery and those who purchase and employ it—Nurserymen and Fruit Raisers—and, especially, to supply fuller and better data as to the progress, prospects and returns of each successive Season, as throwing light upon one of the most important of all questions—When to Buy and when to Sell.

TERMS.—The COUNTRY GENTLEMAN is published weekly, on the following terms when paid strictly in advance: ONE COPY, one year, $2.50; FOUR COPIES, $10, and an additional copy to the person free to the sender of the Club; TEN COPIES, $20, and an additional copy for the year free to the sender of the Club.

WISTAR'S BALSAM

OF

WILD CHERRY!

THE GREAT REMEDY FOR

CONSUMPTION!

And acknowledged by many prominent physicians to be the most Reliable Preparation ever introduced for the RELIEF and CURE of all

LUNG COMPLAINTS.

This well known remedy is offered to the public sanctioned by the experience of over forty years, and when resorted to in season seldom fails to effect a speedy cure of

COUGHS, COLDS, CROUP, BRONCHITIS, INFLUENZA, WHOOPING COUGH, HOARSENESS, PAINS OR SORENESS IN THE CHEST OR SIDE, BLEEDING AT THE LUNGS, LIVER COMPLAINTS, &C.

CONSUMPTION

CURED

By a timely resort to this standard remedy, as is proved by hundreds of testimonials received by the proprietors.

Dr. Wistar's Balsam of Wild Cherry

Does not dry up a Cough and leave the cause behind as is the case with most preparations, but it loosens and cleanses the lungs and allays irritation, thus removing the cause of the complaint.

CLERGYMEN, LAWYERS, SINGERS,

And all those whose occupation requires an unusual exercise of the vocal organs, will find this the ONLY PREPARATION which will effectually and instantaneously relieve their difficulties.

BEWARE OF COUNTERFEITS.—Remember that the genuine Wistar's Balsam has on the outside wrapper the signature of "I. BUTTS," and the printed name of the proprietors, "SETH W. FOWLE & SONS, BOSTON." All others are base imitations. Examine the wrapper carefully before purchasing.

CATARRH REMEDY.

TO MESSRS. LITTLEFIELD & CO., Proprietors of Constitutional Catarrh Remedy, Manchester, N.H.:

I reside at Manchester N., H., and previously resided at Hooksett, and am a native of Weare, this State. I have had Catarrh twenty-five years, ever since I was 19 years old; had it bad all the time. I ran all that period, and nights it would fill up and drop down in my throat, causing a feeling of choking, so that I would spring up in bed to save myself from strangulation. It affected my head so that I felt confused, and was troubled with severe headache at intervals, for a week at a time. I also had had pains in shoulders, back and kidneys, from which I suffered immensely. So bad were they, that a year ago last summer I was obliged to lie in bed most of the time for three months. I have tried all kinds of snuff and Catarrh remedies with no particular benefit, and consulted physicians. I had a hacking cough. I began to take the Constitutional Catarrh Remedy last August. I began to grow better before finishing the first bottle. I am now on the third bottle. My Catarrh is cured; my health is restored. I have no pains, aches, or cough. My whole system is made over new. I know it is this medicine that has rescued me from intense suffering and almost death. I am now able to do the hardest work and bear the greatest exposure, and feel that I cannot say too much in favor of the Constitutional Catarrh Remedy.

MRS. E. J. FLANDERS.

Manchester, N. H., Feb. 1, 1873.

I am now 53 years old, have had Catarrh ever since I was eighteen years old, and headache all the time; have suffered beyond description with running at the nose, droppings in the throat, choakings and strangulings. Have tried any quantity of Catarrh Remedies, but have found no relief till I tried your Constitutional Catarrh Remedy, six months ago. I found immediate relief.

Catarrh and all its attendant evils have left, Headache, Pains in Loins and Back, Dizziness, Loss of Appetite, and General Weakness. Less than three bottles of Constitutional Catarrh Remedy have cured me. I have not been so well since I can remember as now. I feel as if I could not say too much for the medicine, or thank God too heartily that through its instrumentality I have been restored to health.

How a Train Was Saved.

[Troy Times.]

The New York and Boston express train left the union station in this city at the usual hour, six o'clock, Thursday morning. None of the passengers yet know how narrowly they escaped an awful disaster, and in how great a degree they are indebted for their lives to the presence of mind of a railroad employe. These columns yesterday contained an account of the landslide at fish-house curve on the Troy and Greenbush Railroad. Locomotive No. 39 of the New York Central and Hudson River Railroad was coming up to be attached to the first local train down, when it was caught by the landslide, forced from the track and partly turned, so that its head-light was pointing west. The slide occurred at six o'clock, just at the moment the New York and Boston express was leaving the Troy station. The engineer of No. 39 knew that the down train could not pass the obstructions. He told his fireman, Al. Bascom, to take a red lantern, go up the track and intercept the train. Bascom started on his mission; in the darkness he stumbled and fell on the track: the light was extinguished. The time was too short to allow him to return and procure another lantern; it was impossible in the strong wind to light a match. Covered with mud, but losing scarcely a minute, he pushed on; the head-light of the approaching train came in sight; he knew that the voice of warning, be it ever so loud, could not be heard above the roar of the train. He had but a few seconds in which to determine upon his course. What did he do? Something very few would have thought of doing. Taking aim as best he might, he raised his lantern and hurled it at the approaching locomotive, and then awaited the result. He could not see where his missile landed; the intervening seconds seemed ten minutes. By what we now regard as a mysterious and beneficent interposition of Providence, it entered the cab window, breaking the wood work and coming within an inch of striking the fireman inside fairly in the face; if it had hit him he would have been seriously injured. When the shattering and shattered lantern fell at the engineer's feet, he knew that something had gone wrong, and whistled "down brakes;" the train slackened speed and at length came to a full stop, within a hundred feet of the wrecked locomotive, saved from destruction by the presence of mind of the man who had thrown the lantern. At this point, where the way is obstructed, the track is built on an embankment close by the river, and had a collision occurred between the disabled locomotive and the moving train, the latter would have been thrown from the track into the river, and the horrors and loss of life, the woundings and maimings of New Hamburgh would have been repeated. All honor to Al. Bascom; let his name be inscribed on the roll of fame beside that of Doc Simmons, the heroic engineer who died at New Hamburgh.

A Horse Toilette in England.

[Western Rural.]

To show the amount of money sometimes expended in keeping a horse stable in condition, we publish the following list, by an English saddler, of articles needed by a gentleman keeping a carriage and one horse:

Set of single harness complete, one driving whip, carriage mats, whip sockets, one loin leather, one suit horse clothing, one night rug, one roller, one pair knee caps, one set flannel bandages, one set linen bandages, one exercising bridle, one head collar reins, two logs, one pair pillar reins, one slugeing apparatus, lamp, one horse brush, one curry comb, one water brush, one spoke brush, one dandy brush, two composition brushes, one oil brush, one bass broom, one inside carriage brush, one set shoe brushes, one crest brush, one brass brush, two rack chains, six rubbers, four leathers, two sponges, one mane comb, one trimming comb, one pair scissors, one dung fork, one dung shovel, one dung basket, one corn measure, one corn sieve, one picker stepping box, one lantern, one pall, one burnisher, one setter, one oil-can, one bottle, one scraper, one clipping machine, one hemp head and reins, and cleaning materials, viz: soap, oil, dye, some composition, carriage candles, blacking.

Mysterious Loss of Stars.

There is a record of a star suddenly appearing in 1572 and swelling out with such magnitude and brilliancy that it was seen in the daytime. Tycho Brake, a Danish astronomer, saw it and wrote an account of it. It was seen for a year and five months and then died out and has not been seen since. Another in 1604 disappeared. In 1670 one became invisible, then at intervals for two years was seen, and then was lost as it seems forever. So late as 1866 a dim star was noticed by astronomers, grew to great brightness, then grew dim again and in four months was lost. Several others, say ten or twelve, were known and are gone. What became of stars thus lost is a great mystery.

The Chin.

Fortune-tellers are generally skillful physiognomists, and all the features of the human face do their share in enlightening the understanding of the seers. The chin at the present day is rather difficult to read on account of the increasing custom of wearing a beard. A good chin should not project nor retreat much. A very retreating chin denotes weakness, and a very projecting one harsh strength, united with firmness amounting to obstinacy. A pointed chin generally denotes acuteness. A soft, fat, double chin generally denotes a love of good living; an angular chin judgment and firmness. Flatness of chin implies coldness; a round, dimpled chin, goodness; a small chin, fear; sharp indentings in the middle of the chin point to a cool understanding. The color and texture of the skin and of the hair and beard have also direct harmony with the features. These should be studied more than they have been. A facility in drawing faces is of great use to the student of physiognomy, as it enables him to note peculiarities of feature which no written description would be capable of preserving.

Naming a Child.

One evening, at the house of Dr. Arnott (1853), Mr. Rowland Hill gave some curious traits of the wretched ignorance of a population of nailers in some central district of England with which he was acquainted. A clergyman exerting himself to affect an improvement, took particular care to get their children baptized. One day, having come to baptize a newly born infant, whom he understood to be a boy, he asked what name he should give the child. The father was quite at a loss, had no predilections on the subject. "Shall it be a Scripture name?" Assent. "Well, what Scripture name?" The man agreed at the minister's suggestion, that Benjamin would do. As he was retiring afterwards, he heard a great shouting, and turning back, met the father, who exclaimed: "Sir, it wunna do—it maun be done again—the bairn's a wench!"

The Child Wonder.

Little James G. Speight, who died in Boston last week, was not quite seven years old. His father telegraphed that he died of heart disease, but this interpretation of the cause of his death is considered doubtful by physicians. He was buried at Mount Auburn. His whole life has been phenomenal. Those who knew him as the infant leader of the orchestra at Niblo's, remember the precocious abandon with which he surrendered himself to the spirit of the piece which he chanced to be performing. This was wholly natural, and the daily life of the little enthusiast was consistent with it. When he was five years old he was brought to this country from England by his parents. They were persons not remarkable for musical ability, but naturally were proud beyond measure of their little son's genius. Almost the first public exhibition in which he appeared was at Niblo's, and he sprang in an evening into national fame. He could remember an air as soon as he could utter articulate sounds. The little prodigy at four years old used to be the sole performer in home exhibitions, to which the neighbors would be invited to come. Though he never laid any special plans, he seemed to grasp the whole scope of his possible future. From his conversation and occasional expressions it could be seen that the child looked forward to greater and more lasting triumphs. He seemed to despise his successes, and said that by and by he would "make some music" of his own.

Sometimes one of the orchestra during an exhibition would "play a point on him," as the expression among them was—that is, would purposely make a misplay to bother him. On these occasions he not only recognized the error, but was able to distinguish from the nature of the sound that it was made on purpose. He would turn with a roguish assumption of anger, and shake his fist at the player who was at fault. When he came off the stage his spirits were still upborne by the music and the excitement incident to his position, and he would often exclaim — adopting the technical expression for success before an audience—"Did I hit 'em to-night? Did I hit 'em?" or, at other times, he would break out with childish emphasis on the interjection, "Oh! I made a mistake—I played bad; but you'll see me hit 'em to-morrow night!" Until eight or nine months ago he played nothing by note. From that time he studied hard at music, and with a success that was almost as surprising as his natural gift. He also was set at work at reading and writing, and showed himself an extraordinarily bright child at these studies. It is feared that he was allowed to use his precocious brain too continuously. Yet he never knew a day's sickness, and the agony which as he lay in bed by his father's side last Saturday night, forcing from him the pitiful cry, "Merciful God, make room for a little fellow!" was the first serious pain, perhaps that he had ever felt. He was the friend of everybody, and was the special pet of the company. On Sunday, Mr. Zimmerman, of Niblo's Garden, received a telegram from the father, beginning with the words, "Break this to Fanny as gently as possible," and narrating briefly the circumstances of his son's death. The broken-hearted mother hastened to Boston by a night train.

The little prodigy left behind him a brother and sister both younger than himself. It is said that the little brother, though he can scarcely talk, already begins to handle the violin, and shows unmistakeable evidence of a genius similar to, if not as remarkable as, that of "the child violinist."

Shipbuilding.

The Boston Globe has an interesting article on the shipbuilding prospect for the present year. The article says:

The shipbuilding department of our commerce witnessed such a marked improvement in 1873, the increase being 258,280 tons over 1872, that there is every reason to look to the present year to show even more decided progress, if not to lead all other countries in supplying the demand for ships to accommodate the already very great and steadily increasing trade of our country. The cost of American-built vessels is now about the same as that of the best British, an effect of the increased cost of labor of construction and materials in England, and the recognition of the fact that there is a lack of ships all over the world with the present and prospective high rates of freight, have tended to stimulate this important branch of industry. Better ships are now constructed than ever before, and they bring remunerative prices to their owners. It is stated that some vessels have warranted dividends of ten and twenty, and, in some few cases, thirty per cent. on their cost and outfit during the past year. Probably, two-thirds of the wooden shipbuilding, the present year, will be done in Maine, New Hampshire and Massachusetts, for the reason that vessels can be constructed here cheaper than elsewhere on the coast, and without stop or hindrance by union strikes. New York merchants say they prefer an Eastern-built ship to any other, and the truth of this is evidenced by the fact that they buy every ship constructed on the New England coast as quick as it is put in the market. All this is most encouraging. The revival of New England shipbuilding, which received such a stunning blow by the war, is the revival of one of the most important interests along the coast. The cheering notes of activity in the Maine and New Hampshire ship-yards are the pleasantest sounds heard in these sections these many days.

The Political Outlook.

The nomination of Gen. McCutchins has excited more enthusiasm among his supporters than we hardly dared to expect, while it is more and more evident that the democracy made a great mistake in again selecting their candidate for Governor from Manchester. Confusion seems to have entered the counsels of the leaders who abandoned their old organization in 1872 and engaged in the Greeley fiasco, and the campaign has opened with the republicans united and the democracy divided by dissensions. Already a series of bolts is being inaugurated which threatens defeat to the democracy ere the ides of March appear. A letter from a leading republican of Strafford county assures us that the manifesto of the Dover Democrat is having a great influence in Strafford, Belknap and Carroll counties, and that the democratic leaders have already begun to despair of counteracting its influence.

The republican State committee has chosen Hon. Daniel Hall of Dover for its chairman, and from this action we discern the intention of the republicans to put before the disaffected democracy of the three counties above named most effective information which will open their eyes to the villainy practiced upon them in the Western convention. Col. Hall is an indefatigable worker, diligent and untiring, and we look to his acceptance of the trust confided to him as peculiarly fortunate for the republican party at the present juncture.

Rockingham county bids fair to give one of its old-fashioned republican majorities notwithstanding the boasted increase of prohibition strength. The delegates to the democratic convention from this section returned disheartened, believing that there never was an intention to accord the nomination to their candidate. The action of Foster's Democrat is not displeasing to the Portsmouth democracy, and their disaffection is daily shown by their conversation. The republican leaders have it in their power to retain their ascendency in this State, elect Gen. McCutchins by the people and commence the year triumphantly.

How Prohibition Tickets Work.

[Dover Enquirer]

Two weeks since, in an article commenting on what seemed to us a most unjust attack made in the Prohibition Herald against members of the New Hampshire Temperance Union, we stated in substance that Col. Pike, the republican candidate for Governor, was defeated because these same prohibitionists ran against him a man inferior in ability and excellence of character, and because they ran a separate ticket for the legislature and defeated three republican representatives in Ward Three, whose votes in convention would have elected Mr. Pike. To this statement the Herald of last week makes this reply:

"The editor asks us 'what we think of the ninth commandment, Thou shalt not bear false witness against thy neighbor?' We like it all through. What do you think of it, neighbor? If you approve of it, how could you say the prohibitionists ran a candidate against Col. Pike, three years ago? The truth is, and you ought to know it, or keep still, the prohibition convention of that year put no ticket in nomination! And Col. Pike was defeated by the 'bolting' rumsellers of Rockingham county. These are the simple facts of history."

Now to our mind the above statement of the Herald is to be taken in one of two ways—either it is intended as a blank contradiction to our own statements, or by a mere subterfuge, that of saying that the prohibition convention put no ticket in nomination, it evades the point at issue and charges us with falsifying history. We cannot believe that our neighbor would pursue so disingenuous a course as the latter, and therefore propose to meet the issue of fact by an appeal to official figures and to the Herald's own readers and party workers in support of our statement. If we prove that what the Herald asserts above is wholly at variance with the facts, let them be judged by their own words and at the hands of their political friends, who will be more cautious hereafter how they put confidence in such unreliable leaders.

The simple facts in the case are these; A majority of the members of the State temperance convention which assembled at Concord in January, 1871, endorsed Col. Pike, but a very considerable number of the members, largely composed of the delegates from Strafford county, withdrew from the convention, re-organized and nominated Rev. A. G. Comings for Governor and an entire State and county ticket. At the election in March this prohibition ticket was voted largely in this county, and by the more radical temperance men in other parts of the State, receiving in all between 300 and 400 votes, or within about a hundred of the prohibition vote of 1873. In Dover this ticket received the following votes: A. G. Comings, for Governor, 91; C. C. Hayes, R. R. Commissioner, 113; Barth. Van Dame, Representative to Congress, 82; Reuben Tilton, Councillor, 113; Albert G. Hill, Senator, 126; Arthur J. Gould, Treasurer, 107; Eben C. Berry, Register, 106; Lorenzo A. Brown, Commissioner, 113. An average vote for the whole general ticket of 106, and the largest prohibition vote ever given at a State or city election.

The prohibitionists also ran tickets for Representatives in the different wards. In Ward Two they gave their candidates 51 votes each, and came within 20 votes of defeating two republican Representatives. In Ward Three their candidates averaged 103 votes each, but as some 50 or 60 of these were due to a fourth ticket we will put their vote only at the average prohibition vote on the general ticket, which was 44. Now the three republican candidates in this ward that failed of an election lacked respectively 29, 31 and 43 votes, and the 44 prohibition votes, if cast for them, would have elected every one of the three. These three republican votes in the House would have given the republicans a clear majority in the election of Speaker. The full republican strength was just one-half of the members of the House, and also of the Senate, but two of the Representatives being absent through sickness the vote for Speaker stood, republican 162, democratic and liberal 164. The three votes additional from Ward Three would have elected our Speaker, and also enabled us to fill the vacancies in the Senate giving us two majority in that branch, and also to elect Col. Pike Governor, with a majority in the Council.

This is the substance of our statement two weeks since, and we leave it to our readers to say whether we have established its truth, and whether the statements of the Herald given above will equally stand the test. We leave to them the question whether the prohibitionists or radical temperance men did run a candidate against Col. Pike. Indeed, we leave it to the prohibitionists of Dover themselves to decide this question Did they throw nearly a hundred votes against Col. Pike? Did their 44 votes prevent a choice of three republican Representatives in Ward Three? If so, then what has the Herald to say for itself? And the question is not to be avoided by any quibble. It is not whether this or that prohibition convention put a ticket in nomination, but, did the prohibitionists of Dover run against Mr. Pike, and through the running of that ticket defeat three republican Representatives and ultimately Col. Pike? The question of fact lies just here and nowhere else, and if our statements are true our prohibition neighbors cannot relieve themselves from their responsibility by asserting that the rumsellers of Rockingham County were striving for the same purpose. It is not the first time that extremes have met, and it is no strange thing when the aims of both are impracticable or destructive. The prohibitionists are trying the same experiment they did in 1871, and they will find the same allies co-operating with them. The danger is that between them the cause of temperance alone will suffer.

The Truth of History.

It is well occasionally to learn what our opponents think of us—to see ourselves as others see us, if we can. To this end, we copy the paragraphs below from a Catholic writer in the Boston Herald, who replies to a previous writer. We shall only add that we think Bancroft might have included Strawberry Bank in the homes of religious liberty in 1634, for there is no evidence but that the lower Piscataqua settlements by Episcopalians, were as tolerant as he paints the Baltimore Catholics—and, singularly enough, it seems that the toleration of opponents in both, alike occasioned or led to their fall or defeat. The Herald Catholic says:—

"We are told that it was 'our Puritan ancestors that brought the Bible to this Western World, and that they were also the framers of the American Government, whose lives were regulated by right and justice and the broadest charity towards the poor and oppressed of all nations.' Well we shall see what the American historian, Bancroft, who is a New England Protestant, says respecting the saintly qualities of these Puritan ancestors;

'In 1634 the Irish Peer, Lord Baltimore, established a Catholic settlement at St. Mary's, where religious liberty found its only home on this wide continent. The Pilgrim fathers were not the apostles of freedom This asylum of Papists was a spot where in a remote corner of the world the mild forbearance of a proprietary adopted religious freedom as the basis of the State. The Catholic colony welcomed the persecuted of every sect, offering every sect, offering even to the Puritans lands and privileges and free liberty of religion. What was the result? The liberality of the charter of Maryland attracted great numbers of Protestants, so that after a time they outnumbered the Catholics, and no sooner had they gained this numerical ascendency than they disfranchised every Catholic in Maryland and declared them not entitled to the protection of the laws.'

What a generous and grateful return for the liberality of the Catholics! They fled from Protestant intolerance, and though they never understood the first principles of real freedom, they implanted in the bosom of their posterity the same vindictive spirit which had crimsoned their hands with the blood of their king. They could not understand that there can be no liberty without forbearance. Hence we do not misrepresent them when asserting that human freedom or progress was never aided by the stern exiles who landed on Plymouth Rock, the blarney stone of New England. Poetry and such talented speakers as Webster, Sumner, and sensation writers of the Puritan stamp, may cast a halo about their deeds, but it is a fictitious lustre which time, the inexorable interpreter, has heavily dimmed and overclouded.

To substantiate this position it is only necessary to allude to the fact that they had hardly set foot upon the shores of Massachusetts when they began to surpass the tyranny from which they had fled, and to drive from their midst those individuals who had dared to claim for themselves the exercise of those natural rights which are the inborn inheritage of every human being. The assertion that the Puritans were the first to bring bibles to this country is groundless. From the landing of Columbus, the Catholic, in 1492, 128 years before the Pilgrims set foot on these shores, the Bible and Catholicity had been planted in this great country. Hence neither England nor Protestantism claim any privilege on the ground of discovery, for before this epoch colonial development had taken place, and thus the Catholic religion and the Bible had preceded Puritanism and every other ism.

Readables.

Thurlow Weed says in a card that the purchase of the rebel archives has proved a good investment and suggests a congressional resolution calling for the printing of all of them.

An exchange says: "Every member of Congress from Minnesota was either born or spent the early part of his life in Maine." This is an error, for William Windom was born in Ohio, went from there to Minnesota when it was a territory, and was never even in the New England States until after he was elected to Congress at the first State election of Minnesota in 1858, when he went to Massachusetts to be married. Since then he has represented his State in one of the Houses, continually. Alexander Ramsey was born in Pennsylvania, was sent to Minnesota as Indian Paymaster, was elected first Governor of the State, and from that officer to Senator, and has served the state as such continually since then.

President Grant thinks newspapers have great influence, saying to friends calling on him that he did not send in a nomination for Chief Justice to the Senate on Friday because it would give the newspapers their croaks at the nominee before the senate could act, on Monday, and that would kill any man in America. The Washington Star suggests that when names for the position have been considered, objections in each case have been so immediate and abundant as to make it apparent that just the man for the place has not been born yet.

There was an insurance of $100,000 on the life of Mr. Stiner, who was burned to death in New York, which goes to the Hebrew Orphan Asylum.

"What is a more exhilarating sight," says a Vermont paper, "than to see eighteen handsome girls riding down hill on an ox sled?" Well, we should think it would be rather more exhilarating to see them tip over, says the Lawrence Eagle.

State News.

At an enthusiastic meeting of the republican State committee, at Concord, Friday evening, Hon. Daniel Hall was chosen Chairman. The organization was completed as follows: Secretary, Hon. B. F. Prescott of Concord; treasurer, Colonel C. H. Roberts of Concord; auditors, A. W. Quint and H. M. Putney of Manchester; executive committee, Hon. D. A. Warde of Concord and James A. Wood of Acworth. Brief and earnest speeches were made by Hon. D. A. Warde of Concord, J. Frank Lawrence of Epping, John B. Clarke of Manchester, Hon. E. H. Rollins of Concord, J. Horace Kent of Portsmouth, William B. Towne of Milford, Hon. Oliver Pillsbury of Concord, Frank W. Miller of Portsmouth and Hon. J. D. Lyman of Exeter, all of whom confidently expressed the opinion that the republican farmer candidate will be triumphantly elected governor next March. During the proceedings General McCutchins, the republican candidate for Governor, entered the parlor and was greeted with warm applause.

The Arms of the Ashantees.

The arms of the Ashantee soldiers, now at war with England, consist of long five-foot Danish guns (flint locks), though many are also found with blunderbusses. The cartridge boxes serve as girdles, the leather or wooden cups into which the powder is poured being sewed on a belt, the two ends of which are either tied with a leather thong or buckled in front. The bullets or iron slugs are in a small leather pouch, slung over the shoulder. This pouch, sometimes found on the dead Ashantees, is generally found to contain as miscellaneous a set of articles as may be seen in any Jack Tar's box or bag. Bark thread, bark waste (probably for wadding), dark, queer-looking stones, an assortment of dark-colored beans, a stale piece of yam or manioc, a piece of chew-stick, a handful or so of small shells, and other extraordinary articles, represent what an Ashantee's pouch contains on the battle field. Any person who may have seen a Greek brigand's, an Albanian's, a Kurd's, or a Bedouin's cartridge box, may guess at once what kind of a cartridge box the Ashantees use. They undoubtedly derive their notions of the utility of such a thing from the trading Tuaregs of Timbuctoo. No one need wonder, then, at the very few severe wounds inflicted upon the English despite the very many splendid opportunities the ambushed Ashantees have had to inflict instantaneous death. The powder is thrown loosely into the barrel, and, being often without wadding material, the bullets or slugs of iron, or handfuls of snail shells, or a piece of unsmelted iron ore, are dropped on the loose powder, and the loose charge is thus fired when only a few feet from their toes. Hence so few fatal wounds have been received by the English.

Gray hairs.

Grey hair, the glory of old age, is apt in the present day to arrive before befitting years, and then an innocuous dye is not objectionable. We would warn our fair readers against pulling out grey hairs. It is quite possible that improved health may restore their color—we have seen several instances of this; and it not, then the soft grey hair which has never been uprooted (or broken off under the delusion of uprooting it,) will always lie hidden amongst the hair; while the grey hairs which grow again after being pulled out, are stiff, short, and have a habit of standing erect! Never pull out a grey hair. But prevention is better than cure. How are ladies to preserve the color and abundance of their tresses? We believe that the best and most important rule for so doing is to keep the head cool and clean. But the former is nearly an impossibility in these days of frizzettes and false hair. One thing, however, is certain. If our ladies would preserve their own abundant tresses for another (and probably widely different) fashion they must get the head cool during the night and before dressing the next morning. To effect this, the hair must be taken down and well brushed at night with a soft brush, parting it about, to cool and clean it; and then it should be plaited and suffered to hang about the shoulders all night. In the morning the roots should be well washed with rose-water, or cold, soft (or rain) water, if possible—the latter is the best. Then it must be dried, before it is dressed, by rubbing gently and shaking out, or brushing with a soft brush. This treatment will remove scurf, which is, we believe, one of the causes of premature grey hair and which undoubtedly weakens the roots of the hair, and prevents it from growing, besides being horribly unsightly.

Throughbreds.

What we call the "thoroughbred" horse was created in England by the importation of horses of both sexes from Arabia and Barbary, and by the judicious commingling of the foreign with the native blood. Through contests on the turf and the right kind of crossing, the horse was gradually improved, or elevated to a high standing of excellence; and these improved horses were then recognized as the progenitors of an a istocratic race. Usage has decreed that an animal which can show an uncontaminated pedigree for five generations shall be classed as thoroughbred; that is, no drop of cold or coarse blood must appear in the veins, the origin of which cannot be found behind five successive periods of reproduction.

SPECIAL ANNOUNCEMENT

FOR 1874.

READ AND THINK.

We have received to-day a large lot of FLOUR in Barrels and Half-Barrels, which we propose to sell at

PRICES THAT CAN'T BE BEAT.

PRIDE OF THE WEST	$10.75
RED JACKET	12.00
GENUINE	9.25
A	10.00
LILY OF THE VALLEY	10.50

These prices are less than the same brands or quality can be bought in this State, and we guarantee everything as we say, or you can return it at our expense.

With EVERY BARREL of Flour so sold, we shall give you

Your Choice of Two

SPLENDID STEEL ENGRAVINGS,

(Samples of which can be seen at our store,)

The Village Blacksmith,

AND

Signing the Compact in the Cabin of the Mayflower,

AS A PREMIUM PRESENT!

These Engravings are elegant again, and worthy a place in any house.

Now, don't let anybody make you believe that we can't do this and give you a GOOD article of FLOUR at the same price they can; because if you do, you will be deceived. We bought these pictures in New York at such prices that we can afford to do it.

Why? 1st, because it so increases our sales that even with a small profit on the Flour, we can make day wages. 2d, because when people come to buy Flour they see the prices of other goods and buy them. 3d, because everybody knows we always do just what we advertise to do.

NOW TRY US. All we ask is for you to call, see and be convinced.

—During eight months past eight millions pounds of oleomargarina, a commercial substitute for butter, have been consumed in this country. There is said to be daily production of over twenty-three tons.

—John Bright has not lost his power of expressing himself in very vigorous Anglo Saxon, and lately replied to some charges made by a clergyman that he would advise him to stay in the pulpit, for "on the platform he is, what is not uncommon in the hot partisan priest, ignorant and scurrilous and a guide whom no sensible man would wish to follow. His congregation should pray for him."

—A German peddler sold a man a liquid for the extermination of bugs. "And how do you use it?" inquired the man after he had bought it. "Ketch te bug, and drop von little drop into his mout," answered the peddler. "The deuce you do!" exclaimed the purchaser; "I could kill it in half that time by stamping on it." "Vell," calmly exclaimed the German, "dat is a good way, too."

Presentation.

Capt. J. Albert Sanborn is about leaving this city for Lynn, where he is to take charge of a department in one of the great boot and shoe establishments of that city, that of Jerome Ingalls. The friends of Capt. Sanborn tendered him a complimentary supper, which came off at the Rockingham, Saturday evening, and was a most enjoyable affair. Mine host Peirce had prepared on short notice a tempting and bountiful feast, and with the genial Col. William H. Sise in the chair, the hours passed merrily on, jest and repartee following each other in quick succession. At the conclusion of the banquet the guest of the occasion was surprised by the presentation of an elegant edition of Verplanck's Shakspeare's complete works, in three volumes, illustrated. To Mr. Israel P. Miller was awarded the post of honor, and the astonished guest listened to the following remarks, which reflected the sentiments of the company present:

Mr. Chairman and Gentlemen: All present are aware that we have met here to do honor to a gentleman whose presence we regret we are soon to lose, whose many sterling qualities have endeared him to a large circle of friends,—Capt. J. Albert Sanborn, who in a few days is to leave us for another city; and all but our honored guest are also aware that a more lasting token of our friendship than this banquet, has been procured and is to be presented to him on this occasion. To me is given the honor of expressing the feelings of this company, and presenting to our guest our gift. Capt. Sanborn: On behalf of your friends present I request your acceptance of this copy of Shakspeare's complete works, illustrated, with notes; knowing your tastes, we believe you will value our offering for itself, as well as for its associations; and with it we tender you renewed assurances of our respect and warm friendship, and our regret that you are to leave us. You will be followed by our best wishes wherever you may go, and be welcomed with gladness whenever you may return.

Capt Sanborn arose to respond and was greeted with cheers. From his response it was evident the unexpected gift had touched a tender chord. He spoke as follows:

Mr. Chairman and Friends: I know you will not expect me to reply in adequate language to this manifestation of the regard of old friends. I cannot do more than to say that I have been deeply touched by the elegant supper to which you have invited me, and now this last evidence of your friendship has filled my cup of gratitude to overflowing. Had I been myself consulted on the subject, I could not have indicated a gift that would have been more agreeable to my tastes than the works of the world's great poet, and I can assure you all that these graceful volumes will be cherished alike for their own sake and as tokens of a friendship both sincere and disinterested. Though I depart from our beautiful and beloved city, the lessons here learned, the ties of affection here formed, the scenes in which we have here together acted our parts as best we might, will go with me wherever my lot may be cast.

In response to toasts, speeches were made by Col. Sise and Messrs. Shaw, Ayers, Page, Marston, Tiffany, Norton and Vaughan. At a late hour the literary exercises came to a close. Capt. Sanborn enters upon his duties of his new position this week, and his friends, who are a legion, embracing old associates and persons of all parties, wish him success and pleasant associations for the future. By his departure, Portsmouth loses a young man of character, integrity and enterprise, and it is such men that we can ill afford to part with.

Laconics.

A preliminary meeting looking to the starting of a gymnasium in our city will be held at the office of Dr. A. P. Stevens, No. 5 Daniel street, at half past seven this evening. All interested are invited to be present.

The Manchester Union says bolting is an old trick of Joshua L. Foster's, whereupon Joshua denies the soft impeachment and says the editor of the Union is too big a coward to say his soul is his own! We anticipated some such controversy as this when Joshua came forth from among his late associates. Now see the fur fly! Remarks Joshua—"Lay on, Macduff! And damned be who first cries hold, enough."

Two fellows were around town last week selling rings which they represented to be solid gold and worth $5 each, their real value being about twelve cents apiece. As the itinerant merchants were "hard up" and very anxious to raise money enough to take them to Portland, (that was their story,) they disposed of their wares at a most alarming sacrifice, in some cases at not ten times what the trash was worth; and from several persons they received gifts of money. On Sunday morning they were arrested and taken to the police station, where a search of the pair brought to light about $20 and a number of rings. They call themselves Charles and Frank Snow. The City Marshal invites persons who invested with the firm to bring their purchases to the police station and receive their money back.

Hon. Daniel Marcy denies the reception of the "man on horseback" style of letter alleged to have been written to him by Mr. Cushing. Governor William L. Marcy of New York, was the recipient of that high-sounding communication.

"People do not think so much of party discipline as they used to," said an ex-Greeleyite to a republican. "No, I should judge not," was the reply, "if they can only get a job on the navy yard."

The Manchester Union is mistaken in saying that Foster of the Dover Democrat had his printing office here destroyed in 1865 for alleged exultation on account of the assassination of President Lincoln. Foster's office was destroyed a week before the President was murdered. Had he been exulting over the assassination at the time, Joshua wouldn't have bolted Weston's nomination.

The Pension Agency.

(Rochester Courier.)

A satisfied public presents, in its person, a somewhat formidable constituency with which to discuss either the propriety or the justice of "rotating" a faithful and competent official. Is is a curious body, given to philosophic research, and the solution of mystery—sometimes turbulent, and very hard to please, but invariably arrayed in support and defence of popular rights. The peculiar mystery which at present agitates this public, relates to the removal of Major Vaughan from the Pension Agency in Portsmouth. We recall no instance in which dissatisfaction was more general or more forcibly expressed, than in this case. There has neither been incapacity nor malfeasance in office—there is no pretence of benefit to the public service; indeed there is no such plea to be offered in justification of the proposed change. The public, therefore, is anxious to know if any competent reason exists. We only echo the popular sentiment when we pronounce the movement ill-timed and injudicious; and if persisted in, the inevitable result will be to interrupt that unity of action which has so long characterized the political parties, but which was never more needed than at the present time. The uniform courtesy and promptness with which the duties of this office have been discharged, have won for Mr. Vaughan the esteem of the people at large; especially that portion with which he has had official dealings—a class of men tenacious of their privileges, and particularly apt at remembering any infringement of them; who appreciate any emolument bestowed upon a comrade, as an honorable recognition of themselves and their services.

We understand that news favorable to the reappointment of Pension Agent Vaughan has been received in this city from Washington. President Grant never made a more popular appointment than that of Major Vaughan. Democrats and republicans alike acknowledge the justice of it. His supercedure would have been most unfortunate and untimely, and would have disgusted the thinking men of the party, who, feeling the ties of party lessening year by year, are indignant that a change should be even contemplated.

Business Notices.

Some thing certain at last.—Piles is not only one of the most pain ful of human diseases, but profession l men ha l almost despaired of finding a remedy, until the introduction of ANAKESIS by Dr. Sibbee, and after an experience of 20,000 cases in five years, doctors agree that an infallible remedy has been found. Sufferers will appreciate ANAKESIS after trying everything else in vain and then experiencing the bliss of instant relief and ultimate cure.—Price $1.00. Sold by Drug ists every where. Principal Depot, 46 Walker st., New York.

Unhealthy Surroundings.

To breathe pure, healthful a r, and to follow occupations conducive to health and long life are the privileges of the minority. The majority must dwell wherever their lot is cast, however insalubrious the locality may be, and work at the craft assigned to them, however destructive to health and vigor. Medical science has, however come to the aid of the latter. In Hostetter's Stomach Bitters they have (and have had for the last twenty-five years) the best defence against the morbid influences which create and foster disease that the habitable kingdom can supply. Its ingredients are among the finest botanic specifics which research has yet revealed to man. As a preventive of, and remedy for the diseases generated by swamps, miasma, the foul air of factories, excessive heat, over exertion of body or mind, unwholesome water or any other morbific cause, Hostetter's Stomach Bitters bear away the palm from all medicines of the present day.

Vegetine cleanses and purifies the blood, thereby causing humors of all kinds to disappear.

If you feel dull, drowsy, debilitated, have frequent headache, mouth tastes badly, poor appetite and tongue coated, you are suffering from Torpid Liver or "Biliousness," and nothing will cure you so speedily and permanently as Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. 76

The Kidneys, although but little understood, are among the most important of the vital parts. All diseases pertaining to them or to the organs they supply with health and vigor, in either sex, are cured by Helmbold's Extract Buchu. By Helmbold's process Buchu becomes a specific. No other chemist has so skillfully extracted its virtues. Sufferers will avoid disappointment, failure and exposure, by obtaining only Helmbold's Buchu. For sale by all druggists.

Special Notices.

Chapped Hands, face, rough skin, pimples, ringworm, salt rheum and other cutaneous affections cured, and the skin made soft and smooth, by using the Juniper Tar Soap, made by Caswell, Hazard & Co., New York. AYER'S HAIR VIGOR,

FOR RESTORING GRAY HAIR

TO ITS NATURAL VITALITY AND COLOR.

Advancing years, sickness, care, disappointment, and hereditary predisposition, all turn the hair gray, and either of them incline it to shed prematurely. AYER'S HAIR VIGOR, by long and extensive use, has proven that it stops the falling of the hair immediately; often restores the growth, and always surely restores its color when faded or gray. It stimulates the nutritive organs to healthy activity, and preserves both the hair and its beauty. Thus lonely, weak or sickly hair becomes glossy, pliable and strengthened; lost hair regrows with lively expression; falling hair is checked and established; thin hair thickens; and faded or gray hair resumes its original color. Its operation is sure and harmless. It cures dandruff, heals all humors, and keeps the scalp cool, clean and soft—under which conditions diseases of the scalp are impossible.

As a dressing for ladies' hair, the VIGOR is praised for its grateful and agreeable perfume, and valued for the soft lustre and richness of tone it imparts.

Ladies Logic.

In the talk of some ladies who move in a tolerably good position, but who have been imperfectly educated, I have heard droll specimens of illogical reasoning. The following are two instances. A married lady with a family, who lived in a village in the exterior environs of London, was asked why she was at the expense of keeping a cow, seeing that it would be surely much cheaper to buy milk for the household. "Well," said she in reply, "we keep a cow because we have a field close at hand, which answers very nicely." "But," was the rejoinder, "why do you rent the field?" The answer was: "Because, you know, we have got the cow!" The other instance occurred in my young days at Peebles. A lady in reduced circumstances mentioned to a friend that she had just arranged to rent a house belonging to a baker in town. The friend was somewhat surprised at the announcement, considering the lady's circumstances, and asked if the expense would not be too much for her. "Oh, not at all," was the answer; "we'll take bread for the rent!"

A Lost Novel.

I am now at Germantown. It's the very place where a female novelist was lost to society. She was lost in this way. She had written a novel, 'The Dead Minister; or, the Fatal Dish Rag,' or some such name, and she had a lover, and one fatal night she sat down to read that novel to her lover. She commenced to read as follows:

'Winifred Attleborough sat with bated breath a fishing.'

'You mean bated hook,' said he.

'I mean bated breath,' says she.

Says he, 'Who the deuce ever fished with a bated breath?'

Says she, 'You're a fool.'

Says he, 'Farewell, Susan, Susan; alas! farewell.'

He might have added another letter to that alas, for it proved a last farewell. Two loving hearts were severed, and her book was lost to the world, for in her rage she used it to kindle a fire to ripen some codfish balls with.

PERUVIAN SYRUP

Makes The Weak Strong.

A Lost Novel,

I am now at Germantown. It's the very place where a female novelist was lost to society. She was lost in this way. She had written a novel, 'The Dead Minister; or, the Fatal Dish Rag,' or some such name, and she had a lover, and one fatal night she sat down to read that novel to her lover. She commenced to read as follows:

'Winifred Attleborough sat with bated breath a fishing.'

'You mean bated hook,' said he.

'I mean bated breath,' says she.

Says he, 'Who the deuce ever fished with a bated breath?'

Says she, 'You're a fool.'

Says he, 'Farewell, Susan, Susan; alas! farewell.'

He might have added another letter to that alas, for it proved a last farewell. Two loving hearts were severed, and her book was lost to the world, for in her rage she used it to kindle a fire to ripen some codfish balls with.

The Peruvian Syrup, a Protected Solution of the Protoxide of Iron, is so combined as to have the character of an aliment, as easily digested and assimilated with the blood as the simplest food. It increases the quantity of Nature's Own Vitalizing Agent, Iron in the blood, and cures "a thousand ills," simply by Toning up, Invigorating and Vitalizing the System. The enriched and vitalized blood permeates every part of the body, repairing damages and waste, searching out morbid secretions, and leaving nothing for disease to feed upon.

This is the secret of the wonderful success of this remedy in curing Dyspepsia, Liver Complaint, Dropsy, Chronic Diarrhœa, Boils, Nervous Affections, Chills and Fevers, Humors, Loss of Constitutional Vigor, Diseases of the Kidneys and Bladder, Female Complaints, and all diseases originating in a bad state of the blood, or accompanied by debility or a low system. Being free from Alcohol, in any form its energizing effects are not followed by corresponding reaction, but are permanent, infusing strength, vigor, and new life into all parts of the system, and building upon an Iron Constitution.

Thousands have been changed by the use of this remedy, from weak, sickly, suffering creatures to strong, healthy, and happy men and women; and invalids cannot reasonably hesitate to give it a trial.

See that each bottle has PERUVIAN SYRUP blown in the glass.

AMERICAN & FOREIGN PATENTS.

R. H. EDDY, SOLICITOR OF PATENTS,

For Inventions, Trade Marks or Designs,

NO. 78 STATE ST., OPPOSITE KILBY ST., BOSTON.

After an extensive practice of upwards of thirty years, continues to secure patents in the United States; also in Great Britain, France and other foreign countries. Caveats, Specifications, Assignments, and all papers for Patents, executed on reasonable terms with dispatch. Researches made to determine the validity and utility of Patents of Inventions, and legal and other advice rendered in all matters touching the same. Copies of the claims of any patent furnished, by remitting one dollar. Assignments recorded in Washington.

No Agency in the United States possesses superior facilities for obtaining Patents or ascertaining the patentability of inventions.

All necessity for a journey to Washington to procure a Patent and the usual great delay there, are here saved inventors.

TESTIMONIALS.

"I regard Mr. Eddy as one of the most capable and successful practitioners with whom I have had official intercourse. CHARLES MASON, Commissioner of Patents."

"I have no hesitation in assuring inventors that they cannot employ a man more competent and trustworthy and more capable of putting their applications in a form to secure for them an early and favorable consideration at the Patent Office. EDMUND BURKE, Late Commissioner of Patents."

"MR. R. H. EDDY has made for me over THIRTY applications for Patents, having been successful in almost every case. Such unmistakable proof of great talent and ability on his part leads me to recommend all inventors to apply to him to procure their Patents, as they may be sure of having the most faithful attention bestowed on their cases and at very reasonable charges. COAL.

HAVING contracted for a quantity of the above coal, we would call the attention of Manufacturers, Dealers and Consumers to the following different grades mined and controlled by the Company:

HARD WHITE ASH COAL,
FREE BURNING WHITE ASH COAL,
SHAMOKIN WHITE ASH COAL,
SHAMORIN RED ASH COAL,
NORTH FRANKLIN COAL,
LYKENS VALLEY COAL.

In order that all coal shall be shipped in good order, a most rigid system of inspection, both at the mines and at the shipping ports, will at all times be enforced. In every district of the coal region there will be appointed a number of competent persons skilled in the preparation of coal, as local inspectors, whose duty it will be to visit the several collieries daily to see that a proper force is at all times employed in removing slate, and to prevent, if possible, any coal being sent from the mines in bad order. In addition to these efforts at prevention, no means will be left untried at the shipping ports to cure the evils of careless preparation. At Schuylkill Haven, Port Clinton and Port Richmond, ALL COAL WILL BE SUBJECTED TO THE PERSONAL EXAMINATION OF A SKILLED INSPECTOR BEFORE IT IS SHIPPED, and if condemned by him, will be dumped in places provided for the purpose, and before being loaded into vessels WILL BE THOROUGHLY REPICKED AND CLEANED BY HAND.

We keep a fine stock of the above coal on hand, also

NOTICES OF THE PRESS.

The BAZAR is edited with a contribution of tact and talent that we seldom find in any journal; and the journal itself is the organ of the great world of fashion.—Boston Traveller.

The BAZAR commends itself to every member of the household—to the children by droll and pretty pictures, to the young ladies by its fashion-plates in endless variety, to the provident matron by its patterns for the children's clothes, to paterfamilias by its tasteful designs for embroidered slippers and luxurious dressing-gowns. But the reading-matter of the BAZAR is uniformly of great excellence. The paper has acquired a wide popularity for the fireside enjoyment it affords.—N. Y. Evening Post.

PROSPECTUS FOR 1874—SEVENTH YEAR.

THE ALDINE,

An Illustrated Monthly Journal, universally admitted to be the handsomest Periodical in the world. A Representative and Champion of American Taste.

NOT FOR SALE IN BOOK OR NEWS STORES.

THE ALDINE, while issued with all the regularity, has none of the temporary or timely interest characteristic of ordinary periodicals. It is an elegant miscellany of pure, light and graceful literature; and a collection of pictures, the rarest specimens of artistic skill, in black and white. Although each succeeding number affords a fresh pleasure to its friends, the real value and beauty of THE ALDINE will be most appreciated after it has been bound up at the close of the year. While other publications may claim superior cheapness, as compared with rivals of a similar class, THE ALDINE is a unique and original conception—alone and unapproached—and hitherto without competition in price or character. The possessor of a complete volume cannot duplicate the quantity of fine paper and engravings in any other shape or number of volumes FOR TEN TIMES ITS COST; AND THEN, THERE ARE THE CHROMOS, BESIDE!

ART DEPARTMENT, 1874.

The illustrations of THE ALDINE have won a world-wide reputation, and in the art centres of Europe it is an admitted fact that its wood cuts are examples of the highest perfection ever attained. The common prejudice in favor of "steel plates," is rapidly yielding to a more educated and discriminating taste which recognizes the advantages of superior artistic quality with greater facility of production. The woodcuts of THE ALDINE possess all the delicacy and elaborate finish of the most costly steel plate, while they afford a better rendering of the artist's original.

In addition to designs by the members of the National Academy, and other noted American artists, THE ALDINE will reproduce examples of the best foreign masters, selected with a view to the highest artistic success and greatest general interest. Thus the subscriber to THE ALDINE will, at a trifling cost, enjoy in his own home the pleasures and refining influences of true art.

The Christmas issue for 1874 will contain special designs appropriate to the season, by our best artists, and will surpass in attractions any of its predecessors.

PREMIUM FOR 1874.

Every subscriber to THE ALDINE for the year 1874 will receive a pair of chromos. The original pictures were painte in oil for the publishers of THE ALDINE, by Thomas Moran, whose great Colorado picture was purchased by Congress for ten thousand dollars. The subjects were chosen to represent "The East" and "The West." One is a view in The White Mountains, New Hampshire; the other gives The Cliffs of Green River, Wyoming Territory.

If any subscriber should indicate a preference for a figure subject the publishers will send "Thoughts of Home," a new and beautiful chromo, 14x 20 inches, representing a little Indian exile whose speaking eyes betray the longings of his heart.

TERMS.

$5 per annum, in advance, with Oil Chromos free.

For 50 CENTS EXTRA, the chromos will be sent, mounted, varnished, and prepaid by mail.

THE ALDINE will, hereafter, be obtainable only by subscription. There will be no reduced or club rate; cash for subscriptions must be made to the publishers direct, or handed to the local canvasser, without responsibility to the publishers, except in cases where the certificate is given, bearing the fac-simile signature of JAMES SUTTON & CO.

CANVASSERS WANTED.

Any person wishing to act permanently as a local canvasser will receive full and prompt information by applying to

The Country Gentleman.

Volume for 1874.

THE CULTIVATOR & COUNTRY GENTLEMAN, for the past forty years, has ranked, both in this country and abroad, as the STANDARD JOURNAL of AMERICAN AGRICULTURE. The Editors and Proprietors, in addition to their own personal labors, are regularly assisted by a very large number of Special Correspondents and Regular Contributors, among whom are included many Leading Agriculturists, in all parts of the Country, East and West—and by over Five Hundred Educational and Voluntary Writers, directly in the ranks of the Best Farmers and Horticulturists of nearly every State in the Union. With the co-operation of so large a corps of practical aids, this Journal is intended to possess exceptional value as the chosen Medium of Intercommunication among all classes interested in the Products and Fertility of the land—those who Cultivate and those who Consume—the Buyer and Shipper, as well as the first Owner of the crop—Breeders of Improved Animals and their Customers—Manufacturers of Improved Machinery and those who purchase and employ it—Nurserymen and Fruit Raisers—and, especially, to supply fuller and better data as to the progress, prospects and returns of each successive Season, as throwing light upon one of the most important of all questions—When to Buy and when to Sell.

TERMS.—The COUNTRY GENTLEMAN is published weekly, on the following terms, when paid strictly in advance: ONE COPY, one year, $2.50; FOUR COPIES, $10, and an additional copy for the year free to the sender of the Club; TEN COPIES, $20, and an additional copy for the year free to the sender of the Club.

WISTAR'S BALSAM

OF

WILD CHERRY!

THE GREAT REMEDY FOR

CONSUMPTION!

And acknowledged by many prominent physicians to be the most Reliable Preparation ever introduced for the RELIEF and CURE of all

LUNG COMPLAINTS.

This well known remedy is offered to the public sanctioned by the experience of over forty years, and when resorted to in season seldom fails to effect a speedy cure of

COUGHS, COLDS, CROUP, BRONCHITIS, INFLUENZA, WHOOPING COUGH, HOARSENESS, PAINS OR SORENESS IN THE CHEST OR SIDE, BLEEDING AT THE LUNGS, LIVER COMPLAINTS, &c.

CONSUMPTION

CURED

By a timely resort to this standard remedy, as is proved by hundreds of testimonials received by the proprietors.

Dr. Wistar's Balsam of Wild Cherry

Does not dry up a Cough and leave the cause behind as is the case with most preparations, but it loosens and cleanses the lungs and allays irritation, thus removing the cause of the complaint.

CLERGYMEN, LAWYERS, SINGERS,

And all those whose occupation requires an unusual exercise of the vocal organs, will find this the ONLY PREPARATION which will effectually and instantaneously relieve their difficulties.

BEWARE OF COUNTERFEITS.—Remember that the genuine Wistar's Balsam has on the outside wrapper the signature of "I. BUTTS," and the printed name of the proprietors, "SETH W. FOWLE & SONS, BOSTON." All others are base imitations. Examine the wrapper carefully before purchasing.

CONSTITUTIONAL

CATARRH REMEDY.

TO MESSRS. LITTLEFIELD & CO., Proprietors of Constitutional Catarrh Remedy, Manchester, N.H.: I reside at Manchester N., H., and previously resided at Henniker, and am a native of Weare, this State. I have had Catarrh twenty-five years, ever since I was 19 years old, and I had all the time. I run all that period, and nights it would fill up and drop down in my throat, causing a feeling of choking, so that I would spring up in bed to save myself from strangulation. It affected my head so that I felt confused, and was troubled with severe headaches at intervals, for a week at a time. I also had bad pains in shoulders, back and kidneys, from which I suffered immensely. So bad were they, that a year ago last summer I was obliged to lie in bed most of the time for three months. I have tried all kinds of snuff and Catarrh remedies with no particular benefit, and consulted physicians. I had a hacking cough I began to take the Constitutional Catarrh Remedy last August. I began to grow better before finishing the first bottle. I now am on the third bottle. My Catarrh is cured; my health is restored. I have no pains, aches, or cough. My whole system is made over new. I know it is the medicine that has rescued me from intense suffering and almost the grave. I am now able to do the hardest work and bear the greatest exposure, and feel that I cannot say too much in favor of the Constitutional Catarrh Remedy.

MRS. E. J. FLANDERS.

Manchester, N. H., Feb. 1, 1873.

I am now 53 years old, have had Catarrh ever since I was eighteen years old, and headache all the time; have suffered beyond description with running at the nose, droppings in the throat, clokings and strangulings. Have tried any quantity of Catarrh Remedies, but have found no relief till I tried your Constitutional Catarrh Remedy, six months ago. I found immediate relief.

Catarrh and all its attendant evils have left, Headache, Pains in Loins and Back, Dizziness, Loss of Appetite, and General Weakness. Less than three bottles of Constitutional Catarrh Remedy have cured me. I have not been so well since I can remember as now. I feel as if I could not say too much for the medicine, or thank God too heartily that through its instrumentality I have been restored to health.

The Stigmata.

Last spring a young girl named Collins excited a great sensation in this city by her declaration that she had been visited by the Virgin, and by the appearance upon her hands, feet, side and head of the stigmata or marks of crucifixion. The story is briefly thus:

Miss Collins, who had been educated at the Convent of Notre Dame, in San Jose, seemed of a deeply religious disposition, and, with a companion, a Miss Armer, entered upon a life of religion and charity, having left her father's home, and with Miss Armer, rented a house, where they instructed little children, relieved the sick, etc. Last January she was taken violently ill and after some days' sickness was apparently about to die, when she went into what seemed a swoon, and recovered perfectly well, declaring that she was cured. She stated that the Blessed Virgin had come to her during the swoon, expressed approval of her life and told her what to do. Some time after this she began to complain of pain in her temples and in her hands and feet, and on the Friday before Good Friday—the Feast of the Seven Dolors—the stigmata became clearly visible in bloody spots on the hands, feet, side, and her temples. On Good Friday she seemed to suffer intense agony, and the stigmata was again more clearly visible.

Quite a number of respectable people were convinced that it was in reality a miracle, and the case which was first made public in the Post, gave rise to a great deal of discussion. The Archbishop and other authorities of the Catholic Church carefully refrained from saying whether they believed it to be a real case of stigmata or not; but a very large portion of the community believed in it, while another portion scoffed at it as ridiculous and preposterous. After a great deal had been said and written of the case, Miss Collins and her friend, Miss Armer, dropped out of sight. We now learn that they were sent by order of the Archbishop to the house of the Sister of Charity, Mount St. Joseph. There Miss Collins was put under the medical charge of Dr. Shorb, and was carefully watched night and day, not being suffered to pass a moment unobserved. This close scrutiny at last developed the fact that she herself was the author of her stigmata, which she produced by picking her hands, &c., with her nails. The moment this was discovered, she was treated as the impostress which she really is, and has gone off somewhere; the Archbishop says he does not know where. As we understand it, no suspicion attaches to Miss Armer, her companion, though it seems impossible that she should have been deluded by such a transparent trick of her close associate. Miss Armer herself has entered a convent. So ends this reputed miracle. It is creditable to the Catholic officials that they did not accept the girl's story, but put it to the vigorous examination that detected its falsehood.

Gen. Butler's New Residence.

General Butler's new mansion on Capitol Hill is rapidly going up; his law offices and stables, which are on the rear street, are quite finished, while the main edifice, which is built on the steep scarp of Capitol Hill, has been carried up in the rear with Cape Ann granite walls to the second story. The front is on New Jersey avenue, next door to the Coast Survey, and between that edifice and the old Mills mansion, where John W. Forney gave entertainments through many years, and where the United States Supreme Court once had chambers. Butler has chosen this spot with an eye to prominence as well as business. The back of the house will overlook the whole city of Washington in the plain beneath, the river, and the heights of Virginia, and will thus have a facade towards the lower city, while the east front, standing on much higher ground, will admit guests from the street grade into the second story. Taxes whichever way property improves, whether on Capitol Hill or below, the proprietor will seem to straddle the interval. Mullett, the Treasury architect, got up the designs for his house.

Almost the whole of Butler's business has been transferred to Washington, and his time has become so valuable that he wishes to be able to step out of Congress at any moment to his office, or to a rendezvous, and back again to his seat. This may would be dangerous if the country were not yet a great deal better than himself. He undoubtedly designs to hold a seat in the House or the Senate until he has mastered the bulk of profitable business before Congress, the departments, and the courts, and acquired a fortune which shall be recognition in itself. Butler is at once the head of the lobby and the head of Congress, the spring from which both rivers flow, the one discoloring the other.

This house will become a part of the Capitol as long as he is in Congress, being on the border of the grounds. After he is gone—and men go as Nature or accident wills, even Butler—folks will point out this staunch, strong mansion and write novels about it. Butler strained every energy to have Caleb Cushing confirmed; for in that case he expected to have somebody in the Supreme Court as well as elsewhere. He and his minor lobbyists dashed over town in their coupes and drove their Senators up to the mark; but as the voice of the country grew articulate and roared in the distance, and as the outlines of old Cushing filled up and grew distinct with the moral deformity of the man, the Senate, to its credit, took warning, hesitated, and at this writing the last rejection of old Caleb in this life is assured.

Progress of Manufacturing in the South.

(Harper's Magazine for February.)

The strides the South is making in manufacturing, mechanical, and mining industries are so great as to give promise soon of a lively competition on her part with her more active Northern sisters in many branches of production of which the latter have hitherto had the monopoly. Of some of these enterprises, such as cotton and wool spinning, mining and working in metals, and the multiplication of saw-mills, the North has had some notice, though a very imperfect one, through the last census report. Yet the latest reports give only the figures of five or six years ago, and the progress made during that interval has been something marvelous to contemplate, taking into consideration the adverse circumstances and surroundings in the midst of which it has been accomplished. The outside world has seen and heard something of these larger industries; but of the new movements in the new South, which has made many of her cities and towns the busy centres of smaller manufacturing, and cut off considerably the outside supply of articles of common use on plantations and in the household, no mention has been made. For the South has begun to diversify her labor, bringing in her white women and children, as well as her men—a new phase of Southern life, which hitherto gave man the laboring oar, and devoted woman to social and domestic duties alone, wherever actual necessity did not compel her to step out of what was then considered her proper sphere.

Important to the South as the profitable working and extension of her cotton-mills, iron-foundries, and saw-mills must prove to those who have the capital to establish and control them, it may yet be doubted whether, as regards the community at large, whose capital is now but small, these larger enterprises will prove as beneficial as the development of the innumerable minor industrial and mechanical enterprises which necessity, the mother of invention, has introduced on Southern soil. For now, throughout the Cotton States, these minor manufactories of articles in common use are being established by individuals or combinations of artisans whose skill and labor are their capital, and generally patronized by the neighborhood, who find the home article infinitely cheaper than the foreign one; so that in this way the Southern people are growing self-supporting, and are circulating their surplus funds among the members of their own communities.

Mrs. Adeline Badger.

High above all the characters that Hawthorne ever drew, strong because of the perfect purity of her nature, sweet because of its absolute truthfulness, stands Hilda of the "Marble Faun," and yet it is only probable that for the original of this lovely portrait the darkest and saddest of fates has been reserved. Years ago, in her girlhood, Adeline Shepard was a governess in the family of Nathaniel Hawthorne, making a part of that happy domestic group during its sojourn in England and Italy, and the great novelist, watching her and studying her as it was his custom to study all with whom he came in contact, placed her portrait in the "Marble Faun" as his ideal of maidenly purity so perfect as to be self-protecting, and potent for good with all who encountered it. Such, in her youth, was Mrs. Adeline A. Badger, concerning whom public conjecture has been busy, during the last week, finally settling down to the dreary conviction that the life which began so beautifully has ended darkly and sadly.

From her childhood, Mrs. Badger was distinguished for her cleverness and aptitude as a scholar, attracting the attention of Horace Mann while she was a pupil at the Normal School at West Newton, and winning the hearty commendation of the masters with whom she afterward pursued her studies, at home and at Antioch College. It was after leaving this institution that she went to Europe with the Hawthornes, and travelled with them. Among the Americans whom she met abroad was Theodore Parker, to whom, from an appreciation similar to that which called forth the naturally chary sympathies of Hawthorne, she had been long endeared. Quite a pleasant anecdote related of the cordial welcome extended by Mr. Parker at the time the two met in Florence. After her return, she again went West, and eventually married Rev. Henry C. Badger of Antioch College, a Unitarian minister. With him she passed some years at the West, where he was preaching, and afterward went to Cambridge. His health failed, and his energetic wife opened a school for girls, and carried it on successfully for years.

This is the very short and simple story of a life which was very quiet until within a few months, when Mrs. Badger's appointment on the school committee necessarily brought her before the public, and made her name a household word in every city of the Union in which a daily newspaper is published, and caused her to be an object of interest both to the Woman Suffragists and to those who oppose them in the political field. Whether the excitement of the discussion which arose, or the feeling of the responsibility of her new position, or some unknown cause, drove her to her death, will probably never be known. The few brief notes that she left behind her tell little, and she seems to have been reticent in her conversation with the ladies to whom she spoke on the Fall River boat; there is no hint of any secret grief, and the only theory of the suicide is that the gifted woman and talented teacher sought her own destruction, having become insane through dread of insanity. Having already seen the dark cloud descend upon more than one member of her family, she feared its approach to herself, and sought security in death.

"Work,--and Live Within Your Income."

The shrewd farmer who is the chosen standard bearer of the republican party has given forth a watchword which as a motto is destined to set people thinking. The honest, practical man of New London has rugged characteristics and shows his knowledge of the secret of success. Advocating recently in an agricultural meeting the idea that farmers should be satisfied with their independent calling, that the State should keep its best men and not send them prospecting for easier fields of labor, he was interrupted by a neighbor with this remark: "Tell me, Gen. McCutchins, how I can make a living off my farm and be subject to the present rates of taxation?" Turning to his interlocutor, Gen. McCutchins replied: "Work; and live within your income!"

It is by practically illustrating this sententious aphorism that the unpretending farmer has obtained a comfortable living, working and living within his income, investing his spare dollars in sure enterprises, content to be unambitious and honest. This inspired his neighbors with confidence and they instinctly selected him as the best man to care for the interests of the town. How well he has fulfilled the trust, the fact that for thirty years he has acted in that capacity is sufficient guarantee. Success in town affairs brought him into favorable notice and when the outspoken agriculturists desired a rigid economist at head of State affairs they instinctly turned to Gen. McCutchins and by their influence secured his nomination.

In the half dozen words which head this article young men have food for reflection, and in the farmer candidate for Governor they have an example worthy of imitation. Few people live as economically as is possible, and there lies the possibility of success. The habit of living within one's means, if adopted early in life, assures success in business, a comfortable future and the prospect of better opportunities. To thoughtless persons who have little regard for the future, increase their artificial wants and finally despair of laying something by, we commend the instructive precept which Gen. McCutchins enunciates.

Washington Correspondence.

The action of the House upon the Senate amendment repealing so much of the appropriation bill as made any increase of salaries, except to the President and Judges of the courts, brings an end to that matter. It were better it had been done without so much higgling. The two parties who least needed the increase, have it continued to them because it is claimed, the constitution is in the way of repeal. The increase to the President's pay has been going on indirectly for many years, and gradually, as the demands upon the President increased both by details and appropriations for various objects, which in the beginning were provided for out of the President's $25,000. The Judges had their pay increased to a fair compensation before, and besides were provided for after serving ten years during life.

The pay of officials in the Treasury ought to be readjusted; very many of the old officers holding important positions, whose pay was fixed in a past generation, are only getting half as much as some of the newly created ones. For instance, one of the comptrollers is getting $5,000 a year, while the other gets but $3000, and the one getting $3000 has for the last twelve years passed upon accounts involving two or three times as much money as the one getting $5000. Their pay was made alike in the salary bill, but its repeal puts back the one who has had the most to do upon low pay again. The Commissioner of Internal Revenue gets $6000 a year while the commissioner of customs gets but $3000; clerks in the Internal Revenue are getting $2,500 a year, while clerks who revise their action, get but $1800. The Auditors, Commissioner of agriculture, Assistant Secretaries of Cabinet officers, Land Commissioners, Commissioner of Pensions, get $3000 a year while clerks in the Secretary's Bureau are getting the same. These statements show that some are very much overpaid; others are underpaid. No doubt there are some in each class.

The Senate is discussing finance, which always has been and always will be a prolific subject for legislative action inasmuch as it effects every individual. The skinners of the poor for the benefit of the rich want specie payments brought about suddenly. Men opposed to that process, yet desiring to see our currency brought to a standard which measures the exchanges of the world are inclined to keep shaky and let contraction equal the increased growth of population and business. The advocates of stimulus to business and speculation want inflation. Speculators want contraction if they are bears, crying down prices, and inflation if they are bulls, pushing up prices. The contraction of $100,000,000 brought gold down below $109 and I think one day to $108. The expansion, from what has been put out by the Treasury and brought out of hiding places, has carried it up again to the neighborhood of $112. If anybody wants to repeat the experiment of another sudden contraction he is certainly no friend to either business or labor. Anybody who talks about specie payments, without contracting the currency at least $150,000,000 on accumulating at least $200,000,000 of gold in the Treasury and the bank vaults, is a visionary whose opinions are not worth considering.

It is pretty certain there will be no increase of taxation, and no increase of regular loans, but in order to meet the diminished revenues there will be a rigid scrutiny and cutting down of appropriations to bring them within the revenues. It will be a hard time for the lobby.

The withdrawal of Cushing leaves speculation all at sea as to who will next be sent in. The unearthing of Caleb's old record and letters was too much for him; ought to be a lesson to all. What satisfaction at the end of a long and eventful life to look back and see the places he obtained by crouching to slavery defeating the great ambition of his life, and feel that he is disgraced and everywhere censured while he had attainments and ability enough to have reached the topmost round of ambition's ladder, had he stood by his early promptings for freedom.

The Kenteral Kentublican Kentvention.

[Lake Village Times.]

Great anxiety having been manifested by the people of all parties to learn something about that conclave of liberal republicans who traded off their supporters for a mess of pottage, we have felt it our duty, as publishers of an enterprising newspaper, to impartially hunt up the facts and lay them before our readers. The enterprising reporter charged with this mission entered energetically upon the duties assigned him, but at the outset met with obstacles which to a less ambitious man might have seemed insurmountable. He first visited several of those who, having figured prominently in the liberal movement, would be presumed to know something about this latest hitch; but they all and every one declared that they knew nothing of the matter until they read of Kent's triumphal entry and offer of service in the democratic State convention. So at last he wended his way to head-quarters, and from the Grand Hiossiamus himself, received the desired information, being only requested in beseeching tones, and for sweet mercy's sake, not to publish to the world the place where that mysterious meeting was held and those high-sounding resolutions adopted. This condition being agreed to, our representative was placed in possession of the following important facts:

The convention met at the appointed hour, and was called to order by Col. Henry O. Kent of Lancaster. It being evident that a spirited contest would ensue for President of the convention, a ballot was taken with the following result:

Whole number of votes	1
Necessary to a choice	3-4
Henry O. Kent had	1
Daniel Pratt, Jr.	0
Victoria Woodhull	0

and after some confusion, and charges of double voting, Henry O. Kent was declared duly elected. He was conducted to the chair by Henry O. Kent of Lancaster and Kent of Coos, and eloquently addressed the meeting upon the important results which might accrue to Henry O. Kent from the action of the convention, and the absolute necessity of harmony in all its deliberations and actions. The following list of officers previously agreed upon, was then announced and accepted without a dissenting voice:

Vice Presidents—Henry O. Kent, H. Kent, Ho. O. Kent.

Secretaries—Ho. Kent, Henry Kent.

Committee on Credentials—Kent of Coos, Hokent of Lancaster, and Henry of Coos.

Committee on Resolutions—Henryo Kent, Henry Okent, and Kent of Lancaster.

The committee on credentials reported the whole number of delegate present to be 1. There were no contested seats.

The committee on resolutions then retired to the committee room in Adams' Ale House, and shortly returned with the following, which was adopted by a majority of one:

WHEREAS, I am like a sheep strayed from the fold, lost and blinded, and knowing not which way to flee for safety, therefore

Resolved, That I will open my mouth, shut up my eyes, and go it blind for the democratic party, which will be rejoiced at any accession to its ranks, however small.

Resolved, That I don't care a continental who they nominate, or what platform they adopt; for anything which they can stomach I can surely swallow.

It being found upon counting noses that Mr. O'Kent, a Milesian from Lancaster, had been by some means overlooked in the choice of officers, it was voted, as a salve to his outraged feelings, that he be delegated to carry these important resolutions to the democratic convention. This onerous duty he performed in the most self-possessed manner. Being ushered into that august assemblage, he electrified them as follows:

Gentlemen of the Convention: I come before you gushing with the tenderest of emotions. The liberal republican party of New Hampshire, in solemn conclave assembled, has firmly resolved that in your company only will be found a just recognition of his peculiar fitness as a servant of the people (with a good salary attached.) He offers you his friendship, his assistance, and his vote. "Great oaks from little acorns grow." A single vote may decide the fate of States and of nations. Bear this in mind and accept the offering I bring. Take, oh, take me to thy patriotic bosom, and fondly nourish the tender one whose mouth yearns for a taste of the official pap with which it was nourished so freely in the brighter, better days of our degenerate republic. Though Tappan was unavoidably absent from our meeting, and Goodale has gone into the prohibition camp; though Smith no longer trains in our company, and the flock has strayed from the shepherd's care, yet I assure you that, in my own judgment, all the brains of the liberal party is now before you and claims your kind sympathy.

The eloquent harangue was received by the assembled democratic delegates with enthusiastic outbursts of the most profound silence, and the convention immediately adjourned; and Mr. O'Kent sailed down Main street with with a self-complacent smile illuminating his handsome countenance.

Fun on the Highway.

[St. Louis Globe.]

The setting sun on Thursday afternoon threw a halo upon a vast drove of hogs, sedately marching down the Olive street rock road, attended by two gentlemen, one garnished with a stick and the other embellished with a black-snake whip. It was rather chilly—in fact, cold—and as the gentlemen walked along in pleasant conversation, sometimes addressed to each other and sometimes to the hogs, they began to feel the influences of the raw atmosphere, the effects of which they tried to overcome at the bar of every tavern they fell in with. Encouraged with their success, they became hilarious, and in their good humor poked each other and the pigs in the ribs, in that familiar manner which characterizes good fellows charmed with each other's society. He of the black-snake cracked his lash until the air was full of snaps, and shouted and yelled in the fine exuberance of his spirits. As his enthusiasm arose, he pined for loftier deeds, and told him of the stick that the next traveler would make some fun for the party that even the hogs could enjoy.

But a few more drinks had been concealed, when they met a man in a buggy, a man who had been hunting, and who had some dangerous implements in the buggy. With a spring of the whip he grasped the reins and brought the horse, man and buggy to a sudden halt.

"Stranger," said the man in the buggy, leaning forward with his elbows on his knees, "Stranger, I wish you'd let that horse go."

"Partner," said he of the whip, "I can't. I can't let that horse go. I want to know, partner, where you've been and where you're going."

"Stranger," quoth the man in the buggy, "I don't think that's any of your business. Really I don't."

"I don't want to hurry you, partner, but you must answer my question, or you must slide outen that yer buggy, and dance a fling for us, right here," and he snapped his whip uncomfortably close to the buggy man's countenance.

"You see, stranger," said the man in the buggy, "I don't think I can dance. My boots are too heavy."

"You can take your boots off if you want to, partner. I ain't modest, and won't mind your bare feet; but I say, partner, you want to be quick, 'cause these hogs and this yer friend o' mine is getting mighty impatient."

"Well, if you want to see a dance mighty bad, stranger, I reckon I must accommodate you. I've got some light boots in here, and when I get 'em on I'll show you how it's done," and he fumbled under the buggy seat. In a moment he rose up with a huge revolver in his paw, saying: "How will that do for dancing, stranger?"

The next instant he was on the ground his left hand comprehending the throat of Black-snake and the pistol pressed tight to his forehead. The hogs looked at each other with raised eyebrows, and were all the more astonished when they saw him of the stick hoisting himself over a fence and sliding for peace on earth and good will among men behind a neighboring barn.

"Stranger, would you be so polite as to drop that whip?"

He dropped it.

"Now, stranger, we'll have that dance."

"Well, partner, I don't know but what it's time that dance began."

Just then Sam Ecker drove up, and the situation was explained to him. Samuel, being a devotee of Terpischore himself, gravely considered that the dance should go on.

"You'll find it more comfortable, stranger, to dance without those boots, and I think you'd better take 'em off."

"I estimate you're right about that, partner," and down squatted Black-snake and disrobed his feet, and took off his coat.

It is said by those who saw him that Blacksnake is an excellent dancer. He has a keen appreciation of the fine points, and has a way of slinging his feet that many masters of the art have notacquired.

"Warm, ain't it, stranger?"

Blacksnake conceded it was a little oppressive, and he resumed his habiliments, after five minutes' good hard work.

"Good by, stranger," said the buggy man.

"Good by, partner—say, partner, don't mention this littte thing in Lucas Market, will you?"

But, somehow, it was mentioned in Sam's House, and at Billy Beek's and for a day or two Blacksnake found no peace save in the society of his hogs.

A Good Thing.

Some experiments have been made, recently, in England with an apparatus termed the aerophore. This invention, it is claimed, will enable a miner to penetrate at once, and to a great distance, into a pit filled with chokedamp to remain there several hours, to carry his lamp with him without danger, and without depriving him of the free use of his arms. To prove these positive assertions the inventor, armed with his apparatus, entered a small hut which had been filled with a mixture of sulphurous and carbonic acid gases, and remained there about twenty minutes. While in the hut he constructed a box, to show the freedom of the arms. It was claimed that it would have been a good box if the hammer used had not been spoiled by the excessive amount of sulphur.

Business Notices.

The February number, the second of the new volume of LIPPINCOTT'S MAGAZINE, sparkles with brilliant, interesting, and attractive articles. In this number Mr. George MacDonald's long-promised serial story, "Malcolm," really begins. It is brimful of fine Scotch humor. The continuation of "The New Hyperion" maintains the interest already created,—an interest which is constantly surprised and intensified by the original and suggestive illustrations of Dore. "Josephine and Malmaison," illustrated, is an interesting sketch of Napoleon's life at Malmaison and of his relations with Josephine, by Marie Howland. "A Western Secress," by Will Wallace Harney, is a graphic and curious piece, descriptive of adventures illustrative of the faculty of second sight. "Among the Alligators" is a lively Florida hunting sketch, by S. C. Clarke. "The Romance of a Tin Box," by Louis A. Roberts, is a very amusing story.

Something certain at last.—Piles is not only one of the most painful of human diseases, but professional men had almost despaired of finding a remedy, until the introduction of ANAKESIS by Dr. Sisbee, and after an experience of 20,000 cases in five years, doctors agree that an infallible remedy has been found. Sufferers will appreciate ANAKESIS after trying everything else in vain and then experiencing the bliss of instant relief and ultimate cure.—Price $1.00. Sold by Druggists every where. Principal Depot, 46 Walker st., New York.

Decorated China Sets Cheap.—We recently called the attention of our readers to the advertisement of Richard Briggs, 137 Washington street, Boston, who is offering decorated dinner and tea sets at greatly reduced prices. The plan which he has adopted for the first time in this country, of offering really desirable China sets at very low prices, is meeting with great success, and we advise all to avail themselves of the rare opportunity to supply their tables with a handsome service for about the usual cost of ordinary white China.

Unhealthy Surroundings.

To breathe pure, healthful air, and to follow occupations conducive to health and long life are the privileges of the minority. The majority must dwell wherever their lot is cast, however insalubrious the locality may be, and work at the craft assigned to them, however destructive to health and vigor. Medical science has, however come to the aid of the latter. In Hostetter's Stomach Bitters they have (and have had for the last twenty-five years) the best defence against the morbid influences which create and foster disease that the vegetable kingdom can supply. Its ingredients are among the finest botanic specifics which research has yet revealed to man. As a preventive of, and remedy for the diseases generated by swamps, miasma, the foul air of factories, excessive heat, over exertion of body or mind, unwholesome water or any other morbific cause, Hostetter's Stomach Bitters bear away the palm from all medicines of the present day.

Vegetine cleanses and purifies the blood, thereby causing humors of all kinds to disappear.

If you feel dull, drowsy, debilitated, have frequent headache, mouth tastes badly, poor appetite and tongue coated, you are suffering from Torpid Liver or "Biliousness," and nothing will cure you so speedily and permanently as Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. 79S

The Kidneys, although but little understood, are among the most important of the vital parts. All diseases pertaining to them or to the organs they supply with health and vigor, in either sex, are cured by Helmbold's Extract Buchu. By Helmbold's process Buchu becomes a specific. No other chemist has so skillfully extracted its virtues. Sufferers will avoid disappointment, failure and exposure, by obtaining only Helmbold's Buchu. For sale by all druggists.

SPECIAL ANNOUNCEMENT FOR 1874.

READ AND THINK.

We have received to-day a large lot of FLOUR in Barrels and Half-Barrels, which we propose to sell at PRICES THAT CAN'T BE BEATS.

PRIDE OF THE WEST	$10.75
RED JACKET	12.00
GENUINE	9.25
A	10.00
LILY OF THE VALLEY	10.50

These prices are less than the same brands or quality can be bought in this State, and we guarantee everything as we say, or you can return it at our expense.

With EVERY BARREL of Flour so sold, we shall give you

Your Choice of Two

SPLENDID STEEL ENGRAVINGS,

(Samples of which can be seen at our store,)

The Village Blacksmith,

AND

Signing the Compact in the Cabin of the Mayflower,

AS A PREMIUM PRESENT!

These Engravings are elegant agairs, and worthy a place in any house.

Now, don't let anybody make you believe that we can't do this and give you a GOOD article of FLOUR at the same price they can; because if you do, you will be deceived. We bought these pictures in New York at such prices that we can afford to do it.

Why? 1st, because it so increases our sales that even with a small profit on the Flour, we can make day wages. 2d, because when people come to buy Flour they see the prices of other goods and buy them. 3d, because everybody knows we always do just what we advertise to do.

NOW TRY US. All we ask is for you to call, see and be convinced.

CARRIAGES.

MR. HUNTRESS having sold his interest in the late firm of Huntress, Bryant & Co. to Mr. ELLIOTT, of Concord, who served his time with the well-known firm of Abbott, Downing & Co., and has had experience in some of the best shops in Massachusetts in

Carriage Building,

we shall continue our business the same. Having met with good success in the past year, by having a good share of the patronage of the city and vicinity, we hope, by being faithful and prompt in our business, to build up a

FIRST-CLASS CARRIAGE ESTABLISHMENT,

where people can order new work of all kinds, and have the old carriages repaired, without being obliged to go out of town. We shall continue to keep on hand a variety of Carriages, Sleighs, Pungs, etc., which we shall sell as cheap as can be bought elsewhere of the same quality. We return thanks to our friends for past patronage, and hope for a continuance of the same.

Local Matters.

Laconics.

Portsmouth must be a moving town, judging by the number of its hacks and baggage wagons.

The Ladies' Circle of the M. E. Church, will give a Sociable in their Chapel on Daniel street on Wednesday evening of this week. A very pleasant variety of entertainments will be given including Mrs, Jarleys' Wax Works; Little Red Riding Hood, song and tableaux; and the "Coming Woman," in full costume, will put in her appearance. The usual refreshments will be served. Admission 10cts. The public are cordially invited.

The following was the York county senatorial vote at the late election: Total vote, 9,891; John E. Butler had 5,666; John Hall, 5,386; Benj. F. Hanson, 5,653; Ichabod Cole, 4,180; Samuel Waterhouse, 4,143; Wm. A. Thompson, 4,087; scattering, 12.

Colonel C. E. Blunt, of the corps of engineers, on the recomendation of the chief of engineers, has been orhered to this city, to take charge of the construction of the defences of this harbor.

The brig Dundee, of Yarmouth, N. S., arrived at this port on Saturday from Turk's Island, with 700 hogsheads of salt for C. E. Walker & Co.

G. Swaine Buckley's Serenaders appear at the Temple on Thursday evening, and will give a good entertainment. Buckley always does that.

Charles and Frank Snow, the itinerant jewellers, were arraigned before Judge Page no Monday, charged with obtaining money on false pretences, and were ordered to recognize in $500 each for their appearance at the S. J. Court at Exeter on the second Thursday in April next.

Messrs. Cyrus L. Brown (driver) and John L. Vennard (passenger) were proceeding to their respective places of business on Monday morning by the aid of a horse and sleigh. It was John's first ride this winter. When on State street, opposite the Custom House, the breeching of the harness suddenly became unhooked and the sleigh coming upon the horse's heels, caused the latter to perforate the dasher of said sleigh, greatly to the astonishment and discomfort of the occupants, who vacated the premises without delay or injury to themselves. The horse was stopped on Pleasant street after running but a short distance. John says the sleighing is not very good.

A Kittery Point correspondent informs us it is reported that fishing schooner Sassamon, Capt. Richard Seaward, has been totally wrecked, having struck on Boon Island ledge and sunk. All hands were saved, escaping in their boats and landing at York. Later advices say the schooner struck the ledge at about 5 o'clock Sunday morning, slid off and sunk in about ten minutes. The crew saved the dories and part of the trolls, and were taken aboard a passing schooner. The vessel was valued at $3000 and owned by G. T. Vaughan of this city, and Richard Seaward, Horace Seaward, Daniel Frisbee, Oliver Wilson and Joseph Bailey of Kittery. There was no insurance.

There is to be a masquerade at Congress Hall this (Tuesday) evening, as a wind-up to the series of weekly dances which has been held there during the winter.

Readables.

The President has nominated Judge Morrison R. Waite of Ohio for Chief Justice, as we learn by telegraph.

A dispatch from San Francisco states that two slight shocks of earthquake were experienced there on Monday.

Schooner Isaac Rich, of Salem, has been picked up at sea, having been abandoned by her crew.

A railway viaduct at Toquella, Spain, fell on Saturday, killing 3 workmen.

An ex-Chief of the Nashua Fire Department speaking thus, would seem to indicate festive doings among the red shirts of that city: First—"There is no need of diabolical whistling of the machines during a fire." Second—"Steam whistles, like the forge, should not be blown unless the fire is in their vicinity, because it confuses the firemen." Third—"He objects to the unnecessary way in which the firemen wet the citizens."

The Indians at Vermillion Lake, Minn., are dying of starvation. They have eaten two children and and one man. The scarcity of game and the failure of the wild rice crops are the causes. They claim that the government failed to send the usual supply of provisions.

The political troubles in Texas are still unsettled. Governor Davis has applied to the Attorney-General at Washington for military aid, and has been refused. Governor Cooke has addressed a letter to Davis requesting him to yield the executive office of State, with the property pertaining thereto, and has received in reply a proposition to submit the question of legitimacy to the President, which proposal Cooke declines, declaring himself the legally constituted executive.

According to "Zadkiel's Almanac," published by a London astrologer, there will be trouble for President Grant soon. It says the sun enters Aries at Washington 1 hour, 52 minutes, 59 second P. M., on the 20th of March, when the right ascension of the M. C. will be 1 hour 44 minutes, 32 seconds, and Leo 9 degrees will be rising. We find Mars on the very cusp of the tenth house, indicating great grief to the ruler, or President, who will be subject to some sudden accident, or injury. There will be conspiracies existing against him, and much mischief arising from the press, which will be at deadeounity to the power of the President. Let great care be taken to guard against fire at the White House. Accidents of a strange nature will abound throughout the States, and much opposition will be shown to the collection of the taxes. As there is a fixed sign ascending, these evils and troublesome influences will have power all through the year, till March, 1875. It will be a year of some discord and many troubles to the United States.

Profitable Farming.

Mr. Joseph Day of Wenham some years ago bought a small farm containing a cedar swamp of three acres. The value of swamp was reckoned at $50 an acre, about the value of the wood on it. It was connected with a pond whose surface was but a little below that of the swamp. A thinking, industrious man, Mr. Day believed he might make this swamp, apparently of no value, a source of great profit, and about ten years ago laid his plans accordingly. He worked at his trade as shoemaker in the forenoon and spent the afternoon on his land, as much as possible on the swamp. He first cut off the wood, selling it for $40 an acre. He then lowered the outlet of the pond so as to bring its surface seven feet below the swamp and cut ditches through it to drain it thoroughly. He dug out the stumps of trees, many of them the remains of trees cut off years ago, and thus secured wood enough to last his family for years. He cut off two feet of mud, making about six hundred cords to the acre, which he sold for $1.50 a cord, or at a rate of $2700 for the three acres. Some of the mud he burned with pieces of stump, and sold for $5 a cord. After the mud was removed he planted cranberry vines, and this year took off three and a half bushels to the rod, selling them for $4 a bushel, or at the rate of over $2000 an acre. The mud has not been as yet all removed, and but a small part planted with cranberry vines, but next spring he will plant an acre, and in two or three years meadow. He has so far sold to the amount of $2000, mainly from the mud. When done he expects an annual income of $6000 from the cranberries.

—There is but one baby in a newly made Oregon town, and the neighbors take turns borrowing it.

—The alligator tracks in Florida are said to be fast disappearing now that General Spinner's chirography is on the way there.

—A church fair device in Troy rather knocks the mock-marriage chip off Talmage's shoulder. A ragged colored man and woman entered the crowded rooms and pleaded for alms. They said they were starving, and their plight touched the hearts and wallets of the crowd. After collecting a good sum of money, the colored couple wiped the burnt cork from their faces, and two of the pillars of the church were revealed.

CRUMBS

Are a modern stove polish, far better than any other in existence. OF Are better because they give a finer gloss than any other polish.

COMFORT

Yields a brilliant silvery sheen, with less than half the labor required when other polishes are used.

CRUMBS

Are a neat and cleanly article, making no dirt nor dust when used. OF Can be used even in the parlor without the trouble of removing furniture or carpets.

COMFORT

Has no disagreeable sulphurous or strong acid smell when prepared for use, but are pleasant and harmless.

CRUMBS

Are put up in a style and in a form more convenient for use than any other polish. OF In each box are 12 sticks; 1 stick is sufficient for any stove. thus all waste is saved.

COMFORT

Are the cheapest polish in the market, because one box at 10 cents will polish as much surface as 25 cents' worth of the old polish.

CRUMBS

Have just taken the 1st premium at the Indianapolis Exposition. OF In competition with several of the best of old stove polishes.

COMFORT

BUT CRUMBS OF COMFORT of your storekeeper, if he has them, or will procure them for you; if not, send us one dollar, your name, and the name of your nearest express station, and we will send you ten boxes, and samples of Bartlett's Blacking and Pearl Bluing, free of cost.

CRUMBS OF COMFORT can be had of all Wholesale Grocers and Dealers in the United States, and Retail Dealers will find them the most profitable, from the fact that they are the fastest selling article on the kind in the market.

'73 REUNION.

THE "HISTORY OF THE RETURN OF THE SONS & DAUGHTERS OF PORTSMOUTH, JULY, 1873," is just published. It contains 96 pages, octavo, and is a thorough detail of everything relating to the three Festal Days,

The Reunion, July 4th,
High School Reunion, 5th,
The Praise Meeting, 6th;

and containing a

Verbatim Report

of every speech that was uttered at the Tent on the 4th and 5th, besides giving a full report of all the Reunion preliminary movements in Portsmouth, Boston and New York. Much of the matter of this work has never yet appeared in any form, and we think it will prove interesting to all who participated in the Three Days' Jubilee.

The work is for sale at the Chronicle Office, J. H. Foster's Bookstore, and at Wm. R. Preston's.

AYER'S HAIR VIGOR,

FOR RESTORING GRAY HAIR

TO ITS NATURAL VITALITY AND COLOR.

Advancing years, sickness, care, disappointment, and hereditary predisposition, all turn the hair gray, and either of them incline it to shed prematurely.

AYER'S HAIR VIGOR, by long and extensive use, has proven that it stops the falling of the hair immediately; often renews the growth, and always surely restores its color when faded or gray. It stimulates the nutritive organs to healthy activity, and preserves both the hair and its beauty. Thus brushy, weak or sickly hair becomes glossy, pliable and strengthened; lost hair re-grows with lively expression; falling hair is checked and established; thin hair thickens; and faded or gray hair resumes its original color. Its operation is sure and harmless. It cures dandruff, heals all humors, and keeps the scalp cool, clean and soft—under which conditions diseases of the scalp are impossible.

As a dressing for ladies' hair, the VIGOR is praised for its grateful and agreeable perfume, and valued for the soft lustre and richness of tone it imparts.

FOURTH GRAND GIFT CONCERT

FOR THE BENEFIT OF THE

Public Library of Ky.

OVER A MILION IN BANK!

SUCCESS ASSURED!

Full Drawing Certain

On Tuesday, 31st of March Next.

In order to meet the general wish and expectation of the public and the ticket-holders for the full payment of the magnificent gifts, announced for the Fourth Grand Gift Concert of the Public Library of Kentucky, the management have determined to postpone the Concert and Drawing until

Tuesday, March 31st, 1874.

They have already realized

OVER A MILLION DOLLARS,

And have a great many agents to hear from.

No doubt is entertained of the sale of every ticket before the drawing, but whether all are sold or not, the Concert and Drawing will positively and unequivocally take place on the day now fixed, and if any remain unsold they will be cancelled and the prizes will be reduced in proportion to the unsold tickets.

Only 60,000 tickets have been issued and

12,000 CASH GIFTS,

$1,500,000,

will be distributed among the ticket-holders.

The tickets (we print in coupons, of tenths, and all fractional parts will be represented in the drawing just as whole tickets are.

LIST OF GIFTS:

ONE GRAND CASH GIFT			$250,000
ONE GRAND CASH GIFT			100,000
ONE GRAND CASH GIFT			50,000
ONE GRAND CASH GIFT			25,000

11,000 CASH GIFTS	50	each	550,000
TOTAL, 12,000 GIFTS. ALL CASH, amounting to			$1,500,000

The chances for a gift are as one to five.

PRICE OF TICKETS:

Whole tickets, $50; Halves, $25; Tenths, or cash Coupon, $5; Eleven Whole Tickets for $500; 26 Tickets for $1,000; 113 Whole Tickets for $5,000; 227 Whole Tickets for $10,000. No discount on less than $500 worth of Tickets at a time.

The Fourth Gift Concert will be conducted, in all respects, like the three which have already been given, and full particulars may be learned from circulars which will be sent free from this office to all who apply for them.

Orders for tickets and applications for agencies will be attended to in the order they are received, and it is hoped they will be sent in promptly, that there may be no disappointment or delay in filling them. Liberal terms given to those who may wish to sell again. All agents are peremptorily required to settle up their accounts and return all unsold tickets by the 20th of March.

How to be Polite.

Do not try to be too polite. Never overwhelm your friends by begging them to make themselves at home, or they will soon wish they were. Show by your actions rather than by your words that you are glad to see them. Have enough regard for yourself to treat your greatest enemy with politeness. All petty slights are merely meanness, and hurt yourself more than any one else.

Do not talk about your self or family to the exclusion of other topics. What if you are clever, and a little more so than any other people, it may not be that other folks will think so, whatever they ought to do.

It may be interesting to you to talk over your ailments, but very tiresome for others to listen to.

Make people think you consider them pleasant and agreeable and they will be pretty apt to have a pleasant impression of yourself.

Treat people just as you would have them treat you

It is much easier to lose the good opinion of other people than to retain it ; and when any one does not care for the good opinion of others, he is not worthy of respect.

Do not excuse the house, furniture, or the table you set before your guests. It is fair to suppose that their visits are to you, not to your surroundings.

The whole machinery of social intercourse is very intricate, and it is our business to keep all places of possible friction well supplied with the oil of politeness.

HALL'S VEGETABLE SICILIAN HAIR RENEWER!

This standard article is compounded with the greatest care.

Its effects are as wonderful and satisfactory as ever.

It restores gray or faded hair to its youthful color.

It removes all eruptions, itching and dandruff; and the scalp, by its use, becomes white and clean.

By its tonic properties, it restores the capillary glands to their normal vigor, preventing baldness and making the hair grow thick and strong.

As a dressing, nothing has been found so effectual or desirable.

Dr. A. A. Hayes, State Assayer of Massachusetts, says of it: "I consider it the best preparation for its intended purposes."

BUCKINGHAM'S DYE,

FOR THE WHISKERS.

This elegant preparation may be relied on to change the color of the beard from gray or any other undesirable shade to brown or black, at discretion. It is easily applied, being in one preparation, and quickly and effectually produces a permanent color, which will neither rub nor wash off.

IRON IN THE BLOOD.

DYSPEPSIA, DEBILITY, DROPSY AND HUMORS.

PERUVIAN SYRUP

Makes The Weak Strong.

The Peruvian Syrup, a Protected Solution of the Protoxide of Iron, is so combined as to have the character of an ailment, as easily digested and assimilated with the blood as the simplest food. It increases the quantity of Nature's Own Vitalizing Agent, Iron in the blood, and cures "a thousand ills," simply by Toning up, Invigorating and Vitalizing the System. The enriched and vitalized blood permeates every part of the body, repairing damages and waste, searching out morbid secretions, and leaving nothing for disease to feed upon.

This is the secret of the wonderful success of this remedy in curing Dyspepsia, Liver Complaint, Dropsy, Chronic Diarrhœa, Boils, Nervous Affections, Chills and Fevers, Humors, Loss of Constitutional Vigor, Diseases of the Kidneys and Bladder, Female Complaints, and all diseases originating in a bad state of the blood, or accompanied by debility or a low system. Being free from Alcohol, in any form its energizing effects are not followed by corresponding reaction, but are permanent, infusing strength, vigor, and new life into all parts of the system, and building upon an Iron Constitution.

Thousands have been changed by the use of this remedy, from weak, sickly, suffering creatures to strong, healthy, and happy men and women; and invalids cannot reasonably hesitate to give it a trial.

See that each bottle has PERUVIAN SYRUP blown in the glass.

For Inventions, Trade Marks or Designs,

NO. 76 STATE ST., OPPOSITE KILBY ST., BOSTON.

After an extensive practice of upwards of thirty years, continues to secure patents in the United States; also in Great Britain, France and other foreign countries. Caveats, Specifications, Assignments, and all papers for Patents, executed on reasonable terms with dispatch. Researches made to determine the validity and utility of Patents of Inventions, and legal and other advice rendered in all matters touching the same. Copies of the claims of any patent furnished, by remitting one dollar. Assignments recorded in Washington.

No Agency in the United States possesses superior facilities for obtaining Patents or ascertaining the patentability of inventions.

All necessity for a journey to Washington to procure a Patent and the usual great delay there, are here saved inventors.

TESTIMONIALS.

"I regard Mr. Eddy as one of the most capable and successful practitioners with whom I have had official intercourse. CHARLES MASON, Commissioner of Patents."

"I have no hesitation in assuring inventors that they cannot employ a man more competent and trustworthy and more capable of putting their applications in a form to secure for them an early and favorable consideration at the Patent Office. EDMUND BURKE, Late Commissioner of Patents."

"MR. R. H. EDDY has made for me over THIRTY applications for Patents, having been successful in almost every case. Such unmistakable proof of great talent and ability on his part leads me to recommend ALL inventors to apply to him to procure their Patents, as they may be sure of having the most faithful attention bestowed on their cases and at very reasonable charges. COAL.

HAVING contracted for a quantity of the above coal, we would call the attention of Manufacturers, Dealers and Consumers to the following different grades mined and controlled by the Company:

HARD WHITE ASH COAL,
FREE BURNING WHITE ASH COAL,
SHAMOKIN WHITE ASH COAL,
SHAMOKIN RED ASH COAL,
NORTH FRANKLIN COAL,
LYKENS VALLEY COAL.

In order that all coal shall be shipped in good order, a most rigid system of inspection, both at the mines and at the shipping ports, will at all times be enforced. In every district of the coal region there will be appointed a number of competent persons skilled in the preparation of coal, as local inspectors, whose duty it will be to visit the several collieries daily to see that a proper force is at all times employed in removing slate, and to prevent, if possible, any coal being sent from the mines in bad order. In addition to these efforts at prevention, no means will be left untried at the shipping ports to cure the evils of careless preparation. At Schuylkill Haven, Port Clinton and Port Richmond, ALL COAL WILL BE SUBJECTED TO THE PERSONAL EXAMINATION OF A SKILLED INSPECTOR BEFORE IT IS SHIPPED, and if condemned by him, will be dumped in places provided for the purpose, and before being loaded into vessels WILL BE THOROUGHLY REPICKED AND CLEANED BY HAND.

We keep a fine stock of the above coal on hand, also

PROSPECTUS FOR 1874—SEVENTH YEAR.

THE ALDINE,

An illustrated Monthly Journal, universally admitted to be the handsomest Periodical in the world. A Representative and Champion of American Taste.

NOT FOR SALE IN BOOK OR NEWS STORES.

THE ALDINE, while issued with all the regularity, has none of the temporary or timely interest characteristic of ordinary periodicals. It is an elegant miscellany of art, literature, and graceful literature; and a collection of pictures, the rarest specimens of artistic skill, in black and white. Although each succeeding number affords a fresh pleasure to its friends, the real value and beauty of THE ALDINE will be most appreciated after it has been bound up at the close of the year. While other publications may claim superior cheapness, as compared with rivals of a similar class, THE ALDINE is a unique and original conception—alone and unapproached—this lately will bout competition in price or character. The possessor of a complete volume cannot duplicate the quantity of fine paper and engravings in any other shape or number of volumes FOR TEN TIMES ITS COST; AND THEN, THERE ARE THE CHROMOS, BESIDE!

ART DEPARTMENT, 1874.

The illustrations of THE ALDINE have won a world-wide reputation, and in the art centres of Europe it is an admitted fact that its wood cuts are examples of the highest perfection ever attained. The common prejudice in favor of "steel plates," is rapidly yielding to a more educated and discriminating taste which recognizes the advantages of superior artistic quality with greater facility of production. The wood-cut is of THE ALDINE possessed all the delicacy and elaborate finish of the most costly steel plate, while they afford a better rendering of the artist's original.

In addition to designs by the members of the National Academy, and other noted American artists, THE ALDINE will reproduce examples of the best foreign works, selected with a view to the highest artistic success and greatest general interest. Thus the subscriber to THE ALDINE will, at a trifling cost, enjoy in his own home the pleasures and refining influences of true art.

The Christmas issue for 1874 will contain special designs appropriate to the season, by our best artists, and will surpass in attractions any of its predecessors.

PREMIUM FOR 1874.

Every subscriber to THE ALDINE for the year 1874 will receive a pair of chromos. The original pictures were painted in oil for the publishers of THE ALDINE, by Thomas Moran, whose great Colorado picture was purchased by Congress for ten thousand dollars. The subjects were chosen to represent "The East" and "The West." One is a view in The White Mountains, New Hampshire; the other gives The Cliffs of Green River, Wyoming Territory.

If any subscriber should indicate a preference for a figure subject the publishers will send "Thoughts of Home," a new and beautiful chromo, 14x 20 inches, representing a little Italian exile whose speaking eyes betray the longings of his heart.

TERMS.

$5 per annum, in advance, with Oil Chromos free.

For 50 CENTS EXTRA, the chromos will be sent, mounted, varnished, and prepaid by mail.

THE ALDINE will, hereafter, be obtainable only by subscription. There will be no reduced or club rate; cash for subscriptions must be sent to the publishers, and no agent or house to the trade will be responsible to the publishers, except in cases where the certificate is given, bearing the fac-simile signature of JAMES SUTTON & CO.

The Country Gentleman.

Volume for 1874.

THE CULTIVATOR & COUNTRY GENTLEMAN, for the past forty years, has ranked, both in this country and abroad, as the STANDARD JOURNAL OF AMERICAN AGRICULTURE. The Editors and Proprietors, in addition to their own personal labors, are regularly assisted by a very large number of Special Correspondents and Regular Contributors, among whom are included many of the Leading Agricultists, in all parts of the Country, East and West—and by over Five Hundred Occasional and Voluntary Writers, directly in the work of the Rural Profession, and intelligent tourists of nearly every State in the Union. With the co-operation of so large a corps of practical men, this Journal is intended to possess exceptional value as the chosen Medium of Intercommunication among all classes interested in the Products and Fertility of the Soil—those who Cultivate and those who Consume—the Buyer and Shipper, as well as the first Owner of the crop—Breeders of Improved Animals and their Patrons—Manufacturers of Improved Machinery and those who purchase and employ it—Nurserymen and Fruit Raisers—and, especially, to supply fuller and better data as to the progress, prospects and returns of each successive Season, as throwing light upon one of the most important of all questions—When to Buy and when to Sell.

TERMS.—The COUNTRY GENTLEMAN is published weekly, on the following terms when paid strictly in advance: ONE COPY, one year, $2.50; Four Copies, $8; $10, and an additional copy for the year free to the sender of the Club; TEN COPIES, $20, and an additional copy for the year free to the sender of the Club.

WISTAR'S BALSAM OF WILD CHERRY!

THE GREAT REMEDY FOR

CONSUMPTION!

And acknowledged by many prominent physicians to be the most Reliable Preparation ever introduced for the RELIEF and CURE of all

LUNG COMPLAINTS.

This well known remedy is offered to the public sanctioned by the experience of over forty years, and when resorted to in season seldom fails to effect a speedy cure of

COUGHS, COLDS, CROUP, BRONCHITIS, INFLUENZA, WHOOPING COUGH, HOARSENESS, PAINS OR SORENESS IN THE CHEST OR SIDE, BLEEDING AT THE LUNGS, LIVER COMPLAINTS, &c.

CONSUMPTION CAN BE CURED

By a timely resort to this standard remedy, as is proved by hundreds of testimonials received by the proprietors.

Dr. Wistar's Balsam of Wild Cherry

Does not dry up a Cough and leave the cause behind as is the case with most preparations, but it loosens and cleanses the lungs and allays irritation, thus removing the cause of the complaint.

CLERGYMEN, LAWYERS, SINGERS,

And all those whose occupation requires an unusual exercise of the vocal organs, will find this the ONLY PREPARATION which will effectually and instantaneously relieve their difficulties.

BEWARE OF COUNTERFEITS.—Remember that the genuine Wistar's Balsam has on the outside wrapper the signature of "I. BUTTS," and the printed name of the proprietors, "SETH W. FOWLE & SONS, BOSTON." All others are base imitations. Examine the wrapper carefully before purchasing.

$1 PER BOTTLE. SIX BOTTLES, $5.

PREPARED BY

SETH W. FOWLE & SONS,

No. 1 MILTON PLACE,

BOSTON, MASS.

And sold by Druggists and Dealers generally.
